ANTI-REDS IN DEMILITARIZED ZONE RIOT

Former Egyptian Premier To Die For Royalist Plot

Ex-Employee of Britain Also Sentenced by Court

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's special revolutionary court today sentenced former premier Ibrahim Abdel Hadi and an Egyptian forester, employed by Britain to be hanged for treason and plotting with an unidentified foreign power to restore ex-king Farouk to the throne.

Hadi, 57-year-old Saadist party leader, was sentenced after a secret trial. Ahmed Hussein, the second defendant, Ahmad Mohamed Awad, lasted two hours and was hanged secretly after the sentencing of Hadi.

Awad, an electrician, formerly was employed by the British garrison which Egypt forced to expel from the Suez canal zone.

First Of 24

They were the first of some 24 persons scheduled to be arraigned by the special tribunal on similar charges.

The court also ordered the confiscation of Hadi's $1,250,000 of Hadi's assets—most of his holdings.

There is no appeal from the sentences, but they are subject to the approval of Egypt's revolutionary council which has held government power since it ousted Farouk 14 months ago.

Fewer Not Named

Although Hadi was charged with "conspiracy with a foreign power to undermine Egypt's security," the foreign power has never been officially identified in public. During his trial, key witnesses concerning the alleged plot was heard only in secret and the court's finding named only that he had been found guilty on six counts. The first was the conspiracy charge.

Sources, all unofficial, variously identified the plotting power as Britain, the Soviet Union or "an eastern Mediterranean country."

Hadi was a member of Egypt's cabinet, also was accused of course dating from the Palestine war.

Observers saw awaiting trial are former Wafdist premier Mustafa el Nahas, his son, Fuad, and former prince Abbas Halim, a cousin of Farouk's.

2 WINDSOR BOYS FOUND DEAD IN OLD ICE BOX

Entombed Four Hours Before Being Found

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two little, blonde-haired boys, their features stained faces among the agony of being entombed for several hours, were found dead Wednesday night in a discarded ice box.

The two inseparable pals, both 4, were Andrew Strachan and Harold Cooney.

Their parents and neighbors had searched for more than four hours before the ice box, stored in a ramshackle shed near their homes, was opened to reveal the tragedy.

Their contorted faces showed they became hysterical with fright and pain before gasping into unconsciousness.

Mrs. Muriel Strachan, mother of Andrew, started the search when she noticed the boys had disappeared from the back door to the back yard. They had gone out to play after lunch at their home.

House. "They were great friends. One day they eat here and the next day they eat at Cooney's."

Started To Worry

The grief-stricken mother said neighbors after they disappeared she started to worry that they might have suffered the same fate that has befallen at least 24 children who suffocated in ice boxes in Canada and the United States during the last four months.

During the hours, several adults passed near the shack where the boys died. Later, Mrs. R. N. Pilon said she left the house next to the shed, recalled that her dog had attracted attention racing to the corner of the yard nearest the shed and barking.

Radio Called

When her daughter, Judy, 10, returned from school, Mrs. Pilon sent her to look in the shed. Judy investigated but did not think to open the ice box.

Later police were called. Mr. Strachan, a factory worker who came to Canada 20 years ago from England with his wife, Andrew, and another son, Edward, 10, left his job to join the search.

Mrs. Strachan, a digital bunch, Mrs. Strachan and Mrs. Charles Cooney, mother of the other tiny victim, were among the neighbor houses so ask if any neighbor had seen the boys and opened drawers in which the boys may have been trapped.

He was not acquainted with the three families that live at the house in which the boys died.

But at supper time, she asked a neighbor, Edward Crawford, to look in the shed. It was he who found the two lifeless bodies sitting side-by-side in the ice box.

"I touched one of the boys", Mr. Crawford said. "He was cold."

Mr. Cooney, also a factory worker, picked his son up in his arms and knelt in prayer.

Korean Question Is Placed At Bottom of UN Agenda

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) United Nations delegates looked today for still more Communist maneuvers to wreck the assembly debate on the Korean peace conference make-up.

The assembly's political committee refused Wednesday night to take up Korea at once and instead put the question at the bottom of its seven-point work program.

Delegates freely predicted, however, that new calls would be coming from Communist China or North Korea in the wake of an Australian amendment, adopted over United States objections and providing that a simple majority vote of the committee could put the Korean debate priority if developments warranted.

Expect New Moscow

The committee adjourned until next Wednesday, with many members expecting new messages from the Asian Reds renewing demands for the inclusion of Asian neutrals in the Korean conference line-up. They figured any such Peiping-Pyongyang communications would give Soviet delegate Andrei Y. Vishinsky the platform on which to say the debate had become necessary.

Vishinsky had warned early on Wednesday's long wrangling that Moscow's patience was wearing ill. He settled, "there is a possibility the conference might not even begin." He also had termed the peace conference an urgent question, which U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge later replied.

If the 53 nations consider the peace conference an urgent matter, then let them get on with it. They can meet with the envoy we have already invited to any one of three places (Geneva, San Francisco or Honolulu) to discuss the time and place for the conference."

The Korean armistice calls for the conference to begin on or before Oct. 28. To the U. S. offer to talk about time and place, the Communists have replied only indirectly—with the demand to the Political Committee.

The assembly voted last month that the conference should be a two-sided negotiation by belligerents. The Western allies say the conference, after it meets, can take up the question of neutrals.

Agenda Decided

The committee voted to take up the Arab-Asian charges against France's administration of Morocco when it comes back to work next week. The remainder will be killed and the United States abstaining, provides for this order of business. Australia disturbs Communist complaints that the U. S. waged germ warfare in Korea; Ethiopia's charge that Nationalist Chinese guerrillas are Communist-trained; tension on the borders; disarmament; the omnibus Soviet peace proposals; and the Korean situation.

The Soviet bloc and Yugoslavia voted against this order.

Govt. to Broaden Supply Mortgage Money for Housing

OTTAWA (CP)—Legislation to increase and broaden the supply of mortgage money for new housing will be substituted to Parliament when it meets next month, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced today.

The prime minister said in a statement that new measures will include enabling insurance and capital mortgage insurance and enable chartered banks as well as other financial institutions, to lend on insured home mortgages.

Chartered banks now may make only short-term loans.

Mr. St. Laurent said the government feels present sources of mortgage money are insufficient to keep pace with current needs. Though residential construction this year is at the highest level ever achieved. Canada's population is continuing to grow.

The government will propose amendments to the National Housing Act which will empower Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a Crown company, to establish a system of insuring holders of new residential mortgages against loss in return for an appropriate insurance premium.

Malenkov Govt. Puts Foreign Affairs in Secondary Place

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

MOSCOW (AP)—The government of Premier Georgi Malenkov, throwing the Communist party behind the gigantic task of raising significantly Russia's standard of living, has relegated foreign affairs gently to so deeply wrapped up in its domestic problems that foreign affairs seem distinctly relegated to second place.

The impression is unescapable that, to the Kremlin, foreign affairs is a matter of secondary importance, some aspect of government at this moment.

Not only did the new Soviet reply to the West's bid for German-Austrian talks appear without fanfare of any kind, but publication also was delayed a full day. When it came, there was no editorial comment.

Not Too Interested

Diplomats here feel that the Russian leaders are not too interested, either, at this moment in the four-power meeting first proposed by British Prime Minister Churchill and now urged by the Americans. The observers think preoccupation with the domestic program has taken precedence over all other activities.

In the forefront of this program is an agricultural campaign whereby the Malenkov government hopes it intends to greatly widen the distribution of consumers goods by the fruits of farm agricultural base. The government feels that this, hand in hand with the industrial base, will not only establish the reputation of the regime but will also enhance the U. S. S. R.'s international authority.

Instead of giving chief prominence to its latest Soviet note, as they would have with Russia, newspapers merely printed the text on their second pages. Editorials and special articles were concerned entirely with the domestic program.

Pravda Editorial

Pravda's editorial said raising the productivity of labor was the most important condition for lowering of products, and called for widespread socialist competition to help achieve this goal in all fields.

Meanwhile, the campaign to persuade technicians and specialists to head for the fields continues full blast.

Agriculture Minister I. A. Benediktov pointed out recently that the Soviet Union has 350,000 agricultural specialists from higher and middle schools, but only 70,000 on the farms: The rest apparently are holding desk jobs and the like.

TAFT-HARTLEY LAW INVOKED IN DOCK STRIKE

Eisenhower Takes Step As Shipping Paralyzed

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today invoked the Taft-Hartley law in a move to halt the paralyzing east coast dock strike.

He declared the strike imperils the nation's welfare and appointed a three-man board of inquiry headed by David L. Cole, former director of the federal conciliation and mediation service.

Eisenhower, in an executive order, directed the board to report to him by midnight Oct. 5.

These are preliminary steps to backing from the courts an order for an 80-day injunction.

Once the chief executive receives the board's report, he can direct the justice department to ask a court injunction to halt the strike for 80 days while attempts are made to reach an agreement. The board would then report to him by midnight Oct. 5.

The attorney-general longshoremen which began Wednesday midnight has paralyzed shipping on the coast from Maine to Virginia.

The Taft-Hartley law authorizes the government to intervene in cases where the president finds that a strike imperils national health and safety.

Wednesday night the vast New York waterfront was a beehive of activity. Longshoremen worked at their piers to get several dozen ships loaded and out of the world's largest harbor before the strike deadline of midnight.

Arms Unaffected

Cargo for American armed forces abroad will not be affected.

The strike was ordered by the independent International Longshoremen's Association, locked in a jurisdictional dispute with the New York Shipping Association and facing an all-out struggle with a new rival, the American Labor Union AFL.

The AFL ousted the ILA for failing to get rid of suspected Red elements.

A strike along the United States north Atlantic seaboard means an estimated loss of $1,500,000 daily, and directly and indirectly will affect 800,000 workers holding jobs in the ports and in transportation.

In 1951, a wildcat ILA strike crippled shipping for 25 days and tied up $200 million of foodstuffs and cargo.

Involved 12 Ports

The new walkout involves 12 eastern seaboard cities—New York, Albany, Boston, Providence, R.I., New London, New Haven and Bridgeport, Conn., Philadelphia, Del., Philadelphia and Chester, Pa., Baltimore and Hampton Roads.

Patrick J. Gorman, ILA executive vice president, said ILA locals in southern Atlantic ports will defy the injunction in Tampa, Fla., headed prod not to unload any cargoes diverted from Baltimore and Boston ports.

However, Halifax longshore officials said cargoes would be handled as required by their contract.

Supermarket Soon Will Operate Where Chaplin Strutted to Fame

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Charlie Chaplin has sold the studio where he strutted to film fame as a tramp.

A New York real estate firm has bought the nearly-five-acre property for $650,000 cash. On part of the Chaplin studio lot Sunset Boulevard a major supermarket will be built.

Demolitions are on for lease of the two sound stages for making movies.

Chaplin built the studio in 1918 for $35,000. The first film he made there was "A Dog's Life," featuring a large mutt, acquired for the role, which lived out the rest of its 16 years at the studio.

Other movies that followed on the site included "Shoulder Arms," "The Kid," "A Woman of Paris," "The Gold Rush," "The Circus," "City Lights," "Modern Times," "The Great Dictator," "Mr. Verdoux" and, more recently, "Limelight."

The studio, built in the cottage style of Charlie's native England, became a Hollywood showplace. Visitors included Winston Churchill and others.

The studio's single stage is filmed films had a glass roof with cloth screens overhead to regulate sunlight. Today it has a dirt outdoor shooting area.

The comedian-producer said he planned last April that he was giving up residence in the United States because "vicious and vicious propaganda" handicapped his film work.

He is living in Switzerland with his fourth wife, playwright Eugene O'Neill's daughter Oona, and their children.

Chaplin 64, lived in the U.S. 40 years without applying for citizenship.

Indian Guards Kill Prisoner, Wound Six In Compound

Polish and Czech Members Of Commission Attacked

By MILO FARNEXI

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Indian guards killed one anti-Communist war prisoner and wounded six others today in breaking up a screaming, rock-throwing demonstration in a compound and hospital in the demilitarized zone, the United Nations command said tonight.

An Indian spokesman acknowledged that there had been a disturbance and said some Indian soldiers were hurt. The spokesman said he could not confirm that one prisoner was killed and six injured.

An Allied spokesman said the demonstration began in a hospital in Polish and Czechoslovak members of the repatriation commission made an inspection tour. Both Poland and Czechoslovakia are Russian satellites.

About 500 anti-Communist Korean prisoners in a compound adjoining the hospital demonstrated and broke up the demonstration with guns and clubs, the Allied spokesman said.

"They killed one prisoner and injured five others," he said.

One May Die

A sixth prisoner was wounded later, so seriously that he may die, when the demonstration presumably broke out again, he reported.

The UN command refused to say where it obtained its information, but the spokesman said the report "is reliable." Information could have come from Allied soldiers delivering supplies to the Indian guards or from one of the neutral nations.

"The Allied spokesman said that as far as he knew, no Red Chinese or Red Korean compounds took up the demonstration.

The demonstration was the second by anti-Communist prisoners within a week. Guards forcibly seized an Indian major and held him hostage 1½ hours after Indian troops broke up a riot of Chinese captive to the Communists.

There is a repatriation commission, meanwhile, put the finishing touches on the answer to a UN command protest that it distributed a letter, allegedly Communist inspired, to anti-Red Korean prisoners.

An Indian spokesman said the first draft of the reply, prepared by the commission—was somehow distributed to the POWs instead of the final approved version.

Claim Letter Pre-Red

The UN command said the letter was falsely Communist and clearly emphasized that baby prisoners should return home with their mothers.

Because of the delays, India, which heads the repatriation commission, has asked the UN command to extend the time limit.

Eden, Churchill Confer Thursday After Vacations

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden conferred with Prime Minister Churchill for an hour and a half today, then went back to his desk for the first time in six months.

The 56-year-old foreign secretary strode into 10 Downing street looking fit and well for his first meeting with Churchill in a month.

A foreign office spokesman said Eden resumed his duties as foreign secretary, but that Lord Salisbury, who acted for Eden during his illness, will also carry on for the time being.

Eden and the 79-year-old prime minister flew back to London separately yesterday from Mediterranean vacations that apparently restored them to good shape after long illnesses.

Churchill, who has called a meeting of the cabinet for Friday, is expected to announce some changes in the government within the next month or two. Nature of those changes will depend largely on whether his own health and Eden's stands up to the strain of office.

Eden lunched today with William Knowland, leader of the Republicans in the United States Senate. Knowland is winding up a tour he made of the Far East.

Canada's Health Story of Year' Is Use of Serum to Fight Polio

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Martin today said gamma globulin, a serum used in the polio-myelitis epidemic this year, is Canada's health story of the year.

He said preliminary figures of 214 cases of polio in Canada to date seem to indicate that this year's outbreak of polio—particularly in the Yukon—may prove to be one of the most serious on record.

In an address prepared for the annual meeting of the Canadian Public Health Association, Mr. Martin said production and distribution of gamma globulin during the epidemic "is an outstanding illustration of effective cooperation and a tribute to the nation's public health workers."

"To meet an emergency situation the federal government granted more than $150,000 to assist in the production of gamma globulin. Detailed plans have also been worked out to ensure considerably increased production in 1954.

Mr. Martin warned against "undue optimism" over reports of the serum's success. "Polio is a paralysis which may follow an attack of polio, it is the only known preventative.

He said public health and research experts agreed last January that "while final judgment could be reserved until more facts were known, every effort should be made to increase the supply of gamma globulin."

With funds from the national health grants program, laboratory facilities were established at the Connaught medical research laboratories in Toronto, which "worked night and day to produce the limited quantities of gamma globulin."

He said "truly remarkable results" were achieved in producing about 25,000 average doses of the serum. An advisory committee of federal and provincial health officials and of university medical research centres allocated it to areas where polio reached epidemic proportions.

"Our working women want to look nice with only a little trouble in the morning."

Capt. A. Duffy Given New Post

Twenty-three years ago, when Alderman Angus Duffy enlisted, he was a cadet in the headquarters company of the infantry battalion.

Little did he realize that at some future date he would be given command of the company.

That is what happened a few days ago, when Captain Angus Duffy, former overseas regimental sergeant major of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, was named to the command of the H.Q. company of the unit.

He succeeds Major Fred Lazier, another veteran of the regiment, who is retiring from active duty.

Associated with Captain Duffy is Company Sergeant Major Blackie Simpson, former overseas regimental sergeant major of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, who was named to the command of the H.Q. company of the unit.

Associated with Captain Duffy is Company Sergeant Major Blackie Simpson, former overseas regimental sergeant major of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, who was transferred from the support company of the regiment to the C.S.M. troop with Captain Duffy in the signal platoon back in 1937. He was succeeded by the company sergeant major of the regiment left in 1939 but joined the unit the next year, left for overseas on the first draft and returned to Canada with the rank of sergeant.

Last night headquarters company did a route march exercise to the Oak Lake district. The men were given a hot dog and wiener roast held in a gravel pit. It was followed by the company commander.

Lieut. Colonel R. H. Widgett, commanding officer and RSM. Stanley Downes drove to the scene of the festivities and enjoyed the "roast" with the troops.

Industrial Promotion On Municipal Level Outdated District Conference Is Told

Industrial promotion on a strictly municipal level is outdated, 22 delegates to the first Industrial Promotion Conference were told at a business session in Belleville's city hall Tuesday afternoon.

An increasingly mobile labor force and the expansion of communities beyond their corporate limits with the resultant urbanization of county areas has led to the development of industrial promotion on an area basis, said J. E. Turnbull, Municipal Division, Trade and Industry branch of the Department of Planning and Development of Ontario.

Delegates attended the meeting from Trenton, Picton, Napanee, Napanee, Tweed, Picton and Wellington.

Mr. Turnbull stated that his department nedded the active participation of the municipalities in Ontario was to be sold industrially.

"A common sense application of salesmanship we are successfully selling Ontario as an industrial story about Ontario," he said.

Decentralization Accelerating

Mr. Turnbull pointed out that the trend for the past few years is decentralization of industry has been accelerating in Ontario.

"Belleville has discovered that it is not essential to access to all its facilities in the market. It is known now that a small town offers many of the advantages and the employee in the way of good living than the large city."

"Ontario's future industrial expansion will continue. War production is truly a small part of our industry. The major automotive producers will all have doubled their capacity in the next few years, giving you some idea of their faith in Ontario's future growth," he said.

"Expansion of established industries accounts for 60 per cent of our industrial growth each year, whether that plant expands at its present or a new location. New industry is only 10 per cent of our yearly increase."

Delegates were told that the Department of Planning and Development, as well as the industrial development branches of banks and railways, can offer specialized assistance to communities but that the basic responsibility for the industrial development of any area depends on the selling job, which the communities do for themselves.

All Information

It was suggested that the municipalities should have all information concerning its services, taxation, potential labor force, housing, transportation facilities, and services available to inform prospective industries. This "in-anyone else.

Industrial Area Suggested

A suggestion by Belleville industrial commissioner Ross Ford, Jack Lundberg and Jack Cook.

Belleville Area Suggested

Mr. Turnbull pointed out that Belleville and Trenton are the two largest centres in the area and suggested that the Belleville industrial commission should take what amounts to a permanent option on available land, the most part are desirable, and industry likes it much better when it sees where its money is going."

It is very important that the municipality plan for the use of land for industrial development, the delegates were told. Like to Pay Own Way

Mr. Turnbull cautioned municipalities against offering new industry too much in grants and inducements to locate in its area because we have found they like to pay their own way," he said. "Municipal taxes and, for the most part are desirable, and industry likes it much better when it sees where its money is going."

Bevan, who has outward harmony between Attlee and Bevan. When Attlee rose to speak the delegates sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Tools, Tires, Cigarets Valued At $850 Taken in 2 Break-ins

Close to $850 worth of cigarets, tools and tires, were stolen from two garages in the Belleville area during the world war II theft break-ins at Cannifton and at Rossmore.

Provincial police stated that about $250 worth of goods had been taken at the Bayview Garage at Rossmore where $200 in cash, $50 worth of tools and four new tires were missing. At Canniiton at the Williams' garage, $200 worth of tools were stolen.

In both instances entry to the garages was gained by smashing windows in doors allowing locks to be released. At the Williams' garage, the office door was also forced but no cigarets or other merchandise was taken.

At Foxboro the Hopkins garage was entered by smashing the glass in the door. A check of the garage revealed nothing missing.

Today provincial police were of the opinion that all three break-ins had been made by the same party or parties.

Angry Texans Hunt Nude Negro As Woman Slain

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—A posse of about 400 angry Dallas residents, incensed by a series of attacks on white women by a nude Negro prowler, helped harvest police today in a search for the killer of a young mother.

The rape-slaying last night of Mrs. H. C. Parker, 29, blonde dime-store clerk, climaxed a series of terrifying and sometimes fatal attacks on white women by a prowler who has terrified Dallas for months.

Police said Mrs. Parker was literally "cut to pieces." Her throat was slashed deeply.

Police chief Carl Hassson has warned citizens to be careful of their aim. Husbands dug old shotguns and rifles out of trunks and closets. Women slept fitfully with lights on and rifles and shotguns by their beds. Guns were loaded with buckshot.

Police Looking For Assailant Of Archie Ward

City police are looking for an assailant, who, Wednesday night, administered an unmerciful beating to Archie Ward, 72 Station St., and robbed him of a reported $180.

Police found Ward on Front St., about midnight, near the four corners, with bloodied face and clothes and an examination at the hospital revealed he had a broken nose, facial cuts and a possible fracture of the left jaw bone. He was unable to tell police where the assault took place or by whom his assailant is.

Later police found a pool of blood in Zeller's store garage-way and believe the assault took place there. When picked up Police Officer Ward was a block south of Zeller's.

Governor Dewey Attacks Advocates Of Private Power

HORNELL, N.Y. (AP) — Governor Thomas E. Dewey pledged Wednesday night he would fight for state development of Niagara Falls power "as long as I am governor and as long after as I am able."

In a speech at a dinner here, Dewey attacked advocates of private power development as "the melecons" who "abandon their party platforms."

He said 180 public utilities were spending "more money than has ever been spent before in lobby" for a bill in Congress giving five companies the right to develop Niagara power "for their own private gain."

British Labor Denounces U.S.-Spain Defence Pact

By FRASER WIGHTON

MARGATE, England (Reuters) The British Labor party today denounced the new defence pact between the United States and Spain as a blow to "the community of nations united in defence of freedom and democracy."

Only two delegates to the party's annual conference swayed a revolutionary attacking the agreement signed last Saturday which give Spain military and economic aid in return for bases on Spanish soil.

The resolution contended the agreements would "bolster the Franco regime and inflict serious moral and political damage on the community of nations united in the defence of freedom and democracy."

Another resolution reaffirmed the party's opposition to the membership of Spain in the U.S. organization.

Earlier, party leader Clement Attlee said Labor will seek the neutralization of both Korea and China if Labor wins a "nationalist" stronghold of Formosa.

The Socialist prime minister said South Korean President Syngman Rhee seems to think "now is the opportunity to get the Chinese under him." But the Labor party wanted to see the Korean people decide for themselves whether there should be one Korea or two.

Neutralization Urged

"We believe the right thing should be neutralization for a term of years, if possible, of a united Korea, both in Britain to become an integral part of it.

Chinese regard as a pistol held against them," Attlee told the convention.

The Korean armistice, Attlee said, is only the first stage towards pacification in the Far East. Not to recognize the effective government of China was "absolutely ridiculous."

Other Points Made

Other points made by Attlee in his survey of Labor's policy towards the world's problems:

1. The government must make a full statement on what has happened to Prime Minister Churchill's call last May for four-power talks at the highest level. Having taken the initiative, it was "most regrettable" that the Churchill government has let slip "what might have been a great opportunity."

2. Labor deplores the "witch-hunting campaign" in the U.S., "but we must be careful not to have hysterical attacks on the United States."

3. The Labor party wants to see a united and Democratic Germany brought about by consent. The party pledges itself to make every effort to end the cold war and objects to any plan for the partition of Germany or East Europe.

"It would be a great mistake for us unless we are prepared to embark on another world war—to encourage any resistance," Attlee said in reference to recent reports of agitation in East Germany.

4. Labor supports economic integration in Europe, but does not want Britain to become an integral part of it.

SEEKING ASYLUM

BERLIN (AP) — East Germans again are seeking Western asylum in increasing numbers. West Berlin officials say an average of 600 refugees poured in daily during the past week. The rate reached a climax in March of 1,000 a day but dropped to only 300 to 400 a week for some time after the Communist regime in June promised a better life and more freedom for the East Germans.

162 Consumers Added By Hydro In Rural Area

The Ontario Hydro, since the first of the year has added 162 new power consumers and another mile-and-a-quarter of lines in the Belleville Rural Area, it was announced of the H.E.P.C., Oswald Scott said Sturday.

By December 31, 1952, 211.75 miles of wire was serving the rural area which included part of Sidney and all of Thurlow and Tyendinaga townships. There was a total of 2,940 consumers in the area at that date, a total of 162 new consumers added since the first of the year.

It is estimated that 88 per cent of farms in Ontario are electrified Mr. Scott declared. In the Belleville Rural Area's percentage is better than that. He said, most of the farms have electricity.

An Ontario Hydro release reveals that for the month of August almost 24½ times as many more customers in rural areas were served as by the end of the same period in 1945.

NEW TREATY

BONN (AP) — West Germany and the United States today started negotiating a new treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation. It will replace the 1923 German-American treaty which was declared void at the outbreak of the Second World War. This treaty was put int ceffect again last June by a bilateral completion of a new treaty.

Left Wing Group Of Labor Attacks U.S. Policies

MARGATE, England (AP) — Left-wing delegates to the Labor party conference here took the floor today to urge unsuccessfully that all demonstrations attacking various aspects of United States foreign policy.

One delegate, Mrs. N. Huggett, called for the withdrawal of all American forces from Europe, and said:

"I am against their Coca-Cola, comic books, and contraceptive influence in our life."

Bevan Fears War

The marked difference between Labor leader Clement Attlee's views and those of the party leaders regarding the U. S. was highlighted in a speech by Aneurin Bevan, the left-wing leader, at an unofficial party gathering Wednesday night. Bevan declared that the U. S. and British governments are making a "third world war" in order to restore the old economic and political patterns in Europe.

Bevan, who has outward harmony between Attlee and Bevan. When Attlee rose to speak the delegates sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Liberal Conference

Tom O'Brien, head of the cinema workers union and recently retired chairman of the Trades Union Congress, told the conference the labor movement is 100 per cent behind Churchill's call for four-power talks. He challenged the Conservatives who will meet in this same city in a week, to show whether they have their own prime minister on this issue.

IN MEMORIAM

BULPITT — In loving memory of a dear daughter, Madeline Bulpitt, who passed away suddenly six years ago today, October 1st, 1947.
Sometimes it's hard to understand
Why some things have to be,
But in God's wisdom He has planned
Beyond our powers to see.

God gave us only the gift to love,
And courage to bear the blow,
But when He called your name
He took more than we know.
Deeply mourned by her mother, sisters, Stanley and Gerald, and brothers, Wilfred, Frank and Bulpitt, and sister-in-law, Evelyn.

BULPITT — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Madeline Bulpitt, who passed away six years ago today, October 1st, 1947.
Gone, dear, gone forever!
Never to come back again.
Not you alone in memory we keep,
But every little thing you have done.

A happy home we once enjoyed,
How sweet, the memory dear,
But death has left a lonliness
That none can ever fill.
Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her husband Lloyd and son, Stanley and Gerald.

BULPITT — In loving memory of a daughter and sister, Madeline, who passed away six years ago today, October 1st, 1947.
Hearts are our hearts today,
Because your place was once more.
To the time when you were with us,
Dear Madeline, we shall be true.

Dearer still as years depart.
Nothing but love and deep regret.
With tender love and deep regret.
Sadly missed by her husband Lloyd and son, Stanley and Gerald. Inserted by mother Bulpitt and sisters-in-law, Mary and Mabel, brothers-in-law Charles and Alfred.

TORONTO (CP)—Prices were mixed with little change on a quiet market in forenoon stock trading today.

VIOLATED TERRITORY

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia claimed Wednesday night that Italian military planes violated Yugoslav air space three times Wednesday. The official radio reported the actions brought to 19 the number of such violations since late August when Italian troops were sent to the border after reports spread that Yugoslavia planned to annex the Trieste B zone.

Ex-Red Sees Man Who Makes Claim That He Is Beria

PARIS (Reuters)—Oregon Dubrodevsky, a former Soviet diplomat, today said he met and chatted for half an hour with the man who is believed Paris and a yacht off the French Riviera in large sign, but was not convinced of his identity.

Dubrodevsky, a senior member of the Russian embassy here until he sought political asylum in the West in 1949, made the statement in a copyright interview with the weekly France Dimanche.

He said the man he met on the 300-ton yacht sailed for a sworn statement from the ex-diplomat confirming his identity. Dubrodevsky said he refused because he was not convinced he was the wanted Soviet security minister.

The man claimed to have escaped from the Soviet Union by plane. He said he was making an inspection tour in the Caucasus. From Iran, he said, he flew to Switzerland and later boarded the yacht in Genoa.

PICTON

Level Crossings On Spur Line Rules Board

PICTON—That level crossings will be established in connection with the spur line of the C.N.R. being built from the main line west of Picton to the High Shore west of the town, is indicated in a report by the Railway Board at Ottawa. Investigation followed local representations which sought an overhead or an underpass, especially where the spur line crosses highway 14 between Picton and Bloomfield. Line will be used by the Marsarion Milling Corp., in moving from wet from Marmora to a point east of Picton for shipping by water.

The Picton Board report said that cost of two overhead crossings would be $30,000. It was felt level crossings will be adequate since there will be rail traffic over the spur line only four times each day, and there will be adequate warning signals.

Senator W. A. Fraser, Trenton, was largely responsible in getting the matter clarified and in obtaining an investigation into the situation.

Abbott Asks U.S. Not to Impose New Import Curbs

RICHMOND, Va. (CP) — Hon. Douglas Abbott, Canada's finance minister, today appealed to the United States not to impose any new import curbs against Canadian goods.

The Canadian security of the two countries has been strengthened by rejecting rather than removing restrictions on our trade," he said in a speech to the annual 69th annual Virginia world trade conference.

Prime Minister St. Laurent suggested to Harold but week that the U. S. help overcome the threat of a world depression by reducing its trade barriers and exercising leadership in solving the world's dollar problem.)

Canada's Aim

"As a Canadian, I feel that you here in the States should not place new restrictions on the purchases of goods from Canada and import," Mr. Abbott said.

"Instead, I hope anxious there it's more for just a matter of your government and mine are reducing the clashes of some particular interests to harmonious relations, considerations of national security—of undoubted importance—and versatile economy—must weigh heavily.

"I am sure our common security can be greatly strengthened by increasing the stable and high level of trade between our two countries and between North America and western Europe. That can be best achieved by relaxing rather than increasing restrictions on our trade."

Expands the Exports

Mr. Abbott, outlining Canada's trade problems said about one-quarter of Canadian income comes from export trade. One-quarter of her income is spend on imports.

Canada's U. S. imports were greater than her U. S. sales, but there was no call in Canada to abandon our traditional policies.

That was not a good way of carrying on business and produced "sweep practices and above protests."

Higher tariff duties were usually sought "as a substitute for real competitive endeavor" or showed that resources and men "are being employed in the wrong industry."

"... Sometimes I think that if the commerce of our countries were more powerfully organized, 'buy Canadian' would soon become a pretty powerful anti-restriction lobby."

Woman Tells Of Finding Body

HAMILTON (CP)—A Hamilton landlady, speaking through an interpreter, today testified how she found the body of a woman in the room of Harry Lafortune, 29, charged with murder in the strangulation death of 46-year-old Ann Alberta Sipes.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rakauskas, at whose home Lafortune had been living for a week, said she and her husband went to Lafortune's room after hearing noises on the night of May 29.

She said Lafortune came towards them and exclaimed: "Look, I'm not dressed." His face, hand and shirt appeared to be blood-stained.

The landlady said she switched on the light and found the half-naked, blood-stained body of a woman lying across the bed.

As she left the room in terror, Mrs. Raskauaas said she heard Lafortune walk to the bed and say several times: "Come up, wake up, my darling."

Crown evidence is expected to be concluded today before Mr. Justice H. W. Treleaven and jury.

Halifax Is Preparing For Britannic's Call

HALIFAX (CP)—A Cunard line spokesman here said today that the Britannic will be prepared to receive the 27,000-ton Britannic, the liner had not yet been given the go ahead to divert her course from strike-bound New York.

The spokesman said Britannic's master was unable to estimate his arrival time at Halifax because he has been ordered by radio to divert to this harbor, unaffected by the United States east coast strike. "Meanwhile we are making all preparations to receive her, and if she is diverted she should arrive some time tomorrow," the spokesman added.

British Columbia Liquor Controls Will be Revised

By STEPHEN SCOTT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

VICTORIA (CP)—British Columbia may soon have cocktail lounges like those in Seattle where they won't be dark, dimly lighted "exotic" bars found in some parts.

A completely revamped liquor act embodying these and other provisions was introduced by the Social Credit government in the legislature Wednesday. It will give the province drinking privileges forbidden since 1921.

Designed to increase outlets but reduce consumption and backed by a strict enforcement regulations, the new act divides licenses and liquor outlets into different categories:

Cocktail lounge licence: Liquor, beers and wine in clubs, hotels, several times; restaurants, railways and military messes.

Dining lounge licences: Liquor, beers and wines with meals in night clubs, cabarets and certain restaurants.

Public house licence: Beer and other mild beverages only.

Must Be Respectable

The act requires that all outlets must be well lighted and thoroughly respectable.

Except for beer, liquor by the glass was last served in B.C. before prohibition in 1917. Since 1921, when prohibition was repealed, the province has only allowed the sale of liquor by the glass in private clubs, beer by the glass in local beer parlors and bottled spirits in government liquor stores.

Under the new act it will no longer be necessary for beer parlors to have meals attached for guests. Receipts will no longer need to be used for purchases in government liquor stores.

Based On Study

The act is based on a report returned by the Stevens committee which held public meetings throughout the province last year after a plebiscite held during the June 1952 election approved sale of liquor by the glass. It must have the readings in the legislature and be approved by the lieutenant-governor before it becomes law.

Indians, previously restricted to buying beer in beer parlors, would be allowed in public houses, night clubs and dining rooms serving liquor. They would still be unable to enter government liquor stores or cocktail lounges.

Control Advertising

Control of all newspaper advertising would be vested in the liquor control board and the words "bar," "bar-room" "saloon," "tavern," "wine," "beer," and "liquors" be banned from display signs.

The act provides for local option to give electors the final say on whether an outlet would be permitted in their area.

All present licences would be cancelled at the end of the year but the liquor control board could renew them until September 1954, low.

$36,000 For Stamp

TORONTO (CP)—An anonymous Toronto stamp collector said Wednesday night he has paid $36,000 for one of the world's rarest stamps—a Swedish three-skillingbanco printed in the wrong color.

The collector obtained the stamp, once owned by King Carol of Romania, from a dealer in Sweden.

The stamp appeared in 1855 and is yellow. Other stamps of the issue were blue-green.

Experts believe an engraved plate used in printing the three-skilling-banco issue was accidentally placed on the press used to print the yellow eight-skilling-banco stamp. In the historic misprint, the three-skilling-banco came out yellow.

TWO IMPORTANT CBC PROGRAMS

October marks the commencement of the fall and winter season, when Canadians finally discover time to get around to doing whatever serious thinking they manage to cram into a busy year's program.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation has accordingly selected October for resuming two of its programs intended to assist Canadians in coming to some conclusions on a few of the problems which face them and the world.

These programs are National Farm Radio Forum and Citizens' Forum. The former will be commencing its fourteenth year, the latter its eleventh season. Each features a weekly broadcast, on Mondays for Farm Forum and on Thursdays for Citizens Forum.

The former is the better known program and this fact cannot be ascribed to its longer history alone. Both programs are sponsored by the Canadian Association for Adult Education and the CBC, but the Farm Forum has an additional sponsor, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. The active participation of this body is certainly one reason why so many Farm Forum groups have been organized, but it would appear that this is not, in itself, an adequate explanation for the greater interest shown in this series of broadcasts.

It might be argued, of course, that Farm Forum does not have to compete with the same variety of counter-attractions, that farm folk have fewer alternatives when they decide how to spend their leisure hours. One might also be contended that the Farm Forum topics include those closely linked with the farmer's pocket-book, such as "The Challenge of Dairy Substitutes," to be discussed November 16, and "The Farm Family Budget," set for January 11. But it is also true that the subjects listed include "The Struggle for Men's Minds," on November 30 and "Stop, Look and Listen," a discussion of railway level-crossing problems, on January 15. We have never heard it suggested that Farm Forum attendance drops on evenings which such subjects are considered. Could it possibly be that urban dwellers are more serious-minded than those in the city?

And yet, if this were the explanation, why are there not as many rural groups listening to Citizens' Forum as to Farm Forum? Both are offered options, a program of diversified topics of interest to rural and urban people alike. Here, for instance, is the October program: Oct. 15—Professionalism, Boon or Bane? Oct. 22—Canada's Censorship: Safeguard or Menace? Oct. 29—Do Parents Have Enough Say in Education?

A notable feature of the discussions at Farm Forum meetings is the breadth of the views of many of those participating. A digest of a Forum's deliberations will frequently surprise and delight the reader. Even on subjects which have a direct bearing on the farmer's income, appreciation for the problems of the urban dweller are oft-times evident.

It is a pity that those rural citizens who have been schooled by Farm Forum in the discussion of a wide variety of problems do not put their training to work in the wider field of their Citizens' Forum. And it is also a pretty great pity that more urban residents do not form groups for weekly discussions after these broadcasts.

Incidentally, it would do urban residents no harm if they met to discuss Farm Forum broadcasts, too.

WATCH WHAT YOU SHOOT

This is the time of year when duck hunters take to the marshes in the hope of shooting a few ducks without winging their companions. Their motives are often loftier than their aims and each autumn there are inevitably gory reports of guns being misused.

There are two ways to interpret the phrase "duck blind," and the worst is to apply it to any hunter who becomes so unnerved by the prospect of a kill that he tenses oneself for caution and blasts away into the adjacent body of his companion.

No one deliberately shoots a hunting partner. But the victim of accidental shooting is just as shot as if the incident were deliberate. Carrying the wounded to treatment is heroic stuff that is better left to the soap operas.

If every duck in the flyways escapes to the slaughter awaiting it in Louisiana it wouldn't matter. But if one hunter in every dozen killed instead of wounded, or failed to look before he shoots, then all the ducks in all the flyways are not worth it.

Every duck hunter who gets up in the foggy, foggy dew on an autumn morning should say to himself three times, "I will be careful."

BEVANITES WIN AGAIN

At this distance, and without an intimate knowledge of electioneering machinery in Britain, it is impossible to say exactly how significant is the re-election of Aneurin Bevan and five of his supporters to the Labor Party's top policy-making committee.

Bevan and his supporters are out-numbered on this committee. But the significant fact is that they polled almost as many votes as the seven generals filled by local organizations of the party. They did the same thing last year, too, but this year they increased the number of their votes. It appears evident that the local party organizations favor Bevan's policies. The question which arises is how strong a grip such organizations have on the local party machinery. If they can actually control this machinery, the number of candidates who are supporters of Bevan is going to increase, even though the more conservative labor unions, through their representatives, continue to officially control the party's policy-making committee.

THE FIRST HOME

The little house that first was ours
Is old and weather worn,
And there are weeds where once were flowers
And brown and sparse the lawn.

Where friendly neighbors used to dwell
Are strangers now to me.
On all that street lives none to tell
Of days that used to be.

Since what of life is thought the worst
To us was still unknown.
We loved that little home—the first
Which we could call our own.

Throughout the passing years,
And in our lives have had a share,
With all their smiles and tears.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

October 1., 1933.

Mr. Irvine Eggleton and his sister, Miss May Ivy Eggleton, are leaving on a trip on foot from Stirling to Belleville just for the exercise. Leaving Stirling at 9 a quarter to seven in the morning they arrived at their destination on Gordon Street here at 10.45 a.m.—just exactly four hours for the trip. This is the walking being an average of about four miles per hour.

Two boxes of cheese were loaded on to Glen Allan for Montreal today. A large shipment of apples, and canned goods was also loaded on board.

Mr. Alex. McLeod, contractor of Peterborough, has come to this city to reside.

Building is slow here during September, there being only three permits issued for a total estimated cost of $1,850.

30 YEARS AGO

October 1., 1923.

Mr. Arthur Foster is in Montreal to witness the rugby game between Queen's University and McGill University.

Mr. Frank Thompson of the Belleville Creamery is spending today in Tweed.

Mr and Mrs. William Hopkins and young son, Thomas, will leave here shortly to reside in Los Angeles, California.

Mr. Wager of the Royal Bank at Tweed has been transferred to the branch in this city.

Mrs. T. Westlake is visiting her son, Mr. Arthur Westlake, in Trenton.

Mr. Jack Boyle has returned home from Iowa.

40 YEARS AGO

October 1., 1913.

The old Station Street School which was sold by the Board of Education to Mr. Gunn will be converted into a dwelling. The old school house was built about fifty years ago and at first it was a country school and was outside the town's limits in Thurlow township. The town limits were extended in 1874 and the school became part of the town.

Sir Gilbert Parker was given an impressive send off at the Grand Trunk Railway station this morning when he left for Ottawa. Many prominent citizens were present and the band of the 15th. Regiment played several selections.

New dormitories for boys and girls are being erected at the D. & D. Institute on the Trent Road. The capacity of the building plant is also being enlarged.

October 1., 1903.

D. B. Robertson, city clerk, died at his home on Ann Street this morning after a brief illness. He was appointed city clerk in December 1881 to succeed the late Robert Hanley, and he filled the position in an entirely satisfactory manner up to the time of his death. He was born at Evrie, Orkney Islands. He came to this country with his family at the age of two years and the greater part of his life was passed in this city. He was a member of John Street, Presbyterian Church, and was a Mason, also of the Belleville Lodge No. 123 A.F. & A.M. and also a Knight Templar, being a member of King Baldwin Preceptory. He leaves two sisters, Miss Mary A. Roberts, of this city, Mrs. Sister of St. Mary's, and two brothers, John D. Robertson of Montreal, and George Robertson of Hamilton. He will be much better known than David B. Robertson and he was kindly in his dealings with all classes. He never married. For a short time he practiced law in Colborne and then returned to Belleville. For a time he was a law partner with the present mayor of Belleville Mr. J. J. H. Flint. In 1878 when Belleville was incorporated a city he was elected to represent Baldwin Ward in the city council and he remained a member for two years.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Perhaps when our top scientists grow tired of playing with the atom and begin to fend their curiosity to the psyche of matter rather than into mere mechanic, they might take the African violet as the subject of investigation. It has long uneasy suspicion on the part of those of us who can't make flowers grow that there is some psychic satisfaction in plants. Why my Aunt Lib can make anything grow by merely talking to it, the ground anywhere, while I, with the help of professional gardeners, all the latest books, manures, chemicals and infinite labor can't make even a petunia feel at home with me suggests that plants have their likes and dislikes. The African violet has assumed the proportions of a cult in recent years. For some people it symbolizes all things and practically all there and sing. For me, it just fails off.

Oh don't tell me what I am doing wrong! One of our friends had a fine time with them. They will grow on any window-sill, facing in any direction. She has them blue, purple, pink, white, candy striped and a dozen other colors. If she wants them to grow on a table in the middle of the dimmed living room, autumn, winter, spring or summer, she just puts them there and they do. In fact, they practically moved from Montreal to Toronto with her, like canaries or cats. Among the things that came by moving van from Montreal were some African violets, a pot, boxes, stands and fertilizers of African violets. After she had been settled some time two weeks in her new house and all the furniture, she noticed a dimly missed one lot of them. She inventoried them, in a carton. She distinctly recollected packing them. But she did not recall packing them. There were special varieties.

So she went out to the garage, where odds and ends of the movers' boxes were piled. Sure enough, she found the neglected carton. It was upside down. Not a plant was left. Some had fallen out.

She stuffed them back in, carried them to a window sill, set them, spoke the secret words to them. And now they are all ahoom and African with health and vigor. She's the one who tells me how to grow them, where to place them. She even brings ultra-energetic plants to me. Plants! One look at me, and they just fall off. It is psychic, that's what it is.

Tomato Lover's Lament

By JOHN GOULD
(Of The Christian Science Monitor)

When the mellowing shadows of October are cast upon the land, once more is a-going out, I always try to save some tomatoes from the killer normal time, I grieve when the first frost puts an abrupt stop to the ruby glow of the vegetable. At each time I conclude correctly that nothing I may have left will ripen. Finally a tomato is something you must take on the spot, with no allowance for subtlinities. Hard lovers, and shipped-ins.

Perhaps a bit of good tomato-tasters don't know that.

The tomato is my favorite fish, and when I come to the conclusion to spawn I greet it joyfully and do what I can to make it feel welcome. And although tomatoes are generally considered a year-round staple in the United States, it isn't hard to tell the McCoy from an imposter if you really care.

The tycoons of commerce have been beguiled into believing that they can put down an ignorant tomato in its tender youth, enshrouded in a cellophane envelope, and make him into a hero through merchandising magic. The illusion was enhanced when the great buying public accepted it as fact, and began demanding tomatoes what a real tomato tastes like.

It so happens that the tomato, botanically, will turn red in spite of anything we do. In the natural state it forms its nodular insides, its seeds and its juices all by itself, and then juvenile to adolescent in due time and with much success. It is a tough customer for maturity, producing a ripe, rich, red, juicy, delicious fruit almost as likely as not, pen along.

The fact that American maker of fast bucks, however, has discovered that you can pluck the tomato in its green state, and by using it, make up nine-times-nine, and that the public will buy it as well as it would if left hanging to the parent stem. It doesn't get ripe, right, but it just gets red, and it looks like it, but it does get red. The gentlemen with synthetic tomatoes have them look like tomatoes on arrival.

It also pleases them to pick a tomato when it is at a certain size, before it gets well shaped, and proportioned, and they know that no amount of refrigeration will hold back the ultimate. They can move them as needed, so the market boys tell me, and they even have found that they can pick northern tomatoes when they are green, truck them to the Gulf Coast for cold storage, and move them back into the snowdrift belt as if they had just come from a garden. They don't care a bit if somebody at Thanksgiving eats bottomed tomatoes.

All this, of course, is a shame.

Every year when my place of tomatoes looks as if it might shortly reward me for my great labors, I begin to watch it, and down the town, I sneak a salt shaker from the kitchen table, fondle it up right in my shirt pocket and on half cock, and one day, after the first touch, that becomes lush in the sun and rain, and besides being red, it has that flavor that nature intended, and which so expense has been spared.

When I bite into it my face is anointed wonderfully, and unless I bend away over I get juice all over my feet. Nobody really knows what a tomato tastes like unless he has had one just that way—picked at zero estes, hand to mouth, cut from the sun and just a dot of salt.

After that we have our tomato season. I take a bowl of them for breakfast, and look forward to other meals. I could eat a few dozen right in the garden. I carry bushels of them off to market, and they are selling for 5 cents a pound. People come for baskets to "put up," to make into soup and ketchup, and we have one man who comes every single morning before breakfast and he takes whatever I've got left for his day's eating. He says that's the only kind of a few doesn't have a place for a garden.

Then, after the splurge, the descent of autumn (fall falling) puts a stop to tomatoes, and the frost is final. I always fill the baskets with green ones when the thermometer dips and put them under cover. Sometimes I pull a few plants, roots and all, and hang them in the cellar. But you can't pick a green tomato and expect it to ripen on command. It takes the rich earth to feed the complexities of ripening, and sometimes nights, showers in the afternoons. But I've had tomatoes on hand a long time after the fall frosts began, but I seldom eat one. I put them in a bowl in a hard, tasteless winter, and console myself that next year I'll have them someday tomatoes too.

But people don't know everything about tomatoes as there are no more good tomatoes, they begin to think, perhaps, that's the way they're kind. This is contrary to good sense, at least, botanically. Tomatoes can make as good, coming in from the field, as any vegetable. Given sun-drenched glory, the house-wife expects them to be cheap, with the high growth in the tomato. Tomatoes have the cellar damps, or short and stubby of overland travel, and are a pastel, refrigerated, pink, feigning vertisimilitude, the marketable per 3c a pound and the marks that things are cheaper this year.

This is contrary to the basic rules of intelligence. I'd rather have a pound of anything for a winter tomato as offered in our markets than in the summer. I consider any ransom reasonable.

Birds Facing Flight Hazards

(New York Times)

Ever since the mythical Daedalus and his son Icarus made their ill-fated attempt to fly, men have been trying to conquer the air. Much of their success is attributed to how well they have studied the ways of and think at flight and emulated the feathered minions in building airplanes. In many cases they have succeeded so well that they have certainly there are no birds capable of carrying the pay-loads of modern metal giants or attaining the speed of the latter.

There are similarities, however, between men and birds. Both make navigational errors and are sometimes driven off course at sea. So also do they require fuel for sustained flight. Remembering the terrible fuel shortage of the earlier airliner Empire State building years ago we note another sad similarity in the news.

Migratory birds, spurred southward by the chill winds of fall, overtax vacation areas, dashed themselves to death against the hard, unyielding stony surface. The toll was frightful—nineteen varieties among the species. Man-made structures piling with building is not an especially common cause of casualties, but man does have an advantage. Birds possess only their natural instincts and abilities and have no radar screens to emit warning signals to keep them safely clear of obstacles. But they do have millions of years of experience. Only a bad human ingenuity could offer a means of preventing such unfortunate circumstances among the flocks of creatures continually on the wing.

Wasting Time

Another way to waste a lot of time is to be punctual for appointments.

High Society In Hen Coops

(Edmonton Journal)

"Superior man," gazing from his lofty perch on the human scene, believes, may think that chickens are the last creatures on earth to have developed a terribly social classes. If so, he is gravely mistaken.

No less an authority than an associate professor of animal husbandry at the University of Alberta says chickens are "society conscious." It appears that a hen's position in the social scale is determined by the amount of pecking she does, or has done, to other birds. At this Rhode Island Red sleeps on the perch, a hen has to have pecked a lot of subordinates in sight. This seems to us a thoroughly unsocial way to behave. But in their social status, hens evidently wouldn't have it any other way. Their names—"chickens" — hen—that is, the less she pecks—the lower her social status. Around the ripe old age of five weeks and by the time they are mature enough to peck, order of rank has been rigidly established.

Psychologists, amongst poultry, some "superior men" will be relieved to learn, have also studied this. This doesn't mean that roosters are above pecking. Not a bit of it. They also lay away at each other to have something to crow about. But while hens peck for rank, rooster, and vice versa. This, at least, seems one happy difference between the two, essentially marital problems just don't exist.

SMOKING AND ANGINA

Whatever effect smoking has upon blood pressure is a highly technical question upon which the physiologists and laboratory research investigators have labored forever at odds. So far, the popular ideas of high, pressure and low blood pressure are not concerned it is of little moment.

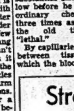
The question which should concern every smoker is, in my opinion, what effect smoking has upon capillary circulation, for it is in the capillaries that the vital interchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide between blood and cells of the tissues and organs takes place.

Anoxia (want of oxygen in the cells and tissues of the body) due to gassing with carbon monoxide in the smoke is the main factor of smoking, in my opinion, and I believe nicotine has relatively little to do with the ill effects of smoking. If nicotine were actually as poisonous as the ads claim then many current medical authorities would have us believe, a few substantial size would lay a man low before he could spit, for an ordinary chew contains two or three times as much nicotine as the old time cigarette was "lethal."

By capillaries I mean the spaces between the cells through which the blood oozes like water through a sponge. Do not confuse the capillaries with arterioles, the finest blood vessels, many of the size that they are normally visible except under the microscope, but all having a definite name as the large arteries and veins have. Nobody has ever isolated a capillary vessel for the simple reason that there are no such vessels. You can't very well isolate an empty space, can you, Professor?

The blood coming through the capillaries is under pressure, else it wouldn't seep through, but just stagnate. This capillary pressure depends in part on the contraction or relaxation of the walls of the arterioles (smallest arteries conveying blood to the capillaries), in some individuals excessive smoking causes a kind of spasmodic contraction of the arterioles and hence the delivery of blood to the normal amount of blood to the capillaries. The victim notices cold fingers in the hands or feet. This is a timely warning, not to smoke less but to stop smoking for at least four months and see whether it is still possible for vital cells already destroyed or irreparably damaged by anoxia (want of oxygen) to be replaced by new cells. Don't deceive yourself about getting that nicotine out of your system. That takes a few hours, but the tar remains in your system. But regenerating nerve cells damaged or destroyed by anoxia due to the cells almost monoxide in tobacco smoke takes months, if it is still possible, months of absolute abstinence from smoking.



Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

MIND AND BODY

One of the most interesting ideas of classical Greek civilization was that of proper balance between body and mind. Neglect of the other simply would not do. Physical fitness and mental fitness had to go hand in hand. A man was to lead a life of satisfying fulness. All men of suitable age were supposed to display some competence in sports and the skills of war. Yet they were also expected to discuss politics and philosophy with comprehension and to be intelligent listeners for the audience at the public plays presented every year.

Although this idea is more than 2000 years old, modern scientists live cheerfully endure it. Mere muscular strength and stamina, therefore, are not enough. Nor are of little value either in athletics or in work. And the mental gifts are not fully developed supported by a puny, sickly body that is lacking in health and great potential intellectual capacity.

Today's complex life with its high-speed living demands this balanced development more than ever before. Everyone needs some sort of regular physical exercise, without the mental gifts are and health. And everyone needs the mental development of good taste and intelligent discussions, and, above all, alertness to spiritual values.

The ancient Greeks knew this way will add years of effectiveness to our lives.

THE UPRAISED BROOM

I should like to pay a humble tribute to one of the most useful and essential of all servants in the home — the humble, ordinary broom! Whoever first invented it deserves immortality. Should he be reincarnated into being by steady stages of improvement.

Housekeeping would be a mess without this enemy of all dirt and rubbish. It is found in nine out of ten of homes all over the world. The new broom is always a most welcome sight. It means happiness. Whenever there is need for a fresh broom, the cry "Where's my broom?" is a familiar question in every home.

At my summer camp this broom is an extra member of my friend's staff. He brushes, and all rooms have shared its efficiency. And every morn shows its use. Each faithful to the very last of its fibers. Then comes the day when the first pieces that start the home on its way. To every new regime, whether it be home, grocery, or furniture place you will find one of these humble, unselfish workers. It comes into use long before the moustrap!

I was once a janitor for a Midwestern church where my friend preached, and the broom was my first aid. Millions silently sing its praises. What could take its place? Other cleaners are only supplementary to the broom. The first task has to be in the home, for it serves a dozen or more tasks. And a new broom proverbially sweeps clean. It is the world's faithful cleaner. There is a corner for it in every home.

Even in cities it never fails to do its duty and its prestige is that it's small sweater and good brooms have swept them clean. Anyone welcome as a friend who makes use of the broom. It is endorsed by all first-class physicians and highly recommended. It sweeps for itself.

8th Belleville Cubs-Scouts L.A. Holds Season's 1st Bazaar, Tea.

The Kiwanis Centre was in festive mood yesterday afternoon with its gay trimmings of yellow and green, colored autumn leaves and autumn tinted flowers. This setting, combined with the ideal day, was most auspicious for the first bazaar and afternoon tea of the fall season, sponsored by the 8th Belleville Cubs and Scouts Ladies' Auxiliary.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. M. B. Hotton, past president, who graciously acted in place of Mrs. E. Tuhey, president, who was ill, and Mrs. W. Dougherty, wife of the group committee president.

The tea table, arranged with its lovely florals, cloth of lace, was centred by a cluster of gold and bronze chrysanthemums flanked by tall, green tapers in China vases, complimenting the autumn theme, while silver services added their glistening note of harmony. The Hide quartet graced tables with their snow-white cloths, centred by slender green vases bearing pink daisies and fern. The Red rooms were grouped attractively about the spacious room.

Presiding

Those who presided included Mrs. M. B. Hotton and Mrs. C. Cooke, past presidents of the 8th group; Mrs. F. Beetz, past president of the 3rd group; and Mrs. A. Price, president of the 5th group; Mrs. G. Power, president of the 3rd group and Mrs. H. Emery, past president of the 8th.

Those who served were: Mesdames A. Campbell, S. Campbell, D. Pitfield, E. Ashley, L. Largy and A. Tilsley.

In charge of the nursery for tiny tots while mothers enjoyed the delightful cups of tea, sandwiches and dainty cakes, not to mention the eye-catching coconut strawberries looking so natural that the difference was found only by the tasting, were Miss Jean Mary Hold and Jill Blackburn who are to be commended for a fine job well done.

Added Attractions

As extra attractions there were booths of candies, fancy work, and children's clothes and homecooking each both prettily decorated with garlands of yellow and green.

In charge of the homecooking were Mrs. J. Yorke, convener, and Mrs. Magdiri, as co-convener assisted by Mrs. H. Butcher, who were kept actively engaged wrapping up the delicious looking squash and lemon pies, raisin shortcrack, chocolate gem cakes with their nut toppings, taffy tarts, date loaves, white layer cakes with mounds of boiled icing and fancy chocolate loaf cakes.

The candy booth was most inviting with its little green cups filled to overflowing with "maple creams," chocolate fudge, nut taffy, nut crunch, and cellophane bags containing the same. This was convened by Mrs. F. Symons, assisted by Mrs. M. Jackson as co-convener with Mrs. G. Trill and Mrs. Clark as helpers.

Fine Display

The apron and novelty booth had a fine display of dainty, all-over aprons of many shapes, and varieties; some with tiles blazing on a background with tiny blue roses; others of grey and blue chambray and utility aprons useful for dusting with pouches for dusters, or clothes-pins, crochet doilies, crocheted turtles holding bars of soap, fancy print pot holders, crocheted pot-holders, lovely cushion tops, needle point trimmed handkerchiefs, plastic bags of pins and needles, all in colors of blue, green, rose, and mauve. Mrs. J. Ramsbottom was convener and Mrs. L. Goodman, co-convener.

The children's booth was in charge of Mrs. J. Lafferty, as convener, Mrs. Bovery, as co-convener with Mrs. C. Tucker and Mrs. W. Pitsfall assisting. For sale here were sticky knit suits in grey plued with green; wash cloths depicting dogs and cats faces in colors green, grey and yellow, just the things to tempt the reluctant mommettors to wash behind the ears; there were tams, vest bibs buttoned down the front; cellophane aprons, processed mutton suits in brown, nice for winter's cold; play aprons with compartments for crayons and many other items, all pretty as well as useful.

A nice bazaar and delightful tea bringing appreciative thanks to the conveners, Mrs. R. Wardle, Mrs. P. Gelthorpe, and co-convener, Mrs. B. Smith.

PINE GROVE W.I.

Mrs. J. Campbell, Oak Lake, was hostess to the Pine Grove Women's Institute for their September meeting. Mrs. H. Detlor, president, and 14 members and two visitors answered the roll call "Ways of Giving Cheer".

Four of the ladies, Mrs. Batchelder, Mrs. Detlor, Mrs. Horton and Mrs. Vanderwater volunteered to do the canvassing for the National Institute For the Blind.

It was decided to hold a euchre party on Friday, October 23, at Marsh Hill School, with the committee in charge to be Mesdames Ross, Coulter, Kuglin and Brown.

Mrs. G. Bartindale gave the Current Events.

Mrs. J. Brown, convener of the Health committee, took charge of the following program, "Cancer and the Rules of Health" by Mrs. J. Brown; readings, "When Ma is Sick; When Pa is Sick" by Mrs. H. Coulter.

The convener called on Mrs. B. Kuglin, who was formerly a Victorian Order of Nurses' worker in the city of Toronto, gave an interesting talk on the work of the V.O.N.

Master Wayne Campbell played a piano selection "Country Gardens". A reading "Queer Cures", by Mrs. A. Finkle, concluded this part of the program.

Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

The October meeting on "Conservation", will be held at Mrs. H. Detlor's home on Oct. 15 at 2 p.m., under the convenership of Mrs. G. Bartindale.

Weddings

DELORME—LORIMER

In the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, on Saturday, September 26, the Rev. John J. V. Buckley officiated at a pretty double-ring wedding ceremony when Marion Irene Lorimer, Reg.N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lorimer, became the bride of Joseph Melido Simeon Delorme, Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fortunate Delorme.

Accompanied by Sister Mary Wilhelmina of the Congregation of St. Joseph, soloist, Robert Burke, of Belleville, rendered the hymns, "To Jesus Heart All Burning"; "O, this Day, O Beautiful Mother"; "Ave Maria", and during holy communion, "O Lord I Am Not Worthy".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in a street-length suit dress of powder blue bengaline. The dress of sheath design was topped with a short fitted jacket bound in blue satin, with satin covered buttons. Floral and pearl beading enhanced the side fronts of the jacket at the hipline, and white rabbit fur prettily adorned the Peter pan collar and bracelet length sleeves. She wore a dainty hat of matching blue satin and carried a prayer book bound in blue, created by a white orchid, stephanotis and demure Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. William Lorimer, sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride, and was most attractively attired in a suit dress of cinnamon crepe with gold velvet accessories and wearing an corsage of Talisman roses and white feathered carnations.

Mr. William Lorimer, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom as best man.

A reception was held following the ceremony at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, with the bride's mother receiving in a navy crepe and lace dress with French pink accessories and corsage of pink Briarcliffe roses. The bride's groom's mother assisted, wearing grey crepe and lace with black velvet accessories and corsage of red Better Times roses.

Afternoon tea was held later at the home of the bride's parents, where friends and neighbors called to offer best wishes.

Miss Jeannine Joncas, of St. Romuald, Quebec, and Miss Theresa Lorimer, sister of the bride, served the guests and Mr. and Mrs. Burke again favored with several selections.

The happy couple left on a motor trip to points south and west, the bride travelling in a most becoming royal blue wool dress of a tweed effect, piquant hat of velvet and fur, and other accessories of "bright pumpkin" shade and topcoat in soft gold shade.

Guests were present from Toronto, Frankford, Sudbury, Oshawa, Ontario and St. Romuald, Quebec.

Mr. and Mrs. Delorme will reside at 43 Beaver Street, Toronto, Ontario.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. N. C. Fisher, Reg.N., 152 Bleecker Avenue, and attended by members of the nurses' registry with whom the bride has been happily associated in her work.

Also Mrs. William Lorimer and Mrs. Ernest Cockell were cohostesses at a miscellaneous shower given at the former's home, Reid Street. At each of these showers, the bride was the happy and gracious recipient of many lovely gifts.

JAIL PEPPER-THROWER

TORONTO (CP)—Virginia Stewart, 43, of Toronto Wednesday was jailed for five days for throwing pepper into a policeman's eyes.

She was convicted of assaulting inspector Joseph Ackroyd at the opening of the Charles H. Best Institute here Sept. 15.

Police said she and John Cameron, 47, were picketing the building as anti-vivisectionists. Cameron was fined $50 or five days for obstructing police.

'New Trends in Travel' Theme At B. and P. W. Dinner Meeting

The first fall dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville was held at the Hotel Quinte on Monday evening. Mrs. Isabel Walbridge, president, welcomed members after their summer hiatus and briefly outlined the planned fall activities.

On the agenda was business and entertainment. Endorsed by civic heads, the week will be observed throughout Ontario and the United States the week of October 11-17. A special dinner with out-of-town as well as local guests is planned for Belleville's New Trenton Club.

The club was pleased to learn that, through the efforts of Dorothy Brown, a new club had recently been formed in Trenton. The new club will have as its charter president, Miss Anne Johnson, and will hold their first dinner meeting during business women's week.

Chosen as delegates and observers to the provincial conference being held at the Royal Connaught Hotel, Hamilton, October 23-24-25, were president Isabel Wallbridge, Simone McFadden and Dorothy Brown.

The guest speaker of the evening, Miss Carol Lane, Women's Travel director, was introduced by Miss Mary Moult who commented that Miss Lane, often called "the first lady of touring" covers thousands of miles annually to test her ideas, personally. A member of the Women's Zonta club, Business and Professional Women's club, Women's Advertising club, Historic Sites and Cultural committee, Canadian Cuisine committee, Miss Lane remarked that:

"Smart travellers today seek a personal look into the peoples, history, natural resources and recreational areas of the places they visit. These can be found not only at popular and busy places of interest but also off the well-travelled highways. For more fun on family vacation trips, seek out the fascinating but little-known sights and experiences off the beaten paths."

Speaking on "New Trends in Travel", she said. "There are new frontiers of sightseeing and touring fun opening up in Canada.

Two recent surveys of women motorists revealed that about 85 per cent vacation in a different part of the country each year. More than half plan to include industrial or historical side-trips to increase their knowledge of the area. She also pointed out that two-week vacations were the rule rather than the exception, and recommended taking along only the amount of luggage you can comfortably carry yourself.

Suitcase Wardrobe

Miss Lane demonstrated a one-suitcase wardrobe consisting of four basic vacation costumes. The same sets of clothing combine into about 24 ensembles for travelling, daytime sightseeing or visiting, active or spectator sports and informal evening wear. She reported that her two recent national surveys of women motorists revealed less than 2 per cent required formal evening wear during vacations. Miss Lane's travel wardrobe was "color-co-ordinated" with a neutral tone predominating, spiced with a dark and a bright color for contrast. "Neutrals in medium tones of beige or gray hide road dust, look right in town and travel better," she reported.

She praised the national and provincial parks for being "good buys" in low cost vacation for families. "And don't deny your children the major enjoyment in a park area—the search for wild life. Simple equipment like insect nets, sieves or binoculars for handling or observing butterflies, stream life or birds, can either be made at home, taken off the kitchen shelves, or purchased inexpensively. Add one or two beginner's handbooks to help the child identify what he finds."

"We have the edge on our forefathers who forged across the country from the Atlantic to the Pacific, she pointed out. They learned about each land while they moved. But with the automobile, today, we can relax while we learn."

Miss Lane pointed out the fundamental reason for travel "is to expand our horizons of knowledge and experience in an enjoyable manner."

Noted for her travel column, booklets and articles on touring, Miss Lane received the thanks of the B. & P. W. Club from Evelyn Coulter.

'Power of Positive Thinking' Discussed At Study Guild

"The Power of Positive Thinking," a popular and helpful 1952 book, by Norman Vincent Peale, was the topic of study and discussion at the September meeting of the Woman's Study Guild held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. William Hurst, 246 Church Street.

The introductory worship service stressed many of the powerful promises of Christ which the author of the book quotes so frequently and illustrates so practically.

Various chapters of the book were dealt with by Miss Olive Elson, Mrs. Harry Mills, Mrs. Varcoe, and Mrs. W. A. Campbell.

Many members entered into the discussion of these topics—"Believe in Yourself"; "Try Prayer Power"; "Expect The Best and Get It"; "Prayer to Solve Personal Problems". Many equally helpful chapters had to be left for individual reading.

During the business part of the meeting, under the chairmanship of the president, Mrs. A. D. Archibald, it was decided to continue sponsorship of a child under the "Save the Children" committee.

At the close, light refreshments were served by the hostess committee.

These meetings are held on the fourth Monday evening of each month and are open to any women interested in studying current events in the light of the teachings of the New Testament.

Women of The Moose

On Thursday evening the Women of the Moose held their last meeting of the month in the Moose Hall with Senior Regent, Ruth Mintz, presiding.

A card was read from Marian Mintz thanking the chapter for the lovely gift received as well as cards from all members of the chapter. A thank-you card was received from co-worker, Olive Roth, to the chapter, also a letter from Past Grand secretary, Norman G. Heyd, concerning the regalia for the chapter, as well as a letter from Past Deputy Grand Regent Alice McKelvy, of Kitchener, concerning the convention at Miami, Florida, extending the chapter best wishes.

A report was given on the last chatter-out meeting held at Junior graduate, Regent Mary Peoples' home. At the meeting a cake was donated by Nellie Burke and won by Irene MacMurrier. Another chatter-out meeting will be held at the home of Sentinel Lena Connell on Thursday next. A report was given on pillowcases by Florence Caruthi. Auditor, Committee

The auditing committee was appointed for the year and consists of Gladys Ritch, Kay Donovan and Connie Pringle. The committee will meet on October 5th. The next meeting all the co-workers will come dressed in Hallowe'en costumes and Governor Allie Haley and two brothers of the Loyal Order of Moose 1909 will act as judges.

Lorrie Downes turned a sum of money over to the chapter towards the expenses of Mooseheart day. Janie Chitwood also gave a sum of money on a draw. A ladies watch will be used for a draw on Mooseheart day.

Nellie Scrymgeour was appointed to look after the draw for the pot-luck supper.

The draw which was drawn by Nellie Burke and won by Senior Regent Peggy Mintz, was donated by Annie Chitwood.

Following the meeting a game was held.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He Has Made His Choice—Why Does She Wait Around?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19, and the man I love is 24. He is married and has a year-old son.

We have been going together for the past few months and, until a week ago, he was separated from his wife whom he doesn't love. Besides this, he has had a great deal of in-laws' trouble, because they live with her family.

Now, however, he has gone back to her home because of his son, who means an awful lot to him, but we still go out together and he tells me he still loves me and doesn't want me to ever leave him. He won't ask his wife for a divorce, though, because it means he would have to give up his child, so he wants to go on indefinitely like this. He says he loves me more than he ever loved his wife, and I love him very much, but I think he should make his choice between the baby and me.

What do you suggest?

D.G.

Dear D.G.: If I were in your place, it seems to be I would consider that he made his choice when he went back to his wife, and I would bow out of the situation immediately. Just what future do you see for yourself with this man, and how can you respect either him or yourself under present circumstances? You should have too much pride to let yourself be pushed around to suit the convenience of a man who wants to hold on to everything and give up nothing.

Moreover, what do you think you're going to get out of letting a married man keep you changing at the call of a whim? What you're most likely to get is almost certain trouble that could ruin your reputation. Then no decent unmarried man would want you.

If you have any sense at all, you will break off this relationship at once—certainly until this man can come to you properly, without danger of involving you in some unsavory marital mess.

She Should Leave The Past Alone

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I was 15, I went steady with a boy of 17 for about four years. Then he went into service and after he went, people wrote him a lot of gossip about me, which he believed. He broke up with me.

After that I met and married a very nice man, and we have a baby son. Before we married, I told him about the other boy, but it didn't seem to matter to either of us then.

A few weeks ago, though, this boy came home, and now I realize I still love him. I love my husband, too, but in a different way, and I would never want to do anything to hurt him. I feel very mixed up, and would like some advice.

Vera W.

Dear Vera: Don't you think you would be a very poor sport if you began to do anything to hurt your marriage at this point? You made your own decision to marry your present husband and, since I take it that he has been a good one to you, I think it would be a very dreadful thing for you even to think of breaking up your home.

It is perfectly possible for you to put this other man out of your mind by refusing to see him, or have anything whatever to do with him, and you can turn your back on the past and make a success of your marriage if you will, Vera. Stop indulging in daydreams about your first love, and don't let yourself make a big romance out of it. You made your choice. It is up to you to abide by it, and there is nothing to prevent you from having a happy life, and making a happy home, if you have the character to handle yourself properly.

The Flour Controversy Rages

By Mary Moore

A promise is about to be fulfilled.

There are some expert bakers in this audience who have been having failures with their cake baking recently. It has set them to wondering if flour enrichment could be the root of the trouble.

The answer to that is "No."

Other bakers wonder if their thermometers are registering accurately, or, if electric power being low in their districts, longer baking produces heavy cakes.

The handicap that I am under in dealing with problems like this, is that I do not have enough information. I really don't know if the difficulty is experienced with prepared cake-mixes, or with all-purpose flours milled from hard wheats, or with soft wheat flours. All of these products will produce cakes with different characteristics. The essential thing is that the recipe should be adapted to the kind of flour used. If a soft wheat recipe is used with hard wheat flour, or vice-versa, trouble is almost sure to follow, especially with the lighter types of cake. Other factors could play a part but the prime question is "What sort of flour was used and what recipe was followed?"

Many women flour is flour. Millers and others have not done enough to lead them to realize that there are wide differences between different types of flour and that the recipe, especially when making light cakes, must suit the flour.

I promised my enquirers to delve into this problem which seems to be quite widespread.

So here is a general guide, which has been confirmed by several flour experts and mills in Canada:

Hard wheat is winter wheat and is used for making bread, because it has a high gluten content.

Soft wheat is spring wheat and is used for making cakes and other baking powder products.

Pastry flour is usually a combination of both hard and soft wheat flour.

Only hard wheat is grown in the West because their severe climate does not permit the sowing of wheat in the fall.

Soft wheat can be grown in Eastern Canada because our climate is milder.

It may be that because families are moving about more from one part of this country to another, more of them are using brands and types of flour to which they have not been accustomed.

But if you must substitute all-purpose flour with cake flour, for any sifted "all-purpose" flour use 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted cake flour.

If you must substitute cake flour with all-purpose flour, for 1 cup sifted cake flour use 1 cup minus 2 tablespoons sifted all-purpose flour.

The widely advertised brands of cake flours are specially milled from "soft" wheats to make delitate and fine-textured cakes.

If this guide does not solve the problem, some of our readers I shall be glad to hear from them, and then they will give me as much detailed information as they have available.

THEY WENT THAT WAY

SHEHO, Sask. (CP) — Some youngsters in this district have been racing on horseback through Shebo's streets when they were trying to get to school on time. Now, the RCMP has warned that horses should proceed at no faster than a trot.

GOOD MANNERS

Thank-You Note To Employers Wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be married in October, and my employer and his wife have just sent me a very handsome wedding present, a pair of beautiful crystal candlesticks. I have never met his wife, but everyone says she is a most charming and courteous woman. Of course I want to be right in my thank-you note. Should I adress this note to her, to him, or to them?

S.W.

Adress your thank-you note to your employer's wife . . . perhaps Mrs.

Dear Mrs. Hall,

How very kind and thoughtful of you and Mr. Hall to send me such a beautiful wedding present. Kenneth and I send you both our deepest thanks. The crystal candlesticks are masterpieces of beauty, and we are looking forward to the many ways we are going to use them to shed their lovely light in our new home.

If you are still employed, it would of course be natural for you to thank your employer personally . . . "I do want to tell you, Mr. Hall, how much I thank you for your beautiful wedding present. I've never seen such beautiful candlesticks! I wrote Mrs. Hall yesterday, sending you both thanks from both of us."

Reception Sandwiches Should Be Unwrapped

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our daughter's wedding reception is to be held in the undercroft of our church (Episcopal). In the receptions held here the menu is always very simple—sandwiches, coffee, fruit punch, the wedding cake, and various kinds of food-accessories, such as nuts, potato chips, stuffed olives, cheese, crackers and so forth. A nearby caterer supplies the sandwiches and the wedding cake.

Each sandwich is cut either in half or in two triangles, then wrapped in waxed-paper. Generally these sandwiches are left in the waxed-paper wrapping; only once have I seen the sandwiches unwrapped before they are put on the serving dishes on the buffet table. Which procedure do you think we should follow?

D.S.

The more gracious form of service . . . more appropriate to such an important occasion as a wedding reception . . . is to unwrap the sandwiches, and put them on the serving-plates. Serving them in the waxed-paper wrapping gives to much the appearance of commercial-service or picnic-service.

Is A Birth-Present An Obligation?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it really necessary to send a gift when one receives a birth-announcement? Also is it proper to send a gift to a new baby of a close friend even though birth-announcements are not sent out?

P.

Whether or not we send a present to the baby depends entirely on our own wish, whether we receive a birth-announcement or are simply told verbally or by telephone or by note of the arrival of the new baby. If we are a close relative of the baby's mother and or father, or a particularly intimate friend of the family, we may wish probably would wish, to send a present. But, even in these circumstances, there is no "obligation" to give a present.

The fact is that some people make a special point of giving a birth-present . . . and others have no inclination in this present-direction. However, if we receive a birth-announcement, we should acknowledge it in some way . . . if not by present, then by a friendly note of congratulation to the baby's mother and father.

Footsoles For Housemakers

A man will hang onto his old fishing hat to the end of his days. You throw it in the rubbish box he will retrieve it, looking as if he were about to bust into tears at such treachery on the part of the wife of his bosom.

Women are the same about their old shoes. Unless the soles have dropped off they never give them up. There seems to be a mystery about heels between a woman and kicks that have outlived their usefulness. So she wears them around the house when doing her domestic chores and accumulates more foot troubles than she can endure.

When she is all dressed up, her tootsies are encased in the prettiest of shoes, but she can enjoy them nor can she move with grace. All because she will not dress her feet comfortably when she goes about her domestic duties. If she is a wife and mother, she is always picking up after the old man and the kids, travels goodness knows how many miles a day. So why mistreat her feet? If she is good to them they will be good to her.

What she needs while doing housework is a sensible pair of oxfords with flexible leather soles and leather uppers. They are not only practical but she may be relieved of the afflictions that she has brought upon herself in the form of ingrowing toenails, corns, callouses and other foot ailments.

She should have shoes fitted in the late afternoon since her feet are always a bit larger after the day's tramp through the usual activities.

She should endeavor to find an intelligent salesperson who will give her proper, careful fitting. If she has been wearing sizes and the clerk says a half size larger, she should not be insulted. Strange though it may seem, he probably knows best.

The shoe should have broad heels of medium height to give perfect body balance. They should be half an inch longer than the longest toe. They should be so comfortable that the customer can walk out in them. Once upon a time a woman fancied they had to "break in" shoes but that day has long since passed.

Canadian Press Urges Military Officials Make Public Promptly Names Of Killed in Civilian Areas

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—Directors of The Canadian Press at Wednesday urged military authorities to make public promptly the names of military personnel killed or injured in civilian areas.

Under present policy such names are withheld until next of kin of those concerned have been advised. The stand taken by directors of the national news co-operative is that this delay imposes unnecessary worry and apprehension on next of kin of all personnel potentially involved and is unwarranted military censorship.

The resolution in which this view was expressed was moved by R.S. Malone of the Winnipeg Free Press who is assistant director of public relations for 21st Army Group had charge of Canadian Army public relations in the field during the Second World War, and seconded by John Bassett of the Toronto Telegram, a wartime regimental officer.

Traced To Changes

In a general discussion of press restrictions, imposed by the services, Mr. Malone said many difficulties can be traced to a change in military regulations. Throughout the war and until 1950 publicity and press matters were a section responsibility of the cabinet minister concerned. Under present regulations such matters "can be delegated to staff officers in various branches who do not answer to parliament or public and understandably are prone to see public information only in the light of its effect on reaction on their particular branch."

Directors concluded their two-day semi-annual meeting Wednesday.

Treasurer Gets Medal

At Wednesday's final session it was announced that the Coronation medal allotted to The Canadian Press under categories approved by Her Majesty had been awarded to C. A. Day, treasurer, on unanimous recommendation of the executive committee. The recommendation said: "It is agreed that his devotion to the co-operative idea, his understanding of daily newspaper operation across the country and the high regard in which he is held by Canada's newspaper men have enabled him to make an invaluable contribution to the development of The Canadian Press."

Soviet Construction Industry Inefficient and Antiquated

Editor's note: Here is a revealing look into Soviet construction methods, with buildings and roads. It is given by an AP correspondent who spent nine years in the Soviet Union.

By TOM WHITNEY

LONDON (AP)—I was out for a walk in Moscow one autumn night a few years ago. My meditations were interrupted by a roar and a crash. Across the street a cloud of dust and plaster arose. People ran from all directions.

It was easy to see what had happened. A five Soviet building—five by Soviet standards—stood opposite me. Three floors up there used to be a balcony. The balcony had simply fallen off the front of the building.

One has not to be an expert to realize that most of the buildings are poorly constructed and that almost the whole construction industry is inefficient and antiquated.

Some buildings in Moscow look years old even before they are finished.

No Facing Brick

Most are built of brick. But the builders have no facing brick. Instead they cover over the surface with plaster.

The plaster sometimes starts falling off before the building is finished. Even when it says on it does not look good. It is usually painted with some sort of plaster paint—often in a pastel shade. This surface collects the dirt. Within a few months it looks bad.

There are many brick buildings which were intended to have a plaster facing but never got it. They look even worse.

Soviet architectural design is not generally good. Architects tend to put a lot of ornate decoration on buildings. Most of this is poorly conceived, almost all of it poorly executed.

Nevertheless there has been considerable improvement in the quality of work in the post-war years. A good many steel frame structures are going up. Many are using reinforced concrete block for walls. New ceramic facing materials have been developed which look better than anything the Russians have used heretofore. There has been emphasis on simplicity of design in the interests of economy. The extensive use of construction machinery has lowered building costs.

Long Way To Go

All these are healthy tendencies but the Russians have a long way to go. I lived in an apartment house completed in 1951 with 72 apartments for foreigners.

Much space was wasted. In our apartment a long corridor could have been used to enlarge the three small rooms. No central hot water system was provided. The gas and water pipes were partly exposed; so was some of the wiring. The double windows were poorly fitted.

There were no wall closets, necessitating the purchase of expensive wardrobes. The children had no playgrounds. There was no laundry room. The heat in some of the apartments was inadequate. Sometimes the elevator did not work.

And this was for Moscow an excellent apartment building!

Excommunicate Those Who Arrested Cardinal

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Vatican's secret consistorial congregation has declared excommunicated all those who participated in the arrest of Stefan Cardinal Wyszynsky, Roman Catholic Primate of Poland, and in the raid against his home.

The congregation, one of 12 which issued a decree stating that all who administer affairs of the church, had "farce rules their hand" against the cardinal incurred excommunication under two canons of church law.

Jurisdiction in this type of excommunication is reserved to the Holy See, which means that release from the excommunication can be obtained only from the Pope.

Canadians Eat Beef This Year At Record Pace

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians are eating beef this year at a record-breaking pace, with the price doubling below peak for the first time since the Second World War.

"The price is beginning to fall," an agriculture department official said Wednesday as he reported a 180,000,000-pound jump in beef consumption to a high of 628,000,000 pounds in the first eight months of 1953.

This is an increase from 29,000,000 pounds consumed during 1952, the year of foot-and-mouth disease in Canada, and from 448,000,000 pounds in 1951.

Through their heavier consumption, Canadians are virtually supporting the beef market. Exports are down sharply.

Shipments in the eight months dropped to 14,000,000 pounds, down from 49,000,000 in 1952 and 84,000,000 in 1951. The U.S., Canada's biggest meat-market, was closed for most of 1953 because of foot-and-mouth. Canada exported surplus beef to Britain under a barter deal.

This year the U.S. has a big surplus of domestic beef and the American price is not sufficiently attractive to the Canadian producer. However, Canada now is hitting its seasonal peak in beef production, and heavier exports may become necessary.

That may mean another slight drop in Canadian beef prices to match American prices. Beef prices normally are lower in the fall than in other seasons.

Pork consumption in the first eight months of 1953 totalled 415,000,000 pounds—unchanged from the eight months of 1952, although slightly higher than the 401,000,000 in 1951.

AIR CRASH KILLS 22 U.S. SOLDIERS

Two of the 22 U.S. soldiers killed in the air crash at Louisville, Ky., are shown sprawled in front of the wreckage of the plane from which they were hurled with terrific force when the transport crashed. Twenty-one others were injured; some of them seriously. The plane dived nose first into the ground from 100 feet in the air when the controls failed to operate. —Central Press Canadian.

Wants Greater Share

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Health Minister Phillips of Ontario Wednesday urged the federal government to give provincial and municipal governments a greater share of the federal tax dollar.

At ceremonies opening a $2,500,000 addition to McKellar Hospital here, Dr. Phillips said larger grants from the federal government would help in relieving municipalities of tax burdens which are "all too high."

Mau Mau Raiders Kill 5 Africans In Ambush

By RONALD BATCHELOR

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Mau Mau raiders, said to be starving and ready to surrender in their mountain and forest lairs, have struck back with a new campaign of terror inside Nairobi, capital of British East Africa.

Army headquarters Wednesday moved a battalion of British infantrymen into the capital from the Rift valley, a Mau Mau trouble-centre where terrorists still wage sporadic attacks in between dodging the security forces tracking them.

In one of these attacks Tuesday near Njeri, 50 miles north of Nairobi, Mau Mau raiders killed five Africans in an ambush, it was disclosed.

Killed Five

A police patrol chased the gang, killed five of the terrorists and wounded six.

In Nairobi, a British spokesman admitted that small bands of armed Mau Mau supporters are roaming the streets of this modern, spacious city, threatening widespread disorder.

The infantry battalion, which arrived in Kenya from Britain only three weeks ago, pitched camp on Nairobi racecourse, which adjoins an African reservation.

Alongside the open attacks, Mau Mau has planted fear into the minds of about 115,000 Africans—most of them Kikuyus—populating the city. They outnumber whites by nearly 20 to one.

Mau Mau last week ordered African cabs to boycott public transport, threatening death to anyone found using a bus. The boycott is being observed and is still in force.

Go To Arbitration

STRATFORD (CP)—Requests of Stratford police for wage boosts, reduced hours and service pay will be placed before an arbitration board, the board of police commissioners decided Wednesday. The commissioners decided they could not grant requests for a five-day week, service pay of 15 cents a day, and a 15-per-cent wage boost.

Present wages range from $2,700 a year for probationary constables to $3,100 for first class constables and $3,700 for inspectors.

Early-Warning System Now In Operation

MONTREAL (CP) — Fulfillment of a mission to develop a radar early-warning system in event of an air attack on North America was announced Wednesday.

Operations of the plan, known as the McGill Fence, were not disclosed by the project director, Professor G. A. Wootton, but he told a press conference that his study of articles in Russian technical journals indicates "the Russians have as good a fundamental knowledge in this field as we have."

With Professor Wootton at the press conference was Dr. F. Cyril James, principal and vice-chancellor of McGill University who expressed pleasure that work carried out at the university's Eaton electronics research laboratory had made "this contribution to the common project."

Professor Wootton said satisfactory tests of the McGill Fence have been carried out and the results turned over to Canada's Defence Research Board "for further development and larger-scale trials." McGill has loaned Professor J. R. Whitehead to the board as scientific director of this further work.

Although the McGill Fence was developed wholly with Canadian equipment and material, Professor Wootton said it is "A Canadian contribution to a common project" and is not in competition with the Lincoln Plan—a huge general air defence plan of the United States.

Use of radar is also a part of that plan.

Work Starts on Camp Gagetown, Biggest Military Project In Canada's Peacetime History

By JACK MacSETH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Work has started in the heart of New Brunswick on Camp Gagetown, the biggest military construction project in Canada's peacetime history.

The camp is situated in an area where nearly two centuries ago a small band of sturdy United Empire Loyalists hacked slowly into the green wilderness. Nowadays the same wooded hills again echo to the sound of the ax, the saw and falling trees as skilled woodsmen, some descendants of the early settlers, clear the ground.

Covering 436 square miles and costing an ultimate $40,000,000, the camp will dwarf Canadian Army camps of the past and will approach the size of many similar installations in the United States.

To Handle 15,000 Men

Camp Gagetown will offer almost every type of training ground a military commander could imagine. There are hills rising to 1,500 feet; there are marshes, lakes and streams; open fields and dense woods.

A divisional training ground, it will be equipped to handle 15,000 men. But most important is the camp potential function as a jumping-off depot for shipment of troops to Europe in event of another war on that continent.

Climatically, troops will be able to train in zero weather on snow-covered ground, or they can go through their exercises under a baking sun. About 17,000 acres have been burned over in the past by forest fires.

A senior army officer was asked if there would be facilities for guided missiles and rocket training. He replied "perhaps," but added that the army's chief training ground for these weapons is at Cold Lake, 150 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Big Expenditures

Cost of the Gagetown project has been broken down this way: construction, $25,000,000; land, $10,000,000; miscellaneous, more than $1,000,000. As a basic cost, 4,000 acres are to be cleared, but this area will increase as the camp grows.

When completed, the camp will be twice the size of Wainwright in Alberta; three times the size of Camp Shilo in Manitoba; four times Camp Borden in Ontario and seven times Camp Petawawa, Ont.

But it will be some time before the camp will be completed, at least three years or more.

Roughly oval in shape, the site lies between Fredericton and Saint John. It is bordered on the east by the St. John river and on the west by Highway No. 2A. The Canadian National Railways' valley line, linking Fredericton and Saint John, runs along the northern fringe.

To Improve Railway

This makes it ideally situated as a jump-off for overseas action. An official said that the addition of the CNR track, said the railway has agreed to improve this section of the line, bringing it to "full transcontinental standards." The Canadian Pacific Railway also could serve the camp through Fredericton Junction, if that become necessary.

Camp Gagetown is about five miles from the Fredericton municipal airport. At present Trans-Canada Air Lines operates a daily service through the airport from Montreal to Halifax. By road the camp can be reached from Montreal either through Riviere du Loup, Que., Edmundston, Woodstock and Fredericton, N.B., or through Maine.

Thus, along the ground or by air, men and equipment could move quickly to the port of Saint John onward.

Clearing operations are well under way. Giant piles of timber, some as high as 75 feet, are ready to be burned. Actual construction of the camp is scheduled to start next spring.

Ready By 1956

Col. Basil Campbell, assistant deputy minister of defence, says the first troops should be able to move into the camp some time in the spring of 1956. He is supervising the current phase of the project.

Meanwhile, he says there still are a few problems which must be overcome. Biggest is the matter of land titles.

He said there originally were were 1,763 individual properties in the area taken over by the government. Of this number have been reached in more than 600 cases. Another 125 settlements are expected, covering properties still to be appraised. The over-all problem of settling the land question may "take months," he says.

For the most part residents were happy with the settlement, but some persons were holding out for more money.

Four Sites Considered

Originally, four possibilities were considered for the site. Two were quickly eliminated, leaving the area finally selected and one near Saint John.

The government asked an independent team of six engineers from various parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia to survey the possible sites.

In a lengthy report, the engineers said they had compared them on the basis of 11 factors: General topography; character of the terrain and the wood on it; water supply; sewage disposal; electrical supply; telegraph and telephone facilities; railroad and highway facilities and proximity to embarkation ports; proximity to TCA; climatic conditions; accessibility to the training grounds and availability of building materials.

building materials, the engineers ruled in favor of the present site.

Loyalist Settlement

The name "Gagetown" itself was born several generations ago. A group of 17 families, stubbornly loyal to the British crown, had decided to accept the result of the American revolutionary war. They moved northward to the hilly country along the lower reaches of the St. John river. Some 250,000 acres of land were made available by the British government.

This represented part of an original 400,000-acre grant awarded to senior officers of the British 44th regiment. Among them had been Gen. Thomas Gage, successor to Lord Jeffrey Amherst as commander of British forces in America.

In his honor, although historians doubt that he ever visited the area, the United Empire Loyalists named their settlement "Gagetown," and it quickly grew into a thriving, happy community. That was in the late 1780s.

Today, as civilization moves into the age of the hydrogen bomb and the threat of another world war, Canadians have turned again to this quiet corner of a quiet province.

IVANHOE

MISSION BAND

IVANHOE Beulah United Mission Band met at the home of Mrs. S. Twiddy on Friday evening when 19 members enjoyed a potluck supper.

Hand work for the evening was the making of a scrap book depicting Canadian life. Several choruses were sung. Business arising from the minutes was discussed. The roll call showed 25 members present.

"Temperance" was the theme of the worship service. A poem was read as a call to worship. Scripture verses pertaining to temperance were read by the leaders, Mrs. George Wood. A poem, "World Children Go Back to School," was read by Elaine Wickens; a dialogue, "Who Wins", by Jack Wood and Wayne Reid; a temperance talk and object lesson, "The Bad Light Bulbs," was given by Mrs. George Wood, showing how bad habits many come into one's life and burn out the light, so it cannot shine for Jesus. "This Little Light of Mine" was sung and prayer was offered by Mrs. H. MacMillan. The new study book was introduced by Mrs. J. Cooney.

Mrs. Fred Reid thanked the members for flowers and cards sent to her during her recent illness.

Refreshments were served by the hostess.

BEULAH UNITED W.M.S.

The regular meeting of Beulah W.M.S. was held in the home of the president, Mrs. E. Benson, Wednesday until after Nov. 28 by Mr. Justice J. L. McLennan.

The action by Hayward Avery was postponed so that other actions arising out of the same circumstances might be tried at the same time. Mr. Justice McLennan said an order for a joint trial cannot be made until all pleadings have been filed, but he said he was not expressing an opinion on whether the actions should be tried together or separately.

Mr. Avery is also suing his son, Donald, and six doctors.

He was released from the sanatorium in September, 1951, after a personal appearance in court.

Damage Action Postponed Until November 28

TORONTO (CP)—An action for damages against Homewood Sanatorium, Guelph, by a man who claims he was held for 33 months against his will was postponed on Tuesday afternoon. It was decided the next meeting will be held on October 16th, and a lazar on October 21st. This hazar will be held in Ivanhoe town hall and the surrounding W.M.S. will be invited. Committees for the different booths were appointed.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Hugh MacMillan, who followed the worship service from "Missionary Monthly."

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. George Wood and prayer was offered by Mrs. H. MacMillan. The new study book was introduced by Mrs. J. Cooney.

Mrs. Fred Reid thanked the members for flowers and cards sent to her during her recent illness.

Hollinger Men to Consider Daley's Back-to-Work Plea While Talks Are Resumed

TORONTO (CP)—The next move in Ontario's gold mine strikes appears up to the Hollinger workers at Timmins, due to meet tonight to consider a suggestion that they go back to work while conciliation hearings on their contract dispute are resumed.

A meeting of government officials and key figures in the mining industry ended here Wednesday without any bright news. Prospects for settling the walkout which has made upwards of 4,000 men idle in the Porcupine goldfield around Timmins. Some of those taking part in the conference described the talks as "exploratory."

Labor Minister Daley asked Hollinger workers to return to their jobs, which they left with conciliation proceedings unfinished.

Wants Arbitration

C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the striking United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), issued a proposal which made the return to work at Hollinger conditional upon an undertaking by Hollinger president Jules Timmins to submit any dispute to an arbitrator of national standing. The mine management rejected a similar proposal before the 1,600 Hollinger men walked out last week.

The Hollinger situation is to be reviewed at Timmins today by the executive and stewards of Hollinger local 6005 of the steel union. It will also be discussed at a meeting of the local tonight.

Some observers believe Hollinger holds the key to ending the deadlock in the mine strikes.

Strike Called Illegal

The Hollinger walkout is regarded as illegal because it was started before the union had gone through conciliation processes provided for by Ontario labor law.

"It was reported here Wednesday night the provincial government is not inclined to try to mediate the strikes in the other five mines in the Timmins area, some of which started in July, until the union calls off its strike at Hollinger.

Union officials have said they consider conciliation has failed at the other mines. They say they feel nothing can be accomplished by going through the conciliation process at Hollinger.

Noranda Talks Gossip

Another hope of settlement is thought to lie in negotiations due to start within the next few days between Noranda mines and striking steel union members at Noranda. A settlement at Noranda could conceivably set a pattern for an agreement in northern Ontario.

At Noranda, as at the other mines, the union demand for the checkoff of dues is a major issue, along with those for higher wages and shorter hours.

Meanwhile, the union asked for action in conciliation disputes involving 900 men at Pamour and Amor, two of the five mines still operating in the Timmins area.

In a telegram to the labor minister, Mr. Millard said the two companies have made no offer on conciliation reports handed down in mid-August, "although the union has publicly indicated its willingness to modify its original request and to negotiate on the basis of the board recommendations."

The union was "entirely willing to withhold strike action should you wish to take steps to settle these disputes."

Ottawa Citizen Has Suspended Morning Edition

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Citizen, in a move to concentrate on the evening newspaper field, has announced it is merging its morning and evening editions. Effective Thursday it will publish one paper under the name of The Evening Citizen.

The announcement appeared in Wed., morning paper—the final one after 102 years of publication under the "Citizen" banner.

The Citizen said it realizes its move to consolidate efforts on an afternoon newspaper will inconvenience "to a degree" some readers who have relied on the morning edition.

It added:

"To them we offer our apologies. Equally we believe that to the majority of our readers our ability to improve materially our services will be of more than offsetting value."

No Morning Paper

The 1953 Canadian Almanac lists circulation of the morning edition at 12,499; the evening at 48,382.

The merger leaves Ottawa with no morning paper of its own. It reduces the number of morning papers in Canada to 16.

The Ottawa Journal at one time published both morning and evening editions. It terminated the morning edition July 1, 1949. Le Droit, Ottawa's French-language daily, publishes in the afternoon.

The Citizen said it made the announcement "with mixed feelings of regret and pleasure—regret that an old friend is retiring and pleasure in the prospect of concentrating all our efforts on the production of a better and more complete newspaper."

Le Droit's Newspaper

"As part of the consolidation, many weeks have been spent redesigning the Evening Citizen. We are sure it will win instant favor not only with readers who have known it in the past, but with the host of new friends we expect to gain as well."

The Morning Citizen started publication in pre-Confederation days when Ottawa was a hamlet called Bytown. An enterprising and persevering Irishman, William Harris, founded a weekly called The Packet in 1844.

As the weekly changed hands and the hamlet expanded, the name was changed to The Citizen in 1851, four years before Bytown became Ottawa.

The Citizen became a bi-weekly in 1859. Small presses were replaced by a steam press and in 1865 the paper began daily publication.

As the city grew, the paper changed. Presses and offices were moved to Sparks street, the heart of Ottawa's downtown business district.

Robert W. Southam is publisher of The Evening Citizen. He has been with the paper since 1919.

Flights of Geese Dropping in For Two-Months Rest

ST. JOACHIM, Que. (CP)—Flights of greater snow geese whirred over black Cap Tuesday and Wednesday then dropped abruptly onto this mountainous St. Lawrence river countryside, 25 miles east of Quebec.

Sometimes in V-formation, other times in zig-zag, broken lines, advance parties of the flock estimated at 50,000, swooped down for a two months' rest on their way to the warmer climes of North and South Carolina.

The annual migratory flight of the white, black wing-tipped wanderers is keenly watched by naturalists and game officials along the entire 3,000-mile route from the arctic wastes of Ellesmere Island to the sunny Carolinas.

The Rock is the only one in existence and the unique migration and stop-off here affords naturalists an opportunity to study habits of the noisy, honking geese.

Merchants Losing By Taking U.S. Money at Par

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The Windsor Retail Merchants Association, which has long urged its members to accept United States currency at par, suggested Wednesday that retailers discontinue this policy unless they are certain they are dealing with American visitors.

The association said in a statement that many Windsor district residents, who acquire U.S. money while working, visiting or shopping in Detroit, pass the money at par when purchasing from stores here.

One retailer, the statement said, reported an average loss of $500 a month.

Two Judges Named

OTTAWA (CP)—Appointment of two new judges in Ontario was announced by the justice department Wednesday.

A. H. Young, QC, of Toronto, will be a junior county court judge for York county, and H. E. Haslewood of Fort Colborne a junior county court judge for Welland county.

Drive to Pull Canada's Cheese Out of Doldrums

TORONTO (CP)—Canadians will be deluged during October with publicity designed to prove their attitude towards cheese is wrong.

If the campaign is successful it may pull Canada's cheese industry out of the doldrums. All it would take, says E. M. Biggs, dairy products commissioner with the Ontario department of agriculture, is two cheese sandwiches a week on the menu of every Canadian.

The October "Cheese Festival," biggest since it started in 1940, will trumpet the advantages of cheese on everything from television shows to brightly-colored posters.

Restaurants are co-operating by featuring cheese dishes on their menus. Bakeries, grocerterias and meat packers will help with special cheese displays.

The campaign is sponsored by the Dairy Farmers of Canada and the National Dairy Council.

WON'T OPPOSE LAMPORT

TORONTO (CP)—The possibility of an acclamation for mayor Allan Lamport in the Dec. 7 civic election loomed Wednesday with statements by four controllers that they will not enter the mayoralty contest. Controllers David Balfour, Leslie Saunders, Louis Shannon and Ford Brand said they will not seek the post.

Canada May Raise Payment To UN Assistance Program For Underdeveloped Nations

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada may increase its financial contribution for the coming year to the UN program of technical assistance for under developed countries.

A conference is expected to be held here shortly and the Canadian government is understood "to be giving thought to a possible boost of several hundred thousand dollars over the $500,000 it gave this year.

The program—under which some 70 countries share a wide variety of technical skills with less-developed nations—had a budget of $25,500,000 this year, but David Owen, executive chairman of the technical assistance board, indicated this was not enough to permit expansion originally planned.

Needs More Money

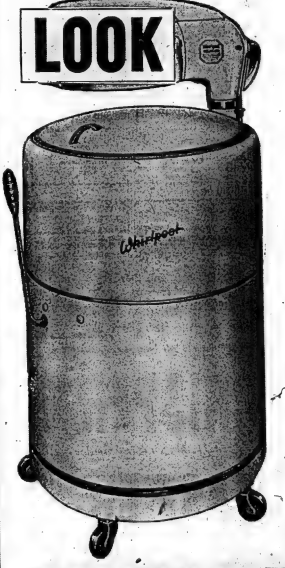
In asking for more money next year, Owen told the UN Monday:

"... The program is no longer in a position to respond to more than a fraction of the requests for technical assistance which have been received from economically less-developed countries.'

Canada's interest in maintaining this program was voiced before the economic and social council of the UN by Senator Stanley McKeen of Vancouver, a member of the Canadian delegation.

He said the basis of UN assistance programs of this kind is "the concept of mutual aid and enlightened self-help" and described this idea as "one of the most fruitful and significant developments in international affairs since the Second World War."

In addition to the money that has been contributed to this program, the participating countries this year have pledged to send more than 2,500 technical experts to countries that need them and have offered fellowships for 1,897 men and women to go abroad for study of skills that will be of help to their homeland.



Canada offered 107 fellowships and pledged to contribute 83 experts to the program this year. It has at present about 70 representatives in more than 30 countries advising on projects ranging from dry farming and plant pathology to civil aviation and antibiotics production.

The largest number of Canadian experts sent to one country were the eight that went to Burma to give help on such subjects as development of small industries, public administration, maternal and child health, malaria control and surveying.

This is the fourth year that a pennant has been awarded. The three previous winners were Girvin Grills, Reid and Fryer.

The Carlisle family were second in the 1953 count with 19 members of the clan in attendance.

The Rev. A. E. Baker, pastor of St. Paul's Carmel, ably presented the two messages in the form of a sermon serial using the theme, "Carrying the Sacred Flame", or "The Selfish Heart."

In story form he emphasized the value of carrying a lighted candle and a gospel message to others rather than to bottle up Christianity and keep it all to oneself.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was checking to himself and ma was watching him, saying William, what is your definition of a friend?

A friend is a person who is always there in case of need, regardless of whether you need or he needs you, pop said, and ma said, That's a very nice definition.

Thanks, frond, what can I do for you? pop said, and ma said, Oh, nothing, thanks. Do you realize there are people who masquerade under the name of frend, and yet when you have the honest courage to speak up and point out some fault or flaw in their character, they bitterly and loudly resent it? There actually are women in the world like that, she said.

There are men in the world, too, but I wouldn't give shucks for a frend who kept quiet when he could speak up and help me to be a better Potts, pop said. That's what frends are for, he said, and ma said, That's exactly what I think Hanish Hipple when she carried on so violently because I pointed out that she would look many years younger and many shades more refined if she would only let her hair remain its original natural brown instead of dying it its present unbelievable red, she should of been grateful instead of up in arms, dont you think so, William? ma said.

I think so, pop said, and ma said, And the principal fact I changed one bit by the accidental fact that I made the remark to Maud Heves and Blanch got it 2nd hand, so to speak, from Maud. Dont you agree, William? she said.

I agree that it's woman's world, and no man knows what's coming next, and it may not even be any of his business, pop said.

And he took his cigar back of his paper, and stayed there.

Yodelling Yankees Defeat 'Bunting-Bums' 9-5 In World Series Opener

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

SIX TO GO!

The tears splashed mightily into Brooklyn beakers yesterday when the beloved Bums fell before the thundering onslaught of the mighty Yankees after drawing up on even terms. The popular "Oskie" fielded out like a ten-year-old firecracker in the first clambake and his wildness paved the way for those big four runs that cracked the cardiacs of the Flatbush faithful.

The powerful machine from the Bronx, however, showed why they're the "chips" boys. They roared back in true championship style to smolder the Dodger threat. The copy cats imitated everything the Flatbush crew did in their desperate effort to pull the game out of the fire, and it paid off.

But today is another day. Hope burns brightly in Brooklyn bosoms and they're chanting "One swallow does not make a Mayer" along the banks of the fragrant Gowanus.

"AIN'T IT THE TRUTH"

There is something about the World Series that puts its games well out of the category of "just another ball game."

The keenest managerial brains in the business will cross mental rapiers in the joust for baseball glory and gold. "Ole Casey" Stengel and the wily Dutch Leonard will duel in a battle of wits strategy that should be one of the behind-the-scenes highlights of the struggle.

"Case" has something more to shoot for than the winning of a World Series. If he cops this one it will be his fifth in a row, a record that literally "screams to the heavens." On the other side of the picture the crafty Chuck will be gunning for the first World Series flag of the Flatbush Faithful. The "Sickened Sisters" have been "ratzamatzed" on no less than eight occasions, but never has the series pennant fluttered from the staff of Ebbett's Field.

With not only the honor and glory of winning the pennant, but the biggest pot 'o gold known reating at the end of the series rainbow at stake, the players will be bearing down with every pitch. Tension will be high. There will be drama, suspense and probably heartbreak. There will be a "great" and a "there". There will be spine-tingling plays, and probably foolish errors.

Then there's the crowds. The most colorful, emotional galaxy of sports fans ever gathered in one place. The wit and humor of a baseball crowd and baseball fans in general never been equalled in the realm of sport. They cheer their favorites to the small-wrecking point. They jeer the foemen. They jibe or back-pat the umpires, all depending on which team benefits by the decision. They eat peanuts, popcorn, hotdogs and gumle soft drinks. And their weapon is a sun-opener, for they sell tinned suds in American baseball parks.

The out-of-park fandom reclines in the taverns and bistros of Gotham and Flatbush. From the Battery to Greenpoint, the boys gather to quaff beer and watch the classic via the medium of television. They loosen their collars and their belts on which beam benefits by the decision. They eat peanuts, popcorn, hotdogs and gumle soft drinks. And their weapon is a sun-opener, for they sell tinned suds in American baseball parks.

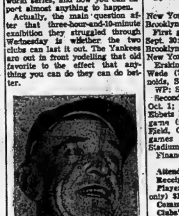
Along the highways radios rattle off the plays in' cars, trucks and other vehicles. The same in houses, cottages and cabins where television has not been installed. In factories, shops and stores and other places where TV or radio is not available, workers are known to acquire of a more fortunate colleague, "What's the score?"

For two hours on each "series day" war, taxes, the price of salami in Lower Slobbovia, Dick Tracy, politics, duck hunting, tickets to the football game, the fall ensemble and other trifle will be forgotten.



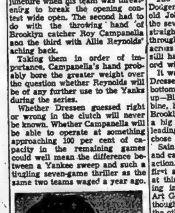
For it's World Series time and millions of sober-minded people in the United States and Canada,..not to mention overseas, will be transformed into semi-maniacs as the proud champions of the Bronx battle the "Busted Bums" from Flatbush in the wackiest, most colorful, mind-wrecking, pocket-cleaning epic in the world of sport.

Reynolds Shelled from Mound As Carl Erskine Flops in First; Champions Now 2-1 Favorites

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers, widely acclaimed as the greatest hitting outfit in modern National League annals, have taken to bunting against New York Yankees at the outset of the 1953 world series, and you can expect almost anything to happen.

Actually, the main question after that three-hour-and-10-minute exhibition they struggled through Wednesday is whether the two clubs can last it out. The Yankees are out in front, as they did not favorite to the effect that anything you can do they can do better.



CHUCK DRESSEN

When the Dodgers started hitting home runs, the Yankees replied in kind. When the Dodgers belted Allie Reynolds from the hill and displayed a flair for the long ball, the chameleons came alive again and knocked out their decisive 9-5 victory, going away. You don't know how or when Casey Stengel's clan struck athletes are going to do it. You only know that it will happen.

As the fathered baseball clan discussed the situation Wednesday night, three subjects were uppermost. The first concerned the partial quarantine of manager Charlie Dressen of Brooklyn in ordering two straight bunts at the pitcher when his team was threatening to break the opening contest wide open. The second had to do with the throwing hand of Brooklyn catcher Roy Campanella and the talent with Allie Reynolds' aching back.

Talking them in order of importance, Campanella's hand probably bore the greater weight over the question whether Reynolds will be of any further use to the Yanks during the series.

Whether Dressen guessed right or wrong in the clutch will never be known. Whether Campanella will be able to operate at something approaching 100 per cent of capacity in the remaining games could well mean the difference between a Yankee sweep and such a tingling seven-game thriller as the same two teams waged a year ago.

CASEY STENGEL

The squat Brooklyn backstop was struck on the inside of his right hand by one of Reynolds' fast balls at the start of the second inning. For the remainder of the game Campanella could grip neither his bat nor the ball snugly. His late peg to second in the eighth inning enabled Billy Martin to effect the quick force off the three-run Yankee rally that sekled Brooklyn's fate.

Wednesday night the hand was swollen, and Campanella refused to have an x-ray made. He said he intends to play today, whatever the cost. That is a remarkable sentiment, but it is to be taken into serious consideration in evaluating Brooklyn's chances.

All year the Dodgers have gone as Campanella went. When he was coming through with his long hits in the climactic stages of those big games, Dressen's men won. When Campanella was in a slump, they were apt to need another ball club. If he is seriously handicapped from here on, they must start measuring Stengel for his five-time hats.

The question of whether Dressen proved himself something less than a genius in ordering two straight batters to lay the ball down in the seventh inning still is wide open. Brooklyn partisans muttered about "second guessing" and said their pilot had forgotten the book. Others were not so sure that Charlie hadn't passed up a bet.

The situation was this: The Dodgers, trailing 4-3, got busy on old Johnny Sain at the outset of the seventh and, by chopping three straight singles to left, scored through the Yankee infield, pushed across the fourth run. They had had runners on first and second with nobody out.

This was a golden opportunity, but Dressen faced a problem. The bottom of his batting order was up—Billy Cox No. 8 and Clem Labine, his third pitcher, No. 9. The Brooklyn manager had to go for a big inning or try to move the leading runner around a base. He chose the latter, and it backfired.

Sain fired a fast ball, and the batter catcher Yogi Berra sprang into action. Yogi reached the dribbler first and threw to Gil McDougald at third as Gil Hodges went tearing in. It was a very fast umpire Art Gore ruled it a put-out. Some thought it could have been called the other way, but Dressen claimed in pain in the coach's box.

Then Labine hit it, too, and the time Berra pegged Carl Furillo out at third with a stride to spare. Labine's grounder sent up a pop foul to end the Dodger threat.

Carl Erskine, presumably Brooklyn's best pitcher, could not survive past the first inning, in which the Yankees lathered him for four runs. Reynolds, Yankee hill ace weather, departed in the sixth after his back had broken down and he had been scalped by three home runs.

On the law of averages, today's game should be better. Both Ed Lopat of the Yanks and Joe (Preacher) Roe of the Brooks are eminent lefthanders whose fast balls have slowed since departed but who possess fine control of their dippy dooz.

The current odds of 2 to 1 on the Yanks to win the series sound about right.

SENATORS GET BOLTON

Kansas City Meets Royals In 'Little Series'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City Blues turned back the last-ditch charge of Toledo Sox Wednesday night to win the American Association playoff in the seventh game 4-1.

The Blues now go into the little world series with Montreal, the International League champions. The first game is at Montreal Friday night.

Kansas City had to rally in the late innings and turn back a ninth inning uprising by the Sox to win the deciding game.

The Blues had won the first three games and the Sox had won the next three.

Bob Wheeler, Kansas City's lefthanded pitching star, stopped the Sox on eight singles.

Leafs Blank Senators 1-0

OTTAWA (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League Wednesday night shut out Ottawa Senators of the Quebec Hockey League 1-0 in an exhibition game.

The Toronto goal, scored by Gord Hannigan, came with only four minutes left in the first period just after Leafs had staved off a determined bid by the Senators as Jimmy Morrison and Ted Sloan were sitting out minor penalties.

Dutchies Whip Imperials 22-9

SARNIA (CP)—Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union hold a four-point lead in the league standing as a result of their 22-9 victory Wednesday night over second-place Sarnia Imperials.

The Dutchmen, in their first season of ORFU company, have won five games and have yet to be tied.

Sarnia's Jim Burr pleased a hometown crowd of 4,000 with a 60-yard kick that gave Imperials a 3-0 lead in the first quarter.

But the second quarter saw Kitchener touchdowns by Jack Mancos, Fran Shorten and Jay Fry, with Ron Tracey, 23-year-old Londoner, booting all three converts.

Imperials came back in the third quarter with a single on a long kick by Burr, conceded by Opri Totzke in the end zone.

Totzke got back on a three-yard smash and Jack McKelvie converted as Imperials fought back in the final quarter. Fry, a Kent product, intercepted a pass on the Kitchener 20 and Don Scott, afterwards, Sully Ford, formerly a Sunny Beach and Parkdale senior fullback, scored on an eight-yard end run. Burr's kick from the Kitchener 31 was taken over the deadline by Totzke to end the scoring.

Imperials made 20 first downs. Kitchener-Waterloo completed five of 22 passes and four were intercepted. Kitchener completed six of its 18 passes and had none intercepted. Sarnia got 30 yards in penalties, Kitchener 42.

Reynolds Injured Back in 3rd, Campy's Hand 'Really Hurtin'

By Joe Reichler

NEW YORK (AP)—The voice on the other end of the telephone sounded tired and dispirited.

"I don't know," it said. "I just don't know."

A pause. . . then Allie Reynolds' voice was heard again.

"I pray and hope I can pitch. But I would have to say it's very doubtful whether I can start again. About relieving, I don't know.

"The only thing I know for sure right now is that my back is sore and there is nothing I can do about it but sit tight and wait. That's the worst part of it. I know it's no good, but I don't know how bad it is. It might be a tear."

The great New York Yankee righthander went on to explain how he hurt his back during Wednesday's opening world series game against Brooklyn Dodgers. He wrenched it in the third inning and re-injured it in the fifth.

The 35-year-old clutch pitcher had been firing the ball in his old time form through four scoreless innings. He was hit fairly hard in the fourth and was shelled from the mound in the sixth. The Yankees went on to win 9-5.

"I first hurt my back in the third inning, while pitching to Gene Belardi," the stoical Indian pitcher explained.

Reynolds went on to strike out Belardi, but hurt his back again while doing it.

"I couldn't put anything on the ball in the sixth," he said. "I guess I got this strain while I was trying to get set for the curve. Campanella, Brooklyn's leading slugger and iron man catcher, insisted that he would definitely play in the series despite's sore and swollen right hand that made it difficult for him to swing a bat or grip a ball.

Campanella got his hand in the way of a fast ball thrown by Reynolds in the second inning. It was heavily bruised and sore.

"It's really hurtin'," the usually-unexcitable catcher said in a rare mild Wednesday night. "I can't grip the bat properly. But I'll be in there catching. You can bet on that."

Asked if he planned to have x-rays taken to show whether there was a fracture, Campanella snorted:

"Not me. If it should show a fracture, they wouldn't let me play. Nobody is going to do that to me. I don't care if I've got eight bones broken, as long as I don't know it. I'm going to play and nobody is going to tell me different."

Gaels Sharp For Blues Game

KINGSTON (CP)—Many Canadian cities and towns and a few from the United States will be represented on the Queen's University football team when the Golden Gaels clash with University of Toronto Blues in the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union opener at Toronto Saturday.

Of the 35 players on Kingston's roster, eight claim Ottawa as their home. Six come from Hamilton, four from Toronto and three from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Montreal, St. Thomas, Fort William, Marmora, Ont., Sault Ste. Marie, Niagara Falls, Ont., Belleville, Rochester, N.Y., Watertown, N.Y., and Bellevue, Calif., have each sent one player to the Gaels.

For the opener, however, Kingston will use only 24 players.

The Gaels looked sharp Wednesday as they went through a quick drill under Hal McCarney and Bruce Bo, assistant coaches who filled in for the absent Frank Tindall. Gael Schreiber of Belleville and formerly of St. Michael's College in Toronto is nursing a charley horse and is a doubtful starter Saturday.

CUBS RELEASE LEONARD

NEW YORK (AP)—Chicago Cubs Wednesday released Emil "Dutch" Leonard, 42-year-old pitcher who had been with the National League club since 1940. Leonard, who began his major league career with Brooklyn in 1938, appeared in 43 games this season and had a 2-3 won-lost record. He pitched nine seasons for Washington Senators, and in 1939 won 20 games and 13 while losing eight.

Big Four Football Mentors Cut Surplus Imports Loose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wednesday was "D-day" in the Big Four Football Union—the day the clubs had to pare their rosters of extra American imports to conform to league regulations of eight imports a club.

The rule took says that by midnight Sept. 30 American imports on each team may not number more than eight—one in the case of Montreal Alouettes who fielded in last place last year.

The Als cut off four Americans, Hamilton Tiger-Cats three and Toronto Argonauts two. Ottawa Rough Riders, trimmed to the quota earlier this week, took on one and dropped another.

The Als dropped tackles Jack Barger and Jim Skahan and backfielders Nub Smith and Jimmy Joe Robinson. The Rough Riders picked up Smith, 25-year-old tackle, and dropped Jack Geerlinc, another tackle.

Hamilton had the maximum limit by releasing end Jim Richards and back Billy Grimes. Quarter Auburn Lambeth was released Tuesday night.

The Argonauts trimmed to their quota through release of end Zeke O'Connor and Jack Barry.

The Grey Cup champion Argos held on to backfielders Joe Scarcero, Ulysses Curtis and Nobby Wirkowski and Al Nyrnas at end. Bob Shaw, centres Keith Carpenter and Ted Ettinger, and tackle Jack Carpenter.

At Hamilton, coach Carl Voyles kept Kenny Ploen, Royal Bailey and Lou Kusserow in the backfield, Jim Soules at quarter, Quincey Armstrong at centre, Bob Cross and Vince Mazza at tackle and Ed Ragazza at end.

The Als retained Alex Webster and Chuck Ellinger, backfield-rs, guards Ed Bradley and Ray Cicia, quarter Sam (The Rifle) Etcheverry, centre Tom Hugo, tackle Rex Coulder and ends John O'Quinn and Ray Purdin.

Ottawa now has quarter Tom O'Malley, backs Clyde Roberts and Avatus Stone, end Bernie Flowers, guards Ray Vaughn and tackles John Kissell and Ed Rowland, as well as Smith.

Tiger Juniors Play 'Sponsors'

HAMILTON (CP)—Jimmy Skinner's Hamilton Tigers of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A circuit starts on to the new Hamilton Forum ice tonight for their first test against the toughest opposition Jack Adams could find—his Detroit Red Wings.

Goalie Denny Riggin is the only proven performer who will line up against the parent Wings, the pace-setters last year with Windsor Spitfires won him fourth spot on the Detroit list of goalies.

Skinner's assistant and Wing scout Johnny Mitchell had 24 juniors signed Wednesday. "They are a vast improvement over last year's Windsor fight," Mitchell said.

Sport in Brief

NEW YORK (AP) — Yonkers Raceway, which lost three days of its fall season during an investigation into its labor practices, was authorized Wednesday to reopen tonight.

However, the track announced that the races would not be resumed until Friday night because of the time needed to enter horses for the evening cards.

The state harness racing commission restored the track's licence conditionally after the track completed and submitted to the commission more than 100 reorganized applications for re-employment at the track.

The applications included "answers to questionnaires aimed at weeding out any employees with criminal records.

Commission members said officials of the Yonkers Trotting Association had given assurance that they no longer employed "trouble shooters" to prevent strikes.

The investigation disclosed that the raceway paid almost $200,000 to "trouble shooters" in the 3½ years since the raceway opened and had hired 35 men with criminal records from a list supplied by a union local.

WALKERTON (CP)—Walkerton Hartley Dodgers advanced to the OASA intermediate 'B' semi-finals Wednesday night when they downed Hamilton Vitas 4-2. The game was a replay of the third game which ended in 3-3 tie. Walkerton now meets Point Edward here tonight in the first game of the semi-finals.

GODERICH (CP)—This western Ontario town is going all out for hockey this year. It was announced Wednesday that Goderich will have an organized hockey in the senior, pee-wee, bantam, midget, juvenile, junior and intermediate divisions. The Goderich Industrial League will also be in operation with an expected six teams participating.

British Gals Set Relay Mark

LONDON (AP)—A British women's quartet Wednesday set a world record for the 880-yard relay by covering the distance in 1 minute 40.2 seconds during a meet between England and Holland at the White City Stadium.

The previous world mark of 1:46 was set on Aug. 4, 1951, on the same track by the American national team of M. Patty, B. Jones, J. Moreau and C. Hardy.

The British record-breaking four were Anne Pashley, Ann Newbould, Shirley Hampton and Anne Johnson.

Gordon Pirie, Britain's outstanding distance ace, was the fastest three. Canada Baseball Association intermediate 'B' semi-final series. Listowel's only run was scored on a triple by John (Red) Mayes and a single by Cliff Grisbach in the seventh inning. Amherstburg tied the score in the last of the seventh and tallied again in the eighth.

Dressing Room Chatter

NEW YORK (AP)—Hank Bauer, New York Yankee right-fielder whose triple in the first inning of the world series on Wednesday started the scoring for the Yankees against the Dodgers, blamed himself for letting George Shuba score a game-tying run in the sixth.

"That homer was about a foot over me," said Bauer. "I think if I had got back in time and turned I might have got it."

In the end it didn't matter, and the Yankees tripped from the field sweating and happy with a running start in the series.

Actually Bauer made a tremendous jump in an effort to cut down Shuba's homer into the stands, but he missed, and Shuba went into the record books as only the third man in 50 years of world series play to hit a pinch-hit home run. The other two are still at his heels up quickly on the close play. Dressen went into a dance of rage at third base but made no official protest.

Instead of having the bases full with one out, the Dodgers found men on second and first with one out. The Yankees went on to win 9-5.

The beaten Dodgers were solemn but not downhearted.

Jackie Robinson, the Dodger stalwart who is playing his third position in a world series (first, second and now left field) seemed to wrap up the Brooklyn sentiments when he said:

"It was great the way the fellows came back after being down four runs. That means a lot. I think we can take 'em now if I can be of any help."

Cal Gardner Joins Bruins

HERSHEY, Pa. (CP)—Manitoban-born Cal Gardner, veteran of both National League seasons with New York Rangers and Toronto Leafs, became a member of the Boston Bruins Wednesday.

Gardner, a native of Transcona, Man., who began his big league career as a centre with the Rangers in the 1945-46 season, was installed on a line with Boston captain Milt Schmidt and Joe Klukay. Patrick, will be used as a defensive He'll start the season at left wing.

The trio, according to coach Lynn Patrick, will be used as a defensive group against high-scoring opponents.

Canucks Edge Rangers 2-1

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Canucks tripped the touring New York Rangers 2-1 in an exhibition hockey game Wednesday night.

The Western Hockey League squad displayed surprising speed and ruggedness to avenge two decisive losses to the National Hockey League club in Trail and Penticton last week.

Andy Bathgate and Dale Sweeney tallied for the Canucks. Max Bentley fired the Rangers' goal.

Johnny Bright Out for Season

CALGARY (CP)—Hard-luck John Bright, all-star fullback in his 1953 debut in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, has been lost to the last-end Calgary Stampeders for the rest of this season.

In Monday night's game here, Bright suffered a shoulder dislocation. The brittle Bright, dogged by injuries ever since coming to Calgary, said this might mean the end of his football career.

The big Negro from Drake University was hampered by a shoulder injury in the Stampeders' first 1952 season and six appendectomy stitched him two weeks in the late season. But he finished as the WIFU's leading ground gainer.

This year he was sidelined briefly by an ankle injury. In the first half of the season he was off-colour, apparently dejected because he wasn't carrying the ball as much as in 1952.

Stampeders then began to work him harder and Monday's game he started flashing his old-time brilliance, averaging 7.5 yards every time he carried the ball.

Early in the third quarter, he tackled Harry Langley, Edmonton halfback from Oklahoma —last was it for 1953 for Bright.

Series Notes

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick must have wanted to be a catcher in his younger days. Before Wednesday's first world series game he said he got a thrill of watching every move behind the plate of catchers Yogi Berra of the Yankees and Roy Campanella of the Dodgers. Both came through with fine performances.

Because of the increase in price of admission, the first game established a financial record. The gross receipts of $462,287 and the $287,574.74 bettered the previous highs set at Cleveland Oct. 10, 1948, by $1,000. Wednesday's paid turnout numbered 69,374.

Phil Rizzuto was a bit more relaxed today. "Now that the first game is over with I feel a lot better," the Yankee shortstop said. "I'm always as nervous as a cat during the first one but I'll be okay from here on in."

Despite his pinch-hit home run, George Shuba still doubts whether he'll see any regular action in right field. "Carl," he says, "you can't expect (Carl) Furillo to be benched. He led the National League in batting."

A Quick now: Do you remember who won the first game of last year's series? Answer—Brooklyn.

Bratton Shades 'Sugar' Wilson

BALTIMORE (AP) — Johnny Bratton, No. 2 ranking welterweight from Chicago, could plant out better than a split decision for the second time Wednesday night against unrated Wally Swift of Englewood, N.J.

Bratton, who is gunning for a return shot at the welter title held by Kid Gavilan, weighed 150½ to Wilson's 146¾.

Referee Lee Halpenny voted in favor of Bratton 6-3-1. Judge Bill Ellis also gave it to the Chicagoan 7-3-1. Judge Jimmy Jones liked Wilson five rounds, Bratton three, and called two even.

Canadiens Whip Royals 7-2

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League overwhelmed Montreal Royals of Quebec Hockey League 7-2 in an exhibition game Wednesday night.

Veterans Elmer Lach and Maurice Richard scored two of the goals, while four rookie Canadiens —Jean Beliveau, Eddie Mazur, Lorne Davis and Cec Hoekstra got the other five among them, Mazur netting twice.

Eddie Litzenberger and Gerry Desaulniers scored for the Royals.

Blue Bombers Pare Imports

WINNIPEG (CP)—Coach George Trafton of Winnipeg Blue Bombers Wednesday night pared his imports to eight, dropping seven Americans including quarterback Tommy Thompson, former Philadelphia Eagle star. The other three Western Interprovincial Football Union clubs are to announce their decisions today.

Also cut from the Bomber squad were centres John Brown and Stu Clarkson, tackle Sam Neville, fullback Ray Dohn Dillon and halves Gerry Palmer and Jim Rye.

Retained were quarterbacks Jack Jacobs and Joe Zaleski, tackles Dick Huffman and Buddy Tinsley, ends Neill Armstrong and Bud Grant; fullback Ralph McAllister; and linebacker and half Dave Skrien.

Possibly the biggest surprise was the holding of Skrien, former University of Minnesota Gopher, who was released about two weeks ago by Saskatchewan Roughriders. He has played only two games with Winnipeg.

Five Teams Will Comprise Senior B Group

Five teams will comprise the senior "B" hockey group in this district, it was decided at a meeting of team representatives held in Peterborough last night.

The teams are Bellerille, Orillia, Oshawa, Peterborough and Kingston. The Cornwall Cliippers did not enter the group and still have hopes of joining a Toronto set-up.

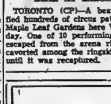
The schedule will be a forty-game affair with the first game tentatively set for October 24 with Peterborough meeting Oshawa. The complete schedule will be released next week by OHA vice president Frank Rochford.

Four teams will be eligible for the playoffs with the team finishing first meeting the fourth-placers and the second and third teams deciding their issue.

BEAR AT LARGE

TORONTO (CP)—A bear terrified hundreds of circus patrons at Maple Leaf Gardens here Wednesday. One of 10 performing bears escaped from the arena ring and cavorted among the ringside seats until it was recaptured.

955 Employees To Get Pay For Thanksgiving Day



WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Ford of Canada will grant Thanksgiving Day holiday pay to 955 employees who will go on layoff Oct. 8, it was announced Wednesday night.

Earlier in the day, Local 200, United Automobile Workers (CIO), said it would file a mass grievance against the earlier decision by Ford not to grant the pay.

Ford vice-president Wallace H. Clark said in a statement the company has decided to grant the pay after "re-considering" the clause of the company-union contract which covers such situations.

The company, he said, decided in favor of the men even though, technically, they are no longer on the company payroll after Oct. 4.

President Charles McDonald of Local 200 said earlier he was "shocked" at the "about-turn" attitude of the company in its previous decisions.

Silence Adds Mystery To Kidnapping Case

By AL DOPKING

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Renewed activity at the home of the wealthy parents of a six-year-old Bobby Greenlease gave rise today to the possibility of a ransom move by his kidnappers after a puzzling day of silence.

The activity began following a day in which no one was seen to leave or enter the big home on Kansas City's fashionable south side.

Several cars were seen to come and go at the home after dark. But even as this activity developed the family and police tightened their silence in the case.

Police insisted no new clues had been uncovered. A spokesman for the family said nothing had happened which might lead to the boy, abducted three days ago from a private school by a woman posing as the child's aunt.

Mystery of the puzzling silence was increased by use of the back door at the family home for the comings and goings of several persons. Until Wednesday night the family had been using only the front entrance.

Associates Assist

Business associates of the multi-millionaire father, Robert C. Greenlease, stood by to offer whatever help might be needed should the 75-year-old automobile dealer have to rendezvous with the kidnapper.

The father has announced he is ready to go to any length to get his son back. He has arranged to get currency at any hour to meet ransom demands.

As the hours passed, friends of Greenlease expressed concern for his health. And Mrs. Greenlease, is berm mid-40s, was confined to her room under a physician's care.

The mother collapsed Monday afternoon when told of the abduction.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The most reluctant TV star of the new season is an unpredictable Welshman named Ray Milland. The story of how he has eased into TV is a weird one.

"It all goes back to 1940, when my agent was in the Zeppo Marx agency," he related, "Marx broke up his company, and my agent had a chance to go to MCA. So he could take along Oryxell Barbara Stanwyck, a writer and a director. We agreed, so got his job."

Time marched on, and MCA — Music Corporation of America, which is the giant among the agencies, began to get into TV film production. Milland's agent urged him to make a half-hour film with the aim of selling a series.

"Absolutely not," the actor replied. "I don't want to work that hard. I'm busy enough with movies."

The agent persisted, as agents are inclined to do. After a number of turn- downs, Milland finally agreed to do the half-hour film. That was a year and a half ago.

Last' December, Milland, weary from steady movie-making, was in New York ready to leave for a three-month vacation in Switzerland. Jules Stein, MCA president, invited him to lunch, at which he promised a "surprise."

Stein proudly announced that the Milland TV series had been sold and the other guests represented the sponsor. The actor made a quick exit, he had no intention of making the series.

That was before his three months of skiing and reting in the Alps. He returned bursting with energy and eager for work. He assented to portray Mr. McNulley, the poor-memoried professor, for the home screens.

After grinding out 12 of the films, he went into the Alfred Hitchcock chiller, "Dial M for Murder." Now he must return to the series. He's not entirely reconciled to his fate.

"I've got to turn out 14 in a row, take a recess, then turn out 14 more," he explained. "I haven't got time for anything else. It killed me, but I had to turn down a beautiful part opposite Shirley Booth in 'About Mrs. Leslie.' The part was written for me, and I had them postpone the starting date again and again so I could make it.

"Now Shirley Booth has to open in a stage play in Philadelphia and they can't postpone any longer. So I had to pass it up, worse luck."

Britain Accepts Egyptians' View On Experts' Dress

CAIRO (Reuters)—An authoritative Egyptian source said today that British and Egyptian negotiators have settled their one remaining difference over an agreement for Britain's withdrawal from the Suez canal zone.

He said Britain has accepted Egypt's argument, that British technicians to remain at the canal should wear civilian dress rather than uniforms. The same authority, who declined to be identified, said last Monday that current negotiations were in danger of foundering over this point.

Britain has signified willingness to evacuate her 80,000 troops from the giant base provided technicians remain there to keep it in top order and troops are permitted to return in the event of an international emergency.

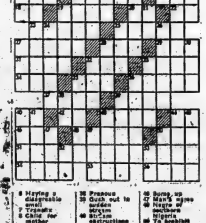
October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—This day should be challenge to you. You may have sharp competition (which you can enjoy) and may have to hurdle such obstacles as impatience and difficult personalities.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—About the same for you as for most of us today. What you accomplish will depend on system and good management. Don't be too anxious or hasty.



December 23 to January 20 (Capricorn)—The position of your future warns against overgoing or taking needless risks with properties, assets, health. After all, one does better, thinks more wisely when calm, collected.

January 21 to February 20 (Aquarius)—It will be more profitable now to stick to routine daily tasks. Don't invite trouble by scampering from one thing to another. Put first things first.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—An in-between sort of day with stress on avoidance of the extreme. Artistic and private affairs may need more thought, perhaps better management.

YOUR HOROSCOPE TODAY have many good characteristics and talents. Develop and use them fully to gain the harvest intended. You don't always follow a prescribed pattern but your natural capacity will, as a rule, bring forth the finished, or right answer. But do not let this ability lead you to become stubborn or unyielding. We all can improve, learn more as we mature. You should be excellent in debate, are a sound reasoner, just, fair in your dealings. Material benefits may come slowly but should be lasting. Birthdate: Cordell Hull, U.S. Under Sec'y. of State; Richard III of York; Ferdinand Foch, French marshal, World War I.

Canadians' Debts Related to Income Are Little Higher

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—There is little more credit out in Canada now than there was in 1939 in relation to the Canadian income today, and the Canadian economy is far from a depression Credit Bureau officials were told here.

Canada's economy is on an upward march that should last at least 25 years without anything more than minor setbacks, G. Don Smith general manager of the Credit Bureau of Montreal forecasts.

To meet the quarter-century expansion that should see the "doubling of Canada's population" and witness "terrific" expansion in her industry and commerce, Mr. Smith said that the current total of consumer credit in Canada totalled about 10 per cent of personal disposable incomes, which ranks closely to the 9.3 per cent and the 8.9 per cent ratios in 1939 and 1929.

Canadians owe more money today than they have ever owed in their lives, he said, "but their income is the highest in history, too."

Mr. Smith said that with Canada's currency now the hardest in the world, with her abundant resources and the coming of the St. Lawrence Seaway, authorities could see no danger in the credit ratio reaching 15 per cent of her personal disposable income.

Two New Detection Devices Promise Added Protection Against Russian Air Raids

NEW YORK (CP)—The radar defences of North America which will give Canada and the United States warning of a cross-pole bomber attack from the Arctic came into new prominence today with a series of announcements after a long period of secrecy.

At Montreal, it was announced that a project known as the McGill fence has fulfilled its mission to develop an early-warning system. And in New York, The Times says today in a Washington dispatch that the U. S. defence department has the Canadian proposal "under active consideration."

New Radar System

The Western Electric Company reported at the same time that its first experimental units of a new type of radar system designed to give at least six hours' warning of aircraft approaching over the North Pole are nearing completion in the polar region.

Operational details of the McGill fence were not disclosed, but the project director, Professor G. A. Woonton of Montreal's McGill University, indicated announcement of the project could be made because "the Russians have as good a fundamental knowledge in this field as we have."

Professor Woonton, at a Montreal press conference Wednesday, said results of "satisfactory" tests of the McGill fence have been turned over to Canada's defence research board for further development and "large-scale trials."

Long Considered

The Times said here that the McGill plan "under study in this country for some time," has "come to the fore as increasing attention is being paid to continental air defence."

"A decision on the efficacy of the McGill project may come sooner than expected as ways to bolster defence against air attack are weighed at the Pentagon," the paper adds.

At Montreal Professor Woonton said the plan is not in competition with the Lincoln plan, a huge general air defence plan for the U.S. which also involves radar. The Times says the Lincoln plan, operating on limited funds until the results are evaluated, has gone forward in such places as northernmost Greenland.

As projected, The Times says, "the Lincoln line would bridge the Alaskan installations with those in Greenland" in the neighborhood of Thule U. S. Air Force base 900 miles from the Pole.

Acknowledged Weakness

The "acknowledged weakness" of the Lincoln line, The Times says, "is that once the bombers passed the radar fence there would be no way of tracing their course for several thousand miles."

But the paper describes the McGill fence as a "drastically different approach in radar detection that would move radar detection considerably northward from present screening systems."

"Although some doubt has been raised as to whether the McGill fence can be ingegrated with present radar detection systems, air defence command authorities declared that they would be highly interested in the system if it were as workable as advance notices indicated."

Tests In Alaska

The Western Electric announcement said its initial installations are near Barter Island, Alaska, about 1,200 miles from the Pole, and if the new-type radar is successful the line of installations will be extended from Alaska to Greenland.

The early - warning announcements coincided with publication Wednesday in Collier's magazine of reports that unidentified planes, almost certainly Russian, have frequently reconnoitred across the Arctic and some have penetrated deep into north-central Canada.

Collier correspondent William A. Ulman, who wrote the article after a survey of northern defences, said "their mission is apparently to feel out our radar defences and photograph our coasts." When jets go out to intercept them the unidentified planes turn back, he added.

He claimed present radar defences are "too wide-spaced, too complex and too close to home."

Churchill May Make New Bid For Big Four Talk

Practically Every Member Of Cabinet at Meeting

By NATE POLOWETZKY

LONDON (AP)—The cabinet met today amid reports that Prime Minister Churchill may make a new official bid for a meeting of Big Four heads of government.

For the first time in three months, the cabinet room at 10 Downing street was almost completely full. Only two ministerial chairs were empty—those of Lord Chancellor, who directs Britain's atomic project, and Lord Swinton, minister of Commonwealth relations. Both were absent on official duties.

Back at Churchill's right hand was Anthony Eden, 56-year-old foreign secretary looking fit after a long convalescence following a series of abdominal operations.

Eden To Remain

Just before the cabinet trooped into the council chamber, Churchill scotched rumors that Eden would be replaced as foreign minister in a one-sentence statement, the prime minister said:

"As from Monday next, Oct. 5, Mr. Anthony Eden will resume his duties as secretary of state for foreign affairs."

Churchill had stated that Eden might be "kicked upstairs" as full-time deputy prime minister, thus giving him a government post with duties while taking a load off the shoulders of Churchill himself.

Eden was cheered and applauded by crowds outside 10 Downing when he approached from the foreign office. He was accompanied by Lord Salisbury, who was acting foreign secretary during his illness.

Still Severe Meeting

Churchill announced Monday that, despite Socialist claims to the contrary, he was still in favor of an informal, face-to-face meeting of the heads of state of the United States, France and the Soviet Union.

He added that his subordinates also were in favor of this meeting.

Previously the Socialists and the Labor party claims that his lieutenants were attempting to engineer a call for a Big Four top-level conference which he refused in a speech in Parliament last May.

The U. S. has been cool to the conference idea.

Pte. D.S. Topping Killed in Crash Near Kaladar

Private Douglas S. Topping, 24, R.R. 1, Mallorytown, Ontario, Private, a member of the R.C.R., stationed at Petawawa camp, was instantly killed late Thursday afternoon when the half ton pick-up truck he was driving sideswiped another truck on a curve four miles west of Kaladar on No. 7 highway.

A passenger in his truck, Private Clifford Canning, 25, 536 Patterson street, Peterborough, suffered head injuries and possible skull fracture. He was taken to hospital at Peterborough. Provincial police said Private Topping was stationed at Petawawa and had left there about noon yesterday.

Police said Topping was driving his own truck and was westbound, when the vehicle ran out of the centre of the road, tore up the highway and crashed into the oncoming truck driven by Harry Taylor of Ottawa. Taylor's truck owned by Durie Motors, Ottawa, was loaded with six tons of terrazzo floor chips. Two other motorists who saw the truck coming at me and I swung right off the highway and as near the guard rail as I could get, but I could not avoid the accident," Taylor stated after the accident.

Truck Side Ripped Out

The entire side of the Topping truck was ripped out by the impact and both Topping and Canning were thrown out of the vehicle into the ditch. The Taylor truck was not damaged in the collision.

Dr. Somerle Hunt of Marlbank, attended Cannon at the scene. An accident report is also viewed by Coroner Dr. V. H. Hunt of Napanee, Provincial Constable D. W. Heppler of Northbrook, and Constable A. Ribyre, of Madoc, investigated.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: The warm weather charts indicate that sunny warm weather will last for a few days in southern Ontario with Saturday expected to be even warmer.

Today, however, skies may be cloudy over the Atlantic to the foothills of the Rockies, with very warm weather west of the Great Lakes. This warm air is producing afternoon temperatures in the 80s.

The warm air is ascending over the relatively cool shrouds in the Great Lakes area, and is now becoming moist enough for this process to produce cloud and rain in northern regions tonight.

BUILDERS HAPPY OVER HOUSING POLICY CHANGE

Bankers Are Surprised By Government's Plan

TORONTO (CP)—A change in federal government housing policy may help Canadians in middle-income brackets to build homes, particularly if a high down payment has been the stumbling block.

Winners of the first two games in the confident Yankees shot glass Raschi veteran righthander to the mound. Raschi's season record was 13 6. Dodger Ace Carl Erskine, who lasted only one inning in the opener at Yankee Stadium last Wednesday, was back for a second try. He has a 12-1 record at Ebbets Field.

Capacity Crowd

A capacity crowd of some 33,000 was on hand in a warm summer day.

The Yankees employed the same lineup that won the opener but the Dodgers made a change, dropped Gene Hermanski from fourth to seventh. Gil Hodges moved up to the cleanup spot and Duke Snider moved up from seventh to sixth.

Starting lineups:

Yankees: McDougald 2b; Collins 1b, Bauer rf, Berra c, Mantle cf, Woodling lf, Rizzuto ss, Carrasquel, Raschi p.

FIRST INNING

Yankees: McDougald went out on strikes. Collins also struck out. Bauer slapped a 3-2 pitch on the ground directly to Reese who threw him out.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Dodgers: Gilliam singled. With Reese at bat, Gilliam tried to steal second, but was cut down. Reese hit to Rizzuto. Snider's shot glanced off Raschi's glove to Rizzuto who threw to Collins for the putout. No runs, hits or errors, none left.

SECOND INNING

Yankees: The fourth ball to Berra bounced in front of the plate and Campanella, expecting a sibling Berra to reach first. When Campanella was slow in retrieving Berra didn't continued to second. Erskine was charged with a wild pitch. Mantle struck out. Rizzuto stepped Woodling's hopper and flipped to Hodges who beat the batter to the bag as Berra advanced to third. Martin walked. Rizzuto forced Martin at second.

No runs, no hits, no errors, two left.

Third Game

By JOE REICHLER

BROOKLYN (AP)—Roy Campanella, his right hand still sore and swollen as the result of being hit by a pitched ball in the opener, decided he was fit enough to play today as Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees met in the third game of the 1953 world series at Ebbets Field.

The slugging catcher took his turn in batting practice and slammed two balls into the left-field stands although he obviously was favoring his right hand.

Labor Front Rocking Under Worst Strike Wave Since '46

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian labor front is rocking under probably the worst strike wave since the end-year of 1946.

A Canadian Press survey today showed wages and hours are the major issues. Upwards of 18,000 persons have been made idle by the work stoppages.

The biggest of the tie-up in the goldfields of northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec is the walkout of workers whereby the employer deducts from the pay cheque the amount of the employee's union dues and sends it to the union.

Strikes are reported impending among other groups of workers. Some now in progress will have an indirect effect on other sections of the labor force by forcing or reducing the demand for products of plants supplying by industry.

4,000 Miners Out

Four-thousand gold miners are on strike in Timmins, about 2,000 in Noranda, Que., to back demands for a union security clause and the checkoff. Some of the Timmins men have been on strike since Sept. 10 and others were more recently as the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CLC) sought to bring the working force at six of the 11 mines at Timmins and two at Noranda.

Five — thousand Newfoundland pulpwood cutters are on a partial stoppage which they do not consider a strike. They have simply stopped fishing until they can obtain higher prices for their cut pulpwood.

Two thousand dock workers, members of the International Woodworkers of America (CIO), went on strike last Saturday in the northern British Columbia coastal area to back demands for wage increases. The shutdown put another 3,000 in the area idle.

Also on the west coast, 1,000 electrical workers in Vancouver and Victoria are preparing to take a strike vote in a wage dispute and 4,000 members of the Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers Union (AFL) have applied for a government-supervised strike vote in another contract dispute.

Steelworkers Out

At Winnipeg, 700 steelworkers employed by Dominion Bridge Co. Ltd. and a subsidiary struck this week for higher wages. C. H. Millard, national director of the steel workers union, said the strike will spread to the company's 10 plants across Canada within a few days unless some basis of settlement is reached on the union's wage demands.

Canadian deep-sea shipping was cut up this week by a strike of 1,000 members of the Seafarers International Union (AFL-TLC) who walked off ships of the Shipping Federation of Canada to support demands for a $50-a-month increase and a 40-hour week.

A total of 600 Dodger paper mill workers are on strike at Beauharnois and Cranbrook for a 40-hour week without pay cuts.

Six Children Taken to Safety In Windsor Fire

WINDSOR (CP) — Six Riverside children were alerted to safety by an uncle Thursday night through a bedroom window after a fire razed half of their home and caused an estimated $6,500 damage.

The uncle, Terry Milner, who was taking care of the children, was attracted by their cries and shouted to them to flee through the window. He broke out the glass.

He assisted the children out as quickly as possible, carrying the baby. The fire broke out shortly after 8 p. m.

The uncle, Terry Milner, who was taking care of the children, was attracted by their cries and shouted to them to flee through the window. He broke out the glass.

He assisted the children out as quickly as possible, carrying the baby. The fire broke out shortly after 8 p. m.

Firemen still were pouring water on the smouldering ruins early this morning.

Cause of the fire is unknown. Joseph Lavack, a co-owner, said a smouldering cigaret may have started the blaze.

Mr. Lavack said he checked the house at 7:30 p.m. EDT yesterday night and found everything in order.

"I always make a checkup last thing at night. Everything was ok then at 11. Then at 2:30 a.m. I got a call from some fellow who said the fire was then passing by on the highway."

Carpenters and Joiners of America (AFL-TLC) have been on strike since Sept. 23 in the Moncton, N.B., area. Their demands include a wage boost of $1 an hour, a 40-hour week and a $6,000,000. The men want a 36-hour week instead of 44 hours and wages of $1.65 an hour instead of $1.40.

A strike by 27 bartenders at hotels in the Crows Nest Pass district in Alberta appears headed for early settlement. Hotel owners say they will grant a 40-hour week, a five-week increase, retroactive to last Nov. 1, as recommended by an arbitration board.

Meanwhile, 200 beverage dispensers at Calgary are getting ready to negotiate a contract to replace the present agreement which expires Nov. 1. They seek a 40-hour week plus a health and welfare plan. Members of the beverage room operators say would cost an extra $25,000 a year.

FORMER MAYOR AND EX-SHERIFF CLEAN OUT BANK

Pair Flee to Toronto With $114,500 in Loot

NEW MARKET, Ont. (AP)—A self-styled ex-sheriff and a former mayor of old Chesterton valley town face charges that they cleaned out the vault of a bank and then were arrested and fled across the Canadian border to Toronto with $114,500.

One of the men returned later. The money has not been recovered.

Wires of federal charges against the hitherto-respected pair swept through here with startling speed.

Former mayor Theodore Roosevelt Beahm, Sr., 58, was "just about one of the nicest guys you ever saw," a local police officer said. Beahm had been with the town's only bank about 20 years and had risen to the posts of vice-president and manager.

Seemed 'Real Pleasant'

Don R. Simpson, 36, is a bank director, was a comparative newcomer "but he seemed real pleasant," one local resident said. Simpson came here 2½ years ago, bought a fashionable estate and the people he was a former sheriff in Pennsylvania.

Both Beahm and Simpson were charged with bank embezzlement. Accused of helping the pair escape flee to Canada is Simpson's nephew, Charles R. Simpson, 30, described by police as "quite a police lad." The FBI said he drove the older men to Toronto.

Beahm Flies Home

At Toronto, Trans-Canada Air Lines officials said Beahm and the Malton airport Monday on his way back to the U. S. Police at Toronto said they had no warrant on word from the FBI asking them to be on the lookout for Don Simpson.

The FBI said Beahm flew back Monday and was arrested and later forced at gunpoint to open the vault Saturday and give the money to an unknown man and to help Simpson, who then kidnapped him and took him to Canada.

But the FBI said Beahm was unable to substantiate his story and, in fact, Simpson had returned to Canada and Simpson followed a previous flight plan to check out the bank's funds and take off.

Did Not Intend To Put Agencies In Bad Light

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Phillips, reported Wednesday as saying at the Lakehead that overlapping of welfare efforts by the voluntary health field, said Thursday he did not believe this meant he did not intend to put any agency in a bad light.

"I will only say I was misquoted, but perhaps misunderstood at Fort William," Mr. Phillips said.

"I still think there is unnecessary overlapping of activities in some cases. This does not apply to all such groups but I hope something can be done to co-ordinate efforts of certain voluntary associations with those of the province or others or government health departments.

"I had no intention in his Lakehead interview of singling out certain agencies and putting them in a bad light.

Dr. Ian Cooper, executive director of the Ontario Crippled Children's Society, said his agency makes every possible effort to prevent overlapping. A. D. Gordon, manager of the Society for Crippled Civilians, said there is no overlapping in his society.

Warehouse Burns At Peterborough

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Fire swept the Peterborough Lawrence Salvage Co. warehouse on the city's southwestern outskirts Thursday, causing an $84,000.

Firemen still were pouring water on the smouldering ruins early this morning.

Cause of the fire is unknown. Joseph Lavack, a co-owner, said a smouldering cigaret may have started the blaze.

Mr. Lavack said he checked the house at 7:30 p.m. EDT yesterday night and found everything in order.

Two Chinese PoW Slain In Second Break-Out Try

Indian Troops Quell Riot Of Restive Anti-Reds

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Indian guards armed with gun and clubs today killed two Chinese prisoners and wounded five others in the second mass break-out attempt in two days of restive anti-Communist war prisoners.

The Indians Thursday quelled with guns a riot of North Korean prisoners which left one dead and wounding five.

Casualties in two days of violence—the first time blood has been shed since the Indians took custody three—are dead and 10 wounded, the Indian command announced.

Order Restored

An Indian spokesman said order had been restored at the 2,000-pounds five miles northwest of Panmunjom in the demilitarized zone. Thursday's riot lasted only a few minutes.

The spokesman said today's riot was touched off when five PoWs in the camp hospital demanded that another prisoner, taken to the hospital after attempting suicide, be returned to the compound.

The Indians refused. The five prisoners rushed out of the hospital and attacked the Indian guards, using 500 men. The others took up the fight for the release of the prisoner and began scaling the barbed-wire fences.

The spokesman said the guards repeatedly warned the prisoners to halt. Then the whole lot of them kept on coming.

Fired Warning Shot

"First we fired one shot in the air as a warning. That had no effect, so the guards fired six more shots. A total of only seven shots was fired."

The Indian said two of the five injured men were hurt by sticks wielded by the Indians, and the other three were gunshot wounds.

After the demonstration, the Indians broadcast appeals over a Chinese a message "regretting" the death of one Korean through a Red Mai-Gen. D. H. Thorat declared in the broadcasts:

"We are sincerely avoiding the opening fire, but if you force us to do so, the responsibility is entirely yours. I appeal, to you to preserve good order in your camps. If you do so, you will continue to remain as friendly as before."

The Indian command said the Korean killed Thursday was buried today with full religious rites and with fellow prisoners in attendance.

Diplomats at United Nations headquarters in New York expressed surprise that Communists, after being assured earlier this week that Indian guards would be unarmed, would attack them.

ANOTHER LARGE APPLE ADDED TO DERBY

It is a good thing Newton didn't discover the law of gravity under the apple trees at Lyle Weese's farm. Carrying Place R.R. 1, otherwise his brains and his ideas might have become a little scrambled.

Mr. Weese's most recent contribution to the apple derby being waged in this office is a magnificent McIntosh red with a circumference of 14½ inches. It had a six inch diameter and stood 4¼ inches high.

It was the largest of an extremely bountiful crop being taken off the McIntosh trees on Mr. Weese's 63 acre apple orchard.

A cousin, Allan Weese, Carrying Place brought two great samples of McIntosh apples into the Ontario Intelligencer office on Tuesday. They were somewhat smaller than the prize winner displayed today by Lyle Weese.

NO BUILDINGS WERE ENDANGERED

City firemen were called to the Lacey Auto Wreckers in Hillcrest Ave. evening when a torch used in taking parts from a car had set fire to the vehicle. Little damage was caused and as the burning vehicle was in an open field no buildings were endangered.

Four Counties Responsible For 3.8 Per Cent of Accidents In Province for 6 Months

No. 9 district of the Ontario Provincial Police, consisting of the counties of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, and Frontenac, was responsible for 3.8 per cent of all motor accidents in Ontario during the first six months of 1953. There were 39,287 accidents in the period.

A summary of motor vehicle traffic accidents during 1953 published by the Motor Vehicles Branch showed there were 1,119 accidents in the No. 9 district from January to June of this year. This was an 18.3 per cent increase over the same period last year when 944 accidents were reported.

The general Ontario increase for accidents in the seven periods was 15.2 per cent, it was stated.

Within the No. 9 district the county of Frontenac led in accidents with 521 as compared with 402 for the first six months in 1952. Hastings was second with 402 accidents as compared with 375; Lennox and Addington was third with 120 as against 111 and Prince Edward had 76 as against last year's 52. Fatal and the urban areas are included in the total.

Throughout Ontario there were 603 person fatally injured in the six months period as against 557 when were the drivers of cars; 130 were passengers and 127 were pedestrians.

Driver responsibility for fatalities and motorcycle passengers and cyclists made up the total.

More persons in the 15-35 age group—154 were killed than in any other group. Fifty-four children from 5 to 14 years were fatally injured and 28 children from birth to 4 years. Drivers in the 25-40 year aged group were involved in most accidents with the 18-24 year age group next in line.

Drunken drivers account for only 727 driving involving 1,119 deaths and 203 injuries, while 48,176 sober drivers killed 443 persons and injured 10,605.

A breakdown of the accidents showed that most accidents occurred between four and six in the afternoon.

Of the 39,287 accidents reported, 17,334 took place in daylight, while 21,953 were reported as dirty road conditions.

The report showed there were 1,292,738 motor vehicles registered in Ontario, an increase of 9.3 over the first six months last year. The number of licensed drivers was up to 1,318,486, from 1,419,228, or seven per cent.

COBOURG (CP)—The first world plowing championship is being held in Northumberland County and features from 11 countries competing for the Golden Plow Trophy.

The Republic of France, Britain, Northern Ireland, the Republic of Ireland, Holland, Denmark, West Germany, Finland, Sweden, Norway, the United States and Canada will turn over 1,000 acres in this eastern Ontario district next Thursday and Friday for the new trophy, a miniature of the Norfolk plow used in the early 19th century.

The Ontario Plowmen's Association is holding its annual four-day international match at the same time on the same site and is selecting as host to the first world match sponsored by the world championship body, the organization formed last fall at Falkirk, Scotland.

The world trials will be held Thursday and Friday, with Tuesday and Wednesday devoted to Canadian and regional competition.

In Ottawa, it was announced that General Charles Foulkes, chairman, will officially open the international trials Thursday from Ottawa. He will fly from Quebec City, where he has been in summer residence, to Cobourg in the morning. He will inspect an RCAF guard of honour on arrival and then motor to Cobourg.

'God's Forgiveness Versus Man's' Message at Templeton Mission

Over 1,200 persons listened last evening to a-most inspiring message on "God's Forgiveness," given by the Reverend Charles R. Templeton in the Memorial Arena on the fifth day of the evangelistic campaign under the auspices of the United Churches in Belleville.

As on the previous evenings, the organist, Mr. Clifford Fuller, of Holloway Street United Church, and the pianist, Mr. S. Alec Gordon, organist of Bridge Street United Church, provided the accompaniment for the singing, and rendered the lovely "Berceuse", by Delbruck, as a special prelude to the service.

Delegations Present

Among the several delegations present from neighboring districts were those from Gananoque, Napanee, Picton, Batawa, and Foxboro, while the choir for last evening was composed of the Bayside, Trenton, Wesley United Church, Stirling, with added support from the Napanee and Foxboro churches. Mrs. A. E. Baker, A.T.C.M., organist of St. Paul's accompanied and directed the choir of mixed voices as they rendered the anthem "My Shepherd," in a beautiful melody of sound.

Mrs. Templeton also favored with two lovely solos, "When They Ring Those Golden Bells For You and Me," and the gospel message in song, "I Will Sing Of Thee." Before rendering the latter song Mrs. Templeton told of how a girl, through hearing her singing this gospel song some years ago, was led to accept Jesus Christ, and who, today is preaching the gospel of redemption in the Belgian Congo. This song, which was sung with much feeling and understanding, was long remain a blessing in the ears or memory of those who were privileged to hear it.

God's Forgiveness Vs Man's

Mr. Templeton, in prefacing his address on "God's Forgiveness" as contrasted with the forgiveness of man, gave a word picture of the woman who was brought to the Lord Jesus as he preached in the market place; of the effect it made on her heart, of her following Him to the home of Simon the Pharisee, of her washing Jesus' feet as He reclined at the meal, with her tears, and wiping them with the hairs of her head, and pressing her lips to His feet as she knelt in humility and love.

Illustrating man's forgiveness, Mr. Templeton told the story of the African Christian who had a grievance against his pal, and who on his sick bed, said "I forgive you, but if I live till morning row, look out." Man forgives but remembers; God forgives and forgets.

He outlined Simon's reaction, his sneering, caustic monlogue thoughts, and Jesus' reply to his unspoken rebuke. "Simon, I have somewhat to say unto thee. And he saith, Master, say on. There was a certain creditor, which had two debtors: the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty. And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me, therefore, which of them will love him most?

"Simon answered and said, I suppose that he, to whom he forgave most. And He said unto Him, thou has rightly judged. And he turned to the woman, and said unto Simon, seest thou this woman? I entered into thine house, thou gavest me no water for my feet: but she hath washed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head. Thou gavest me no kiss; but this woman since the time I came in hath not ceased to kiss my feet. My head with oil thou did not anoint; but this woman hath anointed my feet with precious ointment. Wherefore I say unto thee, her sins which were many, are forgiven; for she loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the same loveth little. And He said unto her, thy sins are forgiven."

Sins Forgotten — Forgiven

Jesus did not enumerate her sins to her; He forgave immediately. He did not dwell on the cross when the thief asked: "Lord, remember me when Thou comest into Thy kingdom, to which Jesus immediately replied: "Today, shalt thou be with Me in paradise." There was no drowning up into the thief's face his past sins of a bandit, but the reply forgiveness.

"When God forgives us our sins, when we come to Him in repentance, and sincere humility, asking forgiveness, God says He will remember them against us no more for ever, and will put them away as far as the east is from the west, and bury them in the depths of the deepest sea."

Mr. Templeton also brought to his hearers remembrance of the parable of the unjust, wily tax collector, who had climbed up into the sycamore tree to see Jesus as He passed on His way to whom Jesus called, saying: "Zacchaeus, come down, for today I will abide at thine house . . ." Jesus did not upbraid Zacchaeus for his sins, but instead told him that salvation had come to his house.

The Father's Forgiveness

Again, in the story of the prodigal son, who had wanted to be free of the home restrictions, had demanded his portion, which he spent in a far country, but at last came to himself and returned to his father, who met him with outstretched arms, fell on his neck and kissed him, rejoicing at his return to the father's love and home. Firm Denies Sale of Stamp For $36,000

STOCKHOLM (AP)—A recent Toronto report that the unique Swedish three-skilling banco stamp had been sold to an anonymous collector for $36,000 was categorically denied here today by the Harry Wennberg stamp firm.

An anonymous collector claimed earlier this week at Toronto that he had paid $36,000 to an unnamed Swedish dealer for the stamp.

"We still have it locked up in our bank safe and there is no truth to the report at all," said a spokesman for the Wennberg firm.

The yellow three-skilling banco stamp was printed in 1855 in the wrong color. The rest of the series is blue-green.

The yellow stamp was sold to King Carol of Roumania in 1867 for 10,000 crowns, worth about $50,000. Rene Berlingin of Luxembourg bought it in London in 1930. He deposited the stamp with the Stockholm stamp dealer last year.

Harry Lafortune Convicted Of Manslaughter

HAMILTON (CP) — Harry LaFortune, 23, Thursday was convicted of manslaughter in the strangling of 56-year-old Anna Sipes in a rooming house bedroom May 22. He will be sentenced Oct. 9.

LaFortune, former merchant marine sailor and hotel busboy, originally was charged with murder. A jury in Ontario Supreme Court deliberated only 10 minutes before returning the manslaughter verdict.

Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven, in his address to the jury, discussed the possibility that LaFortune was incapable, because of drunkenness, of forming the intent to kill the woman. LaFortune had given police a "long, rambling" statement the night of his arrest.

The Hotel Dieu at Kingston will receive $150,000 for 50 beds in the nurses' residence and the Humber Memorial Hospital in suburban Weston will get $9,000 for a nine-bed nurses' residence.

Mr. Phillips also announced that the limit on the number of beds for cancer isolation, geriatric and psychiatric patients in connection with which a hospital can receive grants is being abolished "for very costly they could not exceed 3.5 per cent per 1,000 population for active cases and 1.5 per cent for chronic cases.

NOBODY GAINS BY FIRES

Is that pile of old papers in the corner of the cellar worth $10,000?

Of course not, you say. But it may cost you that much if you leave it there. It may be just what is needed to turn a small fire into a big one, destroying your home.

Nobody wants his home burned. But you may say that, even if the worst comes to the worst and your house burns, it will not cost you money. The insurance company will pay.

Do not fool yourself. The insurance company will pay you, but you and all the other policy-owners will pay the insurance companies. They are in business to make money and that means that they are careful to keep their premiums at a figure which will exceed fire losses.

If you, and other property owners, clear rubbish out of the basement of your home, have faulty electric wiring promptly repaired, burn your heating system in good shape, put matches where children cannot reach them, refrain from going to sleep with a lighted cigarette in your hand, avoid tossing coal-oil into the kitchen stove to get a quick fire, have your dry-cleaning done by specialists instead of attempting the job yourself with gasoline and question the advisability of thawing out dynamite on a Quebec heater, there will be fewer fires. If there are fewer fires insurance companies will not have to pay out so much. If their expenditures are cut, this will be reflected in lower premiums.

Perhaps, ten years from now, the Dominion Fire Commissioner will be able to report fire losses for the decade were lower than the $591,000,000 worth of property which went up in smoke during the past ten years.

Perhaps the loss of life will be less than the 4,708 toll of the past decade.

Any time, of course, is a good time to guard against fire. But the fall of the year, when the furnace is just being stoked up and the summer's accumulation of junk is providing a disposal problem, is a propitious time. Especially this fall when it is realized that nobody gains by a fire. That, we imagine, is why the week from Sunday, October 4, to Saturday, October 10, has been set aside as Fire Prevention Week.

There are many "Weeks" in the year; more "Weeks" than weeks, to be exact. But Fire Prevention Week is one which stands for action, not just instruction. The latter, of course, is valuable and will be featured in schools throughout the country. But most of the work needs to be done in the cellar and the attic. Get at it.

RUINOUS RUMINATIONS

One of the pleasantest hours of the day is that devoted to the perusal of the editorial pages of other newspapers.

On afternoon when mail has way through the window, there is the cosy hum of voices beyond the door and spread on the desk before one is the product of many men's labor, begging to be read.

All that the chief is required to do is to label it with the name of its original owner, before marking it up for presentation to the readers of the editorial page of the Ontario Intelligencer.

It is pleasant work and the amazing part is that one gets paid for it. Each day this is one of the accepted tasks in editorial offices all over the country.

This toil, if toil it can be called, produces a rich reward. For the lively fingers that have performed it with a horde of other men and great cities across the continent are in many cases driven by keen minds. Before the scissors pile up a wealth of wisdom, a heap of humor, a welter of wit. When the chore is finished there is never a doubt but that the harvest is rich and will reward the reader.

And then strikes the ugly thought. Rich indeed is the harvest—too rich. In what other trade does one daily display the best of other men's work, for comparison with one's own? What can that constitute typewriter, standing ominously silent in the corner, produce to compare with this mound of experience, knowledge, wisdom and art, the cream of the crop of craftsmen in newspaper offices from the Atlantic to the Pacific?

In what other trade is a man required to parade the work of his rivals, to daily provide evidence of this own inepitudes?

The pleasant task is turned by an idle thought into a grim fate and the wide columns at the left of this page yawn as readily with white as with print.

Not until tomorrow will the day's clipping task give joy again.

SCIENCE'S FAILURE

We have no doubt that these dog food preparations are as rich in protein, fats, vitamins and minerals as their labels claim. And, for all of us, they may be chicken flavored, too, although we prefer to take their say-so for that. In our humble opinion, however, modern science has failed the canine world in one respect. No one has yet prepared a dog food that any red-blooded dog would prefer to the contents of a garbage can.—(Wingham Advance-Times.)

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Since the ladies have taken to slacks, there can surely be no harm in the men taking to skirts. A waterproof skirt make of slicker material is without doubt the dryest and most sensible defence against the elements that can be designed. A natural bevarde in men's nature has stood in the way of adopting such a garment for generations. They have come near to it. They have journeyed all kinds of wide-skirted slicker coats, full-length parkas that have the manly Eskimo fur authority, ponchos borrowed from the Mexicans the envelope the fisherman or the duck hunter from shoulder to heel. But the difficulty with all these evasions of the plain truth is that one way or another they expose the legs, the knees, the ankles of the sportsman braving the weather.

It took a hard-boiled old guide, a backwoods fellow, to make the jump. And now everybody who sees his outfit is envying slicker skirts. He wears a regular fisherman's slicker coat or jacket. Normally, a pair of overalls would be worn under it all go with this rig. But they are clumsy, make walking or even sitting an awkward and bandy-legged exercise.

"Some while ago," said this old guide, "I saw some old-fashioned pirates on the walls of one of our summer tourist hotels. They had a print of a seaman, about the time of George the First, getting ready on the box of his coach. He was in the act of putting on a skirt! There could be no mistake. So two winters ago I was down in Vancouver, who makes good so hard to grow on gold courses, and so easy on clay tennis courts.

Texas Not Mentioned

(By SAM RATE in Austin Magazine.)

The biggest sapolstera in the world is undoubtedly somewhere, but no one knows where. Texas claims the one which is bigger than all its fellows, just as in everything else. The largest living thing in the world is a tree. For many years different countries claimed that record and eventually, a group of forestry engineers in Europe contacted their opposites in Australia, Canada, Europe, Africa and Asia, hoping to settle them, they could arrive at a solution.

The search was narrowed down to one Californian Redwood growing in the Sequoia National Park, and over a thousand calculations were made before the engineers were satisfied that it was the largest tree in the world and, therefore, the largest living thing. It has a circumference of 86 feet and a height of 272 feet. There is enough wood to make 20,000,000 matches or fifty wooden houses of five rooms each.

The largest flowers in the world—as apart from orchids—are found in the steaming jungles of the Amazon or of Africa, but in the British colony of Sarawak, in Malaya, Rafflesia flowers grow to tremendous size. Parade Ground Flower found measuring four feet, while Swazi roses bushes grow to a height of six feet.

To say that China, with a population of 500,000,000, is the largest nation in the world, means very little because it is surpassed with other countries. The total population of Australia and New Zealand combined is 6,000,000, and up to 12,000,000 while the average birth-rate in China is 30,000,000 a year.

Farms seem to be of all sizes, yet, obviously, somewhere there must be one which is bigger than all the others. There is. The record for size goes to a farm in Southern Texas, which is actually called Trubekatays, with a total area or 1,000,000 acres.

The palm for the deepest coal mine in the world goes to a Welsh colliery at Ebbw Vale, where miners work at the uncomfortable level of 2,400 feet below ground.

Most people seem to think that, the largest city in the land of skyscrapers, the records of most mammoth structures are held by America. It is not true, for Britain holds quite a number of records. For instance, the biggest railway station in the world is Euston, which has a total area of 24 1-2 acres; but Waterloo does not come in the largest platform in the world. This is in a place called Sonepur, in India, which is 2,300 feet long.

The biggest city in the world is that of our country, London, but few people know that the busiest railway junction in the world is Clapham, controlling more than 300 train every day.

Britain, too, can boast the largest library in the world, for there are 4,000,000 volumes in the British Museum. The largest island in the world is a 63-feet-high figure of Buddha in Ceylon—a British dominion.

When it comes to tombs, then America holds the record with the famous Wrigley tomb on Catalina Island.

William Wrigley was the man who made a fortune from chewing gum. It can even compete with the Taj Mahal as the most costly, for although the latter cost £2,000,000 to erect, Wrigley gathered $3,000,000 for the site of his tomb. While the foundations were being dug, mineral deposits were discovered which would have netted Wrigley many millions of pounds, but because he had set his heart on Catalina Island as a resting place he refused all offers.

There is such a thing as the most luxurious prison in the world, although it sounds crazy. It belongs to Zaki Okasha, Egyptian, and contains a suite of rooms, two bathrooms, a telephone, electric generating plant and above all, a refrigerator.

In spite of Zaki Okasha and Wrigley, however, the most beautiful tomb in the world is the Taj Mahal.

When it comes to theatres, records can be found in plenty. Not only is it the biggest theatre in the world, but, in fact, it is in two theatres built into a race track or bull ring.

Underneath hundred miles of uninterrupted wall give China the record of the largest work in the world—The Great Wall.

The tallest building in the world is Empire State Building in New York, which, at 1,250 feet high Empire State Building in New York, which, at 1,250 feet high is the biggest park in the world, for the Yellowstone Park covers 3,350 square miles.

America comes back with the undisputed claim of the hottest place in the world. Death Valley, in California, has a temperature of 134 degrees Fahrenheit.

People live in the coldest place in the world, which is not at either Pole, as might be expected, but is a town called Oi-Mekon, in Siberia.

America can boast two more record which is British. Many years ago the Great Salt Lake, Utah's worth, gave birth to the biggest baby in the world. Its weight of 23 pounds has never since been equalled.

Britons Really Go To The Dogs

(Gali Reporter)

Close to sixty-four and a half million pounds sterling was last year wagered by punters on the British dog-racing tracks. At current rates of exchange, that is around one hundred and eight million dollars, and seven times even in a day when another zero or two tacked on the end of some figures attract little attention.

The amount wagered was rather more than fifty-four million pounds was returned to the backers, while the management collected six and a half million pounds. That leaves close to four million pounds for the owners and kennel proprietors.

An interesting feature is that, despite this huge sum, the money spent on dog-racing shows no 1931, which, in turn, was lower than 1930 by four and one-half million.

Dog racing has become popular throughout the British Isles. To such an extent, in fact, that there are hardly after one day's events are run each year. These are the Derby, St. Leger, Oaks, Cesarewitch and Cambridge. The crowds totalling many thousands gather to watch the biggest of which is White City, in London. Country carnival days, Greyhound Racing Association, is rigid and penalties for infringement of its rules can involve banishment from any track within the association ring.

Greyhound racing is, indeed, big business. Few who pioneered the sport during the years of the world wars could have hag any idea that it would grow to its present mammoth proportions. Even the humble whippet, the little whippet racing, for long so popular among steel-workers and coal miners in the industrial north of Britain.

Now, the Brittisher has given a back seat to a sport which involves betting the figure of the greyhound, where a small, racy dog chases a live hare. Today, he prefers to sit in a flood-lit stadium to watch half a dozen large, lean dogs, muzzled and fitted with speed after an electrically propelled dummy hare around a greasy track.

SO YOUR LEGS ARE JITTERY

Dr. Brady

In Little Lesson in the Ways of Health titled How to Breathe, I tell how to use "brace" your self, fumigate with nitroglycerin to relieve intermittent "air addiction"—I can't claim to be a pioneer for the fancy name, so I'll say nitroglycerin is very probably heart. Nitroglycerin is very violent and its effects last their strength in a few weeks.

The characteristic effect of a dose of nitroglycerin is throbbing of face and neck, throbbing and pounding of the heart, perhaps blurring of sight and some dizziness—these effects, except throbbing of the face, are not so striking (or to the novice alarming) that the patient is laying down for a while after the first dose.

Nitroglycerin, otherwise called glyceryl trinitrate, trinitrin and glonoin is the only quick-acting but its effect lasts only half an hour or so. It is therefore an emergency or first aid agent and should be available without the formality of prescription. Druggists everywhere see to it that patients who need it in moments of distress get a few tablets in pocket or pocketbook.

Among the emergencies which call for nitroglycerin are angina pectoris, epileptic seizure, severe asthma.

Because of the fleeting effect of nitroglycerin, one has to be reprated in half an hour to an hour, if necessary.

Restless is not to be confused with finding a comfortable position for the night's rest. If you can't sleep at night is not an emergency, but I advise you to nature with no complaint to familiarize themselves with nitroglycerin. Further investigation is to be frightened by medical usersharers who pretend nothing but "nervousness" and sell "em instead. Nitroglycerin is a magical new nostrum but it deserts its place as desirable effects of nitroglycerin but no trip toward effects. That's pharmacological hooey.

THROUGH A GLASS DARKLY

Life is filled with a sense of his own importance—yet often cringing in fearfulness at fear—he lets against facing the fact that he lives in an imperfect world, that he can do very little to manage his own affairs, and that about him are variables that will never have been solved and probably never will be.

There is a statement made by the Apostle Paul which has been so seldom quoted by Christians that it is this: "For now we see through a glass darkly." Paul was one of the wisest men that ever lived, and among other things he demonstrated his wisdom by recognizing that human beings know very little about themselves, the world in which they live, other people and their motives.

Things which the Bible we do not understand. Some of the events of life have a way of being a blessed and we shrink indignantly over this outrage. We cannot understand the reason why trouble and pain should be our portion. We do not understand these things. But why should we? The important thing is that we should let the events of life teach us something and should be filled with a confidence that in higher order of existence the things which now baffle us will be clear and the features of a friend whom we see face to face.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THAT POWER WITHIN US

Each of us has a power within us about which we know all too little. Jesus was demonstrating that it is there. But it is only as we acknowledge demonstration, and act upon it, that this power rises or within us gradually illumines our emotions, our attitudes toward life and upon which personal power feeds.

This inward power either never comes to light or it keeps increasing in strength as we mature in mind and heart mature. No need, however, for this power to fail us in over one's life, and if ever does this power die? It dies when you lose interest in yourself in your fellow creatures, and faith in God. Then, and not till then, does your power die.

Just so long as you can wonder, appreciate, and love, that power which leads you through life, enriching yourself and others, you can always count upon as an ally. Just so long as you can look forward to the future at night and view that studded canopy of beauty and mystery, just so long as you can pray and note a baby's smile, just so long as you can look upon a child flower and be inspired, or listen to the call of a thrush with its plaintive notes, your power is alive.

We are not capable of impressing ourselves in one way or another. In my reading I have been struck by the power of maintaining life in others, lives within each of us which we have not as God recede when unused.

We have read of instances where a person has used his power only to gratify himself and to the detriment of others. But that kind of power can, and often does, die overnight. Many times it does not mean it to. The power of personal uplift and inspiration is a power that comes into the lives of others, however, remains a constant force, a power which grows as it is constantly presents itself. Through prayer is this power always reinforced.

Party Leader Howled Down At Capetown

CAPETOWN (AP)—The leader of the newly-formed South African liberal party, Mrs. Margaret Ballinger, M.P., was howled down last night when she attempted to address her first meeting of Africans in Langa township here.

For nearly an hour speakers, including an African chairman, tried to obtain a hearing but a group of young natives men kept up an unbroken bedlam of invective, shouting: "Get out, go home, we don't want Europeans here, Liberal or no Liberal. Get out, oppressors and dictators."

The speakers finally left the platform without making one speech. Mrs. Ballinger and her husband, Senator William Ballinger, who was on the platform, represent native interests in the House of Assembly and Senate, respectively.

One of the principles of the Liberal party is to extend full franchise to all "civilized" natives, who now are on a communal electoral roll with power to send to the House of Assembly only three white MPs out of a House of 159.

Rubber Industry Charged With Stalling Tactics

KITCHENER (CP) — Union heads at a meeting here today charged the Canadian rubber industry with "stalling tactics" in failure to agree on a 1953 contract.

No specific companies were named at the meeting of more than 30 local residents of the United Rubber, Cork, Linoleum and Plastic Workers of America, (CIO-CCL).

A resolution urged the industry with a "concerted effort" to delay settlement and said it had made no counter-offer to union demands for new contract benefits including vacations, premium pay, night shift bonus, union security and other fringe issues along with a general wage increase.

The resolution declared: "This effort on the part of the rubber industry is very unfair when the parent bodies in the United States have agreed to similar wage and welfare demands."

Bridegroom Beat Wife, 16, With Ball Bat

ST. JOHNS, Mich. (AP) — A young bridegroom, "fed up with married life," faces an attempted murder charge following a baseball bat attack on his 16-year-old bride of three months.

Delmar Leffler Jr., 19, is in jail here. He sobbed out his story over the telephone to state police Thursday.

Mrs. Betty Leffler suffered a fractured skull and is in critical condition.

State police said the young husband told them he had no reason for the brutal beating of his wife, except that "I was fed up with married life."

Police found the wife lying in an upstairs bedroom at the Leffler home near Laingsburg.

Sheriff Percy Patterson said Leffler told of knocking his wife down with a baseball bat and then hitting her "four or five times more."

The young husband, Patterson added, said he had made up his mind to kill his wife while on his way to work Thursday at the General Motors Oldsmobile plant in nearby Lansing.

CRASH INJURIES FATAL

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Daniel Embeck, 4, Detroit, died Thursday of injuries suffered Wednesday when his car crashed off a highway near here. Witnesses said the automobile bounced off a tree, struck another tree, which snapped off at the trunk, and then careened into a third tree.

Are you keeping up with your husband?

Be sure to see this month's provocative feature "Can This Marriage Be Saved?" Many a good wife and mother fails to realize she is also her husband's partner. City's Climbing Fire Losses Make Fire Prevention Week Lessons Doubly Important

Belleville is growing. Not all of this growth is encouraging. For instance, during fire drama Fire losses totalled $355,686.64, or almost ten times the 1940 total of $38,-385.38

That is reason enough for Belleville residents to take Fire Prevention Week seriously. During that week, from Sunday, Oct. 4, to Saturday, Oct 10, attention will be focused on methods by which Belleville, and any other community, can reduce this tragic and largely unnecessary loss by fire.

To date this year Belleville residents have been doing a little better in avoiding fires. With three quarters of the year gone, up to and including Sept. 30 the Belleville fire department has had only 208 alarms, compared with 300 alarms during the full twelve months of 1952. But in all of 1951 there were only 500 alarms, in 1950 460 alarms and in 1949 458 alarms. The reduction in the number of alarms is believed to be the result of the appointment of three full-time inspectors.

Property loss from fires in 1949 was only $36,256.26. In 1950 it climbed to $138,857.41, reached $378,791.45 in 1952, and was up to the previously mentioned figure, $355,686.64, in 1953.

Official statistics show that during the past ten years Canada has had a total of 339,697 fires, with a property loss of $521,000,000, a loss of life of 4,798 and approximately 15,000 persons seriously injured.

Offer Prizes

During Fire Prevention Week here prizes will be awarded for the best posters and essays submitted by the children in the schools of the city and surrounding townships.

Such essays and posters, of course, must deal with some aspect of fire prevention.

Firemen have volunteered, during their off-duty hours, to carry out such phases of the Fire Prevention Week program as inspection of buildings and soliciting prizes from merchants and businessmen.

Mention of Fire Prevention Week will probably be made in most, if not all, of the city's churches on Sunday, proclamations in connection with the week having been distributed to church officials. Circular letters are being sent out to merchants, hotels, churches, schools, civic clubs, manufacturers and other individuals, firms and organizations for whom the week's program will be of especial interest.

Busy Week's Program

On Monday Front Street stores and other premises in that district will be inspected, posters will be placed and an open house will be held at the fire halls. Both No. 1 Fire Hall on Dundas Street East and No. 2 Fire Hall on Moira Street will be open for inspection throughout the remainder of the week. Films will be shown at No. 2 Fire Hall on Moira Street on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings.

Schools will be inspected and fire drills held on Tuesday. On that day, too an announcement regarding the essay and poster contests will be made to the students. On Wednesday factories, the hospital and nursing homes will be inspected. General inspections will be held on Thursday. Press and radio will stress fire prevention week.

But while the firemen will do much work and while the need to

Family of Three Overcome By Monoxide Gas

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A family of three was overcome near here Thursday by carbon monoxide which seeped through the floor of their moving automobile.

Mrs. Arthur Font of nearby Mount Brydges was found slumped over the wheel of the automobile, stalled against a fence post. Her husband was found on the road near the car and the couple's 15-year-old daughter, Marilyn, was unconscious in the back seat.

Firemen worked on the three for more than two hours before they were revived.

Police said Mrs. Font slowed the car when she felt drowsy.

Bill Semenik, a market gardener, saw the car and the unconscious trio. He quickly summoned to the scene the teacher and several students at the Mt. Elgin Missouri school, a provincial police constable, city firemen, two farmers and the operator of a hydro truck.

The family was recovering at home Thursday night, with Marilyn under doctor's care and being fed oxygen periodically.

prevent fires will be brought to the attention of children, it is the owners and tenants of buildings who will determine the real success or failure of this week. Each year Fire Prevention Week is held at the same time in the United States and Canada. The main objective is to create an interest in the problems of fire safety to the extent that every householder, merchant, manufacturer and property owner will check his or her premises and repair or replace defective equipment that may be a fire hazard, thus possibly saving the life of a dear one, or a tremendous amount of property damage.

Striking Dockers Are Marking Time Awaiting Board

NEW YORK (AP)—Striking longshoremen marked time today in major United States east coast ports pending an expected early end to the costly walkout by machinery of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

After President Eisenhower invoked the law Thursday and appointed a three-man inquiry board to report by Monday midnight, observers were optimistic that the struck ports would reopen by next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The board will hold its first meeting here Saturday.

Started Wednesday

The strike started at midnight Wednesday, with all but military shipping left idle from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va.

The striking union the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) will abide by any formal no-strike order—a federal injunction sending dockers back to work during an 80-day cooling-off period.

Meanwhile, tugboat crews were respecting ILA picket lines and 2 ships were stalled at their berths in New York, with others riding at anchor in the harbor. The strike is costing the shipping industry an estimated $1,500,000 a day.

Railroad officials have embargoed most freight destined for the waterfront.

The ILA has notified its Canadian locals at Halifax, Saint John, N. B., Quebec City and Montreal not to work cargo on diverted ships.

Picketing Orderly

Picketing by the ILA, ousted from the AFL for failing to rid its ranks of racketeers, was orderly Thursday. But one volcanic aspect of the situation remained unresolved: the now-unaffiliated ILA's battle for existence against the new union backed by the AFL.

The new union, ILA-AFL, is keeping hands off in the strike-bound ports. However, its membership drive continues unabated, and friction is expected to increase between the rival unions even though a strike truce is declared.

The old ILA struck against the New York Shipping Association, seeks a 13-cent hourly wage raise. The Association has offered ½ cents. The current basic wage for longshoremen is $2.27 an hour. Sixty thousand longshoremen are affected.

STRATFORD (CP) — Holsteins brought average prices of $250 for females and $235 for bulls at the Perth County Holstein Breeders' annual consignment sale here Thursday. Total price paid for four bulls and 44 cows was $13,724.

Detroit Studies Sales of "Continental" Studebaker

By a WALL STREET JOURNAL Staff Reporter

DETROIT—Studebaker, which was a big factor in setting early-postwar auto styles, may now be setting the pattern for the next few years.

Its 1946 model, designed with lavish use of glass by Raymond Loewy, was the first completely redesigned postwar car. The South Bend, Ind., concern made no further major change, until its current 1953's; with these it introduced low, rakish "Continental" styling. Also designed by Loewy, the new model cost $27 million to introduce, double the 1946 cost.

A top Detroit stylist, employed by a rival manufacturer, says that the current Studebaker will affect the future looks of more competitive makes than the industry would like to admit. Most [illegible]

WILSON—MILLS

A lovely autumn wedding was solemnized in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville, at high noon on Saturday, September 26, by the Reverend J. G. Mornday, pastor of the church, when Kathleen Alice Mills, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Mills, became the bride of Lynn Clarence Wilson, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wilson. The church was beautifully adorned with tall standards of mixed gladioli, interspersed with ferns, while lighted candelabra, used for the first time, added a pleasing note.

Mr. Egerton Boyce, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Douglas Shaw who sang before the ceremony. "The Lord's Prayer," and during the signing of the register, "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and allover satin, fashioned with molded bodice having a small standup collar and long sleeves pointed at the wrists. The graceful skirt of nylon net over satin extended into a sweeping cathedral train. She wore a tiara headdress studded with seed pearls and fingertip veil of tulle illusion. Her bouquet in Classic form, was of Better Time roses, stephanotis and white lacelon ribbon.

Miss Shirley Mills, of Belleville, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in blue nylon net over satin with satin bolero, and full floor-length skirt. She wore a headdress of matching feathers and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of pink and white popcorn 'mums tied with blue lacelon ribbon.

The bridesmaids, Miss Marlene Birdsell, and Miss Jean Ann Chadwick, were gowned alike in pink nylon net over satin made on lines similar to that of the maid of honor. They were matching feathered headdresses and carried semi-cascades of blue and white popcorn mums tied with blue lacelon ribbon.

Little Karen Campbell, niece of the bride, as flower girl, was sweet and demure in her frock of blue net over taffeta with matching headdress. She carried a nosegay of pink sweetheart roses, pink and white popcorn 'mums and blue forget-me-nots.

Mr. Ray Corbett, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Garner Shinkle, of Belleville, cousin of the bridegroom, and Mr. James Mills, of Toronto, brother of the bride, were the ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Maple Haven, Trent Road, where the bride's mother, attired in hunter green with gold accessories, and corsage of yellow Sweetheart roses, and with yellow ribbon bows, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore teal blue with navy accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other points in the United States, the bride chose a light blue pin-and-pic suit with navy accessories and corsage of red Sweetheart roses. Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will reside on Trent Road, Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Montreal, Oshawa, Picton, Toronto and Madoc.

St. Andrew's Guild Holds Meeting

St. Andrew's Guild met on Tuesday with Mrs. A. D. McLeod in the chair. The devotional period, with Bible reading by Mrs. L. L. Moore, was observed.

Business was brief, and brief. Mrs. G. Thorne reminded the members of the forthcoming Bazaar in November when the decorations would be in autumn tints. Mrs. M. Barlow reported on Red Cross work and announced that they hope to resume sewing meetings again next week on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Fleming's group comprised the social group and introduced Miss Helen Sulman, who gave two humorous readings.

Mrs. J. Brabin rendered two lovely solos, with Mrs. E. Boyce as accompanist, who also accompanied Mr. Joachim Reimann in two violin solos, "Russisch," by Kruismann, and "Flower Song," by Lange, both of which were greatly appreciated.

Mrs. O. Williamson's group acted as hostesses. Everyone enjoyed the friendly atmosphere.

Young Members St. John Brigade To Mark Day

On Saturday young members of the local St. John Ambulance cadet nursing division will mark St. John cadet day along with other St. John cadets across Canada.

These young people—ranging in age from 11 to 17 years—have over the past year, devoted their spare time to learning first aid and home nursing that they can be ready to help the sick and injured. For some this training already has been of use.

According to the rules of St. John Ambulance organization, cadets must not use their first aid training except in the event of an emergency, when no medical aid or senior first aiders are nearby. Nevertheless, their training is thorough and will stand them in good stead in the years to come. Meanwhile, at events they help senior St. John members by running messages, taking care of lost children. These cadets have been of assistance in school yard accidents, and accidents at sports events, and many times on the street these girls have given assistance. They are trained to give artificial respiration to apparently drowned people. They are preparing for the day when they can, like their seniors, save lives and prevent minor injuries from becoming major ones.

For some cadets, their training is a step in the direction of becoming a doctor or nurse. St. John Ambulance organization has found that many of their cadets go on to become members of the nursing profession.

But whether or not their training leads them to wider fields, the training is making them better citizens by teaching them how to help their fellow man in trouble. In doing this, the cadets are exemplifying the motto of their organization—"For the service of mankind."

On cadet day these youthful members of St. John organization redouble their efforts to do something useful. Across the nation cadets are visiting children's hospitals with presents and words of good cheer for young patients. They are visiting other children in orphanages; they are sending messages to rededicate themselves to their high ideals; they are telling others about their work. Your local cadet division will be glad to welcome new members, if you are interested in being a useful citizen, and want to be of help to your fellow man, phone 3746W.

(This local division is supported by the Community Chest.)

Former Graduate Addresses St. Michael Alumni Meeting

The first general meeting of St. Michael's High School Alumni was held recently in the John Street School and was well attended. The president, Mrs. R. Barrett, was in charge, and in her opening remarks expressed pleasure for such a large number of members being present, and briefly outlined the objectives of the organization.

New members appointed to the executive included, Jack Doran, program convener; George Whalen, publicity chairman, and Miss Mary McDougall, social convener.

Mr. Jack Doran announced plans for a November communion breakfast, and a gala alumni reunion to be held in the spring of 1954.

Rev. Sr. M. Lenore, principal of the John Street High School, gave an interesting report of the convention of the Canadian Federation of Convent Alumni, which she attended this summer in Halifax.

Guest speaker for the evening was Rev. R. J. Flurey, former St. Michael's graduate and recently appointed to the staff of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston.

At the conclusion of his interesting and inspiring talk, Rob Colling tendered a vote of thanks to Rev. Father Flurey.

Following the business meeting a social hour was held and refreshments were served by Miss Mary McDougall and members of her committee.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Her Husband Never Comes Home: Should She Leave?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been married 15 years, and have five children whom I adore.

My husband has a terrible habit of not coming home for meals. Sometimes he stays away most of the day and night. I am tied down continuously with the children and never get any free time, as he is never here to take over. I have to do everything in the house to take care of all by myself, and I never even have a day out of the family car, as he always takes it. This has been going on all through my married life, and now that the children are all growing up, I can hardly manage to keep them. They need a father's care, too.

I've made up my mind to quit arguing with him about all this as the children are all grown, but I can't go on this way. He is a very good provider and works hard, but I am coming to the point where I would be better for us to separate since he spends all his free time away from home. I did love my husband dearly but, after being alone so much for so long, my love seems to be fading away.

Mrs. S.

Dear Mrs. S.:

It would, of course, be silly for me to tell you that there is a simple answer to a problem like this. On the contrary, it is extremely complicated and, to handle it properly, one would have to know far more details of your life with your husband than you have told me, in order to get at the basic reasons why he behaves this way.

If I were inept to make a quick guess, my thought would be that perhaps, as happens in the case of many a father, five children are a handful, and he finds children, and so he simply shrugged off responsibility for them and for you as well. Whether this is a right or wrong theory, it might not be a bad plan to begin with it and see where you can get.

Instead of arguing with him, could you try telling him, in a quiet way, that you simply can't not handle everything by yourself, and must have help from him if you are to go on keeping the family together? I suggest that at some moment that seems right, you make this statement, and ask him if he will sit down with you some evening and talk it all over. I doubt all your arguing—and probably quarreling, too—has only made him more eager to stay away. If, however, you tried a different approach, and made the kind of calm, definite statement I have suggested above, it might set some of it straight.

Try this and let me know what happens. After that, we can talk about your next step.

What Should Girl Give The Girl Friend?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My girl friend's boy has asked me what he should get my girl friend for her birthday. He says he doesn't want to give her anything that would make her mother think they are getting too serious about each other, because they are both only 18.

I thought of a locket, but maybe you could suggest something better.

Dorothy

Dear Dorothy:

I'm not to sure a locket would be a good idea if this boy wants to make just a friendly gift, as not one that will look "too serious."

A better choice, I think would be a couple of records of her favorite music; some pretty handkerchiefs; a scarf; a book; some costume stationery—things that aren't too personal or too expensive. Or why doesn't he invite her out for a special evening as a birthday celebration? That would be a pleasant way to mark the occasion, and at the same time keep it away from anything that looks too intimate.

Think over one of these suggestions would do?

Readers' Friday Column

Question:

You are fun, and keep it up, your witty speeches are good. Now will you please send me recipe for French Bread and Butter Pickles. I know if I get them from you they will be good and worth eating.

Answer:

Thank you kindly Mim.

Bread and Butter Pickles

Four quarts sliced cucumbers, 8 small white onions sliced, 2 green peppers shredded, 2 cups sugar, 1 1-2 teaspoons turmeric, 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 2 teaspoons mustard seed, 1 teaspoon celery seed, 5 cups vinegar, 1-2 cup non-iodized salt. Slice cucumbers and onions wafer thin. (Wafer thin slicing of unpeeled cucumbers and peeled onions with razor-sharp knife is important.) Mix sliced cucumbers, onions, shredded peppers and salt, cover with ice water and some ice cubes and let stand 3 hours, covered. Drain very well. Add spices, vinegar and sugar bring to boiling point and add vegetables, reduce heat and let stay simmer three minutes stop cooking. Pack at once in hot sterile jars and seal.

I have mailed you the recipe for French Bread.

Question:

Thank you for the recipes you sent. The sour milk spice pie turned out just grand . . . your column gets better every day. I especially enjoy your comments on Marianne and Pete. . . I wonder if I could have your recipe for Tomato Soup Cake. . . and Chocolate Ice Cream made with milk powder. . . have you a recipe for Tomato Marmalade.—Mrs. Dennis N.

Answer:

Hello. It was good to hear from you again.

Tomato Soup Cake

(This is a large cake but since it calls for 1 can of soup and cuts into about 18 pieces I don't think it is the size you want.)

Three cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1-8 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon each nutmeg, cinnamon and 1-2 teaspoon cloves, 3-4 cup good shortening, 2 cups sugar, 2 eggs, 1 tin condensed tomato soup, 3-4 cup water, Sift the flour, measure it and sift with baking powder and soda and spices. Cream the shortening for 1 minute using medium speed if mixer is electric. Add sugar gradually while beating, then beat 3 minutes. Beat in eggs and beat for 3 minutes. Combine soup and water. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with soup and water mix. Beat 4 minutes. Bake in buttered and paper-lined large pan at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 55 minutes or until cake shrinks slightly from sides of pan. Did you know that this is wonderful with Cheese Frosting!: Beat 3 oz. cream cheese; beat in 1 3-4 cups icing sugar, 1 1-2 teaspoons butter and 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Beat until smooth and creamy. Spread on cold cake.

Chocolate Ice Cream

(Using skim milk powder.)

One tablespoon gelatin, 1 tablespoon cold water, 1-2 cup sugar, 1-4 cup skim milk powder, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons cornstarch, 1 cup unsweetened chocolate, 1 cup hot water, 3 teaspoons vanilla, 2 cup skim milk powder, 1-2 cup water. Soak the gelatin in the 1 tablespoon cold water. Combine sugar, the 1-4 cup skim milk powder, salt and cornstarch. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler, add hot water and cook until thickened. Stir in the mixed dry ingredients, until thick, then cover and cook 15 minutes, stirring often. Remove from heat and stir in soaked gelatin and the vanilla. Cool. Pour into freezing tray and chill until firm. Whip the 1-2 cup skim milk powder and 1-3 cup water until stiff with rotary beater—about 5 minutes. Fold frozen mixture into large bowl and break it up with a fork. Add whipped milk powder and beat with fork until blended. Return to freezing trays and freeze firm, stirring twice during this period.

Tomato Marmalade

I have not made this recipe up, but I think it would be good if made.

Peel 1 lemon and 3 oranges and boil the rinds in 2 cups water, covered about 45 minutes. Scrape off the pith and discard it and shred the yellow rind. To 1 quart peeled sliced tomatoes add juice of 1 lemon and 2 oranges. Add the prepared rinds to the tomatoes with 4 cups sugar and boil 1 hour, stirring often. Pour into jars and seal. The cooking may be done in the oven.

Beauty

Keeping Blonde Hair In Color Form

Brunettes may think that the upkeep for their beauty-permeating trims, shampoos and wavesets—is pretty steep, but they don't have to worry about color changes. Nature has given their tresses a fast color that usually lets them suit Time touches it with frosty fingers. Not so blondes! They start out in life with hair color of cornsilk, but how long it will stay like that is anybody's guess. During the late teens it may become darker. In the twenties the golden crown may even become tarnished. The light-haired cassies aren't very happy about it, of course. They love their sunny locks and can't bear to see them clouded.

Careless shampooing can dim blonde hair, so a bland shampoo medium must be found—one that should be two soapings, three if the growth is heavy—each one followed by a prolonged rinsing, with a bath spray. To leave soap scum on the hair's makes them dull and grey looking. Not only that but, if the hair has had a permanent, the chlorine will lose the coil quality and go limp. Beauticians claim that casual home shampooing has almost ruined many glorious crowns. A professional treatment of waving soap deposits that have collected for a long time may, however, renew the golden glow, preventing lights and shadows as they should be in clean hair.

The lemon rinse is a good old standby and it does stave off the time when the golden glitter will disappear, leaving locks looking drab and uninteresting. After the shampoo, add the strained juice of three lemons to two cups of water and pour over the head, lifting the strands so there will be free distribution.

If Goldie Locks insists upon using the peroxide bottle, she should seek professional attention. With an eye in the back of her head she cannot possibly do the job herself. Before taking the step, however, she must realize that there will be a new growth coming in right out from the scalp to the extent of two inches every four months and this growth, of course, will be dark. "Touching up" must be done carefully, as applications of bleaching elements must not overlap. If they do, the hair will be streaked.

There are temporary color rinses available now and all beauty shops are qualified to give them. The color change lasts only from one shampoo to the next.

The Engagement Announcement

Is Party First Afternoon Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We've practically never had the time or occasion to give an afternoon party, certainly never a large one. But now, to announce our engagement my mother and father would like to give a rather large Sunday afternoon party, inviting relatives and intimate friends of both families.

(1) What are the usual hours for this afternoon occasion? (2) Must we serve tea just because it's to be at "tea-time"? (We're all coffee drinkers and so are most of the people who will come) (3) Also we prefer not to serve alcoholic drinks. Must we?

Janice R.

(1) There is quite a leeway for the hours chosen for a late-afternoon party. Four-to-seven or five-to-seven are most usual. Four-to-six are the hours named when departing-early is the custom of the community. And today . . . particularly when there is an announcement to be made to the guests, as that is an engagement announcement party, or the cutting of the cake at a wedding anniversary celebration . . . often only the arrival hour is named in the invitation. That is, the guests are invited to "please come at five o'clock." And this is really a very convenient and practical plan.

(2) No need to serve tea . . . substitute coffee.

(3) No. Serve soft drinks. Perhaps a fruit punch: and or fruit juices or a combination of juices; and or tomato juice well-seasoned; and or gingerale or other soft drink. And give real thought to the foods you serve. Perhaps offer hot canapes as well as other interesting food-accompaniments.

Correct Form For Divorce's Announcement Of Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a divorcee, in my early forties, and I would like to announce my engagement in our local newspapers. My parents are dead, and I have no near relative to announce the engagement. My fiance's mother is living, but his father is dead. What would be a correct form for the engagement announcement?

A.S.Y.

This is a correct form:

"The engagement has been announced of Mrs. Smith Lee, of 123 Carlyle Street, this city to Mr. Arthur Graham, of 190 Park Place, Mrs. Lee is the former Miss Anita Smith, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Paulson Smith, of Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Graham is the son of Mrs. George Graham, of San Francisco, and the late Mr. Graham."

(This is the outline of the form . . . you may send any other details you wish, schools attended, and so forth.)

WESLEY DISTRICT

WESLEY — The regular meeting of the Wesley W.A. was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. A. Downey, Trent Road, with 14 members present. Mrs. Genereaux had charge of the devotional period. Mrs. Genereaux reading from the Scripture, Psalm 12.

Mrs. Bulmer and Mrs. Burnett both gave readings, "Thoughts by the Way" and "Grandfather's Conservationist."

The treasurer reported a balance of $106.85. The ladies decided to hold a rummage sale in Belleville on Saturday afternoon. Anyone having articles of clothing and other items to donate, please contact one of the ladies.

As the bazaar held last year was such a success the ladies are planning another for November 25th.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess.

A hearty invitation is extended to any lady in this district who feels she would like to come and join the W.A. at the next regular meeting, October 29.

Mrs. Calnan and Mrs. Fox have recently left this community to take up residence in Belleville. While the community wishes them every happiness in their new home they will be greatly missed in this district.

Friends of Mr. W. Drew, Trent Road, will be sorry to learn that he is a patient in Belleville hospital.

Sunday School Lesson:

Panic and Fear Are Pagan

By ROY L. SMITH

In the midst of one of our darkest days Franklin Roosevelt once said, "We have nothing to fear but fear," and some of his political enemies made a great sport of his faith. But there was a profound truth in his comment, quite aside from all political applications.

Paganism survives on the basis of certain ideas, and many people who would quickly deny any charge of paganism embrace those ideas, precisely as many deny communist sympathies and embrace Communist philosophy.

Pagan Philosophy

In the Old Testament days idolatry was the most common form of religion—the idea that a god could reside in a crude image of wood or stone. The Bible writers hold this idea up to ridicule again and again, as they would any look up to ridicule the idea that a man's destiny is determined by the stars which happen to be in certain relative positions at the time of one's birth. As though the material could control the destiny of a man born in the image of God!

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for October 4 "God's Design for a Better World," Genesis 1; Isaiah 35; 42:5-9; Mark 1:14-15; Luke 4:16-21; John 3:16-18; Revelation 21: 1-5.

It was inevitable that this doctrine of idolatry should give rise to terrible fears. Life was organized in a desperate effort to appease the gods, and thus make life secure. The thought that the controlling mind of the universe was a heart of love was never preached to the world except through the Hebrew, and later the Christian, religion.

Better Days Ahead

Christianity was launched with the slogan, or perhaps one might call it "the battle cry": "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." Reduced to its simplest terms, this means that the design of this universe called for an upward climb of the race, and a perpetual interest in man on the part of a God of love.

From the day when Jesus proclaimed the coming of the kingdom, until this day, this upward look has been characteristic of our faith. Indeed, Christianity makes a religious virtue out of hope, to stand alongside faith and love. To be hopeless is to be an unchristian as to be faithless or loveless.

What is Security?

We have been much in recent years about security, as though it might be a risk-less life. But no right-minded or right-thinking person wants to live in a world that is perfectly safe. All of us enjoy certain risks. The one thing we insist upon is that the risks be justified, the dangers be not so great that they blot out all the sun of hope.

And that is precisely the kind of world Jesus came preaching. That is the meaning of the resurrection of Jesus—that we live in a world which offers hope.

Life Was Made to Work

There is no fun working on a puzzle which cannot be worked. Such a puzzle, in fact, is not a puzzle, but a complete frustration. The psychologists tell us that the frustrated man is one who has come to the conclusion that he cannot solve the problems of life, that there is no way out, and that there is no room for hope.

From a psychological standpoint, one of the greatest contributions of good religion makes its appearance at precisely that point. It declares that life can be made to work, and that plain men can work it.

Let any man believe that he is living in a world created by a friendly God, and life will take on an entirely different aspect for him. It will mean something entirely new, and that is real redemption.

Walkerton Blanks Point Anne 4-0 In 1st Game Intermediate A Finals

A gentleman by the name of Zik, "walked" the ball past the Point Anne batters eighteen times up around Walkerton way last night, giving up but four hits and his mates Ontario Intermediate "A" champions a 4-0 decision over the Men o' Ox Point.

The game, one of the better seen in the Bruce county town developed into a keen hurling duel between Point Anne ace Bobby Hunter and Zik. The Walkerton hurler, said to be one of the best in Ontario, tossed runless hitless ball until the sixth when Roger Mallory and Sammy Mulholland rattled singles off his fireball delivery. Bobby Hunter and Johnny Green nicked him for singles in the eighth and ninth and that was all Zik walked three.

Three In Fifth

Hunter was touched for nine hitless scattering six of them but clustering a trio in the fifth when the Walkertons along three runs across the plate by means of a decisive the verdict. Bobby struck out eight and walked but three besides bashing out one of the Ox Pointers quartet of clouts.

Both teams went scoreless for the first two innings then Walkerton broke the egg in the third. With one out Dettinger rapped out a sharp single and Zik was tossed out. From mid out a safe grounder scoring Dettinger and Hunter forced Craig to ground out.

The Walkerton team exploded for three runs and the victory in the fifth off three hits and an error. Dougie Hall's bobble of Dettinger's grounder after Freeman had thrown out paved the way for the three-run assault. Dettinger went to second on a passed ball and scored on brother Ned's single. Zik blasted a triple, the only real base clout of the game to deep centre scoring Ned Dettinger. Knox was thrown out second to first and the pitcher scored on the play. N. Dettinger grounded out to end the rally.

Was Close

Point Anne threatened on more than one occasion especially in the fifth when Mulholland and Mallory touched a pair of singles with two out. But Zik bore down and flung three whizzers past Pat Gilmour to close off the threat. Billy Strachan reached second in the seventh and Johnny Green again in the ninth but Zik's fireball whizzed past the following batters in quell the outbreaks.

Zik let his own attack with a triple and a single with Freeman, N. Dettinger, Knox each getting a pair.

The game the first of the southern Ontario finals was the first of a best-of-seven series. The second will be played in Point Anne tomorrow afternoon starting at four o'clock.

The teams:

Walkerton: Freeman, L. Dettinger, N. Dettinger, Zik, Knox, Craig, H. Dettinger, Loughlan, McDonald.

Point Anne: Gemeraux, Mallory Hall, Gilmour, J. Green, Elliott, Strachan, Mulholland, Hunter, P. Marsco.

The score:

Point Anne ... 000 000 000—0 4 2
Walkerton ... 021 020 00x—4 6 0

Umpires: Schran (plate), Hamm (bases) both of Stratford.

Quemont Mines Stage Walkout Of 462 Members

TORONTO (CP)—The 462 members of Local 6431 at Quemont mines in Noranda, Que., voted early today to join more than 5,000 fellow United Steelworkers of America comrades in a strike which for the last two weeks has virtually paralyzed the economy of Canada's major gold mining district.

The CIO-CCL union is demanding higher wages, a shorter work week, pension and welfare plan, shift premiums and revocable voluntary checkoff. Its basis for negotiation is the Tyndern report in which the union's arbitration board member pressed for the checkoff issue in a former labor wage dispute case.

Meanwhile, some 1,600 workers at the strike-bound Hollinger mines at Timmins Thursday night left up to the company the question of whether they will return to work or not. They voted to accept Labor Minister Daley's proposal that they resume work on the basis that stipulated their wage contract differences must be submitted to arbitration.

At the striking Noranda gold and copper mines, union and company representatives were scheduled to meet today for discussions in an attempt to end the walkout of 1,700 men there. However, company officials said Thursday they would not discuss anything until the union agreed to withdraw demands for the checkoff system.

Mass Picketing

Mass picketing at Quemont began immediately after the strike call. However, the USWA said it will give the company 96 hours to close down the mine property and that all other members of the bargaining unit to help in the operation.

Nine staff employees will be allowed free access to and exit from the mine.

Premier Frost of Ontario Thursday announced that he and Prime Minister St. Laurent will meet next week for talks probing the economic problems plaguing Canada's strike-ridden gold-mining industry. He said experts from the provincial and dominion governments were already gathering information for the conference on the situation.

Before the Hollinger miners joined 2,600 others on strike in the Porcupine area, the company rejected the union's request that the dispute be submitted to an arbitrator.

On strike with Hollinger are Mclntyre, Sigma, Bonetal, Hallnor, Preston East Dome and Delnite mines.

C.H. Millard, the USWA national director, said there is "no evidence" that conciliation will be successful at Hollinger. However, he said the union is ready to give ground on demands for a company payroll checkoff or union dues at Noranda as long as the contract contains some form of union recognition.

COBOURG (CP)—A judgment of $20,250 and costs against Vernal Linton of Cobourg was awarded Thursday to Mrs. Felicia Kerr in the death of her husband, 42-year-old Andrew Kerr. Britain Heading For Money Crisis Labor Maintains MARGATE, England (Reuters)—The Labor party executive said today that Britain is heading for a "major financial crisis" comparable to the dark days of 1931.

Former trade minister Harold Wilson, speaking on behalf of the party's leadership, spoke at Labor's annual conference. He described the current financial recovery in Britain under Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative government as "phoney and temporary."

Wilson, a left-wing Socialist who has urged greater trade with Russia, spoke against a proposal to nationalize all Britain's privately-owned banks. The proposal was defeated overwhelmingly by a show of hands.

"Britain's meagre dollar reserves have grown steadily under Churchill's program for lifting Socialist-imposed restrictions on private industry. But economists have warned that a minor depression in the United States might plunge Britain into an economic crisis.

Hopeful Blood Transfusion Will Be Helpful

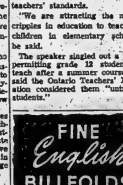
DETROIT (CP)—Medical officials said Thursday night they were "hopeful" that a blood transfusion offered by Mrs. Clarence G. Marshall of North York, in the suburban Toronto area, would save the life of a 25-year-old mother.

Meanwhile, the woman, Mrs. Dolores Baker, is in critical condition suffering from staphylococcus disease, commonly known as a "staph infection."

She was reported "slightly improved" after receiving several shots of a serum flown here Wednesday from Chicago.

Although some 1,500 residents of Michigan and Canada have volunteered blood, none has yet been accepted.

To be of any use, the blood must first be RH negative type O. Also, the donor must have recovered from a special type of staph infection within the last 18 months.



Mrs. Baker is suffering from a type of staphylococcus disease called albus. Pathologists of Wayne County Medical Society explained that the name albus refers to a whitish color detected under a microscope.

Chairman Says Schools Staffed With Baby-Sitters

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur Brown, chairman of the Toronto board of education, charged Thursday that Ontario schools are being staffed with "baby-sitters" under new department of education regulations.

In a speech to a service club here, Mr. Brown accused the department of "watering down" schools considered them "untrained students."

St. Mike's Bows To Regiopolis In Grid Tilt

KINGSTON. — A clean and scrappy team from St. Michael's High School of Belleville, lost an exhibition game with the Regiopolis BOMBERS, 24-0, at the Kingston campus. St. Michael's team was composed of somewhat younger and inexperienced players, who made up for what they lacked by hard fight and determination. It is a school that will be reckoned with in the none too distant future.

The victory was decisive for Regiopolis. Forward passing and many gains for both sides. Fox kicked-off for St. Mike's to the Regi 30, where Jim Wilding received and ran back to his own 38. On a line, Regi picked up two first downs with long gains by Grant and Wilding to settle on the Belleville 21 yard line. Butterbeck and Yetro faded back to fire a strike to Mallan for five yards. It took another pass by Yetro to Wilding to reach St. Mike's 18 yard line strips. A plunge swept the ball to the 10, where San Miguel crashed over for Regi's first score of the game. That was to be the first of six touchdowns for Regi, only four of which were converted.

St. Mike's delved into the ancient books of football to present their version of the static or liberty play from a kicking formation. It was good for 26 yards. Quarterback Fox of St. Mike's clicked on a forward to Kelly deep in the Regi end-zone for a touchdown. It was converted, and the first half of the game ended with the play centred around mid-field. The score Regi 10, St. Mike's 6.

The second part of the game was almost a duplicate of the first half. While Regi held command, St. Mike's always fought back. The Garnet and Gold appeared confident with their comfortable margin of 31-6 at the end of the third quarter ended up to score two more touchdowns. St. Mike's had their star players but not a well-balanced team. If they had had its green sweaters and power-players as Sandhurst, Lefebvre and Wilding to go along with their quarterback Fox, Marcaro and Kelly, they would be in the upper bracket of any high school league.

St. Mike's — Hawkins, O'Neill, Kelly, Marcaro, Fox, Foley, Thomson, F. Hawkins Truin, Johnson, K. Williams, Belanger, Johnston, St. Denis, Masterson, Ryan, Black, Burke, Vallance, Desjardins and Sinfield.

Regiopolis — Tetro, Sandiguet, Stafford, Wilding, Stone, Mallan, Lilly, McNamee, Seco, Murphy, Chleary, Rumsfeldt, Mahoney, Dunphy, Cantarella, Madigan, B. Clarke, Kvarda, Mohan, O'Brien,

BCI Juniors Edge St. Mike's 2-0 In Grid-Opener

BY FRIEL UFFER

Behind the punting of Jan Genaja and the running of Bill Jones, the Collegiate Juniors defeated the St. Michael's Juniors 2-0 at the O.S.D. last evening. It was the first game of the season for the juniors.

In the first quarter Genaja booted the ball over the dead line for a rouge to put the Juniors into a one point lead.

He repeated the ticket with one minute to go in the fourth quarter and that was the margin of victory.

The teams were evenly matched as the score indicated but both teams missed several opportunities to go for the T.D.

B.C.I. had St. Mike's in the statistics book with almost double the yardage forward and seven first downs to 5. Between the two they had thirty while St. Mike's kicked the ball around for the total. B.C.I. recovered four with the odd one going for St. Mike's.

Jones played a standout game in the running department for B.C.I. covering 70 yards for 65 yards for the Juniors.

Batchelor, the B.C.I. quarter, played for the full time and completed one pass in six while Fox completed three and completed three for St Mike's.

Fred Bradley, the Junior coach had 27 players dressed and he used them all for varying lengths of time while St. Mike's had 18 Mike's had eighteen dressed and used them all. There were no known serious injuries in the line of writing.

It was a good game and if the rest of the games seen in this heck of the woods are as good, the spectators can expect to see some real football before the season comes to a close.

B.C.I. takes on Marmora in Marmora next Wednesday at four o'clock sharp on the Marmora campus.

THE CRISP, CRISP FLAKES WITH THE DEEP, DEEP FLAVOR

Trillions of corn flakes ago, W. K. Kellogg explained the popularity of the original Corn Flakes in these words: "They won their favor through their flavor."

That's a quick way of saying this: Kellogg's Corn Flakes became first choice of the entire world world because an exclusive recipe (it's still a secret) and radiant deep-toasting give them a fresh-from-the-garden flavor that's all-come-to-you.

But the really quick way to get this fresh, flavorful story is to open a package of Kellogg's Corn Flakes for breakfast. Maybe tomorrow!

AIN'T IT THE TRUTH!

SPEAKING OF HOCKEY!

With the decision to operate a five-team senior "B" group hereabouts this coming hockey semester, the various mentors will take off on the annual hunt for shinny pewter. Oshawa and Kingston seem to be in early on the hunt with practically the champion Goodyears back in the fold. Oshawa reports say the Truckers have bolstered their squad but plenty and a glance at the pay—pardon—nominal roll seems to substantiate the despatches.

BOB TAYLOR

The majority of the Redmen will be back, it is stated, and Secretary Drury Denyes has been working feverishly trying to recruit up the allotted imports. Efforts have been made to contact players in various parts of the district even the Oshawa Valley. And don't be surprised to see the Redmen trot out a few faces that are no small punkins in hockey.

Bob Taylor, husky defenceman of the Johnstown squad of the Eastern Hockey League, has forsaken the professional ranks and will do puck-chasing with the Redmen this winter. The big 196-pounder will be the answer to the Belleville coach's prayer, despite the fact he will be classed as an import, cutting the number down to three.

Bob starred with the St. Catharines Teepees before turning professional and had a good career in the moneyed ranks. He should be a decided asset to the blueline department in which the Redmen were woefully weak the past two or three seasons.

The Redmen front office has got in touch with Tony Parisi, the sensational youngster who guarded the nets last season. Tony is the property of the ever-persistent crew and must get a release before playing with another team. The likeable kid made a lot of friends here last year and in all probability he will be back between the pipes.

There isn't much news out of Peterborough regarding the Petes except but rumors have it the Littlejohn squad will pop up with a team that should make the rest of the pack step but plenty. They have a new coach and with that old Eagle-Pete feud practically in the discard the Perdueville crew should line up a squad with a hefty wallop.

And don't sell this Oshawa crew short. Coach Ernie Dickens has lined up a squad that almost reeks with power. They have acquired Fred Richer, former junior "B" and junior "A" star, and Marry Sinden, another former General. The fast-skating, high scoring line of Samolenko, Scott and Wilson is back intact and this light-blinking trio will be hovering around the top when the scoring records pop up.

Frank Hooper is back and from Bowmanville comes Max Yourth with Doug Williams and Doc Dufoe from the Toronto Peoples of last year. Val Lalonde of the Valleyfield Braves, will sport a Truckers' uniform as will Bernie Hill, former junior "A" star.

Heading a trio of net guardians is the sensational Les Colvin. The others are Bob Shropshire and Jack Naylor. The rinkies Truckers have adopted Bowmanville as their 'home town' for the hockey season. They will likely open the senior "B" season on October 24th with the Peterborough Petes.

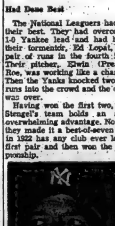
Mike Whalen's Point Anne team bowed to Walkerton 4-3 in the first game of their Southern Ontario Intermediate "A" finals last night. However, the Ox Pointers are highly confident they can square the series when the teams clash at the Point tomorrow afternoon. Game at 4 o'clock.

Four-Baggers Snatch Victory After 'Bums' Grab Early Lead; 'Preach' Deserved Better Fate

By Gayle Talbot

BROOKLYN (AP)—Unless Carl Erskine can subdue his world series jitters and pitch a regular scorcher against the Yankees today, it might well be all over Saturday afternoon and the boys on their way home.

Erskine's pitching will have to be very good in his own Ebbets Field, for the man who opposes him on the hill, Vic Raschi, is an old hand at this game. The job he did on the Dodgers in the second series game a year ago still is fresh in memory.



BILLY MARTIN

The Yankees might not complete the four-game sweep. The odds against it would have been long before the playoff began. But when Mickey Mantle poked an eighth-inning home run deep into the shirt-sleeved crowd in left field Thursday to wrap up the second game 4-2, a few million witnesses must have agreed the thought that Brooklyn was through.

Had Done Best

The National Leaguers had done their best. They had overcome a 1-0 Yankee lead and had hurled their formidable, Ed Lopat, for a pair of runs in the fourth inning. Their pitcher, Erwin (Preacher) Roe, was working like a champion. Then the Yanks clouted two home runs into the crowd and the contest was over.

Having won the first two, Casey Stengel's team holds an almost overwhelming advantage. Not since they made it a best-of-seven series in 1922 has any club ever lost the first pair and then won the championship.

MICKEY MANTLE

Even if Erskine should break the Yankee spell today, the Dodgers still could look forward to nothing more entertaining than trying to beat young Whitey Ford, one of the game's better southpaws, Saturday. To find a suitable opponent for Ford, manager Charlie Dressen probably would have to choose between Billy Loes and Russ Meyer, a couple of question marks.

Erskine, a mental block today. The handsome youngster who stole the world series pitchers won 20 victories during the regular season, was bound to have in his mind that the Yanks jumped him for four runs in the first inning at the stadium two days back.

Under the circumstances, Allie Reynolds' aching back lost in importance. The American Leaguers won the game the Chief started, thanks to Johnny Sain's fine work in relief, and with their 3-0 lead in games they appeared to be in no urgent need of pitching help.

Reynolds probably did a lot toward winning the series before his back began to creak. He didn't mean to do it, of course. But, when the stout Cherokee bored up Roy Campanella's throwing hand with a lost ball in the second inning of the opener, he really dealt one to the Dodgers.

The Brooklyn catcher, key man of the club, was a pitiful figure Thursday as he failed to knock the ball out of the infield in four tries.

The last anyone heard from him, Campanella did not feel he would be up to playing today. He said he did not want to hold his team back. The catcher who would take his place, Rube Walker, receives excellently, but rarely gets a hit. It is doubtful that anyone would have selected the Dodgers to win the series if they had known Campanella would miss a game.

Lopat was the man who stood out Thursday, even though he needed a little help toward the last from those two brash youngsters, Billy Martin and Mantle. The chubby portsider gave a classic demonstration of what it is possible to do without speed, strictly on guile.

The fastest ball he threw was in snapping a rapper out at first, a Brooklyn batter who had bunted, apparently under the mistaken impression that Lopat couldn't throw that far.

Tragic Figure

The tragic figure was Roe, who always has had been a thin hit win in Yankee Stadium's great expanses. The thin man from Arkansas fidgeted and fretted before he finally consented to guide his soft stuff across. He had the Yankees talking to themselves, too, before they finally solved the riddle.

Martin caught on fire. Leading off the eighth—his team a run behind—he laid the wood to a fat change-up and blasted it just inside the left stands for the tying run.

Pecke Robinson might have misplayed it a trifle. Some thought the former great infielder might have made the catch if he had been against the fence a bit quicker and had jumped exactly at the right time.

At any rate there was no argument over the fact that Mantle hit in the next inning. With one out, Hank Bauer lashed a clean single to left field. Yogi Berra lofted deep to right centre for the second out.

Up stepped Mantle. Roe missed the plate with a couple of pitches. Mantle figured to look at the next one, in case the thin man was wobbling. But Mickey liked what he saw, and slugged the ball well up into the stands some 400 feet from the dish. That was the game and probably the series.

Greatest Assembly of Hockey Talent Goes on Display in All-Star Epic

BY W. B. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The greatest assembly of hockey talent on the ice, with a monetary value that soars into fantastic mass-work, rode on display Saturday night in the Montreal Forum.

The big show is the National Hockey League's annual all-star game. Any club owner would give his bank account, his house screws and the shirt off his back for a free hand in reaching for the stars.

The game this year reverts to the practice of sending the Stanley Cup world champions—on this occasion Montreal Canadiens—against the rest of the field, players named to the first and second all-star teams.

The only variation is that captaining the rest of the field is Toronto Maple Leafs' Sid Smith, not Detroit Red Wings' Gordie Howe, all-star first team choice, will play with Canadiens' defence pair Doug Harvey and Bud McNeil and forwards Maurice "Rocket" Richard and Bert Olmstead, all of whom were second team selections.

The Pittsburgh Penguins were barred through the first four all-star games. But they will participate in the first all-star team has opposed the second. Attendance in the first team were made from United States clubs in the NHL. The second team was augmented by players from Canadian clubs in the circuit.

As pilot of the runner-up Boston Bruins had spring, Lynn Patrick will coach the second team and try to outwit wily Dick Irvin, coach of the champion Canadiens, to work out his squad. Patrick has suggested Irvin be named to both either team, from other league clubs.

Irvin will go along with the squad that won the Stanley Cup, with two exceptions, Billy Reay, who has gone to Victoria to coach the Cougars of the Western Hockey League, and Dean Prentice.

Naming of the sensational young centre would mean just one thing. Canadiens expect to have the long-awaited Beliveau's name on a contract before the game. The announcement may come today.

Harvey, Mosdell and Mackay were minor league reinforcements from Quebec City, Shawinigan Cup series last spring.

Against this array, Patrick will field a rugged defence and powerladen forward lines. He will have Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings in goal and six defencemen with all-star selection ratings: Red Kelly, Detroit; Bill Quackenbush, Boston; Bill Gadsby, Chicago; Leo Boivin, Boston; Fernie Flaman, Boston; Maple Leafs; Gus Mortson, Chicago, and available New York Rangers.

Patrick also will have an intact line from the Red Wings at his disposal—Metro Prystai at centre with Johnny Wilson and Tony Leswick on the wings.

Alex Delvecchio of the Red Wings and Paul Ronty of New York Rangers are available.

The remaining available wingmen are Wally Hergesheimer, New York Rangers; Harry Watson, Toronto; Eddie Sandford, Boston, and Bill Mosienko, Chicago.

Series Notes

BY REX SLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Did any team lose the first two games, yet go on to win the world series? The answer is yes. The Giants of 1921 dropped the first two to the Yankees and went on to sop up the marbles. But in those days the winner was decided in a best-of-nine series, and the Giants won 5-3.

Duke Snider is mighty happy that the series is moving to Ebbets Field today. "That Yankee Stadium sure is a big one," he said. "Now we'll be back in the old bandbox where it's a ball gets past you it's only a double instead of a triple."

Western Union advised that the 1953 series might set a record for the long-enshrined of writers covering the event. The first output was 94,884 words, beating the previous high mark of 450,000 set in 1941. The all-time high is 1,420,000, 36% sent on the Yankee-Dodger classic last year.

Billy Martin is the series' leading hitter so far with five hits in seven trips for a .714 average. Gil Hodges is next with .625 on five for eight.

You wouldn't know by the way he's playing, but Yogi Berra is suffering from a virus weather. "I'm a cold," he complained. "Had it since Sunday. Can't get rid of it. You work up a sweat and then it gets draughty in the dugout. Now I've got a cold."

Carl Furillo, who was expected to have trouble at the plate because of his sore finger, proved to be the only regular hit hitting in the field. He has already made two errors in seven chances. He's three-for-eight at bat.

Shorn of Surplus Imports CRU Gridders Settle Down

BY JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's big-time football clubs today were down to their important quota of eight a team—Canadian-developed—and coaches banked on their choices to help bring them the grand total up with trophy, the Grey Cup. Before the last buds in September, the chief will spend an estimated $2,000,000.

The import-cutting deadline was Thursday midnight and a total of 96 Americans—23 from the Western Conference and 13 from the Big Four—received dismissal notices, at least for the remainder of the season. Some may get back later due to injuries, not to inability to make the grade, and they'll probably be back next year.

The system of carrying a list of imports served its first test last year in the Canadian Rugby Union has been, generally speaking, a success. Last year untold thousands of dollars are added to the coffers of already flourishing payrolls, training and other expenses.

From here in each of the three teams in the West and three of the four in the East will carry the eight Americans they've named. The Als, last-place finishers in 1952, are down to seven now in the Big Four schedule with nine injury.

If the Als reach the cup final they (Little Caesars) Cola, Rugby Conference champion Ajax Aucuin, Conn., will be dropped to adhere to CRU rules. Ajax Aucuin's team was not on the list of eight released Saturday sent to the CRU by Montreal, although he is an import. He is in his fourth season with the club and Montreal fans will allow him to be classified as a Canadian for football purposes.

The import-cutting deadline was reached at about the half-way mark of both the Western Conference and Big Four schedules and with the season's end in sight for most clubs.

The race isparticularly close in the Big Four with Hamilton Tiger-Cats out in front with a two-point margin over Ottawa Rough Riders, Montreal and Toronto Argonauts in that three-cornered battle. The one game is scheduled this week-end, Tiger-Cats at Ottawa Saturday.

The Sunday date between Alouettes and Big Four-leader Argonaut has been postponed to Oct. 18 because of the little world series between Montreal Royals and Kansas City Blues.

The Western Conference, with Edmonton Eskimos riding in front on an unbeaten winning streak, has another of its two-games-in-three-days home-and-away series. Each away games—at Regina against Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday and at Winnipeg against Blue Bombers Monday.

Edmonton-Calgary Stampeders meet Bombers at Winnipeg Saturday and Roughriders at Regina Monday.

Eskimos, called by experts to finish fourth in pre-season forecasts, have won eight straight games after losing the opener to Winnipeg Blue Bombers. They now have 16 points, six more than the second-place Bombers, Calgary and Roughriders and 12 ahead of the Stampeders.

The Intercollegiate Union hits its stride with two Saturday games—at Toronto, Hamilton Queen's Golden Gaels, surprised 20-10 winners over Sidney Beach to win exhibition game last Saturday, meet the University of Toronto Blues in a non-conference meeting. University of Western Ontario Mustangs, make their debut at Hamilton against McMaster Marauders; admitted to the union at the end of the 1953 season.

Sport in Brief

NEW YORK (AP)—Earl Sande, leading U.S. jockey during the golden days of racing, announced he is planning a comeback in the saddle at the age of 54.

"I want to pay off some debts and this is the only way I know," said the Handy Guy, who rode three Kentucky Derby winners. "I have made inquiries about a license.

But hope I can be riding before the present Belmont meeting closes. The meeting ends Oct. 24. Sande said he has been assisted by Marshall Cassidy, steward of Belmont, and he has been given a licence if he wants it.

Sande rode the turf back in the 1920s. Said he'd be down to his regular riding weight of 113 pounds—Sande's weight at his retirement despite his age.

"I've been working hard and am in good trim," he said.

Sande, down on his luck in recent years after a successful period as a trainer, has been exercising horses here for several months.

STRATFORD (CP)—Jack White, 23-year-old Stratford native, signed a professional contract at the Barrie training camp of Cleveland Indians Friday, Manager Lou Boudreau, Cleveland shortstop and former Stratford Cougar, is learned here today.

White, a graduate of Stratford's minor hockey ranks, was a member of the Stratford Intermediate OHA championship Barrie Flyers. He played with Stratford Kroehlers in the OHA senior circuit for the last two seasons.

SUDBURY (CP)—Jerry Toppazzini, right-winger suspended Tuesday by Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League for the training camp, is not talking about his plans.

"Things will work out," Toppazzini said at his home here Saturday.

Asked why he left the Bruins' camp, he replied: "I can't work well say anything at the present time."

world series victory Thursday over Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-2.

"It was a change-up screwball," the slender lefthander added. "I never pitched him one like it before. I was behind with two 2-0 pitch and it went just where I wanted it to go.

"He just got hold of it and slammed it out of the park, that's all it was some hit."

It was a dour and dejected crew of Dodgers who trooped into their dressing quarters after the game.

Manager Charley Dressen held his usual post-game press conference in zones to low that half the writers didn't hear the conversation.

"You can't second-guess home runs," the Dodger skipper said. "We've been in shape, that's for sure, but if Erskine can win tomorrow maybe we'll be all right."

Dressen had several battles that Carl Erskine, his 25-game winner who was shelled in the first inning of the opening game, would come back against the Yankees when the scene shifts to Ebbets Field.

The trouble with us is we're not getting the hits when we need 'em," Dressen said. "How many men did we leave on base today? Ten? And it was 12 yesterday."

Yankees, Dodgers in Second Classic When Montreal Meets Kansas City

MONTREAL (CP)—It's world series time in Montreal—little world series, that is—but you could say the Yankees and the Dodgers are staging a second classic here.

Montreal Royals, powerful Interna tional League representatives and No. 1 farm team of the National League Dodgers, and Kansas City Blues, the American League Yankees' top farm, tangle tonight in the opener of a best-of-seven series for the Junior world title.

The Blues, top dog of the American Association, swashbuckling flash by disposing of Toledo Sox in a series that went the full seven games. The Royals won their 11th straight victories over the pennant-winning Rochester Red Wings.

Ed Roebuck has been given the nod by Montreal manager Walt Alston to start the series and Hugo Coleman will handle the pitching chores in the second game on Saturday night. It was not known immediately known who would start for the Blues.

Both Roebuck and Coleman are right-handers, the former posting 15 victories during the regular season, against 14 setbacks, and Coleman finishing ar 8-4 record.

The Royals have played in the series five times, winning the title twice and losing out the other three times. They have been victorious in 1946 when Clay Hopper was at the helm. In 1951, they lost to Charlie Grimm's Milwaukee crew four games to two.

Harry Craft's Blues entered the challenge round last season but lost in seven games to Harry Dorish's Rochester crew. Their last victory was in 1938 but in the four series they have been in they have come up with three victories.

The first three games will be played in Montreal and then the series shifts to Kansas City to finish the series.

Dressing Room Chatter

BY TED SMITH

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel's managerial gamble paid off Thursday.

He decided to take a chance and had Mickey Mantle the "hit sign" when the count was two balls and no strikes in the eighth inning.

He told Mantle and Stengel, the pitch—described by Mantle as a "low outside change-up or maybe a screwball"—was belted into the left field stands, and Mantle came home behind Hank Bauer with the two big runs that gave New York Yankees a 5-4 victory over Brooklyn Dodgers in the second game of the world series.

There was risk in what Stengel did. In the next batter, with the Yankees trailing by one run and Yogi Berra on base, Mantle had a count of three balls and one strike. Stengel told him to let the next pitch go by. It turned out to be a strike. Then Mantle flied out to left field.

The one real rhubarb of the game came in the second inning. But Stengel made it plain he was making no protest.

Second Blast Rocks U.S. Town In Strike Area

PITKIN, La. (AP) — The second dynamite explosion in five days Thursday night rocked this community, eight miles from the strife-torn paper-mill town of Zilzabeth.

Police said the blast occurred 200 yards from a high school gymnasium where about 300 persons were attending a fair and rodeo. No one was injured.

The dynamite apparently was thrown from a moving car into a ditch near a residence.

Mrs. Boyce Perkins, wife of a new employee at the Calcasieu Paper Company, was injured in a blast in front of her home Saturday night.

The town of Elizabeth and surrounding areas have been the scene of violence since September, 1952, when AFL employees of Calcasieu and the plaintiff — owned Southern Industries, Inc., walked off their jobs in a contract dispute.

Council to Act

OSHAWA (CP)—Faced with eviction from her flat here, Mrs. Winnifred Modic, a 44-year-old poliocrippled mother of two school-aged boys, moved Thursday into two rooms in north Oshawa.

Meanwhile, the city council will be asked to consider erection of a low-rental city-subsidized apartment house project to house only pensioners and disabled persons.

City council is scheduled to discuss the question at a meeting Monday night.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SATURDAY, OCT. 3, 1953

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You who like intense study, research, science and financial problems are under the most favorable aspects today. Be sure you judge from a practical standpoint—not on sentiment or impulse.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Your heart and head should work in harmony to make this a useful, interesting day. We all have so much to be thankful for, but many of us forget, aren't grateful enough.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—God gave you freedom of thought, speech and a mind with free will. That makes us responsible, not only to others, but to ourselves. And remember, rules were not made for the few!

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) Generous, heavily vibrational. Try to reap your share but don't forget others. That will give you peace of mind, a free conscience and a happy, full day.

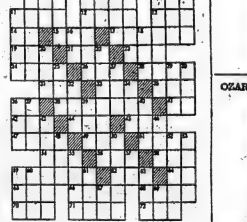
July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Gather courage, have fresh ambition; planet rays should assist. Regular business and financial matters, writing, trades, group activities favored.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Come out of your shell, live exciting day. Don't let others dominate your thinking but do. Listen and discuss reasonably where there are differences.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Truly constructive, favorable influences. Take advantage of opportunity to advance honest interests now. Romance rates its turn.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Conduct your affairs, business and personal matters so that you can say, "I have no regrets," and you are doing right by God, yourself—all.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—True artistry and a sense proportion, combined with proper approach will bring results. The golden rule for those who live and let live, those who cooperate.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Appreciable gains if you make the best use of your ability. A deft touch and intuition in anticipating others' tastes and needs will aid you in achieving.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—No half-hearted efforts this stimulating day! There is no limit to the success you can attain if you are functioning at par.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—A.M. says the bizarre and unconventional may tempt you. Afternoon can make up for lost moments if you apply yourself. Evening interests pleasant.

YOU BORN TODAY are a sound reasoner. With an impressive personality, you know how to use your charm. You are particularly sincere, honest, dislike schemers; rarely show indispositon, but will fight for causes you feel bound to defend. You are unselfish in devotion to family, duties, religion. Sometimes too cautious when a few well-directed chances could bring greater success. Don't take the burdens of all on your shoulders. Birthday of: Gen. Beacroft, Amer. Historian, statesman; Henry Hull, Amer actor.

PICTON

Sophiasburg Fair Favored By Ideal Weather

PICTON — Beautiful autumn weather ideal except for a high wind, favored Sophiasburg fall and school fair held Wednesday at Demorestville. A large crowd an enjoyable program and a colorful array of exhibits contributed to the success of the event.

At noon, the Women's Institute served a delectable chicken dinner in the village hall.

In the hall the exhibits by the school children vied for excellence with those shown by adults. The display of cooking was as good as any fair the scribe has visited this year. Fruit and vegetables and grains reflected the bounty of the harvest, while late flowers formed a gorgeous mass of color.

A highlight was the baby show in which Mary Lee daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Handley R. 6 Picton, was winner of the sweepstakes. She won the under one year class in which second place was taken by Edna daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carmichael and third by Stephen Michael son of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan.

In the year 12 months class, Mary Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scott was first, and Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cole, third.

Handicraft competition

Another feature was a music competition with many children competition in solo and duet classes under the direction of Noah Trumble, with Mrs. Clarence Brooks, at the piano and Miss Mary J. Hutt and Mrs. Donald Baxter as judges. Mr. Trumble also entertained with a comic song. Winners were: Solo, girls 6-8, Carol Zachariah, Maxine Gourney; girls 9-12 years, Mary Young, Sandra Carman, Linda Byers, Helen Brooks, Kathleen Gourney; boys 9-12, William Hoekstra, Douglas Snider.

Duets, any age, Kathleen Gourney and Seppie Hoekstra; Valerie and Maxine Curtleiter; the Hackett twins, Newcombe sisters.

Open class, Nancy Gorsline; novelty numbers, open, Carl Gilbert, violin solo; Janice Langley and Carol York, tap dance; Mount Carmel School, chorus.

In the Sophiasburg Calf Club competition, J. Gamble was high.

Varied Sports Program

Sports were keenly contested with race winners being six years and under, Joe Allison, Keith Monroe for boys, Sally Potter, Gale McFaul, Sharon Bryden for girls. Race 7-8 years, Herman Kempers, Freddy Newcombe, Douglas Allison for boys; Sharon Caughey, Maxine Curlette, Shirley Osterlee, for girls.

Three - legged race, Dale Rosborough and Richard Williams, for boys; Kathleen Gourney and Eva Osterlee for girls.

Sack race, Dale Rosborough, Richard Williams; thread the needle, Eva Osterlee; girls 12 and over, Anne Allison, Noreen Miller, Barbara Wannamaker; boys 12 and over, Teddy Ditchburn, Wayne Lindsay, Keith Aman; girls under 12, Nancy Mills, Seppie Hoekstra, Glenda Miller; boys 12 and over, Dale Rosborough, Ronald Bowers, Richard Williams; single men's race, Keith Gilbert; married women's race, Mrs. W. Richard; married men's race, Ralph Richards; bicycle race, Ted Ditchburn, Keith Aider.

Horse exhibitors, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gerow, Charles Culmer, Douglas Morden and Laverne Way showed in the horse classes. Rockwell Parks, Napanee, was judge.

Adding interest to the poultry section were dogs, rabbits, cats, kittens and bantams.

President of the fair is Fred Hope with Harold Munro and Gordon Way as vice presidents and Harry Gorsline as secretary treasurer. Directors are Hollet Gorsline, Noah Trumble, Gordon Gilbert, Blake Richards; J. K. Weish, R. Robinson, W. Demille, Curtis Duncee, B. Kotchapaw, Mrs. Ernest Thompson, Mrs. C. Morden; Mrs. F. Hope, Mrs. Ralph Richards, Mrs. Clarence Brooks, Mrs. F. Huskisson.

VISIT TURKEY

ISTANBUL (AP) — French Premier Joseph Laniel and foreign minister Georges Bidault arrived Wednesday night on a seven-day official visit to Turkey.

BIG GRAIN CROP

OSLO (CP)—An exceptionally good grain crop this year may turn out to be a record for Norway. Barley acreage, now twice as large as in 1947, accounts for the increase. Cultivation of spring wheat and oats is smaller than a year ago.

KILLED IN CAVE-IN

TORONTO (CP)—One man died and another was injured Wednesday when they were buried for 15 minutes by a cave-in at a suburban construction project. Jim Mitchell, 37, was dead when rescuers reached him. His companion, Les Wilson, 36, was taken to hospital. A third man, Emil Sawczyszyn, 24, leaped safely seconds before the accident.

UN Has Refused To Extend Period For Talks To PoW

Neutral Nations Had Asked For Extension of Deadline

By MILO FARNETI

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The United Nations command today refused to extend beyond midnight Oct. 31 deadline the period in which the Allies and Communists may try to change the minds of war prisoners who have refused to go home. Gen. Mark W. Clark, retiring UN commander, reaffirmed Allied opposition to extension of the "explanation" period shortly before he took off for Tokyo after a last UN inspection tour in Korea.

"We cannot be a party to breaking faith with the anti-Communist prisoners-of-war," he said.

Short Delayed

The neutral nations repatriation commission had asked for a deadline extension because of delays in getting the explanations program under way. Neither the Reds nor Communists would accept compounds constructed for the purpose. The 90-day period for explanations was to have started Sept. 26.

Clark's refusal to extend the deadline left the commission, of which India is chairman, following two days of pleading by anti-Communist prisoners. Three PoWs were killed and 19 wounded by Indian guards last week.

The Indian command today said nine pro-Communist Koreans are missing and presumably escaped. Some are believed to have fled on Thursday night. Others may have bolted during the melee.

An Indian spokesman said three anti-Red prisoners have died of disease since the Indians took custody of the PoWs.

In Seoul, meanwhile, South Korea's President Syngman Rhee said he was shocked at the dead shed in Korea's compounds guarded by the Indians.

Called Murder

Acting Foreign Minister Cho Chung Whan called the deaths "criminal acts of murder" and charged that "the Indians profess to be neutral but are acting really as Communists."

"We demand that they frankly side with the North Koreans and Chinese Communists by sending their armed forces and fight against us."

Confers With Successor

Clark's refusal came after the UN commander had conferred with Gen. John E. Hull, his successor, and other high-ranking officers.

As Clark and Hull wound up a brief tour of Korea, Communist forces fighting on the front not to be trust the Communists and to be ready for anything.

Communist correspondent Wilfred Burchett, who sometimes is an unofficial spokesman for the Red command, said "there is still an opportunity for certainly expect an extension."

Just when the explanation period will begin still is a question.

Case Adjourned

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP)—A crash boiler still was the main exhibit in a charge of keeping a still against Frank Schnee, formerly of R.R. 3, Bright and now of Brantford, at county police court here Friday.

Schnee pleaded innocent to the charge of having a still in his possession between Nov. 10, 1952, and Sept. 5, 1953 in Blenheim township.

RCMP constable D. F. Campbell said the still was found at the former Schnee farm which had been occupied by John A. Schmidt on Sept. 5.

Magistrate R. O. Groom adjourned the case for one week.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Synopsis: The fine, very warm weather of the last few days will likely come to an end in southern Ontario Sunday night. In northern regions the change will likely come early Sunday morning.

Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms occurring mainly during the night preceded the arrival of the cooler air in the west-ern areas, while it will be mostly sunny and the weather continue very warm.

ONE MAN DEAD, ONE MISSING AS SHIPS COLLIDE

German Boat Making Maiden Voyage Sunk

SARNIA, Ont. (CP)—A German freighter making her maiden voyage into the Great Lakes was sunk Friday night in a collision with a heavily-laden United States ship in the north-bowing St. Clair river channel.

One man was drowned and another was reported missing.

Capt. Harold Arthur Patterson of Toronto, believed to have been piloting the German freighter Wallachsee, was drowned when she collided with the Pioneer of Cleveland and sank in about seven minutes. A member of the German ship's crew was missing.

Capt. Harold Arthur Patterson of Kingston was drowned when the German freighter Wallachsee collided with the freighter Pioneer of Cleveland at 11:01 p.m. EST and sank in about seven minutes. The body of the captain, who boarded the ship at Toronto as a pilot, was recovered later.

The missing man was a member of the German crew.

Sixteen survivors of the Wallachsee were picked up by a Western Canada Steamship Agency Ltd. tug and taken to Sarnia. Four were treated in hospital.

Witnesses aboard the launch said they could see no reason for the collision. They said it was a clear night and there was no traffic on the river at the point near the Blue Water Bridge where the crash occurred.

Tried To Beach Ship

Apparently the captain of the Wallachsee attempted to beach his ship on the Canadian shore, but the vessel struck bottom and was unable to get it to shallow water. Only part of the masts showed above water Friday as the Wallachsee lay in about 30 feet of water.

The 3,344-ton Pioneer, heavily loaded, was downbound and had just entered the St. Clair river from Lake Huron when the collision occurred. She dropped anchor and stood by after the crash to assist.

Wallachsee, an 822-ton vessel, out of Hamburg, was upbound for Muskegon, Mich., with a cargo of fertilizer.

The Pioneer is owned by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company, the Wallachsee by the Zubeck line of Hamburg.

Two among the German crew could speak English. Reporters were prevented from interviewing them because of what were termed "immigration" regulations.

Police Guard Union Leaders In Dock Strike

By EUGENE LEVIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Rival longshore leaders in New York had 24-hour police guards today in the independent-operated dock strike in United States east coast ports.

Meanwhile, a presidential board of inquiry was to meet here today to start the legal machinery turning for an anti-strike injunction and a return to work, probably early next week.

The board's first session will begin three days ago.

A third development was a report that John L. Lewis' independent United Mine Workers had invited into its fold the AFL-ousted International Longshoremen's Association, which struck ports from Maine to Virginia in a bid for higher wages.

The docks were quiet Friday as an estimated 40,000 dockers stayed out in the dispute between the ILA and the New York Shipping Association, representing 170 shipping and stevedoring firms.

The commissioner said 72 ocean ships are idle in New York.

To Call At Halifax

Several ships were expected to call at Halifax rather than New York—among them are Canad-Inter-Ocean Georgic, Manchester and Queen Mary. The Britannic docked at Halifax Friday and longshoremen started unloading her baggage despite a plea from the ILA leadership in New York.

The ILA seeks a 30-cent hourly wage increase and welfare benefits. The employers have offered 8½ cents. Present basic wages are $2.27.

Locked in a bitter struggle with the ILA for control of waterfront labor is the AFL's new International Longshoremen's Association, set up as a rival to the ILA, which the parent AFL expelled for refusing to rid its ranks of racketeers.

CANADIAN ACTOR DIES

LONDON (CP) — Montreal-born actor Raymond Lovell died Thursday in London at the age of 55.

The Canadian came to London in 1924 and acted on the London stage and in London hits. He made his first New York appearance in 1950 in a play called "Call of the Peacock."

He had been ill for about a year.

Political Circles Rocked by News Of Visits to Jailed Man in Sing Sing

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Political circles in New York and New Jersey reverberated today to echoes of an official disclosure that governmental and union officials visited labor racketeer Joseph S. (Doc) Stacher in prison.

The bombshell came Friday in the form of a list of 33 persons who visited the jail prison released by the New York state department of correction. The list showed more than 80 names was that of Arthur H. Wicks, acting chairman of New York state.

The disclosure prompted a demand by Republican Governor Thomas E. Dewey for a "complete and satisfactory explanation."

Wicks countered with a statement that his calls on Stacher in Sing Sing were "entirely routine" to avoid labor troubles" in his state prison industries. He said, "I personally resent any implication of wrong-doing on my part."

Paul L. Troast, Republican candidate for governor of New Jersey conceded he wrote a letter in 1951 to Dewey asking executive clemency for Stacher. He told a press conference he "felt the one-time construction labor boss only as a prominent businessman and never as

37 Teachers Injured as Bus Plunges Into Ditch at Chatham

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — A bus filled with teachers returning to Kitchener from Detroit plunged into a ditch Friday night and 21 were injured.

Police said the chartered bus glanced off an automobile that had started to make a left turn at the intersection of Highway 2 and the Dresden road, about 3½ miles east of Chatham.

Gray Coach Lines, owners of the bus, sent another bus from London to pick up as many of the injured as could travel and take them the rest of the way to Kitchener.

Hospital officials said most of the teachers appeared to have minor injuries but it was possible some suffered skull fractures.

Release List

Hospitals released a list of persons admitted to emergency departments for treatment.

This preliminary list did not distinguish between those with slight hurts and persons severely injured.

The bus driver suffered an arm injury. Police gave his name as Douglas Wilson of Kitchener.

The passengers in the bus, members of the Kitchener Teachers' Institute, had been to Detroit for a convention of elementary school teachers, other than Sunday, and their group stayed over in Detroit.

As the bus neared Chatham, police said it was driven by 17-year-old Lyle Hunter of the Chatham district passed it, then slowed down at the intersection. As the bus started to pass, the driver of the car started a left turn, police said, and the right side of the car grazed the bus.

Kept Upright

The bus driver managed to keep it from going upright as it glanced off the car and crashed into the ditch, although it injured himself, he quietly calmed the passengers and helped the injured.

None of the occupants of the Hunter car was hurt. In the car with Hunter were three Chatham girl-chief children—Julia Bordeau, 13 and her brother Tom, 10, and Beverley Whitt, 13.

The accident raised the possibility that some Kitchener area schools may be closed on Monday if their teachers are in hospital.

Trucker Says He Warned Bus Driver Before Fatal Crash

MORRISBURG (CP) — A truck driver Friday told how he had warned two eastbound Colonial Coach Lines buses of "trouble on the highway" early on the morning of July 31 and only minutes before one of them bounced off a stalled pickup truck into the Williamsburg canal two miles west of here. Twenty persons were killed in the mishap.

Fred Vilneff of Peterborough was testifying at a preliminary hearing of manslaughter charges against 40-year-old Max Roodman of Toronto and Lorne Chesbrough, 28, of Kingston.

Kingston Bus Driver

Chesbrough was the driver of the bus which hit the truck and went into the canal. Police say Roodman was the driver of the second truck and have charged him with criminal negligence in connection with the death of ordinary seaman John Fanyo of Churchill, Man., and the 27 passengers aboard the bus.

Vilneff said he drove westbound from Montreal to Toronto when he nearly hit a vehicle stopped without lights on the highway about two miles west of here. He said he was so occupied trying to miss it he wasn't sure whether it was a car or truck.

"At Iroquois, three miles further on, I stopped and tried to phone the provincials, but I couldn't get an answer. Then I saw a bus heading east going by and managed to flag it down. I warned the driver about the vehicle without lights."

Vilneff said he resumed his trip and just west of Iroquois met the second bus. He flashed his headlights on and off "five or six times" in what he described as a universal warning signal used by him and truck drivers to indicate trouble ahead. He estimated the speed of the bus at about 50 miles an hour.

Another truck driver, Leon Hudgin of Picton, said he too nearly hit the parked vehicle, but stopped in time to investigate. He noted it was a light truck and bore the name "Dexter Sandman" on the side. However, he said he could not identify Roodman as the driver of the truck.

Charged Down Two

He flagged down two other transport trucks. One driver set out a flare and the other tried to help the man in the stalled truck start his vehicle. He also noticed something was wrong with the car.

All three transports proceeded when they found they could not help the Roodman truck.

Constable Lawrence E. D. Zalman of the Morrisburg OPP detachment said he was called out to investigate a report of a small truck parked without lights on No. 2 Highway.

He said he arrived on the scene to find a group of people standing and sitting along the side of the road in wet clothing. The headlights of a vehicle could be seen shining under water in the canal which parallels the highway.

BRITAIN PUSHING PLAN TO BREAK KOREA DEADLOCK

Would Let Both Sides Invite Some Neutrals

LONDON (AP)—Britain is reported pushing a plan aimed at breaking the Korean peace conference deadlock by letting both sides invite certain neutrals, including India, to join the deliberations.

State Minister Selwyn Lloyd, who has been working with the United States and other United Nations members in an effort to get the Korean parley started by Oct. 26, was expected by plane today from New York to confer with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Lloyd was summoned Friday after Eden informants said the Churchill cabinet had worked out the new plan in principle.

Although no official details were available, the informants said the plan was based on the assumption that the proposed Korean peace parley will have to be broadened.

Britain's Plan

It proposes, they said, that the peace conference as a whole—the Communist side as well as the UN side—would invite certain neutrals to join in the talks. The U.S. has agreed the conference itself could invite neutrals only after it begins its deliberations.

The Russians have warned that the conference may never take place unless the UN agrees to a proposal that certain Asian nations —such as India, Burma and Pakistan—sit in.

The UN majority voted against that proposal.

U.S. Stand Unsettled

The diplomatic informants said the British leaders "understand" the U. S. is prepared to go along with the new idea.

The impression, however, U. S. officials said they had not received any British compromise proposal, and strongly indicated that the one reported from the works would not be acceptable.

The cabinet also is reported to have discussed other international questions, including prospects for a top-level conference with Russia to ease world tension, the position of Red China, and possible British-Egyptian agreement on the Suez canal.

Given 15 Years For Manslaughter

TORONTO (CP) — Clarence Edward Ferguson, Friday was sentenced to 15 years in prison for manslaughter in the shooting death of Mrs. Edith of Joseph King, 51, during a rooming-house drinking session in August.

Bowen originally was charged with murder. Defence counsel, Edward Bull, Crown counsel, accepted a plea on the lesser charge on the grounds Bowen had been drinking to the extent he could not have formed the intent to kill.

Evidence showed Bowen and Mrs. King had been drinking beer in Cobourg the day after King and George Weaver, 29, were released from a rooming-house bedroom. McCart has been charged with the murder of Weaver and awaits trial.

Living Costs Edge Toward Record High Established Two Years Ago

OTTAWA (CP)—Living costs in Canada are slowly rising again, edging toward the record high established two years ago.

The index for the third consecutive month in July and the August survey, likely to be published Monday, may show a further jump.

The July increase of 0.2 per cent over a period, however, the consumer price index to 113.7, just 2.5 points below the record high of 116.2 in December, 1951.

The index, based on the year 1935-39 prices equalling 100, rose by two-fifths of a point in 1951. This also was the third consecutive jump for the index.

Lost On Aug. 25, Norseman Found On Northern Lake

Four of Seven in Party Left Plane Hours Earlier

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP)—An RCAF Canso today located four missing members of an air party of seven lost in the lake-dotted wilderness of northern Quebec since Aug. 25.

They were found not far from three other men, located earlier by their downed Norseman plane on Lake Emmanuel, 80 miles north of here. The first three were on their way by air to this base when word came the others, too, had been sighted.

The four men were spotted at 9:15 a.m. and the Canso landed within a mile of where they were found.

Had Left Friday

The four had given up hope Friday of being rescued and had set out from Lake Emmanuel hoping to walk to civilization. They had been dense bush only a few hours when their Norseman plane and their three colleagues were spotted by a searching RCAF Lancaster.

The Norseman was on a flight from Fort Chimo in the Ungava region to Rouyn-val, Que., when it disappeared.

The RCAF Canso that spotted the four men was piloted by F/O. J. H. Haugh. He signalled the Bagotville base:

"Four survivors proceeding on an east headed north."

Lands On Lake

A few minutes later the Canso reported it had landed on Lake Emmanuel and would await the arrival of the four. It said that the four had heard the activity of aircraft which located their companions and were heading back to their downed Norseman.

The three men located Friday were already on their way here by plane when word was received of the rescue of their four companions. The four will join them here later today.

The men in the two parties have not yet been identified.

Take Off Saturday

The crew of a Royal Canadian Air Force Canso spent the night on Lake Emmanuel with the first trio and, today, will take off for Bagotville. This rescue aircraft was due to fly eastward to Mingan, on the north shore but in later 320-mile flight it expected to head directly southward to Bagotville. The Canso is expected to land at Bagotville about 11:30 a.m. EST.

Passengers aboard the plane that disappeared Aug. 25 on a flight from Fort Chimo to Rouyn-val were Theinhaus Lange, German geologist; K. Koten, an official of Volcanic Company of Rotterdam, Holland; Andre Levesque, Montreal; Victor Mol, Montreal, and Gerard Ray Vanstone, a Toronto student. All were returning from the Fort Chimo area, Vanstone's property near Ungava bay.

Pilot of the plane, owned by Mont Laurier Airways, was R. J. Mullin of Kenora, and the other flight engineer, Richard Everett of

Canada Approves Proposed Cut In UN Budget

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada Friday declared her approval of the proposed cut of $843,000 in the UN budget for 1954.

E. D. Hemsley, who heads the financial division of Canada's external affairs department, presented the Canadian position in the UN committee on budget estimates.

The UN secretary-general, Dag Hammarskjold, submitted a budget of $48,123,400 this week—$843,000 less than last year.

Hemsley said Canada considers the reductions "sensible" and will support them.

In the legal committee, Canada threw her support behind a proposal to help cut the length of UN sessions by providing for a limit to procedural debates.

Canada's position was outlined by Alan Macnaughton, QC, Liberal MP for Mount Royal.

He said Canada "does not consider it good practice" to allow a minority to prohibit discussion of issues by means of debate of a procedural point.

Montreal

No indication was received on how the men managed to survive so long in the wilderness where snow and freezing temperatures have already been reported.

Had Much Food

When the plane first was reported missing, pilots of Mont Laurier Airways said Mullin, Everett and Ray Vanstone experienced hunters. They also said the plane carried sufficient food supplies to enable the men to "hit it out for several weeks."

The Norseman was spotted by an RCAF Lancaster from Greenwood, N. S. The missing plane was sighted on the northern shore of Lake Emmanuel at the edge of Emmanuel lake and appeared undamaged.

A radio message was sent to a Mont Laurier Canso plane, searching an area about 100 miles away, and the amphibian flew to the Emmanuel lake by nightfall. The crew decided to remain on the lake and to search for the missing survivors after daybreak.

Four radio reception reports intervened between the Canso from sending out details on the survivors.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by Horace B. Powell—

Are You Coming Home Tonight?

Are you coming home, ye wanderers,
Whom Jesus died to win,
All footsore, lame and weary,
Your garments stained with sin?
Will you seek the blood of Jesus
To wash your garments white;
Will you trust His precious promises
Are you coming home tonight?

Are you coming home, ye lost ones?
Behold your Lord doth wait;
Come, then no longer linger,
Come, ere it be too late;
Will you come and let Him save you,
O trust His love and might;
Will you come while He is calling,
Are you coming home tonight?

Are you coming home, ye guilty,
Who bear the load of sin;
Outside you've long been standing,
Come, now and pentrate in;
Will you heed the Savior's promise,
And dare to trust Him quite,
"Come unto me", saith Jesus,
Are you coming home tonight?

By HORACE B. POWELL

"Are You Coming Home Tonight?" — James Mc Granahan, one of the 19th century's leading singing evangelists, composed the music for this favorite gospel song and he was also responsible, to some extent for the message of the hymn as we know it today.

The song verses had their origin in a poem written by a young woman in Scotland. Mr. Mc Granahan got hold of the stanzas and decided that, if set to music, they would make a fine gospel hymn. Before writing his tune, however, he made some revision of the words themselves. When the song was introduced publicly — probably at one of the many revivals in which the composer's musical leadership played an important role — it was accepted enthusiastically and through the years that followed it helped to win many men to Christian converts.

In Sankey, the evangelistic associate of Dr. Dwight L. Moody, Mc Granahan found a man who used to tell a story of a young soldier who received a breathless from the singing of this hymn at a London revival meeting which is claimed to enter while the song was being sung.

Sobered by the music and message of the hymn, the visitor remained for the meeting hall on the following night, and for several evenings thereafter. Finally, he asked to become a Christian and then he told his new friends that the hymn he had heard on his first visit "would not let me stay away".

The House in The Jungle

Robert Goodyear describes in London Calling Today, because of the housing shortage in Singapore, he spent six months in a house on a rubber estate in a rundown coconut plantation: a jungle home that despite its lack of amenities turned out to be an idyllic refuge with charm and mystery

It was the severe housing shortage in Singapore which led me to look for a place to live outside the three normally occupied by Europeans. The result was that I spent six dry, trundling months in a huge, empty house in the middle of a rundown coconut plantation. No one had lived there since the Japanese occupation, and the Chinese caretaker was so scared of the ghosts supposed to inhabit it that he actually left his quarters at night and went to sleep in a bungalow about a hundred yards away. After three weeks of us he decamped altogether.

Before I found this idyllic refuge —and it really was idyllic—I had tried various boarding houses, all tremendously expensive (as much as $300 a month for a married couple). I even tried a Chinese tenet, where the so-called 'room' was simply part of an attic divided off from the rest by cardboard walls only five feet high.

In the end a kind Chinese business-man or towkay, the father of one of my colleagues offered me the use of a country house of his at a nominal rent." I do not think that we shall ever forget that first night. We had just over an hour to lug our stuff in and provide ourselves with locks and lights, for we had not started out until late, and every mile had seemed to take us back ten years in history, and farther from more than a whole day's sailing. Nor did the taxi-driver raise our spirits by saying, as he dumped us, 'Bad house. You not want live here,' in a cheerful (or was it melancholic?) tone of voice. The house echoed to our steps. Nameless insects with long, trailing legs float-ed softly about the rooms. Carpenter bees roared through the barred windows, and almost every time you touched a wall, or opened a door you dislodged a bit of mason-wasp's nest. Were there scorpions—or the fat, hairy horror of centipedes? The house was beautifully free of all European amenities: no electric light, no fans, no sanitation, even the wells were polluted.

We worked furiously on a large scarlet - and - chrome kerosene lamp, in which we had concentrated all our trust and quite a lot of our money, but although we read the directions time after time, produced frightened grits into a meral cup, and pumped until our arms ached, the lamp would not light, and we had only a few candle-ends and a single storm-lantern in reserve. So we gave up, lit and tore our hands fitting a padlock on the door at the bottom of the stairs, barricading ourselves on to the upper floor—well, and quite, for the big double doors leading on to the balcony were not lockable for the inside.

Then we rigged up our mosquito-curtains, shared most of the remainder of our flat soda-water with the dogs, ate some sardines from the tin, and pretended to relax as we watched hordes of tiny red ants climbing the table legs. Secretly, we were waiting for the ghost, whatever form it might take. But nothing happened, except for the sudden appearance of a very large lizard that first circled the room with a muscular ripple, and then abruptly went away. Night was full of the barking of dogs, though, and also rattled in the cavernous outbuildings.

Dawn was lovely, as it can be only in the tropics: not flamboyant at all but delicately joyous and virginal. We explored our domain across fruit trees, the snaktasting of mangosteens, rambutans, and two solitary passion-fruit vines whose yellow shapes we detected on the vine. We found the site of the pasture, and squeezed their cloudy interiors, punctuated by deliciously crackling seeds, into our mouths. Eating and chattering we walked through the house, planning how we could live in it.

There was a big room downstairs, then a second, and at the back a really vast galleried barn roofed with attap, which is a tropical kind of thatch. A Chinese cooking range stood in a verandah in the courtyard, and beyond this open-air kitchen was one of the most amusing bathrooms I have ever seen, with a cement bath at least eight feet by four, and three grim little lavatories, with amber glass actually let into their doors, but full of bees and lizards and quite useless. Spider lilies pressed their white faces through the wooden window-bars. We decided to continue to live on the upper floor—we could not furnish more than that—and this meant that the next few weeks were spent in painting (with blue-white colour-wash and a sort of horse-tail which I, paling up bookshelves from barn planks, and-bricks dug up in the garden), and potting about quite happily. After a bit we got one of the local boys to help us.

His name was Leng and he was a cocky, scrawny adolescent with a considerable command of English which he spoke much too fast. He ran the household as though it were a Boy Scout camp. He buried plates piled with soggy rice and an indescribable weight of dried prawns on to the table, and went off loudly singing 'Oh, where are you going to, my pretty maid?' He then had to be called back several times with requests for the most obvious things, to which he replied with a series of ruinous 'O.K.'s. Dinner over, he spread his homework in and provide ourselves with one of the two armchairs, demanding to be entertained.

I, of course, fell for him, although he was always inefficient and often lazy. I can see him now, asleep on his cot as we stole out at night, his face become as pure as that of a young Buddha, and on the shelf above him his prayer book, his honey-and-flowers brilliantine, and his catapult.

Leng had a cot to do: he boiled water on our small primus, carrying in buckets for the cement bath; he helped us in our culinary adventures with such things as squid and the toughest of hens knocked down (more or less accidentally) on the road. But he was chiefly useful in getting us in touch with the local people, few of whom spoke any English. As soon as we knew him the groves around us became full of uncles and aunts, good-or bad-hearted (a favorite word of his) people, and we did not worry about the Communists any more.

It was really astonishing to see these local inhabitants passing below our balcony on their way to church. They lived in appalling hovels in the mysterious jungly areas Leng always referred to as 'inside,' and yet they were beautifully, spotlessly, conservatively dressed, twirling parasols and dangling babies, as though smart Mayfair people were to be seen delicately crossing an allotment garden. But it was the children we got to know really well, taking them swimming or to the movies, and that fact completely dissipates the feeling of unreality, as well as enchantment, which I associate with those months.

There was Leng's brother Kim, who could not make my typewriter write Chinese although he tried hard enough, and there was the delicately beautiful native child, Ah Tum, who brought us fresh-caught bird's nests and once a pathetic baby bullock. But I think the symbol for all of them was a small boy called Ambi who had what the poet Blake called the passion and the darkness." He did not really know English but he disguised the fact with a remarkably fluent accent. The first time he approached me in the garden I thought he was struggly and smelt fiercely of pigs. I asked him if he would like to go to town on the following day, and he turned up that very afternoon, resplendent in blue shorts and white shirt and socks, obviously raring to go. I just could not disappoint him, and it was a curious journey, because half the time he was flashing with smiles, and the rest of the time he was in tears.

After this I saw nothing of him for two months and suddenly, he was on the balcony, wolfing manfully through a plate of my potted plants. Twice he performed this enigmatic action, and then I remarked, that the third occasion he smiled, looked sweetly, smiled again, forced back the tears and started to wash the teacups. But he would not stay after that: I did not see him again until the day we were leaving (we had lived in the house successfully enough for my Chinese friend to want it back). Ambi then appeared shed on the buttop, shook hands, burst into floods of tears, and rushed madly away. I do not know why he did this, but it seems to me a fitting climax to the story of those months when I hung suspended on my balcony in the jungle, like Rapunzel in the BBC's General Overseas Service!

TROUBLE FOR TRAUBEL?

Miss Helen Traubel, considered the greatest Wagnerian soprano in captivity, by those who should know, has let it be known that she will not renew her contract with the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Miss Traubel's emancipation to the accompaniment of box-office publicity that featured an exchange of letters with Rudolph Bing, manager of the Met, in which Miss Traubel accused him of "rank snobbery," is probably a mixed blessing. While Miss Traubel is perfectly within her rights to earn her lozenges at the fanciest fee possible, it is possible that warbling "Dixie" or even such refined modern classics as "Oklahoma" may have less impact on the cocktail set than Wagner did on the white tie and tail customers.

There is a basic difference in the treatment of the material not to mention the material.

Enio Pinza, one of the Met's greatest stars for years, established a comfortable retirement fund on his net returns from the annual musical South Pacific. The novelty of an established operatic star in a Broadway show dazzled the ultimate theatre patrons as much as the show itself. When he was inevitably rushed to Hollywood and immortalized on celluloid, Mr. Pinza fared somewhat worse. In fact, one of his pictures was so bad that it had never been released. The ultimate insult was finally perpetuated when Jan Peerce sang the songs while Mr. Pinza went through the motions.

Miss Traubel has an established reputation in a highly specialized field. Whether she can drop the rather formidable facade of a diva and convert from Wagner to be-bop is a question. Whether the night club lounge is doubtful. The spectacle of Miss Traubel singing "Mama's I'll Baby Loves Shortnin' Bread" to the clinking of ice and the rattling of bottles is somewhat depressing.

Miss Traubel's husband, Louis Shurr, Dinah Shore, Peggy Lee, Georgia Gibbs, Sarah Vaughan and Doris Day can all deliver modern songs in a much more satisfying version than a converted Wagnerian. After all the songs were written for Misses Shore, Lee, Day, et al., because they had the rollicking rhythm style to make them sell.

Miss Traubel has a fine voice in her own medium. It would be too bad if she denies her faithful following the music they crave while she tries to readjust to the roller-coaster style of Miss Vaughan, or the laughing lyrics of Miss Day. If she does Miss Traubel is in for trouble.

FLY-TIME

Wherever it is the flies go in the winter-time, we wish they would go.

To twist an old ditty, there may not be flies on some of your guys, but there sure are flies on us. They cause us to fume. Td fume.

The Dominion Parasite Laboratory here, with that passion for facts which makes scientists so useful—and so unpopular—informs us there are no more flies this year than usual. It just seems that way.

The explanation for this delusion is that, when the nights get nippy, the flies wend into the warmest quarters. Now, with warmer weather, they are coming out for a last round of pleasure and pestering before they start the winter's hibernation.

The Dominion Parasite Laboratory gives a partial, but hardly satisfying, answer to an old plaintive plea, the demand to know where flies go in the winter-time. They do not really go anyplace, say the scientists, but just laze around until spring.

Then it is that sex rears its ugly head and the flies start their annual fertility rites by industriously, clingy-stubbornly to life. The male is content to die after mating, but his wife hangs around the earth until she has laid her eggs. Then she, too, dies, leaving behind her a new generation of flies to bother humanity in the fall, she departs this life, leaving us to the mosquitoes during the summer months.

THE HEIGHT OF STUPIDITY

In this argument, just mark us up as on the side of the RCAF.

It seems that CF-100 all weather jets from North Bay failed to put in an appearance at London, Ont., on Air Force Day because of bad weather.

R. M. Harrison in his column in the Windsor Star quotes an observation from Malcom Vannan of the Air Force Club in Windsor.

Says Mr. Vannan, "If the Russians decide to bomb us and the weather conditions are not right for the RCAF, we are done!"

Is it possible that Mr. Harrison and Mr. Vannan believe that RCAF pilots should take the same risks to provide a show for sight-seers as they would to protect these same sight-seers from destruction?

Mr. Vannan complains that Windsor residents "pay taxes, like everyone else but the Government doesn't see fit to allow us even a little of what our tax dollars are doing."

Would Mr. Vannan have cheered the Government—and the RCAF—if the CF-100's had made the trip from North Bay to London and, due to bad weather, there had been a couple of $50,000 crack-ups?

And another thing. There are men in those planes.

LITTLE GOLD DIGGER

Already she has learned the way
To get a man her bills to pay
As I knows, whenever pear I comes.
'm good for candy, cone or gum.

She's found that men she can cajole
With what is called her "winning smile,"
And when she wants from me
Is merely climbing on my knee.

I know she's learned, though only two,
What for a kiss man will do.
For that there's little he won't buy
If he's an old fool, such as I.

A lovely blonde, just two years old,
A digger, as they say, for gold.
Coaxing for her grandpa gray to buy
The sweets her parents must deny.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A young city schoolmaster, unmarried, was advised to go for a small country school if he could, for the sake of his health. A city schoolmaster's health was a little backwoods village school in the neighborhood where I hunt partridge. And a wonderful place for a naturalist not find anywhere. His school is not in the village, but on the wildwood crossroads. His twenty scholars are the village children and the children from adjoining rocky farms within a radius of three or four miles.

Since his own boyhood, the schoolmaster has been an ardent student of the out-of-doors and of nature in a great variety of aspects: birds, botany, trees, animals and their habits and behavior. Now he counts people who lived in the country, especially such young people as these in the real backwoods.

To his utter astonishment, he found, on starting the acquaintance of his scholars, that they were completely unaware of the barest elements of the natural world all around them. They knew as few birds and little animals. They did not know the name of a plant, were hazy about the identity of the trees which surrounded them, were full of the most absurd folk-tales and superstitions about the animals to be seen every day, for, raccoon, deer and occasionally a bear. They were filled with myths, with old-wives'-tale superstitions about every feature of nature that had caught their attention. The startling thing was how little of the world around them had caught their attention or interest. I met the schoolmaster at intervals in the evening. He was collecting samples of all the evergreens of the neighborhood, material for a lesson the next day on trees.

Before I am through with them," he said, "I am going to get them to look at the birds among them. Their gaze is on the stars. Morris stars, Rowan stars. From two miles to the nearest movie theatre, they know the life history and the latest picture of every actor down to the B pictures. They can rattle off all the newest gossip of radio and television. But every child in the backwoods school can name the make and model of every motor car, without a slip. It beats me. I swear my children are city children at heart."

Not Well Received

(Ottawa Journal)

The Manchester Guardian reports that the proper pronunciation of the name of Lao Tse is Ong-ha-Lea." We take this badly from a paper in a country where Cholmondley is pronounced "Chumley."

Gullible Females

(Collier's Magazine)

A mail order business man in Boston says he's discovered a way to get household goods by salesgirls. Just has them address in an unmistakably feminine hand to housewife's husband and marked personal.

Shakespeare's Challenger

(Hamilton Spectator)

Did William Shakespeare write the plays attributed to him, or were they written by Christopher Marlowe, Francis Shakespeare or his dummy? Hovering round a coffee table in the Algonquin, Alice Hoffman, a Broadway theatre lady, who has that to will may allowed to open it. In the tonic tis the bones of Sir Thomas Walsingham, Shakespeare's patron and patron of Marlowe, and with them, Mr. Hoffman believes, are documents that will prove that Shakespeare is a fraud.

Mr. Hoffman's theory is not quite so unreasonable as it may appear at first sight. When Shakespeare's life story is winnowed over to its essentials there is little to support the claim that he wrote the plays, and still less that he wrote the sonnets. As for his dramatic work, all that is definitely known is that he was a member of the Lord Chamberlain's company, that he also played the Ghost in Hamlet. Then there is Ben Jonson's remark that Shakespeare "never blotted a line. Would to God he could scratch out a dozen!" For the rest, there is mostly silence and assumption.

One might remark that it is odd that the man who wrote "O thou monster ignorance, how deformed dost thou look" (Love's Labor Lost) and "Cowards die many times before their deaths" (Julius Caesar) and "Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown" (Henry the Fourth), should have allowed his daughter to remain illiterate. Nevertheless, People in every generation have found it difficult to believe that the half-ignorant village boy wrote the plays and sonnets. But even remarks that he "could not marry him to his verse."

Marlowe, on the other hand, was a man of extraordinary brilliance. At 24 he had already written Tamburlaine the Great, a masterpiece in the blank verse which is a landmark in English dramatic poetry. In the following year his Tragical History of Dr. Faustus appeared, a play which critics generally agree contains some of the most exalted poetry in the English language. His drama, Edward II, is recognized as the ancestor of Elizabethan play. Marlowe had that "dynamo of genius" within him that distinguishes great genius. In his twenties he wrote, plays and translated parts of Ovid, proving that unlike Shakespeare who had "little Latin and less Greek," he was a scholar. Marlowe had a classical education at Cambridge. Of his poetry, the best known lyric is Come, Live With Me and Be My Love.

What happened to Marlowe? At the age of 29 a royal warrant was issued for his arrest on a charge that is believed to have concerned offences against religion—a serious matter in Elizabethan times.

It seems then that Marlowe was a hunted man, and took refuge in a tavern brawl with a man named Archer, who killed him.

Mr. Hoffman believes that this was a hoax and that Marlowe, under the protection of his powerful patron, went "underground" but still continued writing under Shakespeare, an actor, as a mask.

The greatest challenge to Shakespeare's authorship has been made by Orville Ward Owen, who claims to be able to prove that the plays were written by Sir Francis Bacon. His members believe that Bacon was a member of a secret society—a secret fellowship—and that Shakespeare's works contain proof, in cipher, that Bacon wrote them. Few believe that the Stratford cowpher, great as he was, wrote the passionate love scenes of Romeo and Juliet, and the love sonnets.

Whatever may be the result of Mr. Hoffman's investigations, they will only be of academic interest. The fact remains that no one else has ever written anything like the plays.

Those Unread Classics

(The London Times.)

It is many years now since one of those octogenarians who were the delight of their childhood left on their eightieth birthday stated the reporter by announcing that the day before he had taken a great load off his mind. He had finally decided that he never would read Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire."

He had begun it as a young man; there it had been, confronting him on the shelves of his library but although year by year he had put off his determination to get through it, he had never abandoned the project. At last the moment of truth was upon him. He was now too old. He added decisively, "I shall have no disappointment, only relief."

The recollection is worth recording as meaning a great deal. They stand so reproachfully, those solid phalanxes of Grotes' "Greece" and Mommsen's "Rome" the "Memories complets et authentiques de Napoleon" and Carlyle's "History of Friedrich II of Prussia called Frederick the Great"—and just why are so many of them histories?—and even such comparatively modern fare as Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations."

With what satisfaction we had carried the bargains home; with what pride we had installed them, placed them on our shelves. Of course they were a little daunting to start in on right away. In whatever mood the animals to be seen every day, for, raccoon, deer and occasionally a bear. They were filled with myths, with old-wives'-tale superstitions about every feature of nature that had caught their attention. The startling thing was how little of the world around them had caught their attention or interest. I met the schoolmaster at intervals in the evening. He was collecting samples of all the evergreens of the neighborhood, material for a lesson the next day on trees.

Before I am through with them," he said, "I am going to get them to look at the birds among them. Their gaze is on the stars. Morris stars, Rowan stars. From two miles to the nearest movie theatre, they know the life history and the latest picture of every actor down to the B pictures. They can rattle off all the newest gossip of radio and television. But every child in the backwoods school can name the make and model of every motor car, without a slip. It beats me. I swear my children are city children at heart."

Guiltie Females

(Collier's Magazine)

A mail order business man in Boston says he's discovered a way to get household goods by salesgirls. Just has them address in an unmistakably feminine hand to housewife's husband and marked personal.

such facts can, of course, go too far. If Sisyphus had been about his business, the boulder would have been condemned to be a reader. We can all—with the exception of the ever-to-be-reverenced Professor Saintsbury—echo the feelings of Arnold Bennett in his thirtieth year, "A list of the masterpieces I have not read sometimes fills me with dismay." And he would refer to real masterpieces, not to the meretricious or recent announcements of "this week's classics."

But there is another class of classics that the reader can at most time but disinclination. Even the public-spirited citizen generally has some famous book he is determined not to read. It has been said that "Ulysses" was never felt he could face up to Joyce's "Finnegan's Wake." George Moore once declared he shunned "The Scarlet Letter" because he thought the subject "must be awful. An ardent Trollopian, who would read the whole of the Barsetshire series with delight, would not only keep the Freudians happy for a long time; it might help him to the mind's ease he stresses of our day.

Sometimes such phobias are overcome. The really strong-minded are driven to grip the feared volume, and get through it to its bitter end somehow. For the joyful surprise remark or happening can roll the aversion sky. How often the book is then thoroughly enjoyed.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THEY DO NOT DIE

Never do I read a fine or great book that I do not feel the presence of the author in the room. Talk I took upon a beautiful landscape by a great artist. It hangs before me. Someone still in the flesh at his easel. I can see him as that picture grew. I can hear him tell students about him as he paints with the surest of skill and sureness of touch.

It's the same when I read a book by a dead author. I have discovered a new friend in the author, and each one of his characters becomes an associate to me. You want to return again and again to a really great book, so that its author can talk to you anew and with the passing of years, understanding.

I can understand the love of people for old furniture, into which an artist has put so much of himself. There is love in the very

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Dr. Brady

A quack who loves his pipe and loathes racial and religious discrimination as the greater number conducts the health service does, should be tolerant himself. But I'm not.

Occasions lift some meaning and baay presented me with a box or cigars, even good cigars. If cigars can be good. How to discover them has proved a difficult problem. Indeed I could hand them to any of a dozen self-indulgent gents I know, but that would be connivance. I could send the cigars back to the donor and ask for the value in cash or merchandise one might contribute to the S.A., but that would probably irk the donor. It's really a problem. After all, my tobacco is horrible to smoke in a pipe and anyway it would be too, too. expensive to consume that way. Dr. Dance I learned that the cleaning woman's husband is happy when he has a cigar to smoke during afternoon at the polls on the porch reading the paper. He enjoyed such Sunday afternoons only when something happened to give him a cigar in the morning. Last week's wave of trucking—with a large family to support, no wonder.

My intolerance or cigar smoking is based, I think, entirely upon the high cost of the luxury. I like the aroma of a cigar—but not the morning after. In the medical literature there are few if any reports of ill effects of cigar smoking, none that I recall of ill effects of pipe smoking.

No good reason why a woman shouldn't smoke cigarets, cigars or a pipe and/or chew tobacco if it is all right for a man to do so, and here I must put aside bias or prejudice and say that use of tobacco seems to be no more harmful to women than it is to men.

By men and women I mean adults.

There is no doubt in my mind that smoking is harmful to any one who has not attained full growth and development —in other words any one who is not over 21 years of age. Some persons attain full growth and development at the age of 18. Others not until they are 25.

Beef-in mind, I'm narrow-minded as a humorist and doctors will gladly tell you, but it is my belief that for smoking or chewing to be a habit or smoke the minor merits spanking or the equivalent. If you are a parent and do not agree with this, I ask what was your parents' attitude about it, and were they right or wrong about it?

I remarked in earlier talks about smoking the recognized ill the cure of which seem to be chiefly if not solely those of carbon monoxide anoxia and not the effects of "nicotine."

Strength for the Day

STORM WARNINGS UP

Some time ago a young student history attempted to make me demonstrate to me that the world continues to get worse all the time. I would appear to most of us that in the past 2000 years there has been considerable improvement in the human race. However it is admitted that since the twentieth century has been, to date, the bloodiest and most costly in all history. We have had more suicide, more war than has any other century. Furthermore, the cost of killing a man in war has reached the incredible figure of $100,000. Every time a man has been killed in war, $100,000 in actual material wealth has been destroyed, a life has been snuffed out, and—what is very important from the economic standpoint—a customer has been destroyed. He is never good for business to kill of customers. We have killed them off by the millions in the past decades.

The truth is that we live in a subconscious world which pays precious little attention to spiritual values. The result is that unless appearances are illusory, we are trying as hard and as fast as we know how to commit suicide. New skin-ice equipment, television sets, satisfactory bank balances, and highways crowded with automobiles will not do us much good in a universe essentially spiritual when the day of reckoning arrives.

Storm warnings are up. Time is running out fast.

Must Not Scoff At Cribbage

(Sudbury Star)

There has been some dispute over the country-wide pastime accommodation, and the remarks of a judge concerning card-playing councillors who "played cards, cribbage, and the like" instead of discussing business about getting better accommodation.

One of the councillors promptly replied: "We play nothing but cribbage." It is safe to say he never felt he could face up to the judge's criticism. George Moore once declared he shunned "The Scarlet Letter" because he thought the subject "must be awful. An ardent Trollopian, who would read the whole of the Barsetshire series with delight, would not only keep the Freudians happy for a long time; it might help him to the mind's ease he stresses of our day.

Sometimes such phobias are overcome. The really strong-minded are driven to grip the feared volume, and get through it to its bitter end somehow. For the joyful surprise remark or happening can roll the aversion sky. How often the book is then thoroughly enjoyed.

Crayfish Is Renamed

(Winnipeg Free Press)

When is a crayfish not a crayfish? When it is a rock lobster, apparently in the South African Parliament which recently approved legislation allowing for the protection of the crustacean. Crayfish species apparently had been erroneously dubbed crayfish by early settlers because of their resemblance. the crayfish is not held in as high as the lobster, the name was changed to that of the latter in order to aid wider market.

The spiny lobster is a gourmet's dish and for the past 50 years or so has been exported to Britain and France. Latterly, a market for it has been developed in the United States, where the demand for the Cape Peninsula some $3,600,000 annually.

But in the United States the crayfish and fresh-water crab are considered vermin and the same, while Frace looks on the crayfish as a delicacy and the crab as a delicacy. Now under the more dignified name of rock lobster it is expected to earn many more dollars for South Africa.

Of interest to Canadians is the fact that one of the earliest crayfish canneries or rock lobster — canneries was established in the wrecked hull of the schooner Bessie Morrow, a former sealing vessel which was driven onto the rocks near Capetown during a gale in 1900.

'Canadian Politics' Discussed By Blair Fraser at Meeting

"Political writers and commentators are often accused of being biased in favor of the government, and this charge is perfectly true. All of us can point to times and cases when we attacked the government, making the Liberals perfectly furious; but most of the time most of us give nonpartisan interpretation," said Blair Fraser, last evening as he addressed the Women's Canadian Club at the first meeting of the season, on "Canadian Politics," in the capacity filled assembly room of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Fraser, noted political analyst and Ottawa editor of Maclean's magazine, introduced by the president, Mrs. L. Langlois, was born and educated in Nova Scotia, graduating in Arts from Acadia University. He was associate editor and book review editor of the Montreal Gazette 1943-1945, and since that time he has been a radio commentator for the C.B.C. and has attended many important international conferences and assignments all over the world, the latest being in Egypt the past summer. Consequently Mr. Fraser has at his disposal a wealth of material in the political things of the world at large, as well as political facts concerning that of Canada.

Continuing his remarks, Mr. Fraser stated that this attitude toward the press was true also in partisan bias as it works for the Conservatives in Toronto; for the Social Credits in Edmonton; the CCF in Regina — the bias favors any government doing a reasonably competent job. Information is obtained from friends who are doing the work; often from civil servants; and sometimes politicians. The latter are inclined to criticize it. But there is the tendency, which, at times, is the growing attempt all the time, to see the Government defeated, because, in the political mind, it is tired of the smooth complacent faces on the treasury benches. We are like the ancient Athenians who ostracised and exiled a distinguished man. We simply were tired of hearing him called "Aristides the Just."

Another reason why these writers yearn for the government's defeat is because their own politics are becoming too-permanently-established, which is an unhealthy condition, because the opposition side is too weak, which criticism does not apply exclusively to any one party but to the entire opposition throughout Canada, and three of the four major parties among them. But the greatest weakness is most serious in Ottawa.

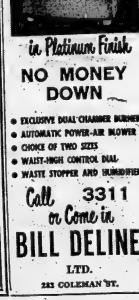
National Affairs Complex

National affairs here are most complex, and are becoming more so. They need to be handled by men of experience and understanding, thoroughly scrutinized with care. It is a matter of national concern that opposition on Ottawa is unable to carry out its two-fold essential functions; to provide an effective alternative to the government in power; and effective criticism and scrutiny of what that government is doing.

The opposition cannot do a good job because it has been out too long, and they will be out long because they can't do a good job. Factors must be found by which to break this vicious circle. The three things needed are: loss of responsibility, and loyalty. The leader must be remedied; also the loose conglomeration of self-appointed statesmen who think their opinions on party strategy are as good as that of the leader. An army can't fight if each corporal thinks he knows better than the general—not even if the corporals are right—which leads to the second effect, distrust of own party's policy. There must be an urge to get into step if ever an office is obtained.

No Effective Leadership

"Repetition of defeat tends to bring up those of the Old School who cry 'down-with-the-life-boat-men' and back to old principles, to the good old ways of the good old days, which forms a bloc of men, described by Adlai Stevenson as the 'men who had to be dragged kicking and screaming into the 20th century.' These two schools mill about without effective leadership, which causes Diefenbaker to complain that examples given were: Lapalme, Liberal leader in Quebec, said that Quebec was needed in Ottawa, for which the Prime Minister refaudited him, and Mrs. Nef for discovery by the C.C.F. of the Liberal device for removing double taxation, which made it possible for a man to have nearly $10,000 income per year and not pay an income tax.



"The position has nothing to offer but the hard, thankless, illpaid life of a private member, an example of which is that of Gordon Graydon who after 18 years of service as leadership, passing up $ good income, ends with nothing but the small amount of pension his poor health enabled him to get."

Suggested Cures

The cures: to increase the pay of personnel members; get more help in the opposition side, having rank and salary of the parliamentary assistants and provide senior men with a paid group of secretaries paid by state and protected by civil service; have limited time in debate, which will create a shortage of time possessed by the opposition, and help to produce an incentive in disciplins. "Easier to keep policy consistent if less buckshot fired; the latter would help the opposition to do an effective job. Party morale would also benefit."

Mrs. L. Langlois tendered, on behalf of the club, appreciative thanks to the speaker for a most enlightening discourse on Canada's politics.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

BABY MUGS — When a brand new baby comes into the house, everybody in the family instantly becomes concerned about who's giving the dear little new born babe his silver mug. Nobody seems to want to be the second or third giver of a silver mug. Way back somewhere there's the idea that a baby should have only one silver drinking cup . . . and yet how many mothers go frantic with only one mug, often having to stop and rinse it out, or to hunt for it if it has become mixed with the other dishes.

Truth of the matter is, a moth-er can use three silver mugs for her baby very easily. The mug saves so much trouble when feeding milk, even for the three-year-old's porridge.

All you do is set the silver mug containing milk in a pan of hot water and let it stand a few minutes. There is none of this heating milk in a saucepan and running the danger of burning it or having to wash the pan out afterward.

The old fashioned silver mug is just about the most useful tool ever invented, next to the diaper, for babies and for children up to the age of five years. People who set their silver mugs idly by in the back of the china cabinet to turn black, know nothing of their usefulness. When used as it was intended, a baby's mug never gets dull; no, not even if he has three of 'em.

Real Comforts

These things have been making life much easier and more comfortable the last two weeks. One of these is the realization that stamped envelopes purchased at the Post Office are not only cheaper than those sold in the stores without stamps, but that they save wear and tear on the nerves in that often frustrating hunt to get stamps for immediate posting of the letters.

These envelopes sold at the Post Office are made of good quality paper. Correspondence of about $1.00 for 25 letters, themselves would cost a dollar.

Something which has helped out a lot recently are frozen waffles. These waffles are delicious with maple syrup or ice cream or both.

To prepare, you simply slide the waffles on your toaster for about one minute and they are hot and ready to melt in your mouth. Students and people living in small furnished rooms with grills would find them handy.

The other comforting item has been, of all things, the trial of foam rubber insoles in our walking shoes. You have to try them to believe the difference they make in a day's steps around the house.

Uncle Proximus says if he were asked to coin a new word, he would want it to express the kind of guesswork that goes on in this day and age. Uncle says the word "guestimate" would be especially suitable for the insulation estimate on his house which started out at $200, but ended up at $450 by the time the job was completed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear A Mother-in-Law Be Forbidden To Make Everyone Miserable!

"Should children always be obliged to take care of their folks to the extent of sacrificing their own lives?" asks a woman who has been driven to the verge of desperation by a mother-in-law problem.

If one were to answer such a question categorically, the answer would be definitely, "No". Unfortunately—or fortunately, perhaps—this one question that never can be answered quite so directly and finally. For there are so many variations of the family situation in which an older relative is a large factor that each one has to be analyzed and decided individually.

In the particular case of the woman who wrote the question, my answer to her would be "No" all along the line. For the specific circumstances of the case are such that I can see no reason why the burden of the mother-in-law should be undertaken by any of the family. After you have read the story I would like to know how many of you agree with me.

Here is what the daughter-in-law says:

"My mother-in-law has dropsy and has lost the use of her legs. She won't, however, give up trying to get around, so she constantly falls and gets hurt. As she is a large woman, it is almost impossible to handle her. She requires three injections a week, a salt-free diet and bed baths, and someone must always remember her pills, as she herself forgets what she has taken.

"Wherever she is, she upsets the whole household (both her sons have small children) and makes life miserable for everybody. Not because of her illness, but because of her complaining attitude. This is not the result of her illness, because I don't think she has ever enjoyed anything in her whole life. So far as she is concerned, there is always something wrong. Nobody wants her in their home—neither my husband nor I, her other son, nor either of her sisters. She spent a year with one sister and almost made a nervous wreck of her. She spent two weeks with her other sister, and that sister's husband said if she ever came back he would leave.

"Now this woman has had a slight stroke, and since then has become much worse, with considerable mental confusion. At this point, the family decided she should be in a nursing home—an arrangement quickly terminated before a month was out because of the mother-in-law's complaints that she was neglected and mistreated. At present, her care is divided between the two sons, alternating at two week intervals.

Solves No Problems

This plan, declares the daughter-in-law who wrote me, solves no problems.

"Except when one of her sons is hovering over her and acting concerned about her, which amounts to a few minutes an evening," she says, "my mother-in-law is no happier in our homes than she was in the nursing home, and I say it's not worth our giving up our lives to her. If we were pleasing her, and actually making her happy, I could see some sense in it. Or, if she were a different person and easy to get along with and you could give her loving care, it would be different. But the way she has been, and is, there just isn't any compensation in sacrificing everything for her. For a long time my husband and I have had our meals out of the tins, and I am really a nervous wreck myself. I've lost 20 pounds and have no energy and, at times, even my will to go on. For a while, it even came to the point where I felt my husband and I might as well call it quits.

"My sister-in-law and I say our mother-in-law would be welcome in our home, considering all the care she needs and the turmoil she creates, but our husbands seem to think it would be mean and cold-hearted to put her there. What I want to know is, who is right?"

As I indicated in the beginning, my sympathy is entirely with the daughters-in-law in this family. I heartily agree that if the mother-in-law were another sort of person, or even lovable that caring for her would be its own reward, it would be entirely different. Also, since she is just as happy and disconcerted in her sons' homes as anywhere else, her sons' wives are being victimized to no good purpose.

Moreover, even if one thinks the sons should not really want their mother in their homes, I think that they are afraid of feeling guilty about the mess they are making of the lives of their wives.

Definitely, I would say, this woman should be in a nursing home. This would not mean that her relatives would be washing their hands of her, because they are all, quite evidently, conscientious people who take a large view of their duties. But it would relieve them often and see that she was made as comfortable as possible. In a home like that, I believe, a nursing home is the only sensible and right solution.

Question:

What is the secret of making a meringue on a pie that will cut easily? (not drag along with the knife). (2) I have seen your recipe for chocolate icing . . . I tablespoon butter, 1 cup sifted sugar, 1 egg, 2 squares chocolate melted, 1-4 cup milk, vanilla . . . cover top when cool—fluffy . . . sometimes it is scrumptious . . . other times I have the worst luck. . . would you comment on this, as I am ready to give it up for good.—Mrs. J. G. F.

Answer:

We'll tackle the meringue first.

Perfect Meringue

Have whites at room temperature. Add a pinch of salt for each white. Beat until the foam is relatively fine and forms rounded peaks when the rotary beater is lifted out. Then add 2 tablespoons fine granulated sugar for better still if you can buy it—the corn syrup or cane sugar spoon mixed spices. (I also add fruit coloring.)—K. M.

Answer:

Thanks so much. Now I hope the reader who asked for these sees your recipe. Let me help you sometime.

Question:

. . . I am interested in rye rolls and have saved your recipes, but so far I cannot find rye flour. As you cannot give trade names I hope you will have a minute to answer my question by mail.—Mrs. J. D. H.

Answer:

I have contacted four wholesale grocers. Rye flour is not handled by any of them for the retail outlets. You will have to go to your local flour and feed store to buy it. If they do not keep it on hand they can get it for you. I asked three feed store managers if they handled it and they said "yes".

Question:

. . . I would like to know how to can carrots. I have lots in my garden but have nowhere to store them after frost . . . I do not wish to pickle them, just ordinary diced carrots . . . It is bothbath method I always use. . . I do not know how long to process them or if they need precooking. —Mrs. F. A.

Answer:

You asked me for a personal reply, since I am to be away from my typewriter for four days, I shortened your letter. . . thanks for telling me about your daughter. I have to be discouraging when I can. You cannot can carrots by hot water bath. You must have a pressure cooker. Readers may say "I do it all the time," but it is too risky for me to recommend it in this column. I would very much like to have the opportunity of helping you in some other way.

GOOD MANNERS

Matron Of Honor Wants No Escort In Recessional

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

For my wedding I plan a matron of honor and one bridesmaid. Now my problem. The matron of honor is to be my sister, whose husband is in Korea. Because of this circumstance she doesn't want to have an escort. Will it be correct to have the best man or an usher walk with the bridesmaid?

Joan H.

If, as I judge, you mean the Recessional, you may properly follow the traditional form, and have the matron of honor alone, with the best man and your bridegroom. (In this case, the best man, after the ceremony returns to the vestry at the front of the church.) Then, if there is to be only one usher, he would walk with the bridesmaid. Or if there are to be more ushers, have the matron of honor, alone, follow you and the bridegroom; then the bridesmaid, alone, follow her; and last, the ushers, two by two.

Every Girl Needs A Boy-Friend

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My sister will be 30 years old next month, and, since she has never had a birthday party, I would like to give a surprise birthday party for her. I'd like to invite her closest girl friends, and I know they would have a better time if they were to invite their boy friends. A few of these girls have "steady" boy friends, but most of them join the field, and I wouldn't know what boy they prefer at the moment! What form of invitation would you advise, to include this invitation to the boys also?

Ellen M.

It would be proper, and I think the most practical and direct way, for you to give these invitations verbally or by telephone. In the first place it's most important that you emphasize that the party is to be a "surprise" . . . then it's easy to explain that you'd like to have each girl invite a boy-friend to come with her to the party . . . and also you will know at once the number of guests to provide for. (However a note of invitation is proper, too . . . and in this you give the same information, about the "surprise" party and about the invitations to be "extended" to the men by the girls.)

"Early Bird" Is Expected To Take And Keep Aisle Seat

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I had always taken it for granted that when a wedding guest arrives early at a church wedding, she (or even he) has the right to take and keep the aisle seat. I just don't think it's fair to expect someone who has made a point of arriving early to give up the aisle seat to someone who hasn't made a point of arriving early. However, at two weddings I've attended lately I kept the aisle seat, but rose to let later-arriving guests pass in front of me to the seats farther in the pew. They certainly gave me black looks as if I were being terribly rude. I also noticed that in the case of other guests seated in the aisle seats of pews ahead of me, they too were given black looks for not moving from the aisle seats. Am I right in my point of view, or has the rule changed?—Miss Marie S.

No change in the rule . . . It's still the rule-of-fairness, the idea that "first come, first served" applies to the aisle seat! And you are right that it's unfair for the latecomer to expect the early-bird to give up the aisle seat. (A man guest, while of course he has the right to keep the aisle seat he is given, usually does courteously offer this seat to a woman wedding guest who arrives to be seated in the pew.)

COMPARE THE "FEEL"

COMPARE THE PRICE—
SEE HOW YOU SAVE!

Next to the V-8 trend, it's the outstanding motoring development of the year! It's Power Steering* . . . in demand everywhere because it makes parking a "breeze"—helps take the hazard out of blowouts and rutted roads—supplies the steering "muscles" while you just guide the car.

And again Ford of Canada leads in meeting Canadian demands—with the newest and finest Power Steering system—now available on all Ford and Meteor, as well as Mercury, Monarch and Lincoln models. Model for model, price class for price class, IT COSTS YOU LESS THAN ON ANY OTHER CAR!

And price is not the only difference in your favour! Here's why: Ford of Canada Power Steering has a more natural "feel" than other, earlier systems. You don't have to change your driving habits. You will feel completely at ease from the moment you take the wheel, because this advanced Ford-engineered Power Steering is the very latest "Linkage Type" design that not only supplies up to 75% of the effort needed to turn the wheels—but at all times preserves the vital "feel of the road" that gives you complete driving control and safety. When parking, you can easily turn the wheel with one finger, even while the car is standing still! If you go off the pavement onto a rough, rutted road or a soft shoulder, automatic "muscles" keep you on a steady course. And should the system ever lose its power (that's unlikely!) the standard steering will operate just as usual.

First—and still unmatched—with V-8 power in the lowest price field . . . outstanding in driving ease with your choice of Automatic Drive*, Overdrive* or Synchro-Silent standard shift in any model . . . and now first again with the newest and finest Power Steering at the lowest price . . . it's no wonder today's Ford of Canada cars lead as First in Value! THE FINAL ACT!

Don Lee, Ontario Amateur Softball Association convener in this neck of the woods, emptied his eyes from the family television set long enough yesterday to impart the information that the Belleville District Softball League will ring down the curtain on the official season on Friday, Oct. 16th.

The estimable Donald, slung his eyes so rapidly from the screen to this much less important sight, that he gave us the impression he was watching a professional tennis match.

In fact at the end of the fifth inning he wondered where the second TV came from and how it got there. He was seeing the game from each eye.

Between pitches and the moans of the Flatbush Faithful after the Mantle-murdered sixth, he came forth with, "The annual banquet of the league will be held in the Moose Hall on Friday, October 16th."

He passed for station identification, granted a basket of ginger ale and soda water, spiked with a dash of "fin" and went on to say that "Glen other than Frank Feaver, secretary of the OASA, will be here in the role of guest speaker."

Here "Uncle Donald" has made a tee strike. The honorable Frank, despite his yen for a pigskin-punting organization calls the Tiger Cats from his home town, Hamilton, knows more about softball, and what makes it click than Einstein knows about relativity (whatever that is.)

Add to this an outstanding personality, one that can be extremely forceful when it comes to hanging down decisions pertaining to his beloved OASA, a witty after-dinner oratorical ability and the fact that he is an all-round good fella, and you've got Frank Feaver.

It looks like a gala evening all around. In all likelihood another sportsman, one who is very much interested in softball and with an extra soft spot in his heart for this city, will be on hand. He is Warden Dick Allan, of Kingston Penitentiary, who generously donated a handsome trophy recently for the champions of the Penitentiary Annual Softball Congress. Dick, if he can make the trip, will present his trophy to the victorious Glen Rorx, who won the double a couple of weeks ago from the institution's "Saints" team.

Other trophies and cups to winning teams and individual champions will be presented at the banquet. Team managers and members of the league executive are asked to not only keep the date in mind but be on hand when a meeting is called, Oct. 13th, for the purpose of finalizing plans, etc.

President Cy Barriage, Committee men and members of the executive as well as softball and other fans of the city and district have reason to be proud of softball achievements during the past season.

No less than four Eastern Ontario championship pennants were nailed to the nythical flagstaff of the sensational Pelmi Aame new, in the throes of the southern Ontario intermediate "A" finals; Glen Roy senior "A's"; Northern Electrics and the Bentley TV, Lee Cushman-backed crew of Deseren, which went to the provincial finals, all won the said-ern titles.

DON'T MISS THIS ONE!

Softball fans bereabouts should not pass up the opportunity to see some of the best hurling in Ontario this afternoon when the Walkerton club crosses swords with Mike Whalen's Point Anne crew at the city park starting at four o'clock.

Erk, Walkerton flinger, who struck out 18 Painters in that 4-0 defeat in the Bruce County town Thursday night, is rated one of the classiest softball hurlers in the province. His blanket job almost leaves a ball of mould on the pitchers'mounds, and he has a record that few can equal over the season's play.

Coach Whalen will likely use Pat Marcelo on the mound in an effort to square the series and the result should be one of the finest baseball duels seen in this area for a month. Erk has been, and can be beaten, and the Whalen crew, recalling what happened in the Oakridge series, are confident they can make history itself and force the best-of-three series to the limit. After all it will be Walkerton's turn to make the 230-mile safari.

Maracle, dusky hurler of the Pointers, has come up with some near sensational performances this season, and has made himself a new lease of hurling life at the beginning and his work on the mound along with that of Bobby Hunter has been one of the main reasons why the Ox Pointers hoist their present enviable position. The game should be a thriller.

BEST OF LUCK!

Wellington's gallant little team of baseball bantams face the supreme test this afternoon in Brantford where they meet the Kingsville youngsters in a sudden-death game for the Ontario baseball Association bantam championship. The Sage Dukeiets, under the managerial supervision of Jack Colpitt, and the coaching genius of Johnny Mowatt, have come a long way since they were organized last year and have swept aside all district and eastern Ontario opposition.

The youngsters were given a fine send-off this morning by the people of Wellington. If the kiddies come home with the titular bacon it will be the first minor baseball championship to come to Prince Edward County. More power to 'em!

GOOD DEED!

"Speed" Weller, long-time-no-see pal, dropped in the other day in a reminiscing mood. Recalled the days of long ago and so on. Chimed over World Series epics of long ago, not forgetting the old days in this district when "Speed" took an active part in sports. He is now associated with Casing's Brewery (remember McGeiach) and tells us that his company has made a generous donation to the Belleville General Hospital Building Fund. The story appears on another page. We are deviating from the sports angle a trifle, but we realize the hospital problem here is a serious one. And this donation from the Carlings' people is but another fine gesture of their tangible interest taken in not only sports but other community projects.

Dodger Ace Sets New Record In Striking Out 14 Yankees; Mantle, Collins Fan 4 Times

By GAYLE TALBOT

BROOKLYN (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers are back in the world series on the strength of one of the greatest pitching performances in the history of tie classic and a home run right out of the story book.

When Carl Erskine struck out 14 New York Yankees in achieving his brilliant 3-2 victory, Friday, he broke a record which had stood for 24 years and set a standard which might well exist much longer than that. The four-time world champions hit only one really hard ball off the youthful Brooklyn ace, even though they chipped him for six singles.

Mantle is particular looking like a beginner.

The hardest ball hit by the American Leaguers all afternoon was Billy Martin's long fly in the sixth inning which Carl Furillo hauled down with a leaping one-handed catch in deep right centre. Only one other put-out was made by a Dodger outfielder, a short pop by Gil McDougald that Jackie Robinson raced in to stare in the third frame.

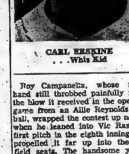
None of the three straight singles which gave the so called Bombers their first run in the fifth inning amounted to much.

Grim, Vic Raschi didn't lack a whole lot of matching Erskine, except in the matter of strikeouts. The veteran righthander went the all-the-way, and except for Robinson, the Dodgers were kept well in his until Campanella's big clout.

There was much grumbling among Brooklyn supporters, the tenor being that the Yankees were plain lucky and that it didn't seem to be much use trying to beat them.

Then Campanella happened, and you just should have watched Erskine pitch that last inning out of appreciation. When the last batter, Collins, rolled a ball toward the mound, the collar ad kid grabbed it and lofted it to first base with long enough to toss to first for the put-out. He ran over and tagged it himself.

CARL ERSKINE
..Whiz Kid



Roy Campanella, whose right hand still throbbed painfully from the blow it received in the opening game from an Allie Reynolds fast ball, wrapped the contest up neatly when he leaned into Vic Raschi's first pitch in the eighth inning and propelled it far up into the left field seats. The handsome young curver and the burly backstop are co-heroes today in this baseball hotbed.

Great Comeback

It was a great comeback for both. Erskine was the outstanding goat of the opening game with his lack of control cost him four runs in the first inning. He made up for that, and the Yanks will take no pleasure at the thought of seeing him again.

For two games, ever since Reynolds hit his batter in the first inning up in the opener, Campy had been virtually a dead loss with the stick. He didn't look he would even attempt to play Friday, and there was some surprise that he did. If he hadn't, they might have been out there yet.

While not yet out of the woods, the National League champions have at least crawled from the depths of a four-straight blanking in the best-of-seven series. They need another young righthander, Billy Loes, out to duel with Whitey Ford today, but Loes is far short of being as Erskine.

ROY CAMPANELLA
..Wham Boy

The Yankees remain favorites to win the series nevertheless.

Erskine really had it. His fast ball had a lot of darting and his sweeping curve had the Yanks tied in knots. When he struck out two successive batters in the ninth to 'ie and better the previous record of 13 whiffs set by Howard Ehmke of Philadelphia Athletics in the 1929 series against Chicago Cubs, the crowd was riding on his every pitch, pulling for him to win, eve his goal.

Don Bollweg, the 13th victim, didn't even get a piece of the ball in three murderous swings. Veteran Johnny Mize, Erskine's unwilling accomplice in the record-breaker, managed only to foul off one fast ball before he went down cutting at the air.

Perhaps the most futile pair on the field were Joe Collins and Mickey Mantle of the Yanks. Each fanned four successive times,

Leafs Blank Stingless Hornets

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League collected their first victory in three games with Pittsburgh Hornets here when they shut out their American Hockey League farmhands 3-0 Friday night.

Both clubs played scoreless hockey in the first period but Toronto jumped ahead 2-0 in the second on goals by Rudy Migay, first imported by Leafs from the Montreal, and Bob Solinger. Captain Teeder Kennedy salted the game away in the last period when he shot one past Gil Mayer, Pittsburgh netminder, who had taken over from Ed Chadwick midway in the game.

Harry Lumley was in the Toronto nets.

Royals Dunk Kansas City In Series Opener

MONTREAL (CP) — It's first blood to the International League in the little world series, Montreal's Royals walloping Kansas City Blues 10-0 in the opening game of the best-of-seven series Friday night.

Ed Roebuck went all the way for Montreal, allowing the American Association team seven scattered hits, fanning six and giving up only one free pass.

Harry Craft, manager of the Blues, sent four hurlers to the mound—Jack Ferry, Harry Schaefer, Johnny Gray and Charlie Le-Brun—with the starter, righthander Ferry, getting the loss.

Montreal Nelson, sold this week to Cleveland Indians of the American League, Don Bessent and second baseman Roy Hartsfield hit safely twice each for the winners. Hartsfield had three runs batted in.

Woody Smith and Jim Bridges were the only Blues to get more than one hit.

Montreal earned the right to represent the International League when they knocked off the pennant-winning Buffalo Bisons in exactly four straight games.

The Bisons, like the Royals, finished second in their loop, finally won the final playoffs after battling with Toledo Sox for seven games.

REFUSE CASON TRANSFER

CALGARY (CP)—D. R. McLaws, Calgary Stampeders football club president, announced Friday that Saskatchewan Roughriders refused to transfer halfback Jim Cason to the Alberta club. The Stampeders had sought Cason, released by Roughriders Thursday, as a replacement for Johnny Bright, out for the season with a shoulder separation.

Dressing Room Chatter

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (CP)—Carl Erskine set a strikeout record for the world series Friday but he wasn't aware of it when the game was over.

"I never once knew I was going for the record," said the slim righthander as Brooklyn Dodgers' dressing room as "Dem Bums" celebrated the 3-2 victory over New York Yankees which put them back into the thick of the fight in the golden anniversary classic.

"I just knew we had our backs to the wall and I was out there pumping 'em in.

"Sure it was a big thrill when they told me afterwards I had broken the strikeout record, but I didn't know it at the time. Ehmke struck out 13.

Erskine let off steam at his strikeouts at the expense of two of the Yankees' most potent hitters—first baseman Joe Collins and centre-fielder Mickey Mantle, who won Thursday's game with a home run. He whiffed each four times.

"I was getting my fast balls almost entirely for the first four or five innings," Carl explained. "Then I felt myself getting tired and so I started going for my curve more. It has been working. I was throwing the curve more than the fast ball."

The starting pitcher said the victory and the strikeout record meant more because it was his second game against Chicago Cubs in 1952.

"We were down to rock bottom," he said. "I knew if we didn't win this one we were dead. I think I was more determined in this game than in any game I ever pitched."

Carl's 14th and record strikeout came in the ninth inning at the expense of Mickey Mize, one of the most feared pitch hitters in baseball. It was the biggest of his four pitched balls.

Erskine's good friendly banter rang through the Brooklyn dressing room after he had shown the way.

Beliveau Steals Limelight From All-Star Hockey Tilt

By W. B. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The seventh annual National Hockey League all-star game goes on tonight in the historic Montreal Forum regardless of the weirdness of, or lukewarm public sensation.

The Montreal Canadiens and the league's 21-year regression will be there, and most likely so will the 22-year-old Jean Beliveau, whose Canadiens have tried, at three years to laying into the big league hall. It's possible, of course, that big Jean Guy decide to sit this one out. He'll have to play in plenty soon.

The big-gangling who soared in hockey heights in Quebec and cut a flutter with Canadiens' exhibition game, last-lease deal last season, swirled out with the Montreal Nationals as usual Friday. Everything seemed in readiness for the signing. Photographers and newspaper men were camped outside manager-director Frank Selke's office when Beliveau marched in.

He came out 30 minutes later. No contract had been signed. Another conference was scheduled for 9 a.m. today.

There were reports that Beliveau wants his brother-in-law to be present when, and if, he goes through with the contract-signing. A French-speaking member of the Forum staff was present at Friday's conference.

The complete all-star squad was on hand Friday night for the annual dinner that precedes the game. All players of both squads were presented with leather shaving kits by the league. Canadiens fared better, with additional gifts from the club and from Montreal business firms.

Proceeds of the game, by which always-needy society, which already has around $90,000 net from six all-star games and has asset's of close to $1,000,000.

Coach Dick Irvin of the Montreal Stanley Cup champions will direct his Canadiens tonight. Lynn Patrick, coach of the runner-up Boston Bruins, will handle the all-star aggregation.

Patrick said last with such stars as Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings. He will use the best all-star selection ever gathered to face the cup champions. Other all-star players come from New York Rangers, Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston and Chicago Black Hawks.

United States Ryder Cup Golfers Take 3-1 Lead Over British Team

By STERLING SLAPPEY

VIRGINIA WATER, Eng. (AP)—United States Ryder Cup golf forces, spearheaded by Captain Jack Burke and Sam Snead, won three of four Scotch foursomes matches on the first day of the team-manding 3-1 lead over the British team in the first day of the international series.

The U.S. players need only to split tomorrow's eight singles matches to clinch the cup, and the way they toured the lush, 6,700-yard Wentworth course Friday victory seems in the bag.

Britain's only victory came from Ireland as Harry Bradshaw and Fred Daly first four Gerry Middlecott of Memphis, Tenn., and Walter Burkemo of Detroit in 36 holes. Daly was the last of the foursomes to come in, after the U.S. had notched up 3 of 4 singles tags.

Not in 23 years of this war-interrupted series has Britain's won the cup. Last time was a 6-6 decision in 1933, with one match halved.

After the American team captain and Snead set out with an 8 and 7 drubbing of Scotsmen Eric Brown and John Panton, Jack Burke of Houston, Tex., and Ted Kroll of Trenton, N.J., teamed to turned back Jimmy Adams and Bernard Hunt, 7 and 5.

Then Porky Oliver of Palm Springs, Calif., and Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., finally turned the trick over Harry Weetman and Peter Alliss, 2 and 1.

The key match, but not the best, was the Oliver-Douglas victory. Oliver sank a seven-putt on the 35th to close the match with a birdie. The American team had finished the morning round one up.

Middlecoff and Burkemo threw down to Daly and Bradshaw at the halfway mark, but won the 18th hole to cut the Irishmen's lead to one up. It was a battle from then on out, with the five remaining holes halved as Daly sank the final putt to win the match.

St. Mike's Trim Biltmores 6-2

GUELPH (CP) — St. Michael's College of Toronto Friday night outclassed Guelph Biltmores to defeat their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A rivals 6-2 in an exhibition game.

Jack Caffery, who starred with the Irish last year, passed St. Michael's with two goals. Rookie Brian Anderson notched a single and assisted on two. Other marksmen were Ken Eisenman, Marv Reaume and Paul Knox, all with the Majors last year.

John Gillis and Harry Scott tallied for the Biltmores.

Series Notes

BROOKLYN (AP)—Rachel Robinson hugged her husband as he left home for Ebbets Field Friday and gave him three resounding kisses.

"I'm giving you one kiss for each hit. I just know you're going to get three today," were her parting words.

Jackie Robinson smiled as he recalled these words, because he had fulfilled his wife's prediction. His double and two singles helped Brooklyn defeat New York Yankees 3-2 in the third world series game.

Casey Stengal figures some of his boys went fishing during Friday's sunny afternoon. "Yeah, a few of 'em got nervous and went after bad balls when they had two strikes on them," he said.

The Yankees, who haven't made an error in their three games of the series, have a priority on the record of committing the fewest errors in both four-game and five-game series. The 1939 and 1942 Yankees had the mark for the least errors in a four-game series, two. In 1939 the Yanks went through a five-game series without an error.

While Carl Erskine was bettering the world series single-game strikeout record in Friday's game, his catcher, Roy Campanella, tied another. Roy was credited with his put-outs, twice achieved by Mickey Cochrane of Philadelphia A's.

There have been only two double plays in the series, thus far, and Brooklyn's Carl Furillo has rapped into the twin-killings both times.

Ezinicki Tops In Tourney

HYANNIS, Mass. (CP)—Hockey player Bill Ezinicki, who doubles as golf pro at the Lynnfield, Mass., Colonial Country Club, is in a tie for low gross best-ball honors in the Cape Cod Indian Summer professional golf tournament.

Ezinicki and amateur Mal Demarais of Portsmouth, N.H., came through with a 66 Friday for a deadlock with two other pairs. The third round is to be played today, and the 18-hole wind-up is Sunday.

The former Winnipeg puckchaser and Demarais paced the 40 teams in Thursday's opening round.

Remember When

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Cincinnati Reds evened their world series struggle with Detroit Tigers at one game apiece with a 5-3 victory over the American Leaguers 13 years ago today. The Reds went on to win that 1940 world series by four games to three. Their only other world series championship was over Chicago in 1919.

Sport in Brief

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Friday night that the six all-star games played so far have contributed more than $80,000 by the league's pension society.

Campbell spoke at a dinner preceding the NHL seventh all-star game. Montreal Canadians, Stanley Cup champions, meet the combined first and second all-star teams in the annual hockey spectacle tonight.

The NHL president said that by then the pension society's receipts from the annual classic will exceed $100,000.

Players of the cup-winning Canadiens and the all-star teams all headed the dinner. Each received a leather shaving kit-case from the league.

From their club, the Montreal players received silver rose bowls, all engraved individually with their names, and commemorative stickpins. They also received gifts from business firms.

The Montreal players presented Canadiens' managing director Frank Selke with a painting—a scene from his old farm.

Fish Habits of Fish Unpredictable

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
Colonel Sportsman, Author and Creator of Selmar Tables)

The inconsistencies of game fish often are puzzling. Why they display such marked preferences in food selection now and then is something which has caused much wrangling with regrettably few sound conclusions.

For example, consider trout in a fly stream. We know from our boyhood years that a nice, fat angleworm is the most desirable trout meat any trout. Yet every now and then trout will refuse to have anything to do with angleworms and yet go all out for some other variety of bait.

When my son was a little fellow, he too made it a day for fishing that we used to go trout fishing. Part of our equipment, naturally, was a can of worms.

On the particular day I have in mind, we were fishing a private stream which I knew had been liberally stocked with trout. Try as we would, we could not catch a single fish.

Wanted A Change

At last, in desperation, I turned over a few stones in the shore and found one small belgramite (the name of the fish-bait) which I impaled on the hook and was taken at once by a trout. We managed to catch a few bait and use it again, taking two more trout.

Then we took belgramites and not able to find any more, we went back to worms—but the trout were the end of it. Those trout simply were not interested in worms and at the end of the day we had three trout, those taken on our one bait and only belgramite.

The following year we fished the same stream and this time, naturally, we took with us a few good-choice belgramites. These we placed on the hook with loving care and we fished carefully. Not a single trout could we interest.

Finally, just to see what would happen, we went to the barnyard and dug some worms. Result —those contrary trout took worms as fast as we could feed them to them. Why I'm sure I don't know, but that is what happened.

Belgramites, nine miles from here flows the North Branch of the Au-Sable River. This is a famous stream for smallmouth bass. From its generous waters I have taken a fine basket of smallmouths.

Never do I recall cleaning a North Branch bass but that I have not found in its stomach at least a part of a fresh-water crayfish. Yet any North Branch fisherman will tell you that this item of regular diet in the bass is about the least effective bait that a man can use. And here is another thing about that stream—day in and day out throughout the summer months the little stone catfish is ideal bait. Bars, both large and small, will take the little "stone cats" when they will look at nothing else. Even belgramites, normally ideal bait for smallmouth, will not produce bass in the same numbers the stone cat will.

Food Changes With Weather

In the fall, when we have frosty nights during late September and early part of October, the little stone cat seem to lose some of their appeal. Then the bass want minnows—the smaller the better. And in seines in the riffles of the small tributary streams.

There are two smaller bass rivers near my home and bass in both I have fished and on since I was a boy. As might be expected, I have learned a lot of the dietary preferences of the bass which live in these streams.

In the larger of these two streams, the rifles are fairly alive with stone catfish. Yet, during the spring and summer months you simply are wasting your time to use these as bait. Oh, once in a while you will take bass with them, but usually belgramites will only produce stone cats five to one.

When the fall months roll around, then matters reverse themselves. Belgramites lose their effectiveness and minnows are the indicated bait. That's right — minnows in the fall and belgramites bait in the summer are tops in the bill.

We have done not a little conjecturing over this variation in taste on the part of the bass. In the fall the fish are preparing for the winter months when they go into either total or partial hibernation. Possibly instinct warns them that they will need to build up their fat content to see them through the winter and that minnows will achieve that end for them better than other kinds of bait. That is a guess on my part but there seems to be no reason that we can find.

Up at Grand Lake Stream, Maine, some years ago there were several members of our party who knew nothing about artificial lures and were confirmed bait fishermen. The guides had provided for them a variety of baits—frogs, crayfish, minnows, and angleworms.

Worms Produced Results

On the day I have in mind, the fishing was terrible. When we met at a chosen island for lunch there was not a fish in the entire party. Frogs, crayfish and minnows had been ignored by the bass, completely. For some reason, nobody had thought to offer them some of the angleworms.

While the guides were cooking lunch, I took the angleworms and paddled out to a rocky bar about a hundred yards offshore. In about half an hour I was back with six husky bass which promptly were included in the luncheon party.

I suppose that if we knew all the answers to the problems we encounter in our fishing, then the sport would lose much of its charm. Just the same, I wish I knew why the fish do certain things at certain times. We, in thinking creatures, are supposed to know more than fish do. Sometimes I wonder.

WIN HEAT

MARKHAM (CP) — Two Petersborough-owned horses were winners in the 220 class of Friday's trotting program at the Markham fair. They were Peter C., owned by C. Hodgins, and Miss Volo, owned by Stan Blewett. Miss Highlight, owned by B. O. Sammon of Port Hope, also was a winner.

Dutchies Test New Blood

KITCHENER (CP)—Several new faces have appeared at the training camp of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series champions who won the Allan Cup last year. Many veterans also are on hand.

Bowie Lee has signed with Art Horst on one defence line as the Dutchmen went through a first session here Friday night. Harry Pavlka and Jim Olinski paired for another defence line.

Johnny Murdoch, former Smiths Falls centre, was working on a forward line with Doug Verity and Gerry Theberge. Theberge has been in the Quebec League for the last couple of years.

Short Cut from 'Goat' to 'Hero' Ask Erskine, Robinson, Mantle

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BROOKLYN (AP)—It's often a short hop from the role of "hero" to that of "goat"—and vice versa—in the world series.

Ask Carl Erskine:

On Wednesday, Carl, given up three walks, two hits and four runs by the Yankees in the first inning and he's not permitted to start another. He's sent to the showers where later he detectedly remarks: "I was wild. I couldn't control my fast ball or my curves."

On Friday, Erskine is the toast of the diamond world, whose over the Yankees 3-2 on a masterful pitching performance and new all-time strikeout king of the world series with 14. "My overhand curves were breaking in there pretty good," he said.

Ask Mickey Mantle:

On Thursday, Mickey, the golden boy of the gold-plated Yankees, smashes a two-run homer in the eighth to give New York its second straight victory, 5-2. "It's the damndest thing," says the gritchattering, taciturn Mantle of the 165-pound switch-hitting fence-busting wonder from Commerce, Okla. "I just stuffed it, that's all," says Mantle.

In the third game on Friday, Jackie Robinson's 10th hit in four trips, including a double, scores on a Gil Hodges' bunt and makes baseball catch in shortstop territory when the sun blinds Reeves Stevens. "Only a little better," he commented.

Ask Jo Collins:

On Wednesday, the Yankees first baseman hits a two-run homer in the inning which breaks a 5-5 tie and opens the way to a 9-5 New York victory. It's the 12th series of attention in the winning dressing room.

On Friday, Collins strikes out in four times in succession against Erskine and dribbles out weakly to the pitcher in the ninth with the tieing run on base. A loneman figure in the locker room.

Ask Gil Hodges:

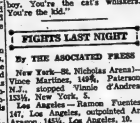
The No. 1 "goat" of the 1953 world series, hitless in 22 appearances, a pathetic, frustrated figure who keeps mumbling to himself: "Heaven help me, I don't know what's the matter."

Now 1953, six hits in ten times at bat for Hodges, batting .600 and sharing the leading hitter role with Yankees' Bill Martin. "Feel great," says Gil. "I'm loose as a goose."

Ask Charlie Dressen, the Brooklyn manager:

"Fire the Bum!" yell the citizens of Pittsburgh after the Dodgers drop the first two games. "You can put his brains in a thimble."

The Dodgers win, 5-2, at Ebbets Field and the tone changes.



"I've got 'em now, Chuck, old boy. You're the cat's whiskers. You're the kid."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, OCT. 4, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — The Sun beneficently aspected here ors actively helpful deeds, accomplishment in outdoor-type pursuits. Mars, in less friendly aspect, stresses the need for kindliness, charity, prayer.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — "Where there's a will there's a way" sums up this day's needs—will in the right direction, of course. Enjoy children's interests; they exhilarate the soul.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Time-honored methods usually have stalled their reputation through constant tests. Don't overthrow any system or method that has worth. Intend use is work to continue improvements.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Avoid running counter to interests beneficial to large groups, but neither forsake principles because you find yourself in the minority. Minorities are often right. Pray, judge carefully.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — You have an innate feeling for laws and ordinances and, living true to your best self, will wish just rules of your own volition. Therein lies a kind: Don't permit others to persuade you wrongly.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Today you can be especially effective, persuasive, and may be called upon to make or assist in making important decisions. Be circumspect, compare for errors, and pray for light.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Give a little, take a little. Through co-operation and assistance come improvement and greater accomplishments. Show Libra's gift for fun within sane bounds, for instinctive wisdom in healthy living.

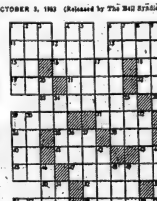
October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Change may not always be for the better but surely the healthiest minds agree that change is occasionally good for us all. Make yours on the highest level.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Innately you are a conscientious, straight-shooting, high-minded person. Live up to that recipe and you will not only make gains in your life's work but will aid others no end.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Are you composed? Do you become ruffled when others oppose or slow up your progress? Are you willing to stop and listen to slower thinkers occasionally? These are good tests.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Much activity during a work-week often stifles our minds, prevents our thinking about the little things that are crowded out but which make for real living. Reflect at church.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—There always seems to be pressure upon us these days. We must make time for those "best things in life" that are free—and thus often overlooked.



YOU BORN TODAY have many talents; are generally capable, like a good time, will work hard for your living and family and like to enjoy your means. You can be combative and sometimes lose temper too quickly. Curb these tendencies to a fine, full life. You are both artistic and practical; can lead others, and will strike out against great odds if you believe your course to be right. You could ably head charity or labor organization; because you believe in fair play; could be stimulating actor (actress). Birthdate of: Rutherford B. Hayes, 19th U.S. President; Michael J., Pupin, physicist.

Insurance Practices To Be Studied

OTTAWA (CP)—A detailed study of insurance company practices and their impact on automobile insurance costs has been launched by committee investigator, T. D. MacDonald, it was learned Friday.

The inquiry was opened following complaints that some of the practices may have led to increasing costs. Mr. MacDonald, however has made clear to the companies that they are not suspected of contravening federal anti-combines laws.

As director of investigations and research under the Combines Investigation Act, he has power to open general inquiries into any industry—whether for the purpose of prosecuting a combine or not.

Particularly, Mr. MacDonald has shown interest in board and non-board insurance companies.

A board company participates in an association which operates rating bureaux to suggest certain insurance rates. The suggested rates may or may not be followed by companies.

(Non-board companies may have some other arrangement for preparing suggested rates.)

He has asked companies for information on a number of other phases of operations, including agent commissions and their impact on premium costs, premium and commission rates, contracts between companies and agents, data on company affiliations with associations and type of insurance offered.

Six Sentenced To Jail Terms For Disorders

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Six men Friday were sentenced to jail terms ranging from seven to 19 days to bring to nine the number sentenced in connection with disorders which centered here during the mid-summer truckers' strike in western Ontario.

Charges against six others were dismissed.

During the heated sessions defence counsel Morris Kamin charged the court was not "giving us a fair trial" and demanded he withdraw from the case.

Mr. Kamin said the convictions and sentences will be appealed.

During the hearing he jumped to his feet and shouted:

"This is no joke—it's serious. We are entitled to a hearing. We have no rubber stamp conviction."

Magistrate A. W. McMillan said the phrase "rubber stamp conviction" reflected on him and warned the lawyer he would "have to deal with you" if the phrase was used once more.

Sentenced were:

Joseph Petryna, 36, to 75 days for causing a motor vehicle to be taken without the owner's consent and for obstructing police.

Stanley Turner, 29, 30 days for an offence similar to the first one against Petryna.

George Renaud, 29, sentenced to seven days; Steve Vrabel, 26, seven days, and George Woods, 37, 10 days, all for impeding traffic.

Lawrence Parent, 42, president of the Bus Drivers' Union (AFL), 19 days each for obstructing police and disorderly conduct, to run concurrently.

The charges against Petryna and Turner were laid after they forced non-striking truck drivers to move their vehicles to strike-bound express company yards and leave them there.

Only An Excuse Says Grower

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A tomato grower at nearby Sandwich West charged Friday that a food processing plant at Amherstburg used the invasion of some crops by corn earworms as an "excuse" for not accepting late tomatoes.

Bernard Hart said he was forced to dump 364 bushels of red tomatoes because all plants in Essex county decided to stop processing tomatoes a week earlier than expected.

Farm and plant spokesmen agreed Thursday that worms were not the only reason the canning operations were stopped. A plant spokesman said the late tomatoes were of poor quality.

Face Serious Charge

WOODSTOCK, Ont. (CP) — Facing a charges of attempted murder and two charges of breaking and entering with intent, Henry Elliott, 34, of Lockmow, was remanded in custody one week when he appeared Friday before magistrate K. G. Groom in county court.

Robert Longchamp, 17, of London, was also remanded one week on two charges of breaking and entering with intent.

The pair was charged following break-ins at the Oxford Farmers' Co-Operative branch and the North Embro feed mill early last Saturday, and a shooting affray involving two Embro district farmers.

Zinc Deficiency Affects Plant Growth

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Upon the top six inches of soil the people of the earth depend for sustenance. Scientists go on searching and testing to conserve and build up that soil, to learn its content and its need. Some of the trace elements have long been the unknown, but vital factor in plant health. Zinc is one of these.

It, like the other so-called minor plant food elements is required in very small quantities by plants. It was not until 1914 that zinc was recognized as being necessary for the normal growth of green plants. Plants vary a great deal in sensitivity to supplies of zinc in the soil. Citrus is especially sensitive to zinc deficiency, but deficiency symptoms of plants growing under normal field culture have also been observed in corn, peaches, apples and alfalfa. The first actual zinc deficiency ever reported was located accidentally. Workers who were searching for the cause of "rosette" on pecans found that iron sulphate that had been placed in zinc galvanized buckets corrected "rosette", while iron sulphate not so stored had no effect.

Acids Chemical Reaction

Zinc appears to be necessary in plants for maintenance of complete chemical reaction. "auxins" formed within the plant, which in turn regulated the growth of the plants. Just what this relationship is, scientist have been unable to discover, and zinc takes its place with the other minor elements as a rather mysterious, though highly necessary catalyst, in actuating the growth processes. This element is the latest of the trace elements shown to have a definite functions in animals. It has to do with removal of waste carbon dioxide from the blood stream.

The availability of soil supplies of zinc to plants is affected by the soil reaction and by applications of phosphates. Generally speaking the higher the alkalinity of a soil, the lower the zinc content is of plants growing in that soil. Applied phosphate combines chemically with zinc in the soil, tying it up in forms that the plant roots can use.

Zinc deficiencies in gardens are uncommon. The amounts supplied in applications of complete plant food are ample to prevent shortage of this element in the garden.

Many lawns had bad infestations of crab grass this year. This is the time to repair the damage. Rake out the crab-grass, aerate the soil to a depth of 2", sow some good grass seed, and give the whole lawn a feeding of plant food, and water it in well.

From a plentiful supply of strawberries next spring cultivate and fertilize your strawberry bed now. Thin the plants to provide six inches between each plant rows. Apply four to six pounds of complete plant food per 100 feet of row. Make application as a top dressing when the leaves are dry.

There is still time to transplant and divide perennials. These include bleeding hearts, phlox, poppies, pyrethrum, Shasta daisies, day lilies and delphinium.

Both lawn and lawn weeds grow vigorously this month after a few fall rains. Take this opportunity to eliminate the broad-leafed weeds from the lawn with End-O-Weed.

If the frost has not finished off your dahlias give them another feeding of complete plant food. Covering the plants with newspapers when frosts are threatened will save them to bloom for several weeks longer. Chrysanthemums, too, need an application of plant food to produce their best blooms. Shrivelled yellow leaves on the lower part of the plant shows that they have run out of plant food.

Poland Loses to Turkey In Vote for UN Council Seat

Talks With PoW May Commence Within Week

By GEORGE McARTHUR

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The neutral nations repatriation board spoke moved today to get under way the long-delayed explanations to some 22,000 anti-red war prisoners as to why they should return home.

The commission asked the Allied command to start work on both temporary and permanent facilities where Red representatives will try to talk the 7,900 Koreans and 14,700 Chinese into returning to communism.

The interviews could begin within a week at the temporary site.

The truce agreement called for the interviews to begin by Sept. 26 and end 90 days later—Dec. 24. However, the deadline was kept in a flurry of haggling over the interview buildings.

Demand 32 Structures

The Communists have demanded 32 permanent or type structures, which are to be built by the UN command.

They, in turn, are building sites for the Allies to interview 359 Allied PoWs, including 23 Americans and one Briton, who have refused to return home.

The Indian command, in charge of the Indian PoWs of both sides, Monday took over 18 structures built by the Reds for UN interviewers.

U.N. In No Hurry

Although the UN command probably could begin interviews within a week, it apparently is in no hurry. An Allied high officer said explanations probably will not start for two weeks.

Communist correspondent Wilfred Burchett, sometimes an unofficial Red spokesman, told reporters today that the Communists might begin their explanations in a week provided their temporary centres are ready.

Threaten Action

Meanwhile, South Korea's acting foreign minister, Cho Chung Whan, threatened today that his government would order the republic's army "to fight them, if the Indians if they continue to act hostile to us."

She declared Saturday "to drive the irresponsible Indian troops out of Korea by armed force if the repatriation commission and the Indians "do not rectify immediately the evil acts being committed".

Indian troops have killed three PoWs and wounded 10 in camp disturbances.

14 Injured In Car-Truck Crash

TIMMINS (CP)—Fourteen persons were injured, two seriously, in a car-truck collision near Matheson, about 50 miles south of here, Saturday night.

In serious condition in hospital are Isabel Rose, 16, of Timmins, Noel cook, suffering internal injuries and fractures of both collar bones, and Arthur Gerard, 65, of Kenogen, with head injuries and a fractured.

Miss Rose was one of seven passengers coming home from a football game in North Bay. Gerard was in the truck.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP)—Synopsis: — A rapidly moving low pressure area followed by strong and northerly winds is moving across Lake Superior this morning across Lake Superior of Lake Ontario Tuesday morning. Several bears of showers will mark the passage of the disturbance, and the cooler northerly winds will usher in colder weather. This should drop the temperature about 10 degrees. Tuesday promises to be mostly sunny throughout the province.

By STANLEY JOHNSTON

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Turkey beat out Russian-occupied Poland for a seat on the United Nations Security Council today. Victory came on the eighth ballot.

Brazil and New Zealand were elected to two other council vacancies on the first ballot without serious opposition.

On the eighth ballot, Turkey got 40 votes to 19 for Poland.

Balloting on the 60-nation general assembly, which elects councilmembers, began Monday.

Russia has demanded that the UN live up to a 1946 "gentleman's agreement" whereby the eastern European countries — now under Soviet influence — were assured representation. That bloc ran Poland in today's election.

The United States, which claimed the agreement was valid for only one year, backed Turkey. The Philippines, backed up by some Asian-Arab countries, announced its own candidacy.

Violinsky Speaks

Chief Soviet delegate Andrei Violinsky took the floor today to demand that the assembly live up to the agreement. He argued that, and. When he referred to Turkey's candidacy, a ra ra ra ra ra ra ra Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit of India ruled him out of order, but had a hard time getting Violinsky to sit down.

Assembly rules call for no nomination or electioneering speeches.

Brazil got 36 votes and New Zealand 46.

For the other seat, the first ballot showed Turkey 32, Israel 14, Philippines 17, Czechoslovakia 8, Ecuador 5 and Mexico one vote. None had the required two-thirds majority.

Death Sentence On Ex-Premier Is Commuted

CAIRO (AP)—Ex-premier Ibrahim Abdel Hadi came out from the shadow of the gallows after the governing revolutionary council commuted Sunday his death sentence to life imprisonment.

Hadi, premier during the 1948 Palestine war, was executed on Thursday by a special revolutionary court on charges of treason and conspiracy with a foreign power against the security of the state.

Also set free were more than a score of Egyptians arrested on charges that followed the abortive throw of President Mohammed Naguib's regime.

Almost simultaneously, a special military tribunal Sunday acquitted Major Salah Salem, Lt.-Col. Hamdi el Meligui, of similar charges. He was jubilant.

The death sentence of Ahmed Mohamed Awad, an Egyptian army officer, was commuted by British authorities in the Suez canal zone, also was commuted by the revolutionary council to life imprisonment at hard labor. Awad had been convicted immediately after Hadi on similar charges.

Mechanical Heart Costing Only $190 Described to College of Surgeons

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

Associated Press Science Reporter

CHICAGO (AP) — A cut-rate mechanical heart-lung machine was described today to the American College of Surgeons.

It pumps only 10 per cent of the normal flow of blood. But this is considered enough to keep a person safely alive long enough for surgeons to open the heart for "deskling" inside, free of blood, to repair defects in it.

This pump, a common commercial type, has been used successfully for days on dogs, and is adapted to humans, it was reported by Drs. Morley Cohen and C. Walter Lillehei of the University of Minnesota medical school, Minneapolis, in a paper presented for delivery to the college.

Mechanical hearts and heart-lung machines have been used successfully on a few humans, but these machines are costly and complicated.

Another few idea is based on discovery that dogs can be kept alive without harm, for up to 30 minutes with a pump circulating only 10 per cent of their blood.

This presumably is also true for humans. The mechanical heart would have to pump only half a pint to a pint of blood a minute, instead of the 5 pints a minute in the living heart does or present mechanical hearts.

In dog experiments, the main blood vessels of the heart and lungs are clamped off, Dr. Cohen explained. A special plastic tube then passes through these vessels and off about 10 per cent of the blood circulating there.

The little pump pulses this blood into one portion of the vein that collects the refreshed blood from a vein in the lung. Then the pump sends the fresh blood into the artery system of the body.

The again living heart is bypassed.

Still artificial heart succeeded in 90 per cent of 63 dogs. Their hearts could be opened up, without hurry, and surgeons could see defects and repair them.

TWO NAVY FLYERS KILLED IN CRASH AT KENORA

Plane on Way Home From Training Flight

KENORA, Ont (CP)—Stalked by trouble as it headed homeward on a training flight which had taken it across the continent, a navy Avenger aircraft crashed here Sunday just short of completing an emergency landing.

Two of the five men it carried died trapped in the flames which followed the crash. The others scrambled to safety from the overturned wreckage and suffered minor injuries.

Dead are the pilot, Lieut. George Ballodie of Halifax and Toronto, and PO. George Wraith of the Shearwater naval base at Halifax and Koeten of Rotterdam.

The names of members of the party had set out the day before the plane was picked up on the radar screen at civilization on foot. In this group, flown here a short time after the crash, was the man who remained with the plane, were Ralph Hinchcliffe, leading aircraftman of Seigen, Andre Levesque, Montreal, pilot R. J. Mullen of Kenora, and Lt.-Cmdr. Richard Everitt of Montreal.

The party was picked up from a visit to properties of Fenimore Iron Mines, Ltd., Dunnville, which says then they disappeared near the halfway point of their 700-mile trek from Kenora to Robertval.

Makhap Final Search

The men were found on the second day of a final sweep by Sqdn. Ldr. Jack Woods of St. John's, Nfld., piloting a Lancaster from to the RCAF base at Greenwood, N. S.

Woods parachuted food to the men, signalled their position to his flagship Labrador and awaited the arrival of a Canso amphibian, owned by Mont Laurier Airways to which the missing Norseman belonged.

When the Canso arrived here, RCAF personnel, wives, children and friends of the missing men were on hand to greet them. An ambulance was ready but only Levesque used it.

Does Little Dance

Levesque was thin and their hair and beards had grown long but they were cheerful. Dr. Theinmakes a little dance.

The experience apparently didn't instil fear of the northland.

Vanstone put it this way after a meal and a shave: "I still love the northland. This has been a worthwhile experience." He flew home by plane.

Abel said he hasn't given up hope of rescue but he wondered how and when it would come. His greatest fear was that cold weather would cut off the party's supply of berries and other nourishment.

Navigational Error

Abel said a navigation error appeared to have the Noranda party off course. By the time they reached Lake Emmanuel, they had already travelled 40 to get down safely.

Survivors told how they scouted around while awaiting rescue, caught partridge, snared rabbits and caught a few fish before losing their net.

They gathered to talk about their chances and how to get out if rescue failed.

Only two of the party were left here when Mullin and Levesque being in RCAF hospital under observation after they were expected to be fit within a few days.

Seven Men Gaunt But Happy After 37 Days in Wilderness

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP) — "Mission completed" could probably sum up briefly the most dramatic air reaches in the history of the peacetime. They rescue of seven gaunt men lost for 37 days in Quebec's northern wilderness.

The men arrived in this RCAF base in the Saguenay district Sunday after being driven from a remote, unmapped lake, where their single-engined Norseman was forced down on the 31st day of ge Aug. 25. They were in surprisingly good condition.

Extensive Search

Search planes had covered more than 200,000 square miles of territory between Quebec before the Norseman was spotted on the northland.

In the lake-dotted, heavily-wooded area southwest of Nitchequon, some 300 miles from here.

The plane was located Friday. Grounded around it were Ray Thompson, Toronto student; Victor Abel, an experienced bushman from Senneterre, Que., and Klaas Koeten of Rotterdam.

The four other members of the party had set out the day before the plane was spotted in an effort to reach civilization on foot. In this group, flown here a short time after the arrival of those who had remained with the plane, were Ralph Hinchcliffe, leading aircraftman of Seigen, Andre Levesque, Montreal, pilot R. J. Mullen of Kenora, and Lt.-Cmdr. Richard Everitt of Montreal.

The party was picked up from a visit to properties of Fenimore Iron Mines, Ltd., Dunnville, which says then they disappeared near the halfway point of their 700-mile trek from Kenora to Robertval.

United States, Russia May Be Nearing Atomic Stalemate

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some top American policy makers now believe the United States and Russia are approaching an atomic stalemate, which could bring a new era of stabilize relationships of the big powers and an opportunity for development of more-peaceful relations, however uneasy.

At the same time, foreign policy experts believe a situation approaching a stalemate exists, or perhaps influenced by the shifting military power balance but more likely by other factors, is already at hand.

State department officials generally believe the Russians are actively awaiting the outcome of elections concerning Germany now and will do so for many months to come. The question whether the Reds want to talk seriously about the Korean armistice than a score of political points is relatively stronger there.

The combination of an atomic stalemate, if it becomes an accepted fact by the power politicians and a diplomatic stand-off might well mean that international relationships indefinitely, even without any formal East-West agreements to that effect.

The essence of the atomic balance in sharp focus in the Pacific and its established atomic projects, the Russians pose to the Reds a kind of balance with the U.S.

U.S. Has Margin

Most estimates are that the U.S. retains a sizeable margin in the number of atomic bombs. But that the destructive power of the big bombs is so great that equality of numbers is not the key to their effect on military strategy. The key is the number required to destroy enough of the enemy's war.

Russia's atomic progress ran through the statements of several Washington officials during the week-end.

Civilization Director Arthur S. Flemming, in the most positive official statement to date, said in addition to date, said in a quarterly report to President Eisenhower:

"Russia is capable of delivering suddenly and without warning the kind of our destructive weapon ever devised by man on selected targets in the United States."

Advantage Diminishing

He told a press conference Sunday day he is building up thermonuclear weapons—the hydrogen bomb.

Secretary of Armingdon (Democrat) Mo., one-time secretary of the air force, said in a speech Wednesday that the American atomic advantage is vanishing, adding:

"Russia is build of our destructive ships should be placed on our capacity for instant and devastating atomic retaliation."

The U. S. has had the power for a decade to destruction on the Soviet Union for several years.

It has been a source of concern to Allied countries, where many non-Communists are afraid of the Reds as well as the Reds themselves, exploited the notion that a jumpy U.S. might lead the free world into atomic war, striking before Russia had struck back.

Such talk now becomes essentially meaningless because, as Eisenhower recently said, the only thing worse than world an atomic war would be losing it.

LIVING COSTS DURING AUGUST UP HALF POINT

Higher Food Prices Main Propellant Force

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs climbed again during August with the consumer price index jumping one-half a point to 116.2 from 115.7. Higher food prices provided the main propellant force. This was the fourth monthly increase in a row.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, now is just two points below the all-time high of 118.2 in December, 1951.

During August the price of many food items climbed, including pork, eggs, coffee, lard, bread and butter. Price declines showed for fresh vegetables, fruits and other items.

Rents were up along with street car fares, the cost of magazines and automobile operations.

Old Index Eases

The old cost-of-living index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, eased one-tenth of a point to 193.1 from 193.4. This is the first decline in this yardstick after a consecutive three-month climb, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

In the new index, the food component jumped two points to 114 from 112.8. Besides higher prices, the bureau reported that the increase also re influenced by shifts in the fall pattern of consumer buying.

The shelter column, which includes rents, home repairs, climbed by one-tenth of a point-to a new high 124.2 from 124.1.

The clothing column was unchanged at the peak of 110.4, but household operation climbed two-tenths of a point to a new high of 117.4 from 117.2. This column reflects scattered increases for fuel.

Shift In Buying

There have been previous occasions when the new index climbed and the old index went the other way. The reason for the explanation that the new yardstick shows shifts in actual buying habits; the old index does not.

The yearly final edition of the old yardstick. From now on, there will be but one yardstick and that the scattered increases for fuel.

Convicted of Murder

CALGARY (CP)—Seventeen-year old Robert W. Tovey Saturday night was convicted of the killer-murder of another youth who was found with his throat cut in the affections of a teen-aged girl.

He was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 12 for the slaying of Brian Lee, 17, last May 31. Mr. Justice J. Boyd McBride passed sentence after a six-man jury brought in the verdict.

Several teenage girls in the crowded courtroom sobbed openly when the sentence was passed.

During the trial, Tovey admitted hacking with a knife in his hand and quoted him as saying: "Don't anyone say who did this."

Paratroops Raid Vietminh Base On Cloudless Day

Could Delay Fall Assault If They Destroy Supplies

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — The French high command today announced another daring paratroop raid on a big Vietminh supply base on the Chinese border. This time the target was Coc Lieu, 135 miles northwest of Hanoi. The French said bitter fighting is under way.

It was the second such attack in 10 weeks on a major link in the Communist-Vietminh's supply line from Red China. The French on July 17 dropped 1,000 paratroopers who wrecked the Vietminh supply base at Langson—90 miles northeast of Hanoi.

The surprise attack on Coc Lieu was launched early Saturday morning. The Vietminh repulsed the first attempts to smash their big arms and munitions depots.

Small Group Attacks

The French said a small group of crack Viet Namese parathroops, probably 30 to 40 men, spearheaded the attack on Coc Lieu. They were backed up by "powerful air elements," the announcement said.

Their targets were the thousands of tons of war equipment covered by th rebels from the Chinese Reds in preparation for the Vietminh spring offensive.

After the French smashed Langson, Lao Kay, across the Red river from Coc Lieu, became the chief port of entry for more than 2,000 tons of war supplies being poured into Indo-China monthly from Red China.

Even if the commando raiders fail to destroy the big arms and munition depots, they at least will have had the Vietminh a psychological jolt by letting them know that none of their bases is safe from assault. If they succeed, they undoubtedly will delay the Vietminh's fall offensive schedule.

Raise Ontario Freight Rates Cut West Tariff

OTTAWA (CP)—The board of transport commissioners will shortly order a substantial reduction in Western Canada's basic freight rates and authorize a 10-per-cent increase in Ontario and the partial measure of rate equalization, chief commissioner A. D. Kearney said today.

The reductions will apply on traffic moving within the area west of the Lakehead on "class" rates. They will result in a reduction which apply generally to about $25,000,000 of Western traffic, a $20,000,000-a-year freight business.

An unofficial estimate was that the reductions would be put into effect May 15—might cut the West's freight bill by some $2,000,000 a year.

Navy Skyray Regains World Speed Record With Average of 753.4 MPH

THERMAL, Calif. (AP)—Streaking an average of 753.4 miles an hour, the navy's new F-3D Skyray interceptor has won back the world's measured course record it lost in less than five seconds. His fastest pass—761.414 m. p. h.—was only 31 less than the speed of sound along the course where the mercury read 96.5 degrees. Sonic speed varies with temperature and altitude.

Verdin and the Skyray crashed the 737.3 m. p. h. record set by Britain's Cmdr. Mike Lithgow in a Vickers Supermarine Swift in Libya Sept. 25, 1946, breaking the record from Britain, Verdin also set a tough mark for future competitors. Under the Federation aero

Liner Queen Mary Docks At Old Berth at Halifax

By KINGSLEY BROWN, JR.
Canadian press Staff Writer

HALIFAX (CP)—The liner Queen Mary steamed up the roadstead at dawn today to her old wartime berth, exactly as planned and to excitement than anything since the Second World War. She had no trouble docking.

Hundreds got up early to wait for the arrival of the 1,957 guests of the world's second biggest ship which last came here as a troopship in war paint.

Airlines and railways were busy arranging transportation for the liner's passengers. The Queen Mary was diverted here from New York because of the longshoremen's strive in United States coast ports.

Among the 1,854 passengers was Lord Beaverbrook, on his way to Fredericton to make official 'his' retirement as chancellor of the University of New Brunswick, and the same lush area of mahogany panelling and deep rugs was found in the Queen's Regal.

Has No Appeal

On his general retirement pleas "De Beaver" said a quiet life on the Miramichi River in his "My retirement," he said, "is going to be on the world." He didn't elaborate but he's apparently already on the move because from New Brunswick he plans to go to the West Indies.

Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, Canada's retired chief of air staff, was also on board. He was returning

World Series

Sixth Game

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Casey Stengel and his New York Yankees went one step closer to their seventh straight world championship Monday night with a resounding victory over the 16th triumph in 20 October classics today as they faced Brooklyn Dodgers in the sixth game of the best-of-seven set.

The Bronx boners of all six previous series in which they participated, were banking all on righthander Carl Erskine who last Friday struck out 14 Yankees to set a record as Brooklyn won the third game 3-2. The Yanks countered with southpaw Whitey Ford, who fanned 10 in a game losing Saturday and charged with defeat in the fourth game.

A crowd of some 65,000 was on hand. It was a cloudy, chilly day with a threat of rain.

Starting Lineups:

Brooklyn: Reese 2b, Reese ss, robinson If, Campanella c, Hodges 1b, Snider cf, Furillo rf, Cox 3b, Erskine p.

New York: Woodling cf, Collins 1b, Mantle cf, Berra c, Mantle cf, Martin 2b, McDougald 3b, Rizzuto ss, Ford p.

Umpires: Stewart (NL) plate; Barlick (AL) 1st; Gorin (NL) 2d; Stevens (AL) 3rd; Dascoli (NL) lf; Soar (AL) rf.

FIRST INNING

Dodgers: Gilliam popped to Collins. Reese singled. Robinson hit to Martin who tagged Reese coming around. Campanella was unable to throw to first for an attempted double play when Reese slid into him and Campanella singled. Robinson singled at second. Hodges lined to Rizzuto.

No runs, two hits, no errors, two left.

Yankees: Woodling walked. Collins went down swinging. Mantle singled, Woodling stopping at second. Berra's hot smash bounced off Jackie Reese into the right-field stands for a ground-rule two-base hit. Mantle scored and Bauer moved to third. Mantle was given credit for an error on balls to lord the bases. Gilliam allowed Martin's hot smash to bounce off his glove for an error enabling Bauer to score and the other runner to go under a base. Cox grabbed McDougald's drive, threw to Gilliam forcing Martin at second and Gilliam was forced to Hodges doubled McDougald.

Two runs, two hits, one error, two left.

SECOND INNING

Dodgers: Snider struck out. Furillo singled and was over first but was out trying to stretch it into a double. Gilliam missed a low fast ball for the third strike.

No runs, one hit, no errors, son left.

Residents of the Hastings county home near Belleville are enjoying venison this week as result of a two-year-old doe breaking its leg, while jumping a wire fence on the 5th concession of Sidney township.

Conservation Officer Fred Mac-Donald went into the scene and ordered the deer killed after noting the badly broken leg. The deer's carcass was delivered to the county home.

HONORS GENERAL CLARK

SEOUL (AP) — South Korean President Syngman Rhee today awarded the republic's highest military medal to Gen. Mark Clark, retiring commander of UN and U.S. forces in the Far East. The citation accompanying the Taeguk Medal with Gold Star said Clark "distinguished himself by eminently meritorious conduct in a position of great trust and grave responsibility."

Roy Polmanter Given 21 Days In County Jail

Pleading guilty to one charge of pointing a loaded gun and one obstruction of a police officer, and convicted on a second charge of pointing a loaded gun, Roy Polmanter, 26, of Hillcrest, Thurlow township, was sentenced to 21 days in jail by Magistrate T. V. Wills, in magistrate's court here Saturday.

Roy's brother, George Polmanter, 25, also of Hillcrest, was convicted on a charge of obstructing a police officer and was given two years suspended sentence with costs of $29. A second charge of assaulting a police officer was withdrawn by the Crown.

The charges against the two brothers were laid by provincial police on September 20 after Roy Polmanter pointed a loaded shotgun at Provincial Constable D. McAlonen, as the officer was about to arrest him. George interfered and was also taken into custody. Roy has been in custody since his arrest.

Tells at Incident

Leo LaForte, Earl St., in Hillcrest, told the court he was just preparing to blast a well on his property when he saw Roy Polmanter passing on the road carrying a shotgun. As the fuse of the gunpowder blast already been lighted he had warned Polmanter to hurry past. LaForte said Polmanter had pointed the gun at him and quoted him as saying "Come, and get me, I'm ready."

After a second warning about the blasting LaForte said Polmanter had gone on up the road. Later he had heard two blasts from a shotgun.

LaForte's story was corroborated by his brother, Aurel, who also by Frank E. Baldwin, a neighbor, who said he called the police after he heard the shotgun blasts. "For the safety of my children I called the police," Baldwin said.

Saw Accused With Gun

Provincial Police McAlonen said when he arrived on the scene he saw Roy with the gun and told him to put the gun down. The officer said Polmanter had pointed the gun in the direction of his hip and told him to "come and get it."

The officer said he had taken his gun from his holster and without aiming it began to take steps toward Polmanter, who stepped backwards and then lowered his gun. As Polmanter was about to hand the gun to his brother the officer said he had taken it from him. It was then that he saw the gun was cocked.

On opening it he found both barrels loaded.

The officer said he had put the shotgun in the police cruiser and taking out his handcuffs went to arrest Roy Polmanter. As he was about to make to his arrest, George Polmanter, came over and said he could not take Roy in without a warrant. Roy took a swing at the officer and George grabbed the constable's arm and persisted in standing between the officer and his brother. In the scuffle a button was torn from the officer's tunic.

Constable McAlonen said he

then went back to the cruiser and radioed for assistance. Constables Cockburn and Pellerin answered the call and the Polmanter brothers were placed in custody.

Under cross examination by defence counsel, Constable McAlonen stated the Polmanter brothers had been drinking. "Both had been drinking, but they were not staggering," he said.

Brain Operation Restores Speech To Patient

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Two Peruvian surgeons, using 2,000-year-old instruments of the Incas and following ancient techniques, have reported a successful brain operation that restored a man's power of speech.

The surgeons are Francisco Loayza Reyes and Esteban Rocca. Their patient was not identified, but they said he had recovered completely and left the hospital where the operation was performed less than two weeks ago. He was reported to have shown no bad post-operation developments.

Grana and Rocca are currently writing a book entitled "Pre-Columbian Surgery in Peru." Grana presided at a meeting of the International College of Surgeons in Rome in 1950. Rocca is a young brain surgeon.

POLICE BLOTTER

Outside of possibly a greater number of drunks being picked up, city police had an exceptionally quiet time over the week-end. The same was true of provincial police who reported no accidents of a serious nature.

Police were called in to assist in locating an eight-year-old Prince Edward county girl who had left her parents while on a shopping trip to the city. Neighbors found the young girl and took her home, where her parents found her after returning from the city.

Minister's Visit Plays Big Part In Rescuing Men

OTTAWA (CP) — The lucky chance of a federal minister's visit to northern Quebec played a big part in the rescue of seven men stranded in that desolate area for 37 days.

Mines Minister George Prudhamm is credited here with encouraging a renewal of the once-abandoned air search that led Friday to the finding of the party grounded in a forced landing on Aug. 25.

The cabinet member got particularly interested in the fate of the men last week, after the search had been broken off, while visiting Ungava properties of the Iron Ore Company of canada.

Marc Boyer, deputy minister who was with him, said company men told Mr. Prudham there probably were slim chances now of 10 that the seaplane with the seven men had landed safely on one of the hundreds of lakes dotting the wild country.

Then men said that, if alive, the lost group likely would starve to death or freeze with the onset of the cold weather unless they were brought out.

"The minister felt strongly," Mr. Boyer said, "that, if there was any chance of their being alive, the search should be intensified as already that area was having heavy snow."

Mr. Prudham telegraphed the defence department from Knob lake on Sept. 8 and himself met with a conference with Defence Minister Claxton on his return from the north Tuesday. The RCAF resumed its search last Thursday and found the seven the next day.

Hunters Lose Nine Guns To Game Wardens

At least nine duck hunters had their guns confiscated by the game wardens at Hamilton, Prince Edward and Lennox and Addington counties over the week-end by representatives of the game laws.

Game warden F. W. MacDonald, Point Anne, confiscated five guns while Warden Winters of Prince Edward county took the four guns on Saturday.

Mr. MacDonald, operating in Lennox and Addington, found three men hunting over live decoys. Two of them were hunting with automatic shotguns that had been plugged and one was hunting without a licence.

In Prince Edward county two men were caught hunting over live decoys, and two did not have licences.

Two men were also caught with twice the legal limit of birds.

Calvary Temple Sunday School Annex Dedicated

"God wants us to reach out and win every boy and girl that we possibly can for Jesus Christ," stated the reverend Dr. L. Ripley, pastor of Evangel Temple, Napanee, who was the guest speaker at the dedication service of Calvary Temple Sunday School annex on Sunday afternoon.

The Hillz brick church building on Dundas Street which had been built by devout Methodists in 1882 and used latterly by the City Mission, a non-denominational group, has recently been purchased by Calvary Temple, to provide additional space for the Sunday School, which has outgrown available facilities in the main building. Completely renovated inside and out, and equipped with electric organ and piano this new acquisition will accommodate approximately two hundred people.

"God not only helped you to build your beautiful church," said Mr. Ripley, "but He has also opened your hearts for the demand, to enlarge your spiritual habitation. "In the days of long ago God commanded Moses to get the children of Israel to go forward; they had been standing still long enough. Under the preaching of Peter and the other apostles God added daily to the church such as should be saved. The old Methodists who built this little church had a vision and they were on the firing line for God. So today, God's church cannot stand still; there is much work as God leads us on from victory unto victory when we trust Him and are willing to consecrate our lives to Him."

Need a Police

Reverend Laurie Price, who was in charge of the service, said that he had a burden in his heart for the welfare of children who do not go to Sunday School. "It is not our policy to try and coax children from other Sunday Schools," he stated. "There are too many boys and girls in this city, and other cities, who do not go to Sunday School."

Rev. Mr. Price was happy to announce that on September 27th, when the churches of Belleville had co-operated in a special effort for Sunday School attendance, there had been encouraging increases reported from the various churches. At Calvary Temple, he said, there had been an increase of 145 over the previous week.

Speaking briefly, Mr. H. G. Harris, superintendent, stated that the Sunday School teacher's job was, perhaps, the most important in the world, as it involved the moulding of young lives and leading them to a knowledge of God. He reported that over one hundred pupils are brought to Sunday School in cars and fifty-two in the bus. "As we work together for God, the Sunday School will increase and we shall see the fruits of our labours," stated Mr. Harris.

The congregation sang several grand old hymns of the Christian church, including "Faith of Our Fathers," "Stand Up For Jesus" and "Jesus the Light of the World." Rev. Hope Smith presided at the organ. Prayers were led by Mrs. W. B. Greenwood provided the piano accompaniment.

One Man Killed In Stubborn Fire At Navy Yard

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — More than 1,000 men fought a stubborn fire Sunday at the mare island navy yard that caused one death, injured 12, and caused damage estimated at $200,000.

The spectacular blaze flared uncontrolled for hours after it was discovered at a tar-soaked pier.

Hundreds of services men helped civilian firemen.

Canadian Govt. Condemns Polish Persecutions

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government Saturday condemned renewed religious persecution in Poland and said it contradicts professed Communist interest in easing international tension.

"The news of the renewal of religious persecution in Poland will deepen sympathy in Canada for the suffering Polish people," the department of external affairs said in a statement.

"The recent trial of Bishop Kaczmarek, Polish priests and nuns has followed the usual Iron Curtain pattern, in which the defendants are induced to condemn themselves. The arrest of Cardinal Wyszynski without any charge being laid against him outrages all principles of justice."

Bishop Czeslaw Kaczmarek of Kielce was sentenced to 12 years' imprisonment on charges of espionage activities. Stefan Cardinal Wyszynski, primate of Poland, was suspended from his duties and allowed to retire to a monastery on grounds that he had engaged in activities against the state.

British Guiana Constitution Revision Asked

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (Reuters) — Chicago-born Mrs. Janet Jagan, secretary of the left-ist People's Progressive party in this colony, demanded Sunday that Britain remove supreme power vested in Governor Sir Alfred Savage.

Mrs. Jagan, 32, will urge Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton of Britain drastically to revise the colony's new constitution—which enabled her party to gain limited power in British Guiana's first universal elections last April.

She pointed out, holds 15 out of 24 seats in the House of Assembly, controls the governor's veto powers abolished, the new constitution demands elimination of the State Council (upper house). Six of the council's nine members are nominated by the governor.

These changes, which Mrs. Jagan said are backed by thousands of signatures to a party-organized petition, would leave the People's Progressive party in full control of the 83,000-square-mile colony on the northeast coast of South America.

Landslide, Gun Accidents Add to Week-End Death Toll

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A spectacular plane crash at Kenora, which took the lives of two Royal Canadian Navy fliers, headed the list of 60 violent deaths counted by The Canadian Press in Canada's eastern provinces during the week-end.

Ontario and Quebec evenly shared 36 deaths. New Brunswick was the scene of two, Nova Scotia one Nineteen of the deaths were traffic mishaps.

In Quebec 12 lives were lost in traffic mishaps. The other death was due to electrocution. In Ontario, four were killed in traffic. One plane crash, drownings and shooting-s each took two lives.

Two Airmen Die

Lieut. George Nobel of Halifax and Lieut. Ronald Marenger, 19, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and John Seral Kolets, 22, of London, Ont., both lost their lives in two separate shooting accidents.

Marenger, hunting ducks near Bruce Mines, was shot in the chest when the rifle of Doug Sandie, accidentally discharged. Kolich, taking target practice with David Penalagan, 22, was shot below the right ear.

Alex Pilemi, 34, of Waters township and John Rasta, 34, of Creighton were drowned in Lindsay lake near Sudbury when their outboard motor boat capsized. Two other passengers in the boat swam about 150 feet to shore.

Mine Accidents

David Gordon Bremner, 37, of Windsor; Herbert Otto, 42, of Kitchener; Alex Thomson, 4-year-old son of Harold Thomson of West Zorra, Ont., and Clarence Brisson, 44, of Cornwall lost their lives in motor accidents.

Bremner died in hospital in St. Mary's four hours after his car left the highway at nearly Prospect Hill, Otto, apparently uninjured after his car-collided head-on with another automobile in New Hamburg, died in jail. He had been booked on a charge of driving while his ability was impaired.

Alex Thomson climbed on the tongue of a trailer which his father's tractor was drawing at their farm-near Woodstock. He fell off and a wheel of the trailer passed over his head.

Brisson was killed near Cornwall when a car headed for Montreal with nine passengers went out of control on a curve.

The other death in Ontario occurred in the Sudbury district and the cause was not known. Three children found the body of a man, believed to be Frank Asselin, about 40, of Hamilton.

Civil Aviation To Get Greater Part of Funds

MONTREAL (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier today told the International Air Transport Association about Canadian plans to expand northern airfield building facilities at airports, especially those used by international airlines.

"We have decided that over the next five years a larger part of the funds at our disposal for civil aviation should be used for the provision of terminal building facilities, in particular at those airports used by international airlines," the minister said in a speech prepared for delivery to IATA's annual meeting.

"Plans are already under way for some further improvement and extension of facilities at Gander and the actual work should be undertaken before the end of this year. . . .

"The question of some limited civil building facilities at Goose Bay, Labrador, is under discussion with the RCAF. I have agreed to consider whether Ottawa can, at an early date, be officially designated as an alternate to Montreal for trans-atlantic flights."

Party Outlawing To be Enforced Says Iran Govt.

TEHRAN (AP)—Iran's government warned today that it is going to enforce the four-year-old outlawing of the Communist Tudeh party —with the death penalty if necessary.

The tough anti-Red talk came from chief prosecutor Hossein Ahmadeh, whose forces Sunday made public a 20-page indictment that could bring the death by hanging of the Communists' former tacit ally ex-premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

After weeks of questioning, Mossadegh was formally charged with trying to overthrow Iran's monarchy and inciting the defiance of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi which boomeranged to bring the premier's downfall.

Mossadegh during most of his 28 months in office allowed the Tudeh to flourish unchecked, despite the 1949 decree outlawing it. In return, the Reds swelled the street crowds who were the chief support for his oil nationalization program and his subsequent near-dictatorship.

Azemoodeh, however, warned that anyone trying to revive the Tudeh or helping to set up Red cells will be tried by an army court and hanged.

Sunken Vessel Menaces Ships In Busy Channel

SARNIA (CP)—The sunken German freighter Wallachia, resting on the bottom of the St. Clair river here, has been declared a "menace to navigation."

Harbor master David Ross Sunday notified the department of transport that the 350-foot vessel is a menace, and warned that "collisions may occur at any time."

The Wallachia, owned by the Lusbeck lines of Hamburg, was reported to have listed toward the deeper water of the up-bound heavily-travelled shipping channel. She is resting in 62 feet of water about 100 yards from the centre of the channel on the Canadian side of the swiftly-flowing river. Only her masts remain above water.

The freighter was sunk Friday night in a collision with the Pioneer, a 10,000-ton ore carrier owned by the Cleveland Cliffs line. The ore carrier was not badly damaged, but the German ship went to the bottom in seven minutes. Her Canadian pilot, Capt. H. A. Patterson of Kingston, died in the crash.

Ross warned that if the ship continues to slide, it could block the vital Great Lakes waterway, one of the busiest in the world. The river, narrow at this point, is the sole ship passage linking Lake Huron to Lake St. Clair.

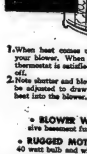
Meanwhile, the Wallachia's owners have opened bids for her salvage. Part of the cargo was 325 tons of steel.

At Lorain, Ohio, a board of United States coast guard officers opens a formal hearing today into the collision. The Pioneer discharged her cargo at Lorain and was put in drydock for inspection.

INTERVIEWS PRISONERS

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP)—Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, researcher into the sex life of the United States, is interviewing a group of San Quentin prisoners for his third book, Warden Hatley O. Teets said Thursday. Dr. Kinsey and an associate, Dr. Wardell B. Pomeroy, are gathering information from some of the prison's 500 sex offenders for a volume to be titled "Sex Laws and the Sex Offender."

Deputy Premier Says Britain Being Evasive



CAIRO (AP)—Deputy Premier Gamel Abdel Nasser today threatened to break off negotiations with Britain over the Suez canal unless Britain ceases what he called evasive tactics.

Nasser, top negotiator for Egypt in the prolonged negotiations, said Britain is deliberately reviving issues already agreed upon.

Only a week ago official Egyptian sources reported agreement had been reached in principle on a Suez settlement with Britain consenting to withdraw her troops, numbering about 80,000, from the strategic canal area within 18 months. A British informant warned, however, that early complete agreement was unlikely.

Among the chief issues remaining to be settled is the status of about 5,000 British experts who would remain at the base after the British troops leave. Britain wants them to stay for seven years, while the Egyptians insist on six.

EVERYBODY BENEFITS FROM THESE SERVICES
CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY — VICTORIAN ORDER OF NURSES — ST. JOHN AMBULANCE .... BOY SCOUTS ASSOCIATION—NAVY LEAGUE OF CANADA (SEA CADETS)—YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Dear Neighbor:

Everybody benefits from their services. You or your neighbor, someone in your family or your neighbor's family, each of us, in some way or other benefits by the wonderful services of these organizations. All too frequently, we take them for granted. Can we afford to!

Suppose they weren't here. What would the picture be in Belleville? Hundreds and hundreds of children with time on their hands and nothing to do but get into mischief or worse. No Scouts, no Navy League, no 'Y' to give them constructive leadership and help them to have wholesome fun. Little tots in upset homes unwanted and neglected by YOU for you are a part of our community: infants homeless because there was no children's Aid Society to care for them. Sick people not cared for because there was no Victorian Order Nurse to assist them. People injured and unattended because you and I don't support St. John Ambulance. Would you and I like to see things like that in our City.

When the Community Chest canvasser calls at the door — THINK. Think of what our city could be like if you and I and our neighbors don't give and give generously. For our town — for our neighbor — give with an open heart. There will be no employee canvass at office or factory.

Remember too, the canvasser is giving — of his time and his money voluntarily — because he believes that everybody benefits when everybody gives.

Your very sincerely

OFF THE RECORD — By Ed Reed

WHAT'S A WOMAN WORTH!

Trying to determine how much a good woman is worth is dangerous business at the best of times.

However, 108 women are bringing a good round figure into the debate by suing the Ford Motor Company of the Ford Motor Company of Canada for two million dollars. The women claim that they were discriminated against on the grounds of sex when the company laid them off in 1949 to hire men. They claim that the three million dollars is coming to them for back pay and benefits.

Long division, always shaky anyway, reduces this fortune to $27,777 each for four years. On a yearly basis this means that a female auto worker is worth $6,944.

It is reported that neither Ford nor the CIO had any comment.

We don't wonder. It has probably struck these titans of industry that the figure is obviously ridiculous. What good women would value her services for a year at a paltry $7,000? What woman would care to have it established in a court decision that she is worth $7,000 a year?

It is our feeling that the courts will be doing womankind a great service by dismissing this suit against Ford and the C.I.O. To place any arbitrary value on the lasting potential of women, especially under benders, is something that any conscientious judge should shrink from in horror. After all what man wants to believe that his wife or sister is worth only $7,000 a year on the labor market? Such a devaluation on the domestic scene with inflation pouring fifty cent dollars into everyone's pay envelope would be far more lasting repercussions than any three million dollar loss on the part of the Ford Company or the C.I.O.

RADIO A BRITISH VIEW

We learn with interest that one of our many duties is supposed to be guarding the CBC against regimentation.

That is the clear inference from a defence of government monopoly of radio broadcasting, as given by Lord Simon of Wythenshawe in his book "The BBC From Within." Lord Simon was chairman of the BBC for five years and so speaks with considerable authority, but the Winnipeg Free Press finds his argument "lame and broken-backed."

The Free Press quotes the London Economist as summarising his defence of state control of radio in the following words: "Lord Simon defended the BBC against the sundry safeguards represented by an alert press—to which the BBC is always 'news'—are ample to ensure that no regimentation of opinion occurs."

This kind of reasoning, says the Free Press, is self defeating. It is unconvincing, it argues, is, like the printed or spoken word, a means of disseminating information or news and it is therefore, in the opinion of the Free Press, incapable of broadcasting as well as publishing, "should be absolutely free of government control."

With this argument we do not wish to take issue, beyond pointing out that Lord Simon's opinion was not reached without a knowledge of broadcasting systems in other lands. Here in Canada, a few years ago, he not only studied the operations of the CBC but also of the private stations and networks. Whether what conclusions he reached regarding the CBC we do not know, but we do know that he was impressed by the manner in which the smaller privately-owned stations served the particular interests of their home communities. If, in spite of this favorable impression, he still defends government monopoly of radio broadcasting it must be for the reason that the Free Press terms "the obvious and indefensible evil of state controlled radio" is more than offset by the equally indefensible and even more obvious evils of commercial lack of control.

One thing ought to be pointed out. Radio broadcasting cannot be said to be exactly the same as publishing, because there is no limit to the number of newspapers which can be published but there is a very real limitation on the number of radio stations which can be operated, because there are so many waveiengths which can be used. Somebody has to say who will use these waveiengths.

We have a suspicion that most Canadians are reasonably well satisfied with the existing system in this country even if it does result in a situation in which radio is half free and half—well not exactly slave, but state-controlled.

HONEYMOON CHAIRS

Torquay, England, has something in common with Niagara Falls in that it is a mecca for honeymooners. It discovered something wrong with its facilities, and is correcting it. It only had single deck chairs, and these were not convenient for those in love. Double-seat chairs are being installed, with canopies overhead, so the honeymooners can hold hands and engage in love-talk in comfort and some degree of privacy.

We suspect that of that idea had some romance in his soul and also some recognition of the problems encountered by lovers who have to sit in separate chairs. It is embarrassing for one to sit on the arm of the other in public. And even holding hands is awkward and unsatisfactory to people sitting apart. There is nothing more aggravating to young lovers than for one to be sitting in one chair and one in another.

It is difficult for love to flourish under such circumstances, demonstrations of affection being almost impossible.—(Windsor Star).

And from them chose a few.
The bill she paid. A sale he'd made,
Was all the vendor knew.

He thanked her as he turned to leave,
His head once more held high,
For he had heard a cheerful word
From some one glad to buy.

Her husband told her later on:
"You've foolish been once more."
Said she: "Don't mind, the man was blind,
Who called me to the door."

"Any boy who can do that is just BOUND to be another Lincoln."

The trustee board was composed of Messrs William Wemyss, Wm. Bracken, D. G. Frost, T. Bleecker, William Johnson, F. Carscallen, W. A. Carscallen and John H. Pashley. In later years the church property was registered by Rev. Rev. E. Pasgworth, who also was in charge of the Bridge Street Methodist Church.

Mr. Ellis Griffith, game protector, was attacked by the moose in the early part of the week as he could do so—he tele-phoned to Mr. Ostrom and told him of the affair. Mr. Ostrom also attacked a rig of Mrs. Sims on the road to Frankford. It was a large moose measuring six feet high at the shoulders and was fifteen feet long from nose to tip of tail.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

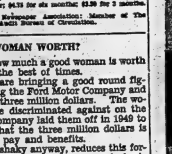
WORKING FOR A "BREAK"

There are two types of individuals traveling on the road to what they name as their objective. Perhaps the one word "success" applies to each, but one waits for the lucky break, and the other works for the break that leads to a victorious conclusion.

The persistent man or woman is the undefeatable one. He or she never knows when he or she is defeated in his or her climb to success. The inventor or scientific investigator is never discouraged by the number of tries! He only takes note of his progress. Something is being revealed at every attempt. Edison once stated that every failure marked one less that wouldn't have to be tried again.

I recently read of one writer who received 36 rejection slips from The Saturday Evening Post before she had one acceptance—but that acceptance signaled her to fame and fortune. She worked for that "break"! It's something that we all must do if we would gloriously succeed.

We owe it to ourselves and, incidentally, to others to use every method at our command to give expression to all that we own within ourselves. By successfully climbing one hill we are prepared to know our full potentiality until we have been put to the test. There are numerous stepping geniuses in the world who never wake up. They are waiting for a break instead of working for it.



In noting the thousands of names in "Who's Who" it is interesting to discover how many have made note of their humble origin. Many take pride in quoting the fact. Some seem to imply that everyone who will work for a break in life will get it. It's that something which one has that another has not. It's the "breaks" of life. Said Shakespeare speaks of, "which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune."

How many Charles A. Lindberghs are there in the world? They called him "lucky". But he was lucky because he worked for the breaks that were his because of his faith, his courage, and his "never-say-die" spirit. He had. He demonstrated what others might do!

Where Snow Has Wings

(Montreal Gazette)

The greater snow goes, perhaps the most beautiful of major game waterfowl, once more is whitening the tidal marshes and harbours of mainland and Isaacs below Quebec City. "Forerunners of the great annual southward migration," writes Dr. Fenchel the American sedge grass at Cap Tourmente, Kamouraska and St. Joachim just below Ile. Anne de Beaupre a couple of weeks ago. Now the main flocks of Canada geese—

Until after the snow flies the geese will be in that section, the only known resting-place of the flight between the breeding grounds in the nebulous far north and their wintering place off the Carolina coast. Forty-five years ago the task of counting these birds was made much simple than is the case today. In 1906 there were three or four thousand greater snow geese visiting Cap Tourmente each spring and fall. They had been overhunted and were threatened with extinction.

It was obvious that they would be left with no protection unless something was done. The Club de Chasse Cap Tourmente was formed with the result that the exclusive hunting rights to shoot the birds at that, point were given to the members. Reasonable limits were imposed upon members and their guests, who appreciated this privilege, and the greater snow goose started upon the climb back.

Today, while Cap Tourmente is the principal feeding and resting ground of the flight, the birds have overflown to the South Shore and the mouth of the Saguenay, of that section of the St. Lawrence. The Montreal Duck and Chasse still exists and its members enjoy good and comfortable shooting. But the increase in the population of the geese has spread them into fresh fields and marshes with an urge for that sort of thing can motor down to the waterfowl and numerous places where, without benefit of organization, the birds are desperate rates, he may take the moderate number of his bag limit or a fairly succulent bird.

So much for the hunters, but what of the birds? Their movement is the esthetic impact upon those who are not of the hunting fraternity. The yearly migratory stopovers of the greater snow goose is unique. In the fall, when the river, for some weeks starting in late September or early October is open or early April, the atmosphere vibrates to their voices for hour after hour—a haunting medley of whoops, barks and shrieks ranging from a high-pitched bugle-note to a high-pitched tenor.

Then, when the weather from time to time, when two or three miles of them arise for some reason or another, there is a thunder of wings resembling the breaking of heavy surf on a rocky shore.

Wheeling against the background of the high promontory of the cape with the sunlight sometimes shining on their wings the formations present a breathtaking sight. In the spring, when the pure white quill geese with black-trimmed wings form solid patches on the water, every head, or when they appear black against the sky, every head and white clouds with the sun behind them. And these sights also are haunting.

Thousands visit the area each year to see the birds and to them, their enjoyment is great. The hunters, for a little more than a month public owe a debt of gratitude to the old Club de Chasse for saving these birds.

Doors Slam On Indians

(Hamilton Spectator)

All over the East doors are being slammed against immigrants. Now in Rhodesia, the African colony of Northern Rhodesia restrictions are being placed on the entry of those who are crossing the Indian Ocean by sea and by air, and the reason is a new environment.

Most of these Indians come from Bombay and the coastal districts to the north and south where there are opportunities for trade and opportunities for white collar workers in particular are scarce.

Africa's "Indian problem" does not appear often in the headlines but it is, nevertheless, acute. In South Africa the vast Indian population stands somewhere between the whites and the blacks, creating the social and political problems of the country. In Kenya, perhaps, no exaggeration to say that the Indians are the wealthiest community in the land.

Indeed they are said to own more than half of the property in Kenya, the capital.

Fifty years ago, when the plantations in the Kenyan highlands were being opened up, the planters looked around for a source of cheap labor.

India was the obvious choice. Coolie men and women were brought over in crowded immigrant ships and put to work on the plantations. Indian traders and speculators followed. In fact, for many years it was the Indian, not the African, who was the first regular employee. Indian families has been how to get the smaller children to eat more than a dib and a dab at mealtimes. The kids themselves seem to get along by some process of nutritional osmosis, or possibly by an invisible pipe line to the corner candy store. Even the most glowing seven-year-old-cover girl and the disappearing four - year - old cadet seem to be physiologically and psychologically equipped to eliminate mealtime eating from their scheme of life entirely.

There is, however, a foreboding in the average parent's mind that something is deceptive, and that cover girl and space cadet may eventually collapse and disappear completely like the deacon's one-hoss shay.

The question of the permanent and immediate — to this whole problem is, of course, to get the children into the habit of eating at mealtimes, and the best way to achieve this is to give the kids what they really want at mealtimes and then naturally and naturally been aware of this two-step remedy for their children's nutritional difficulties. Some great mistake, however, is that the nutritional but discredited enticements in preparing food for children have generally found out that so far as the small-fry concerned, the Sweet Caporal, the Savarin, Excelsior and even Player's Farmers can no longer hold a lake. The following dietary is at least guaranteed to get the kids to the table and eating at mealtimes.

Breakfast starts off with a small bowl of melted licorice, in which is floated a generous helping of corn flakes. Accompanying the marshallows — perhaps one of the kids' favorite foods to offset any undue blandness. The substantial part of the breakfast is a big round-up jawbreakers, forming a sort of mush with the aforesaid corn flakes and licorice syrup. The roughage, which is so important in children's diets, is supplied by a good helping of candied popcorn.

The noon meal should be simple, the main course perhaps consisting of two thick sandwiches made into a sandwich between slices of angel cake which should be generously buttered, and preferably garnished with marshmallows, chocolate or cream. It will be found that several bonbons will serve as a relish, and a couple of smaller children frequently show a decided partiality for a dish of ice cream.

Supper might wisely consist of the delightful dish of cake, heavily sweetened whipped cream, perhaps, into which might be crumbled a few potato chips, onion slices or mustard pickle, and garnished with boiled jelly roll and popcorn balls.

It should be noted that this correct dietary has been tried out—vocally, not clinically — on representative groups of young people of both sexes from three to nine years of age and has been practically without reservation and in most cases with enthusiasm.

How to Make Children Eat

A new era among the researchers is under way to do, vitamin B deficiency seem" to be as common as calcium deficiency.

B deficiency in America is due chiefly to our enormous per capita consumption of refined white flour and refined white sugar—foods which supply more than half of the calories in the daily diet but do not supply the amount of vitamin B which is necessary for the proper metabolism (use) of starch and sugar.

I can cite no authorities but I believe that the habit or practice of eating too much refined carbohydrate (starch and sugar) food predisposes to the tendency for severe diabetes in persons who have inherited the tendency.

I have lumped these two (the word —my name is Brady) for years on the wisdom of keeping a sugar bowl plain white flour and using it in one way or another in the daily diet.

Of course wheat (from which nothing is removed) is not the only food source of vitamin B, but it is most abundant, cheapest and richest source of vitamin B.

One of the signs of (Beriberi (the disease caused by severe deprivation of vitamin B) is weakness of the legs, tenderness of the calves, pain felt over the shin bone when the calf is squeezed, numbness and aquasi on his heels he may be unable to rise without using his hands.

Such outspoken beriberi is rare in America but mild or chronic beriberi is almost as popular as cheat-food.

Aching, pain, tenderness and weakness in the legs, especially when such discomfort increases in the course of the day, may be due to varicose veins or to potential (potential fist) ner or to thrombangitis (Buerger's disease). But in any case it can do no harm and may do a lot good to boop the B intake for a few months and see if I tell how in the wheat pamphlet mentioned above.

In pieces to follow I'll tell (1) what to do for restless legs — you know, if you have the complaint: You can't find a comfortable position for your legs when you are trying to get to sleep at night; and (2) for nocturnal cramps in the feet, ankles or legs, ow-wow, ow-wow, or so they tell me; (3) for legs that tucker out and ache and ache and ache after long standing (it doesn't make a bit of difference whether you stand on hard wood or soft wood, concrete or horse feathers, sponge rubber pads or tough old fire engine hose — standing at circulation due to varicose veins; and for (4) food of proper vitamin B content is calculated to condition a strong man, or a child to have more energy for our ten weeks' special treatment which amounts to $1,000, plus room, board, laundry and valet service, medicine, dentistry and other incidentals; (4) ascending symmetrical bilateral peripheral neuritis.

WAVE THE FLAG

Now and again I meet Oscar at the Art Gibb corner. Many years ago he was a steward at one of the University clubs. A few days ago I met him and said to him, he asked me, "What was your class in Belleville University?" I replied that I would have graduated.

Now I appreciate this remembrance but I happen to know that Oscar says that about every class, for he was a steward at all classes and after a few minutes of wise pondering he will come back with the decided answer, "Best class ever graduated from this University."

And of course he is always right, for every class has some distinctive characteristics which make it stand out. Every class can claim rightfully to have been best in some respects, but all cannot be numero uno liquor than others. Some tore down more fences for the bonfire victory bonfires. Some excelled in scholarship. Woodrow Wilson's class of '79 produced more national leaders than any other class ever graduated from Princeton.

Our class is the best, our family is our college, or our nation. In some one thing we excel all others. We may win a flag even though it is a very little one, and stand on the top of the heap sometimes—and sometimes not.

Oscar is really a wise guy.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We were having the walls and ceilings of some of our rooms washed by one of those professional house-cleaning outfits. There were four men in the squad, and they did a thorough job. They were foreigners who had hardly any English, and I asked the boss about them.

"They're D.P.s," he said. "They have to be work like this for so long before they can get the kind of jobs they're fitted for. They appreciated men. But, boy, can they work!"

I glanced at the boss to see if he was making a crack. But no.

The boss looked down at his task. "But still awful frightened by what's happened and what's still over there."

During the afternoon, the radio — CBC and Beethoven's pastoral symphony came on. Toscanini. And when it came to the movement that portrays the village fete and the country dance, I looked for the word in room to indulge in a few boogie-woogie steps around the radio. It always has that effect on me. In fact I find difficulty in a concert hall sitting in my seat during that part.

Ideal of a young Mahratta boy of ambition to emigrate from Bombay to the larger theatre in Kenya.

To accomplish this a group of boys sometimes leave a village in Bombay, rent a single room in the bazaar and put a heavy burden on each. Each carries a common fund, the leader bought simple food and then they all contribute their one bowl to eat their meals. As a result they save every penny they can pay and were able to afford the fare to Africa and enough to set up a small business. Some became money changers and waxed wealthy, others journeyed as curio salesmen. Now they own plantations and are a power in the country.

Northern Rhodesia has comparatively few Africans, and while those seeking entry want jobs as laborers, it is the Indians who declare that with a new generation of Africans growing up with the same ideals as the Europeans, the Indians do not make their adopted country home; they are there to make their fortune and they send money back there.

Already the Rhodesian Federation and Singapore have severely restricted Indian immigration, big-family in their new country, offers having ten or twelve children more than the whites. Foreseeing the dangers inherent in an unrestricted immigration policy, the Northern Rhodesian authorities are taking steps to forestall them. This still leaves India with a mounting population that promises, for the future, results that are difficult to foresee but which will certainly be unpleasant.

World-famous scientist, Professor Auguste Piccard, who 21 years ago was the first man to rise high enough above the earth's surface into the stratosphere, established a new underwater depth record off the coast of Italy. In an especially constructed craft—bathyscaphe—built by the Italian government to his design, the 69-year-old Swiss born professor with his son, 21-year-old Jacques, descended into the Mediterranean sea off the coast of the Island of Ponza, 10,334 feet, to break the record of 6,339 feet set six weeks ago by two Frenchmen. Two miles under the surface of the sea there is a grave-like calm and stygian blackness broken only by grostic flickers of phosphorescence hinting at unknown forms of life. First World Championship In Plowing Will be Decided COBOURG (CP)—The international plowing match opens Tuesday with both professionals and amateurs cutting sod—but it's an odds-on bet the amateurs will have the biggest following.

While the serious plowmen, almost considered artists by many farmers, start the trials to declare the Ontario champion, the annual burlesque of Canada's biggest plowing match will be held, the mayors' competition.

The highlight of the four-day match, to be declared officially opened Tuesday by Governor-General Massey, will come Thursday and Friday when the first world plowing championship will be held. Representatives of 11 countries will compete for a $1,500 golden plow trophy.

The mayors' event was initiated last year when mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa challenged Toronto's mayor Allan Lamport to publicize the 1952 international match at Carp near Ottawa. The competition has drawn 15 entries compared to nine last year when Toronto's bouncing chief magistrate edged out Miss Whitton.

Toronto's mayor, who practises on the sly at a secluded north Toronto farm, will have stiff competition. Although Miss Whitton has retired from plowing competition, the distaff mayors will be represented by Grace McFarlane of Leamington and Bernadette Smith of Woodstock. Other cities and towns represented—by men—are Windsor, Lindsay, Smiths Falls, Nepanee, Renfrew, Seaforth, Barrie, Parkhill, Picton, Peterborough, Kitchener, Campbellford and Cobourg.

On the serious side of the match, which has drawn nearly 800 entries, county and junior competitions start Tuesday with the Ontario champion being selected. The Ontario titleholder meets the champions of British Columbia, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island Wednesday to select the top plowman in the Dominion.

The Canadian champion and runner-up will vie Thursday and Friday with teams from the United States, Britain, Northern Ireland, the Republic of Ireland, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, West Germany and Holland in the first trials ever held to select a world champion.

Truck Runs Wild, Driver Charged

TRENTON (Special)—W. E. Mountenay, 19, of Joseph Street, Trenton has been charged with careless driving as the result of police investigation into a report that a truck ran wild on Queen Street on Saturday.

The entry in the record book at headquarters contains the following description. A truck proceeding south on Queen Street after making the turn at Morgan Street ran down the railroad tracks and veered back on the road through lilac bushes into Mrs. G. W. MacDonald's yard, stopping between four and five feet from a neighbor's house. The report especially notes that a number of children were playing in the yard only a few minutes before the incident. It also mentions that the truck tore up the MacDonald lawn when the driver backed up on his return to the street.

Weddings

RADGLEY—FAREY

Christ Church, Belleville, was the setting on Saturday, September 26th at 4 p.m. for a lovely wedding when Archdeacon B. Creegan rector of the church, united in marriage, Helen Velma Farey, Belleville R. R. No. 6, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farey, to Earl Radgley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Radgley, of Shannonville. Tall standards of chrysanthemums and gladioli adorned the chancel while lighted tapers on the altar added a delightful accent. White satin bows designated the guest pews.

Mr. John Withers, church organist, rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the junior choir boys, who sang before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. J. Diamond, the bride was radiant in her ballerina-length gown of white Chantilly lace and nylon net over satin fashioned with molded, strapless bodice and matching lace bolero with stand-up collar and long tight fitting sleeves ending in lily-points over the hands. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion was held by a band of matching lace trimmed with white satin and she carried a semi-cascade bouquet of Bettertoes roses and stephanotis tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. J. Diamond matron of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in pale green lace over net and taffeta with strapless bodice and matching lace bolero, while the full skirt was fashioned in ballerina length. Her pale green headdress was similar to that of the bride's. She carried a nosegay of the Gloria roses, white shasta 'mums, carnations and Pixanty gladioli.

Miss Shirley Jackson and Miss Bernice Grandame, of Belleville, were bridesmaids and were alike in tonal-colored nylon net over taffeta with white feathered head-dresses. Both carried dainty nosegays of Sweetheart roses, white 'mums and carnations.

Mr. William English of Shannonville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Bruce Diamond, of Belleville, and Mr. Jack McFarlane, of Shannonville, were ushers.

At the wedding reception, which was held in Christ Church parish hall the bride's mother received the sixty guests wearing rose taffeta with black accessories and matching feather hat and shoulder corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Roy Radgley, assisted, wearing navy sheer with grey trim and accessories and shoulder corsage pale pink carnations.

For the wedding trip to Niagara, New York City and other points of interest in the States, the bride chose a coral-colored gabardine suit with grey hat and matching accessories and corsage of white gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. Radgley will reside on the bridegroom's farm at Shannonville.

REES — STEVENS

Tall standards of pastel tinted gladioli interspersed with ferns adorned the chancel rail and altar of Christ Church, Belleville, on Saturday, September 26th, at 2.30 p.m. when Joyce Stevens, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stevens, became the bride of James Bruce Rees, of Toronto, son of Mrs. Ernest Rees, of Toronto, and the late Mr. Rees. Archdeacon Rev. J. B. Creegan, rector of the church, officiated.

Mr. John Cowden Withers, church organist, provided the wedding music and rendered "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her full length bridal gown of nylon net and lace over white satin with matching bolero, having Peter Pan collar embroidered with rhinestones and seed pearls, and long sleeves pointed over the wrists. Her long veil of nylon net and lace was held in place by seed pearls and rhinestone encrusted coronet. She carried a cascade bouquet of white pink roses, white chrysanthemums tied with white ribbon.

Miss Norma Parkhurst, of Vancouver, B.C., formerly of Belleville, was bridesmaid, attractively attired in a strapless gown of lime green taffeta and nylon net redingote, featuring long sleeves. She wore a matching juliet cap and carried a crescent-shaped bouquet of golden tinted roses and 'mums mantled with pink lacelon ribbon.

Mr. Walter Askew, of Toronto, was groomsman, while Messrs. Howard Hunter, of Toronto, and Bud Hassett, of Port Hope, acted as ushers.

The reception was held in Christ Church parish hall, where the bride's mother, wearing navy crepe, with white accessories and

Dr. Templeton Gives Stirring Message on 'Christ Is the Answer'

"Christ is the Answer," was the subject of a searching message by the Reverend Charles B. Templeton, culminating the first week of the Templeton Crusade under the auspices of the United Church of Canada, on Thursday afternoon in the Memorial Arena before an assembly of 3500 persons.

The meeting was highlighted by the long-awaited union of two men from the United Church Presbyterian as they fused into the Templeton Crusade by the College, late band, to the strains of "Onward Christian Soldiers," and "Faith of Our Fathers," by the combined choirs and organ and piano, with Mr. Clifford Templer, organist of Holloway St. United, and Mr. Alec Gordon, organist of Bridge Street United church.

Which World You Choose?

Following the singing of the old triumph hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers" whose thrill of 3500 united voices reached to the high vaulted roof of the arena, Dr. Templeton opened his message with the question, "Suppose you were able to choose the period in the world's history in which you could be living, which would you choose: that of Columbus, Confucius, the time of literary brilliance of Shakespeare; or that of the art and philosophy of Greece with the illustrious Plato and Aristotle, or that of today, one of the most exciting, tremendous, centrancing times in the world's history?"

"The answer is obvious," Dr. Templeton, "is the time when one's life can count for the most. Today the world is split in two with an iron curtain between. It is a time of religious chaos when people are hungry for Christ. The world is in a confused state. We have knowledge, but not wisdom; we know more than those of olden times; we are technically giants; but do we know what to do with all we know?"

Scientists Do Not Know

During his stay in Princetown, Dr. Templeton, Dr. Templeton had the privilege of interviewing some of the renowned scientists of the day. "I put to each the question as to the answer of mankind's problems, and all said they did not know what time would bring.

"Ninety-nine per cent of the people of the world hate war; in the last conflicts there were 30,000,000 casualties; cities are still rubble heaps; families were broken up, and yet we apply to this world is plunging into another war. With all the knowledge of agriculture, many died of malnutrition in the last 20 years.

Modern Science

"Man has conquered all but his heart and morals. Modern science has given a man the equivalent of nine slaves. We have wonderful houses with every gadget to ease work, but do we have better homes? Has it taken a heap of living to make a home," said Edgar Guest, but it takes a heap of other things with God at the centre."

Contrasting the present day system of rearing the young, Dr. Templeton mentioned that he had been reared in a Christian home where the Golden Rule and also one of about two feet long, had been observed with reverence, and awe.

Speed But Not Direction

"Today we have speed, but not direction; our automobiles rush along the highways at 50, 60 and 70 miles per hour; our aeroplanes shrink through the sky at 1500 miles per hour; everything is at a tremendous rush, but what is the hurry when you don't know where you are going?

"Perhaps you may time, but what do you do with the time you save? We are too busy about little things, and miss the big things—leaving God out of our lives, the sanctity of our homes. Peter said in his great sermon to the people of his time, 'Save yourselves from this untoward generation,' this generation which is rushing round like a whirlpool and getting nowhere. What are we accomplishing with all this speed?

Medicine But Not Health

"We have medicines, but not corsage of red Sweetheart roses, received, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in grey crepe and lace, with corsage of pink Delight roses.

For the wedding trip to New York City, and other points in New Jersey, the bride chose a copper colored suit with green accessories and corsage of bronze roses. Mr. and Mrs. Rees will upon their return, reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were present from Kingston, Port Hope, Peterborough, Oshawa, Brantford and Fort Erie.

Prior to their marriage the bride was honored at a dinner party given by her associates of the business office of the Bell Telephone Company, when she was the recipient of a sandwich grill and Kenwood blanket. At a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Mary Rees when she received many lovely and useful gifts.

health; men are dying from coronary thrombosis, and coronary thrombosis, not recognizing that holiness and health are companions. Man is a nervous wreck from the same Greek root; man is not wholly well if in body only. Men have sick minds and sick souls. What do you do when life gets tough with an inner sanctuary to which to retreat, when you receive news of a loved one's death, or that your boy has been sent to prison? To whom do you go for help? God is the answer. He gave His only Son to die for you. He takes away fear and the recent grief went to prayer in Westminster Abbey, sorrowing and broken hearted, but came out from communion with God, serene and quiet in the knowledge of the shelter of His Everlasting Arms.

Jesus the Way

"Our trouble is that we are lost, like a hunter lost in the forest, who goes round in a circle. We need help, someone who knows the way, and there is only One who knows, Jesus, who said, 'I am the way.' Believe in Him; your life as Christ directs, He who died for you that you might have life and have it more abundantly."

Dr. Templeton also cited the case of a young man imprisoned for 14 years for banditry, who, in answer to a father's prayer, met Christ in his prison, and who turned 18 converted inmates to Jesus Christ, fulfilling the promise, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature."

"If you do not know Jesus Christ as your Saviour and Lord you are missing the greatest thing in life," said the evangelist.

Following the service many remained for further instruction.

Among the delegations present were those from Coe Hill; St. John's United Church, Tweed; Foxboro United Church; Grace United Church, Stirling; Odessa United Church; Sulphide United Church; Actinolite United Church; and from Greece, and Dr. Templeton's mother and Shannonville.

The combined choirs from the three United Churches, of city, Bridge Street, Holloway and Talcrescle, rendered the offertory anthem, "God So Loved the World," under the direction of Mr. S. Alec Gordon.

Two Beautiful Numbers

Mrs. Templeton again favored with two beautiful renditions, "The Holy City" and "Jesus is All I Need."

Among those on the platform was the Reverend R. A. Rowley, of Tabernacle United Church, who gave the invocation.

On Friday evening, which was Young People's Night, there were 2400 present.

The subject of Dr. Templeton's message tonight will be: "Show Me How to Pray."

Painted Toes, Stiletto Heels Newest Thing in Footwear

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Painted toes and stiletto heels are the newest things in footwear as shown by Mrs. Queen's shoemaker (H. and M. Rayne, Ltd.).

He says the styles the Queen may choose for her round-the-world tour the press and buyers flocked to inspect the royal shoemaker's fall offerings.

It's still a secret whether the Queen will wear the new pointed toe and spiked high-heel. It's tapering heel, barely wide enough to cover a dime, looks precarious although the maker claims they are as easy to wear as any heel of that height.

Marks Big Change

"It's the greatest change in footwear in a decade," said a firm spokesman. He believes the pointed toe looks so much slimmer than its squarer predecessors that it's bound to be popular. Anyway, the stiletto heel is the counterpart to lower styles for those who can't walk on stilts.

A closed court in black patent with the spiked heel, grosgrain vamp strip and wide bow, costs about £9. A sandal shoe with brown fur cuff, would be named quintelle" and black satin is more expensive.

Adding up the fall fashions, it seems the new trend is to taper from top to toe—from big collar and heavy shoulder line to narrow hem and pointed toe.

"The pointed toe adds femininity style.

to the top-heavy look and the slender stirip," said the show commentator. "Your old shoes will seem clumsy and big in contrast."

Even the mid-heel classics are low casuals shown in this collection but the light-weight fussy look. Most were low-fronted with side ties to the vamp, giving a smaller front.

Skirts A Factor

Manufacturers say the shorter skirts are likely to place greater emphasis on shoes in general and still probably lead to a preference for "high-rising" treatments. This is shown in a come-back of the "Saloon" sandal with T-strap from toe to a narrow ankle strap.

Cocktail sandals are even more "nude" than last year. Open toes persist—but you must show more than one toe this year.

Patent leather and kid add lustre to cocktail shoes and a range of "two-faced beauties" include satin panels inserted to liven up a matt surface.

"There's no similarity in the new and the old pointed toes," said the firm's representative. The new toe is comfortably built into the shoe, the old one "just went on forever."

Even if the Queen does not favor the new cut in shoes, there's little doubt her choice will be of fashion interest. When, as Princess Elizabeth, she stepped on Canadian soil in high-heeled, narrow-fronted shoes with "comfy" heels, she pioneered an almost forgotten style.

Fashionable Store Catering To Baby Carriage Trade

By FERN RICH

LONDON (Reuters)—A fashionable London department store, accustomed to catering to a now vanishing carriage trade, has switched its allegiance to the baby carriage trade and transformed its white marble entrance hall into a baby-buggy parking lot.

Standing guard over every motor - driven Silver Wilhelm Mitchell, 63, whose snowy hair makes him look like a venerable grandfather, with the snowy coat makes him hygienic.

Each morning at afternoon "Mitch" stocks, around to, chats with, tickles, pats, makes funny faces and quiet the cries and otherwise consoles about 80 babies in 20-last hours.

"They all come back to see me," he said proudly, one hand rocking a baby carriage, with the other dangled a hairy toy monkey before a wide eyed.

"Many of them are in school now, the little ones I knew when they were in arms only a few weeks old. But they all come and tell me about their dancing lessons or whatever."

26 Years At Store

Mitch, who has no children of his own, has been with Peter Jones store in the fashionable Chelsea district for 26 years. He helps out in the store's restaurant in the afternoons and after lunch, when over the baby-sitting detail.

A couple of times the babies have given him scares. Once, when 1:30 closing-time came around, he had a little girl left over. Evidently her mother just forgot to call for her.

He tried to get in touch with the mother—the detectives—and they got her back to her parents," he said.

Another day he saw an infant pulling at a long string—on the other end of which was a six-inch long parcel. The baby had tied the string was tied onto the handle of the baby-buggy.

"I told that mother plenty when she came for her baby," the elderly baby-sitter said.

A baby buggy is called a "pram"

Women's Class At 'Y' Ready To Operate

"All the preliminary preparations for the women's "Keep Fit" class at the YMCA have been completed," stated Mr. N. A. Beech, chairman of the physical education committee at the meeting last week. The class starts on October 7 and will continue to meet each Wednesday evening.

Mrs. E. D. McVey, a physical education specialist and a graduate of the physical education school of McGill University, will conduct the women's class this year.

A few minutes of light "keep-fit" exercises, volleyball, and other health-maintaining and recreational games will constitute the gym part of their program. Then, a shower and swimming follows from 8:30 to 8:45 p.m. The ladies may swim for fun and relaxation, or to improve their swimming. They also may attend the gym period only, or the swimming, or both.

"Thirty-six women had registered in last year's women's "keep fit" class. With the recently remodelled, clean and hygienic physical department this numbered will be doubled," continued Mr. Beech.

A Hew Way Of Handling An Old Problem

Remember the wife who wrote here, in a letter published in this column, to whom she was on the street one of the women with whom her husband had had an affair, and who "hardly came by without walking up to her and slapping her in the face!"

More than one wife has written to me since then to say they have felt exactly the same way. But one woman who read that letter took an entirely different viewpoint. Moreover, she herself had handled her own problem in a most unusual manner. I think she was on the verge of the columns who has been through the experience of having her husband carry on an affair with her intimate friend. Here is the story:

"When I read about that wife who wanted to slap the other woman," it reminded me of what a very wise old lady once said to me when I went to her for some kind advice about similar troubles of my own.

What she said was: 'Look to your husband, child. Men, dear, are weak and selfish, and have a thing that since the beginning of time. So be strong, child, and act as if like a pregnant woman—and don't blame the third party.'

"From that, I learned that a woman should blame neither 'the other woman' nor herself; for what a man does is his own doing, and she must be taken into consideration if in any effort to handle such a matter.

"As I said, I had trouble of my own, and here is what I did:

Through inheritance, I became the owner of a beauty parlor and I put my husband in charge of it and paid him a handsome salary. Naturally, he was meeting girls all the time and I knew he was having affairs with some of them.

"Once the day when a young girl who patronized my beauty parlor told me she had been having an affair with my husband, and asked me if my husband and I were going to get a divorce. When I told her we had no such idea, she was so upset and was obviously such a fool, that I saw it was useless even to try to talk sense to her. So I invited her to come home with me.

When we got there, I put her in my guest room, telling her to stay there until my husband got home and she would find out for herself whether or not there was any thought between us of divorce.

"Soon he came in, and kissed me, and said some very loving things to me. I knew the girl could hear everything that was going on and, from what I said to my husband and the fun we were having, I was sure it must be obvious to her that we were on the best of terms.

"Well, I sent my husband to the store on an errand, and then this girl came out of the guest room and told me she was through being fool enough to go with any married man.

"A year later, I got a note from her, telling me she had married in another city and was very happy expecting her first baby. Only then did I tell my husband about the incident. All he said was: 'Well, the trouble is that men are weak, and girls go for them in a big way.' From that time on, he was cured.

There is no doubt that this woman disposed of her problem in a very clever way. But I'm afraid her way would not be a practical one for most wives to follow. However get the chance to meet "the other woman."

I merely pass the letter on because it is so unusual, and because it might perhaps, start other wives thinking up new ways of handling their old problems according to individual situations.

Answers to Persistent Picklers

By Mary Moore

There are so many requests still reaching me for pickle recipes and repeats of recipes that appeared other years, that I can see that the pickle season definitely is not over.

Mrs. J. B. would like Green Tomato Pickle, Mrs. B. Powell that her pickles shrivel. Mrs. H. Hall wants method for Sweet Pickled Peppers (and gives her never-fail recipe for canning corn without a pressure cooker). Mrs. J. C. asks for Sweet Gherkin Pickles.

I will try to include all of these recipes in today's column so I will cut off the gossip and get down to serious pickling again.

Green Tomato Pickle

Slice very thinly 7½ pounds medium-sized green tomatoes (that have been washed, cored) and 2 pounds onions (that have been peeled and cored. Arrange, layer by layer, alternate layers of fruit and vegetable, sprinkling between the layers some salt — using ½ cup salt altogether. Cover and let stand overnight. In the morning drain, rinse with cold water, and drain again very well. In a cheesecloth bag tie the whole spices: 1 tablespoon each mustard seed, whole allspice, celery seed, whole cloves, peppercorns. Make 2 vinegar syrup of 3¼ cups of brown sugar and 2 cups white vinegar and add to this while it is cooking to boiling point the bag of whole spices and a tablespoon dry mustard. When it comes to boiling point add the drained tomatoes and onions and ½ lemon sliced very thinly and 1 thinly sliced sweet green peppers. Cook gently for ½ hour, stirring carefully and frequently to prevent sticking. Remove spice bag and pack in sterile pint jars and seal. Makes about 3 or 4 pints, depending on brand of jars you use.

To Mrs. O. B. I would like to say that pickles spoil for several reasons: (1) cucumbers were not fresh enough; (2) cucumbers were not brined in strong enough brine, or were brined in too strong brine. (3) Too much sugar was used. If the blossom end of pickles is split for ¼ inch and with a sharp knife they can absorb the liquid much better, especially when the skin has wrinkled slightly. Unless a dependable recipe says differently use these proportions for your brine: 1 cup salt to 10 cups water. If any suggestions do not correct your trouble write to me and I will send you complete brining instructions.

Mrs. L. C.'s method for never-fail Canned Corn without pressure cooker is: Cut corn from cob raw, pack in jars till the juice comes over the top using a small wooden masher that fits into jar. To each quart add 1 teaspoon salt. Screw tight, put jars in boiler and boil 3½ hours. Screw tight.

I am not certain what Mrs. L. G. means by pickled sweet peppers, but by the pickling industry what is called pickled sweet peppers is merely sweet peppers with vinegar and salt to thin cut, core and seed removed and packed in cupfuls, none down, after they are washed of course. These are then covered with a 40-degree brine which is in proportions of 1 lb. salt to each 16 cups cold water, poured over all till it is dissolved. Peppers must be held under brine with heavy plate or board. Plate or board should be sprinkled with additional salt. Add a little salt as the dry salt is absorbed into the brine for 10 days. These will keep all winter if kept cool.

Sweet Gherkins

Mrs. J. C. included here for Mrs. J. C.:

Four quarts gherkin-size cucumbers, 1 cup salt, 2 quarts water, 8 cups spirit vinegar, 2 teaspoons alum (powdered), 4 cups white sugar, 3 tablespoons whole mixed pickling spices. Wash cucumbers with scrubbing brush. Cover with cold brine made from salt and water. Let stand 24 hours. Drain, then wash in cold water, and drain again well. Heat together the vinegar, alum, sugar, spices tied loosely in cheesecloth bag and boil 10 minutes. Remove spice bag. Pack gherkins in hot sterile jars, cover with boiling spiced vinegar and seal. 8 pints.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Today's Tip On Making A Good Introduction

When you are making an introduction, you should make clear to each of the two persons what the other's name is. When you are introducing Miss A and Mr. B, don't say "Miss A" in the direction of Miss A, and "Mr. B" in the direction of Mr. B. . . . so that Miss A hears her name only, and Mr. B hears his name only. It makes sense that you should speak to Miss A's name to Mr. B, and Mr. B's name to Miss A. Otherwise the chances are that neither will be able to catch the name of the other.

The Marriage At The Parsonage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The plan for the wedding is that the couple are to be married in their minister's parsonage. After the ceremony they are returning with their guests to the bride's home, for a simple reception. The question is: how many can go with the prospective bride and groom to the parsonage for the ceremony? I maintain that the couple should be married at home and have their own guests, that it isn't right to expect the minister to do that.

M.

It is the bride-to-be and the groom-to-be who decide where, under their circumstances, they wish to be married. Many couples prefer to be married in a church or chapel, or in a rectory or parsonage or manse, rather than in a home, office, or club. And apparently this is the preference of this couple. Usually when the marriage takes place at the parsonage, only the bride and groom, their parents, their two attendants (best man and maid, or matron of honor), and perhaps two or three intimate friends are invited. "But always of course, courtesy to the minister, demands that the bride and groom, or the bride and her mother, consult beforehand (when the date and hour are arranged for) with the minister as to his convenience and suggestions. He is quite accustomed to be consulted as to being consulted as to these arrangements, and, since usually the space available is limited, he will be forthright in his suggestions.

The reception does not take place at the parsonage, and may be as large as desired.

Seating In Church

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When my husband and I attend church, and our daughter and her husband are with us, who should follow the usher? And in what order should we enter the pew?

2. When the usher places the chair for the lady at the table, should he stand by the side of her chair or behind it?

Reader

1. When there is no usher, you walk with him, and your husband follows. If only one usher is to seat you four (as would be usual), you walk with the usher, your husband following, and then your daughter and her husband, together. A quite customary order in entering the pew: your daughter's husband is to enter the pew first; then you; last, your husband. But if you and your husband prefer another order, it is quite proper to follow any decided-on order.

2. The man stands behind the lady's chair.

BEAUTY

Eradicating That Extra Chin

Experienced facial operators claim that, in most cases, they are successful in reducing a double chin by using massage, which is also recognized by the medical fraternity as a factor in rebuilding broken-down tissues. Of course, results are not achieved rapidly whether you have treatments by a professional or do the job yourself.

The double chin is usually the result of too much indulgence in the good things of the table, but sometimes it is the habit of carrying the head down and forward that weakens the fibers of the throat. Watch the secondary chin when it first appears and treat it, roughly, as the first sign of a crossline you can suspect that the unwelcome visitor is on the way. If it has already developed, don't expect results in a hurry. Remember, it was a long time coming.

Plan to devote ten minutes at bedtime to eradication of the unwanted fat. Start with a soap and water massage, using a mitt that will be warm and glowing.

Apply a heavy emollient to the face and neck; you might as well make a complete job while you're at it. Rub the neck up and down with flattened fingers. Tap the cheeks and forehead briskly. Make sweeping circles around the eyes.

Pick up the flesh under the chin, roll it between thumb and first finger. Start with fingers of both hands in the center of the chin, gripping out toward the sides, first along the jaw line, then gradually working downward. The purpose is to dissolve the fat cells. Keep your head on level when doing this.

Then follow the head back', and, with flattened fingers placed low upon the throat, sweep upward to the chin tip, making circles along the line of the jaw. Finish with a brisk slapping and tapping.

While you cream remains on, frisk an ice cube over the throat and chin. There's nothing like it to tone saggy tissues. If you have a chin strap, let it hold an ice cold compress. In a short time the flesh will be tingling, showing that circulation has been well stimulated.

In the morning lave with cold water and apply an astringent.

Balloon Crowns, Big Brims Ingredients in Hat Picture

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Balloon crowns, 20-inch brims, elderdown trimmings and jewel-bright accessories are the ingredients of the winter hat picture drawn in London by Erik, the Danish milliner.

This tall, blonde man-about-town with hat shops in London's Knightsbridge, Paris' Montparnasse and Copenhagen, has not fallen for the ball-hats and smaller brown with the couture winter clothing styles.

Erik declares that "modern's" head, in London at least, will be well covered.

Fees Not Costly

At prices working girls generally pay for a dress, suit or coat, well-to-do customers may buy a restaurant hat in aquamarine velvet with pillbox crown, Scotch brim and black feather trimming. Or there's a "picker's" cap of black velvet with fronds of ostrich floating down from the tall crown. Or a tiny, Edwardian toque of cobalt-blue velvet, circled with white ostrich brim.

Demurely saucy for that classic suit are balloon-crowned hats in plush velours, lindsay, broad overslouched men's bowlers with saw-off brims. In assorted fur felt, striped with black, they sport two-inch ribbons and fish-net veils. They sit straight on the head over a smooth hairstyle and have higher crowns than the riding bowlers of side-saddle days.

Of similar height are the square-crowned pork-pie hats with wide ribbons ending in long black bows. The elderdown flavor is accentuated by a wide trim of snow-white elderdown, framing the face.

Used only on black velvet toques that can be seen from the front. They come in emerald, purple, royal blue and stripes, all trimmed with black.

Poke-bonnet styles with tall crowns taperiton to a flat top would be not the picture with bell skirts, mittens and high-button boots, and because the three-inch trim is merely a backing covered with soft silky taffeta. It looks exactly like the swansdown on a baby's bonnet.

Cozy winter styles include sophisticated pillboxes attached to pearl tiers completely covering the hair. A high pillbox in emerald green jersey, trimmed with black, is fixed to an 18-inch-wide, elbaid stole, fringed with black. The stole ends, draping the shoulders and framing the face, is fixed beneath the hat's coat or dress neck to swing in loose panels—or is flung carelessly over a shoulder.

Excepting shallow toques and a few embroidered skull caps for evening wear, the hat has height to the crown or the brim tilt—even head-hugging bonnets tilted over one ear.

Softer colors include "winter white," suggestive of the translucency of diamonds or block ice. In pique, spotted with black velvet medallions, it's chosen for an under-sized French Apache cap, with cocky tilt, squished-crown look and matching cravat.

Russian Upper Class Growing Instead of Dwindling--Whitney

Editor's note: So the Russians are all one happy family in a classless society? Tom Whitney, AP correspondent who lived in Moscow nine years, says the Red class upper class is growing rather than dwindling.

By TOM WHITNEY

LONDON (AP)—A jewelry store on Moscow's Petrovka street recently displayed an emerald of several carats, priced at 35,000 rubles.

That is about as much as an average Russian would earn in 4½ years. It is officially 36,750.

The store displayed the jewel because it knew there were potential customers.

Soviet propaganda contends Soviet society is "classless." Anyone who has seen Soviet citizens riding around Moscow in big, black 21st-or-55m limousines will realize this is not so.

Small Pobeda automobiles are priced at 16,000 rubles ($4,000) each. The demand is such that a long line of prospective purchasers assembles each morning at Moscow's one auto store. This means certain Russians can lay down in cash as much as the average worker earns in two years (there is no instalment buying).

Who are these well-heeled citizens?

First of all, the upper class includes officers, particularly the senior officers in the armed services, and of militarized and semi-militarized organizations such as the police.

Increasing In Size

There are high-ranking industrial and economic executives, scientists and research men. There are responsible government and party officials, and successful people from the literary and artistic world. A certain number of technicians and workers, for reason of special skills or work in particular regions, benefit from special bonus payment schemes. Certain collective farm executives and farmers benefit from special bonus schemes for particular crops. Finally, some doctors and other professional men have lucrative private practices.

Often times big apartments costing nothing or almost nothing, the use of an official car at all times, and like privileges go with jobs the regime considers important. This upper class is certainly increasing in size. As the state grows larger and more complex it needs more and more executives and specialists.

Some Soviet citizens make fantastic amounts of money. This applies particularly to the more renowned doctors with private practice. Writers, if successful, earn so much money they don't know how to spend it. Top scientists and generals are said to make very big salaries. And income tax rates are low. The top surtax rate is 13 per cent for "workers and employees", a category which includes most of the upper class.

How do people get into the upper class?

Must Have Education

The main factor to start with is education. Talent, hard work and occasional intrigue also play vital roles.

Some sprang from pre-revolutionary upper and middle class. Most of the present members, however, were brought up by the revolution from families of workers and peasants. These people are particularly strong for the Soviet regime, of course, since it gave them their opportunities.

Access to the class of class is still not closed to talented and hard working youths from families of workers and farmers. But the new upper class tends to recruit its ranks from among children of families already upper class.

MURDER, SUICIDE

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—A 66-year-old farmer killed his 59-year-old wife at their home Friday and then committed suicide, police reported. Dead are Alec Nesplak and Mrs. Pauline Nesplak of Canyon district, 85 miles southeast of here. Police said a shotgun was found beside Nesplak's body.

Eisenhower Moves to End Dock Strike

The French liner, S.S. Liberte, shown coming into a New York pier without the aid of tugs, was one of the first big transatlantic liners hit by the strike of the eastern U.S. coast dock workers. Tug employees, also members of the International Longshoremen's association, refused to work as 60,000 dockers went on strike from Maine to the Virginia capes. The walkout was called by the Longshoremen's association after the union's failure to win a new contract with shipping employers. Although President Eisenhower invoked the Taft-Hartley law, the strike is expected to run for a few days until a court order injunction is obtained.

Leon Jouhaux, member of the French U.N. delegation and eminent French trade union official, sits on his luggage at a New York pier waiting for help which never came. The Liberte is one of 100 ships affected by the strike of dock workers. Many vessels were hurriedly re-routed to Halifax. —Central Press Canadian Photos.

More than 7,500 longshoremen went on strike in the port of Philadelphia, tying up virtually all business in the second largest U.S. port. The walkout in Philadelphia was called in support of New York dock workers. This scene shows a large group of longshoremen standing idle around the dock where they normally work.

MARMORA

H-S Association Resumes Meetings

MARMORA — Marmora Home and School Association resumed its monthly meetings at Marmora public school on Wednesday evening with a session outstanding for attendance and interest occasioned.

The acting president, Mrs. Roy Frost, was in the chair. Prior to the meeting had been opened she welcomed the many parents and ones which included several new faces. Mrs. Frost mentioned the office of treasurer, vacated by Mrs. Robert Gray, had been filled by Mrs. Leighton McGinnis, who then presented a favorable financial statement. Mrs. Moe Grimly reminded members of their annual fees being due, many of whom had request handed them in at the close of the meeting.

A letter to the Marmora president, received from Mrs. Clarence Cooper, of Lakefield, was then read. Mrs. Cooper, having mentioned her appointment as district chairman, called attention to the regional conference to be held in Peterborough on October 31 and asked that the local association be represented. News of this conference was hailed with pleasure by members and it is expected that a goodly number will attend.

Mrs. Frost thanked the mothers and others who had helped with the June picnic and said there would be an auction sale in addition to other features at the October meeting.

Principal E. C. Prentice took the attendance of parents and grandparents, resulting in the prize being awarded to Mrs. E. Manchester's class.

Diplomas Awarded

Diplomas to this year's graduates were presented by Donald Marett, chairman of the Marmora Public School board. Those who graduated were: Marion Wells, George Horton, Annette Provost, Marie Empey, Harvey Martin, Joan Villett, Ralph Martin, Ronald Wells, Donna Osborne, Michael Knorr, Marion Chrysler, Alberta Moffat, Joyce Stone, Patricia Spry and Deanna McCoy.

This was followed by a talk by Principal Prentice, who called for the cooperation of parents with the teaching staff to ensure the better conduct of pupils.

He mentioned that despite the fact that over 30 former pupils were attending the re-opened school at Tiffin this term there were still 230 pupils on the roll as last year. He asked that no criticism of teachers take place in front of the pupils. If such were necessary it should be addressed to the teacher personally.

He also mentioned that parents could be assured of supervision of their children at 8.45 a.m. and 1.15 p.m., 15 minutes before the opening of sessions and further remarked that they were doing their best with the safety patrols that had been set up.

Significant Suggestion

Another significant suggestion related to clothing. Because some pupils were wearing the same style and color of clothing his suggestion was that parents mark their children's clothing with the child's name. He said that the wearing of heavy clothes and rubber boots during sessions was also to be discountenanced; the temperature of the school was maintained to the proper degree. He further reminded parents that it was illegal for children to ride bicycles on sidewalks.

In conclusion, he urged parents to see that their children avail themselves of the fine reading facilities of Marmora Public Library, a splendid service which is free to children.

Mr. Prentice received much applause for his counselling discourse.

With Mrs. James Heath playing the choruses of 20 songs, a musical drama counted was supervised by Mrs. E. Manchester, to be won on a tie-breaker between four ladies, by Mrs. Frank Bobyk.

Parents of the pupils of the fourth room served refreshments and in the social half hour teachers and parents profitably fraternized.

Marmora Women's Institute held a euchre party on Wednesday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. M. Knorr. There were six tables in play and the prizes went to Charles Cronkwright and Mrs. Donald Donaldson. A drawing for a cake took place with Frank Leal being successful.

Mr. Samuel Barnum, of Kingston, visited relatives here Wednesday.

Mr. Ed. Barnum, of Belleville, has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Alice Gano.

Deerhorn Is Killed Recently

Wells, yielded the creditable total of $346.09, of which sum $222.60 was obtained by house-to-house canvass. The balance was from the street tag. The amount is an increase on last year's total.

Lethal Crop to Raise Mortality Rate Among Predatory Beasts

By PETER MURRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — A lethal crop is being sown over the British Columbia countryside—deadly seeds to raise the mortality rate among predatory beasts.

Provincial predator control officers have swapped carbines for poisoned horsemeat, strategically placed at more than 1,000 "baiting sites" from the state of Washington to the Yukon.

Marauding coyotes and wolves are the chief targets of the hundreds, but four kinds take a big yearly toll of cougars, bears and foxes.

G. A. West, supervisor of the predator control division, explained that the object of his department is to protect human life, livestock, game interests and other industries such as trapping.

May Red Scourge

With an expanding staff which now numbers 13, Mr. West hopes eventually to do away with "nuisance" kills and all predator hunting handled by government personnel.

Private individuals now are encouraged to hunt predators in certain areas, but the department insists they observe rigid regulations.

Because of the potentially dangerous nature of the poisoned poisoning operations, the predator hunters are "sworn in" to carry out their work "with utmost care and intelligence."

"One foolish mistake could be costly in terms of public confidence."

Surveys are made before the baits are placed and the location of all poison stations is carefully recorded.

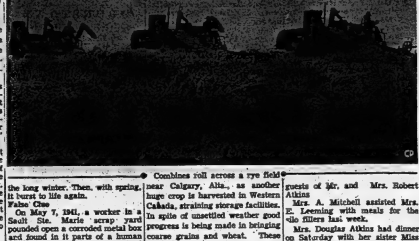
The department tries to place baits in difficult areas before the deep snows, although the possible effects on hunters, hibernating animals and birds all have to be considered.

In the program's early stages some areas where predatory animals were reported had to be left untouched because of the objections of ranchers who feared the possibility of decoying coyotes or favored the "balance - of - nature" theory of control.

Mr. West, who states flatly that there is no such thing as "balance of-nature" control, says most of the objections have been overcome and the public now is co-operating.

In its operations this fall, the predator hunters will use more than 80,000 pounds of horsemeat injected with sodium fluoroacetate or "1080" as the division refers to the poison.

Use Tracks, Planes



Most baits are placed from trucks but airplanes are used in larger, inaccessible areas or where speed is required.

For the most part, the poison stations are located in open spots where there is less danger of valuable fur-bearing animals coming upon them.

The predator control program was started in B.C. in 1933 but has made its greatest strides in the last four years.

Claims for bounties, which sat up one-third of the division's $100,000 annual budget, have dropped noticeably in the last two years and stockmen report losses from their herds are falling off rapidly.

Harvest Huge Crop

Combines roll across a rye field near Calgary, Alta., as another huge crop is harvested in Western Canada, straining storage facilities, in spite of unsettled weather good progress is being made in bringing coarse grains and wheat. These combines are on the farm of Mrs. M. K. Black, several miles southwest of Calgary.—(CP Photo.).

Putting Business on Cash Basis Fair Say Storekeepers

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—In western farming areas, credit keeps many farmers going until crops are sold and they can pay their bills.

Merchants in northwestern Manitoba say this is fine, in theory, but a crop failure breaks the chain and it's always the storekeeper who gets stuck.

Their solution—and they insist it is a fair one—is to put all business on cash basis.

The experiment began in this community of 5,300 July 1. It has since spread north to Swan river, west to Gilbert Plains and southeast to Ochre River, Ste. Rose and Makinak.

Movement Grows

General stores and groceries have led the way. Other towns are watching results and may join Gilbert Plains (pop. 1,000) plans to back the experiment 100 per cent. Starting July 1, every merchant, from butcher to implement dealer, cut off credit.

"I think the merchants have done a wise thing," says mayor George Scaif of Swan River. He explains:

"We've had it a little tough here the last few years. The 1950 and 1951 crops were not as good; we lost pretty well all of them. The 1953 crop was good but marketing was unsatisfactory. This year, weather has prevented harvesting."

In each town, merchants simply extended credit for so long on a cash basis. There is no building contract among them. Success depends on fair dealing, the unwritten agreement.

Unfair System

Merchants sum up their stand this way: "In the past we granted almost unlimited time for payment of accounts and have found this unsatisfactory. Our cash customer paid the same prices as credit customers, who received all the advantages."

"As soon as you give credit, you have enemies," said grocer Rick Olds, Sheets of Dauphin.

"Now we feel better when we pass people on the street because they owe us nothing. They feel better, too, because they're not in debt. Everybody is more friendly."

The owner of one store carrying $20,000 on its books said: "Even if we lost a quarter of our customers by going on a cash system, we'd still be ahead, or at least, even."

Some business men said there was a fall in turnover at first, and they lost a few customers, but it balanced out and today business is better than ever.

PRETTY CO-ED

VANCOUVER (CP)—First co-ed of Chinese extraction ever admitted to a sorority at the University of British Columbia is 19-year-old Diana Lam, pretty second-year arts student. She has been taken into Alpha Gamma Delta, technically classed as a "women's fraternity."

Kirks Left Home 13 Years Ago Never Have Been Seen Since

By BEN WARD,
Canadian Press Correspondent

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—It was a crisp, autumn day—Oct. 4, 1940.

It was a beautiful day for trawling Lake Kirk, a successful North Bay business man, loaded bagpipe into his auto for a holiday writing for his wife Dolly to dress, then went back to his house to hive the four young children good-bye.

After Mrs. Kirk spent another quarter-hour instructing the housekeeper what to do, the Kirks drove off.

They never returned. That day, somewhere on the lonely 183-mile highway between Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie, Earl and Dolly Kirk, their car and everything in it vanished.

Still A Mystery

Today, 13 years later, there is still no motive or clue in northern Ontario's weirdest mystery and one of Canada's strangest disappearance cases.

The Kirks had set out for Winnipeg. They drove 81 miles to Sudbury where they stopped to visit Jack Newstead, friend and business associate of Kirk. He wanted them to stay overnight. But the Kirks declined. They said he wanted to reach the Sault that night and catch the morning ferry to the United States side.

Later, at a gas station, another Sudbury man, Robert Shea, pointed out the street which led to westbound Highway 17. He is the last person known to have seen the Kirks.

It was nearly three weeks before the disappearance became known. Mail sent to Earl Kirk at Winnipeg was returned to North Bay undelivered. Newsted reported that Kirk failed to show up for a business appointment at Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 21. The appointment had been made when Kirk visited him Oct. 4.

Police were called in. A check with the Immigration office showed the Kirks had not crossed the border. They hadn't been seen anywhere in Sault Ste. Marie.

Widespread Search

Kirk's employer, an oil company, sent a gang of men to help police drag lakes and rivers along the highway and search the bush. Nearly 100 men worked for six weeks without uncovering a clue. When snows piled up and rivers froze the hunt was called off.

Kirk's affairs as district manager for an oil company were in order. His chartered bank account was intact. Friends said the couple disagreed occasionally but not seriously. Both doted on their four children, the eldest nine years old the youngest an infant boy of four months. When the pair failed to return, the children were sent to Kirk's relatives in Winnipeg.

A murder theory had no support.

Kirk's friend Newstead discounted the possibility that Kirk had picked up a homicidal hitch-hiker. If Earl was alone he might have picked someone up, but not when Mrs. Kirk was with him.

The mystery smouldered through

Seven Men Feared Lost to World Are Found in Quebec Bush

Seven men, feared lost in the Quebec wilderness, 175 miles north of Sagotville have been found alive and apparently well. Their Norseman plane beached on remote Emmanuel lake, was sighted by crew, seen above, of an RCAF Lancaster. The Norseman went down in the bush on a flight from Fort Chimo to Roberval five weeks ago. Since that time nearly 60,000 miles have been flown in an effort to find it. A Canso amphibian landed on the lake and picked up three men. The other four had set out the week before to walk for help. It is believed they would return to their camp when they spotted planes flying overhead. The missing men, among them was J. Ray Vandervelt, of Toronto and Richard Everitt, of Montreal, were returning to base from iron country near Ungava Bay.

Greenlease Family Confident Son Will be Returned Home; FBI May Step Into Case

By Al DOPKING

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The wealthy parents of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease still clung today to the hope that he would be returned safely to the kidnapping case entered its second week with the possibility that the Federal Bureau of Investigation may step in officially.

A day of silence by the family was broken by Paul Greenlease, an adopted son. Asked if the family had any reason to think little Bobby wouldn't come back safe, Greenlease replied:

"Oh, no. We don't think that. Mother would never think that."

But he gave no reason for the hope, insisting that if the family has had any secret word it disappears "I don't know anything about it."

"We'll just have to be patient."

Under the Lindbergh kidnapping law, the FBI may step in on the seventh day of a case on the assumption the victim has been taken across a state line.

Asked if the family contemplated the FBI entering the case, Greenlease said he didn't know and he didn't think any member of the family knew.

FBI Silent About Plans

The FBI has been silent about its plans. Police have maintained a hands-off policy at the request of the family. But police chief Bernard Johnson said if the FBI moves in his force certainly would co-operate with it.

The 71-year-old father, Robert C. Greenlease, and his business associates have worked quietly from within the big, red brick home in an effort to negotiate Bobby's release.

There was little activity at the home Sunday.

A priest, Rev. Herman J. Hoch, spent about 45 minutes at the home. Mrs. Greenlease is a member of his parish. He said she had been at mass several times during the week. Previously it was thought she had been out of the house only once.

Prayers for the safe return of Bobby were offered in numerous churches here, Roman Catholic and Protestant alike.

Bobby was abducted Monday from a private Catholic school by a woman who posed as an aunt.

BIRDS HIT BUILDINGS

BOSTON (AP) — Hundreds of small birds migrating south from Canada have been killed in collisions with Boston's tallest buildings, Robert Graves of the Audubon Society said Sunday. He said the birds, mostly warblers and thrushes, apparently don't judge distances well. A number were killed recently in New York when they flew into the Empire State Building.

Hepatitis Beaten After Stiff Fight In Nova Scotia

HALIFAX (CP) — The battle against hepatitis has ended in Nova Scotia for this year and the disease could not return, officials say.

The virus may crop up any time, although it thrives best during summer months. Health officials estimate there were about 4,000 cases this year.

Hepatitis, a liver ailment that causes fatigue, headaches, indigestion, stomach pains and nausea, struck in epidemic proportions at Digby and Yarmouth in a dozen centres. Most cases were mild but three persons got assignments in the services.

It is highly contagious and can be fatal.

Sentence Fell

More than half of Digby's 2,000 population was affected. Schools and hotels reported business fell sharply.

When people heard we had a disease with a queer name they seemed to clear out or stay away," said one storekeeper.

There were outbreaks in communities on the province's north and south shores and all parts of the Annapolis Valley.

Dr. L. Van Norden and Dr. J. C. Sinclair, epidemiology experts in the federal health department, were sent from Ottawa to study the Digby repidemic.

The strange disease is always prevalent, but its usual method of transmission is unknown. It could be transmitted through a faulty sewer supply or sewage disposal system.

There was no evidence at Digby of the virus being in the water supply or milk. It can be passed from person to person.

Most Susceptible

Most persons are susceptible, but the incidence is highest among children and young adults. Second attacks are infrequent and the incidence climbs in June and falls in late September with the coming of colder weather.

The virus might leave the body through nose, mouth or bowels, and convalescence is prolonged, sometimes several months. United States servicemen who were laid low during serious epidemics in Germany, Japan and Korea were usually out duty 90 days.

The disease responds to treatment. Gamma globulin, used to combat poliomyelitis, is a good preventative. At Digby, where there wasn't enough globulin and a quarantine was considered impractical, doctors advised residents to avoid crowds and get plenty of rest.

Comet Jet Liner Makes Crossing In Record Time

LONDON (CP)—An RCAF Comet jet liner added by a tail-wind streaked across the Atlantic from Canada to Britain Sunday in five hours and 26 minutes.

The pilot, Wing Cmdr. Howard Morrison, said on arrival at London airport he thought the time was the best ever for the crossing.

However, the time was about the same as that of four hours and 14 minutes taken by a U.S. airforce B-47 jet bomber on an Atlantic crossing July 22.

The British-built jet averaged 490 miles an hour for the 2,600 miles from Goose Bay, Labrador to London.

Aboard were 29 Canadian airmen due to train on Comets in Britain.

Wing Cmdr. Morrison, 35, commanding officer of the RCAF's 412 transport squadron at Rockcliffe, Ottawa.

Wing Cmdr. Morrison was born at Lauder, Man., and lived later at Winnipeg.

U.S. and Korea Sign Mutual Defence Pact

John Foster Dulles, U.S. secretary of state, left, and Dr. Y. T. Pyun, foreign minister of the Republic of Korea, are shown as they affixed their signatures to a mutual defence pact at a formal ceremony at the state department in Washington. The secretary expressed "sincere hope" that the U.S. Senate will bring the treaty into force quickly by ratifying it immediately after Congress reconvenes in January. The U.S. has similar treaties with Australia, New Zealand and the Philippines. —Central Press Canadian.

H-Bomb Hazard Quite Evident Says Director

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mobilization director Arthur S. Flemming said Sunday that Russia now "is capable of delivering suddenly and without warning the most devastating weapon ever devised by man on chosen targets in the United States."

Flemming told a press conference that the statement, made in his quarterly report to President Eisenhower, referred to thermonuclear weapons — the hydrogen bomb.

Mobilization must be geared to that threat, he said.

The statement was broader and more positive than any previous public appraisal of Soviet military development, although the atomic energy commission has spoken of Soviet tests of a "thermonuclear" device.

Questioned on this point later, Flemming said he had not intended in his report to the White House, "to add anything to the statement made by the AEC chairman—I feel that all official pronouncements on this matter should come from the commission."

Flemming did not indicate that there are plans to speed the military build-up, although the national security council is re-evaluating the U.S. defence status in the light of the H-bomb hazard.

Accused Dies After Being Lodged in Jail

NEW HAMBURG (CP)—Herbert Otto, 44, of Kitchener, died after being lodged in the Kitchener jail following an accident in New Hamburg Saturday night.

Police chief Orville Thomas of New Hamburg said a car driven by Otto crashed head-on into a car driven by Mrs. Ruth Seymour of Toronto.

Mrs. Creamer suffered cuts about the face and knees. Her three-month-old daughter was badly shaken.

Otto, examined by Dr. T. R. Frick, said he was unhurt. He was taken to Kitchener by chief Thomas, and booked on a charge of driving while his ability was impaired. After returning here, chief Thomas was informed Otto had died in his cell.

He succeeds Henry Clapp, who has been given an appointment with the Daily Mail, largest of the Rothermere papers. Gunn came from the Mail. He was editor of Lord Beaverbrook papers.

Flames Eat Excursion Boat Down to Hull

DETROIT (AP)—Flames ate the Great Lakes excursion steamer Put-In-Bay, down to her steel hull in Lake Erie Saturday night. It was planned that way and the once-proud vessel was towed to a spot where thousands who had ridden her over the last 42 years could see.

The Put-In-Bays steel hull and engines are going to be cut up for scrap.

Named for a tiny island in Lake Erie, to which she once made regular excursions, the Put-In-Bay was one of only three operating excursion boats left in Detroit. The others shuttle between here and Bob-Lo Island, a recreation spot on the Canadian side down the Detroit river.

Prospects Appear Brighter For European Army Scheme

WASHINGTON (AP)—The long-stalled European army, projected as the military heart of Western defence against Russia, is reported by high officials here to be moving off dead centre at last.

During the summer opinion at the state department took a pessimistic turn, but now it is strongly optimistic about chances for saving the plan, in which Germany is armed West Germany to the strength of the West.

German Essential

United States policy has been built on the assumption that German forces are an essential part of an effective defence of western Europe.

The proposal took treaty form in May, 1952, calling for a European Defence Community which would put French, German and other troops in a common army. France provided this formula for getting German manpower while guarding against revival of German militarism.

French Opposition

The treaty was supposed to be ratified by mid-1953. It wasn't ratified, although West German ratification was substantially completed last year. The successive French administrations have run into big difficulties in the form of internal opposition to rearming Germans.

That has been mainly responsible for stalling the whole undertaking, and, in the view of some officials here, for undermining the very heart of Western defences. Officials here, however, have privately expressed sympathy with the difficulties of the French position.

Reasons For Hope

Several things are advanced as reasons for hope.

justification for what are regarded as greatly-heightened prospects:

1. The Sept. 6 election victory of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in West Germany stands out as a vote not only for Adenauer's policy of European co-operation but also for a moderate German leadership as opposed to extremists of right and left. This probably is the first inconclusive ballot, on which Poland will seem getting as many as 10 votes.

The Russian-American dispute over the summer may now have stemmed from the big powers' 1946 agreement to withdraw from Trieste, which allotted one of the country's six non-permanent seats to the East European country blessed by Russia.

Item, U. S. contends the agreement was for one year only, to end Sept. 15, 1947. Russia maintains insist it was a permanent pact.

The American disregarded the agreement in 1949, successfully supported Yugoslavia in the split with the Cominform. Russian-backed Czechoslovakia was defeated.

In the elections, all for three-year terms, to the two other UN councils, Afghanistan, Indonesia and Pakistan were in the field for the economic and social group's seat in the Philippines is leaving it. Belgium, Colombia and Sweden's seat and Ecuador that of Uruguay. UN observers assured the re-election of Britain and the Soviet Union, both members of the "permanent" Big Five.

Of the two trusteeship council vacancies, Haiti will stand opposition for the Dominican Republic's seat. Australia will stand as candidate for re-election, with India and Indonesia possible contenders.

Strike Is Not Only Threat To Canada's Merchant Navy

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—While a seamen's strike threatens to tie up most of Canada's deep-sea shipping, federal officials are quietly wrestling with the long-term problem of the fleet.

Long before the sailors launched their 11-week strike, the Canadian flag on the high seas in the face of a slump in ocean business and other difficulties.

The question has been before cabinet a number of times in the last few months. At present, it is before the cabinet's defence committee and the heads of a group of interdepartmental experts, to whom it has been referred it for more information before the ministers reach a decision.

No Speedy Decision

High officials say the walkout by members of the International Seafarers' Union (AFL-TLC), while bringing the issue to the front, is not likely to speed up any present federal aid measures on behalf of the fleet. Any proposals are likely would not come before Parliament meets.

The two basic questions are:

1 How many deep-sea ships should be under Canadian flag registry? (About 35 now operate.)

2. How will these be kept operating against toughening competition and with the second-highest running costs of any country's ships?

Subsidies Likely

Recommendations to cabinet involve subsidies of one kind or another, according to informants. Though this runs counter to normal government policy on shipping, officials say it appears the only solution if Canada is going to maintain a fleet under present conditions.

It is understood to be under consideration are the subsidization of deep-sea ship operations and aid for Canadian shipyards. A possibility is a government loan to encourage companies to order any new ships in the relatively high-cost Canadian yards.

May Modernize Fleet

Under consideration too is legislation to subsidize modernization of the fleet—now consisting largely of ships built during the rush period for the Second World War—through the design of a fast freighter that could be converted quickly for defence use. Designing work is under way in the government and the industry co-operating. But no decision has been made on whether the government would go in helping actual construction financially.

Estimates of cost to the federal treasury vary. The Canadian Maritime Commission in its record-recommending that 50 ships be retained under the Canadian flag, for the operation and alone, one estimate is that this would cost $20,000,000 a year. Assistance on the construction end would be additional.

Clash Shaping Up Between United States and Russia Over Security Council Vacancies

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Another outright clash between the United States and the Soviet Union shaped up today in United Nations assembly elections for the security council and world court judgeships.

The 60-nation assembly was called back into the first plenary session since last Tuesday for the annual elections. At stake were seats of the 11 security council seats, six places on the economic and social council and two of the 12 trusteeship council spots.

Candidates needed a two-thirds majority of valid ballots cast in the secret vote for election.

The big contest in the security council was for the seat Greece will vacate Dec. 31. The Soviet bloc has backed Poland for the place, while the United States announced its support for Turkey. The Philippines also entered 10 days ago, complicating the contest and threatening a long-drawn series of ballots.

The security council election took on added importance because the group's 11 members plus Canada form the disarmament commission which may have to deal with the hydrogen bomb as well as other weapons.

In the other two security council elections, Brazil and New Zealand were unopposed for the seats being vacated by Chile and Pakistan. All three places carry a two-year term.

Turkey Counts 40 Votes

Turkish delegate Selim Sarper said before the voting began that he counted on obtaining 40 votes in his country across. A Philippine spokesman said he was sure his country would vote for Turkey in the first inconclusive ballot, on which Poland was seen getting as many as 10 votes.

The Russian-American dispute over the summer may now have stemmed from the big powers' 1946 agreement to withdraw from Trieste, which allotted one of the country's six non-permanent seats to the East European country blessed by Russia.

Item, U. S. contends the agreement was for one year only, to end Sept. 15, 1947. Russia maintains insist it was a permanent pact.

Poison-Murder Of His Wife Brings Gallows

MONTREAL (CP)—Fortunat Dubuc, 52-year-old farmer from St. Isidore de Laprairie, Que., was sentenced Saturday night to be hanged Jan. 15 for the poison-murder of his wife.

A court of Queen's bench jury debated three hours before bringing in a verdict of guilty. Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure, donning a black, three-cornered hat and black gloves, ordered that Dubuc be hanged in Montreal's Bordeaux jail. Defence counsel Alexandre Chevalier said he will appeal the verdict.

The heavy set, wealthy American was accused of giving his wife strychnine poison last April so he could marry a 17-year-old domestic from the couple's farm.

In testimony earlier in the six-day trial, Dubuc said he had bought the strychnine to get rid of rats from his chicken and pig farms.

The domestic, Micheline Perreault, testified during the trial that she had given birth last May to a child fathered by Dubuc.

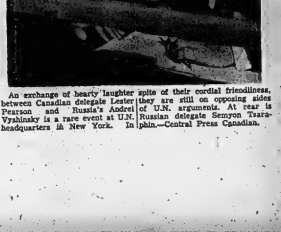
Bouhby, possible leg injuries, cuts and shock, all in Public General Hospital.



Fourteen were admitted to the hospital following the accident.

The accident occurred when the Kitchener-bound Gray Coach Lines bus was passed by a car—which then made a left turn. The car, driven by 31-year-old Lyle Hunter of Sherbrooke district, was clipped by the bus.

Sensational Hurling Duel Features Walkerton's 1-0 Win Over Point Anne

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Lady Luck shone down upon the Point Anne ballfield on Saturday afternoon but, alas, not for Mel Marsole and his taken-mates as the proud Eastern Ontario champions came out on the short end of a 1-0 score with the Walkerton Oldtimers.

The victory was the second in a row for Walkerton and gave them the Southern Ontario Intermediate "A" title.

Marsole, the well known dusky hurler, who for many years has bewitched, bothered and bewildered batsman after batsman with his variety of pitches had all his stuff working on Saturday as he allowed only three hits, fanned seven and walked many a one as only three men reached base. But, as fate would have it the Ox Point bats were silent whenever a runner did reach scoring position and you can't win a game on pitching alone.

George Zuk, the fastballing mighty mite from Walkerton, proved a worthy opponent for Mel as he scattered nine hits, knocks, one a pinch hit double by Jack Elliott in the ninth. He whiffed seven and issued two free tickets to first as he pulled out of trouble on several occasions.

Score in Second

The only break of the game came for the Oldgers in the second when Knox slashed out a double with one down. The next batter, Craig, promptly drove him home with a line single to centre. The next 21 men were retired in order before Freeman claimed a single in the ninth.

The Cementmen put together singles by Marsole and Jack Wardaugh in the second with one down but that's as far as they bit the dust. Again in the third Gilmour and Green reached base on an error and a walk with none down. Bob Strachan pushed the runners along with a sacrifice only to have Mulholland snatch a called third strike and Billy Strachan ground out to kill the rally.

Mike Whalen sent in Elliott to bit for Bob Strachan in the ninth and the never-say-die Cementmen saw a ray of light as Jack slammed a double off the glove of the third baseman. Art Genereux received a good hand as he stepped out of the dugout to bat for Mulholland but Zuk bore down and forced Art to pop to third and end the game.

Ted Maracle, sweat rolling down his brow, could hardly speak but he was one of the first to congratulate the victorious southern Ontario champions.

Kingsville Edges Wellington 6-3 For Banty Title

The district's last hopes for provincial championship went aglimmering on Saturday when the Point Anne softball team was edged by Walkerton 1-0 and Wellington's classy little bantam baseballers went down to a 6-3 defeat in Brantford before the Kingsville youngsters.

WINDSOR WINS

SARNIA (CP) — Windsor AKO swamped Sarnia Knights of Columbus 24-5 Saturday in junior Ontario Rugby Football Union competition.

The Knights were outclassed but pass interceptions added mostly to the lop-sided scoring.

Zino Karcz got one touchdown and three converts for AKO. The other Windsor majors were by Bob Fletcher, Pete Murphy and Ed Mularchyk. Fletcher picked up a single by rouging Al Phillips.

The lone Sarnia touchdown came on a quarterback sneak by Don Fowlie.

Habs Might be Team to Beat With Jean Beliveau in Livery

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—On the fairly safe assumption that big Jean Beliveau will wear the blue-blanc-rouge livery, Montreal Canadiens might be the team to beat all the way this season in their defence of the Stanley Cup.

Canadiens finished second to Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League race last season and then knocked off Chicago Black Hawks and Boston Bruins in the port-season series to win the world-title cup.

Acquisition of Beliveau would add immeasurably to Canadiens' scoring power where strength is most needed—down centre. The long-wanted Quebec star, prolific point-getter in junior and senior hockey, startled the league last season with a hat-trick performance as part of a five-goal contribution in three head-lease games he played with Canadiens.

Loss One Player

Canadiens have lost only one player since last season. Little Billy Reay, veteran centre, has moved on to coach Victoria Cougars of the Western Hockey League.

This doesn't necessarily mean all the other regulars are sure of their jobs. The battle at the training camp for jobs, particularly on the wings, has been terrific.

In the midst of the training grind, managing director Frank Selke and coach Dick Irvin were still in something of a dilemma about their forwards.

Selke put it this way: "We can't make up our minds. Some of the regulars have not been going as well as some of the newcomers but still have shown enough to cause us to withhold any definite decision."

Olmsted Looks Good

Al left wing Bert Olmsted appears to be surest of his job. Dickie Moore, Dick Gamble and Paul Meger have found plenty of connection from Eddie Mazur, Calum (Bekdy) MacKay and Gaye Stewart.

Mazur came from Victoria last spring and played a big part in Canadiens' Stanley Cup win. He looks ready for a regular job. Maca Kay, a regular but with Buffalo last season, also saw playoff duty and is a handy, rugged type of player. Stewart became Canadiens' property last season and was sent to Quebec Aces where he teamed with Beliveau and played a big part in tall Jean's season-long scoring spree.

There are at least two definite fixtures at right wing: Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion. The Rocket now 32 and starting his 12th season, is in top shape and in practice has worked on a line with Beliveau and Mazur. Geoffrion, 22, and starting his third full season, has lost none of his scoring punch.

Floyd Curry is the third regular. He is getting toughest competition from Lorne Davis, called up from Buffalo for the playoffs last season. Other candidates are Eddie Sowinski, acquired in a deal with New York Rangers, and Eddie Litzenberger, tall capable performer from Regina who played with Montreal Royals last season.

Veteran On Job

Ever-green Elmer Lach, 35, and starting his 14th NHL campaign, is back at centre, along with another veteran, Ken Mosdell, who is 31 and starting his 12th season, experience of two years' war service. Others from last season are John (Goose) McCormack, sweep-check defensive centre, and young Paul Masnick. A good prospect is Don Marshall, with Montreal Canadiens Juniors two years ago and with Cincinnati last season.

Selke indicated he will go along with last season's five defencemen to start the new campaign. The five are Butch Bouchard, 33, and ready for his 13th season; Doug Harvey, all-star defenceman; Tom Johnson, Dollard St. Laurent and Jim MacPherson. Other defencemen at the training camp include Jean-Guy Talbot, who may be returned to Quebec; and Rollie Rousseau and Walter Came, with Royals last season.

Gerry McNeil again has the goaltending job nailed down. His under-study will probably be Jean-Paul Renaud, ex-Royal, who will likely serve as fill-in goalie for any club in Canadiens' organization.

Yank Bats Thunder Home-Run Chorus; Mantle Blasts Grand-Slammer

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

A HEARTBREAKER!

Pat Marsolo can join the ranks of the "Frosher Rose."

The dusky hurling star of the Point Anne intermediate "A's" lost a heartbreaker at the Point on Saturday when the Walkerton team edged the Ox Pointers 1-0 to take the southern Ontario championship.

Marsolo and Geo. Zuk, Walkerton ace, hooked up in the tightest softball duel seen here in years. A double and a single in the second told the whole story. After that Marsolo and Zuk were invincible. Pat set the next 21 Walkerton sluggers down in order after the lone run was scored and deserved a better fate. But Zuk was good, too. His blazing fast ball ripped past the Ox Point sluggers or was fielded neatly by the starry Walkerton squad.

Hope blazed in the ninth when Jack Elliott hit a pinchdouble but Zuk wasn't through yet. He set down the side with no damage done and the Walkerton team trotted off the diamond after the toughest series of the year.

The Pointers were far from disgraced. They came up with a sensational effort in the playdowns after annexing the city championship and they went down fighting before a team that had just a mite edge. A pitcher with a little less ability than Zuk facing them, and the Pointers would have runs on to the all-Ontario finals. They proved to be a grand team and were as valiant in defeat as they were jubilant in victory. Mike Whalen and the Canada Cement Company, as well as the league they represented, can well be proud of the 1953 exploits of the Point Anne team.

"Attabey Carl, that's the theld time you get Collins on strikes and wit' two on this time and Bauer's a dead Sock, too. That's what I call gettin' out of jeppidy cheap. Say, where the Reese is jeppidy anyway. Probably one of dem kids hoip down on the island. How do you like that twobagger off the fence, Mr. Raschl Balk! Take theld Bobby, Now he's stainin' up and Mantle runs t'well home t'clobber dat t'rest is t'eat. Nice boardin', Billy. Now we'll mabber 'em' Strikeout number two for Mantle. Whut did I tell you. He goes down swinin' for the fourt' time, too]. Gee why does someone allus have to speet it for the Brooks . . . Woodling has to single and tie it up. Why couldn't he be a good jolk and whiff like Mantle an Collins? Thats what I call bein' very disregardless towards pitchers' feelins'.

"We'll get 'em, though. I gotta pre-ammunition were're goin' to wrap it up this inning. Hey'there, Raschl, look out how you t'row at Campanella's head. It's disportsmanship, if I ever saw it. If Grissly dont order him to bust he'll bust it right outta the park. There it goes. They cant catch us now. Alright, alright, send up them dern pinch-hitters, you Brenz Jolks. Can'll flatten em out like a queri. There's Hallowy fanzin'. Bring on Mize, who cares about him. I don't care if I am soilliquiain' out loud. C'MON YOU BUMS.

Series Notes

By Ken Glan

NEW YORK (AP)—Johnny Mize has reiterated his decision to retire after the world series. "Guess I've played my last game in Ebbets Field," he said Sunday, "and I hope there's be only one more in Yankee Stadium."

Billy Loes, who whipped the Yankees Saturday, was stopped for speeding while driving to the ball park before Sunday's game.

"I'm Billy Loes of the Dodgers," he told the police officer. "Look, buddy," came the sharp reply, "I'm a Yankee fan—here's your ticket."

Early arrivals Sunday were wondering whether Chuck Dressen came up with a sleeper when they saw a big pitcher firing "bullets" to the Brooklyn catcher. Turned out to be Don Newcombe, who had a 9-3 record this year with the Fort Sam Houston army team. He won't be able to pitch for the Dodgers until 1954, however.

The happiest guy in the Yankee dressing room after the game was Allie Reynolds. "I didn't figure I was going in, but they turned out all right," he said. "It was only a low fast ball I threw Robinson to get him to hit into the game-ending double play."

Steve Kraly, young Yankee lefty who hasn't seen any action in the series, has more to worry about than the Dodgers. A fire in his home in Whiting, Ind., Saturday night destroyed the kitchen and back porch.

Woodling, Martin, McDougald Hit for Circuit in 11-7 Win; Dodgers Take Sat. Game 7-3

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It's almost a sure thing these days that the two world series teams will play themselves one awful game along the way, the shortage of really good pitchers being what it is. The Yankees and Dodgers turned theirs in Sunday.

The final score was 11-7 in favor of the Yankees, which means that the American Leaguers went into today's sixth and possibly final game leading by three victories to two in the annual baseball circus. \ The four-time-a-t-r-a-i-g-h-t world champions went back to their own park in the Bronx, full of beans and with their crack young lefthander, Whitey Ford, on the mound. The Dodgers called on their new world series sirstkout king, Carl Erskine Today

Considering his brilliant exploit of only three days ago, when he fanned 14 batters and hurled a 2-3 on Roy Campanella's eighthinning homer, Erskine had a good bet to knot the playoff at 2-3 and send it into its seventh and deciding game Tuesday. But Charlie Dressen, the Brooklyn manager, was ready to shoot the works.

"If he's needed, Preacher Roe will be ready to relieve," he said before the game. "I'll also be ready to save him to start the seventh game, but I won't be saving Erskowdy when these games are playing out the way they are now. I'll start anybody who has three days rest not long ago, thinking about the next one if we're going to be right."

There was much opinion that the Yanks had more to worry about today than the Dodgers.

Ford lasted only one inning when he started for the fourth game at Yankee Stadium. Manager Casey Stengel's quick trigger finger could spell woids like doy wound. You spell erster-o-y-s-t-e-r-but Olskine's name goes K-r-a-k-i-s-k-e and you make capital out of the "C." Boy, lookit dat Carl now down there in the spectators from the Bronx. They'll get ammonia from shirtin' up the breeze today, or anyway fallen archeries . . . Here is only the theld inned on a beautiful day with the feverature just right and no humidity in the air . . . That's the second time Collins wiffs and the sixth Yankee strikeout. With all dem holes in dere bats maybe somebody is elgerin' well for Diakie. Anyways the wuin seems to be toining' . . .

Royals Win Two in Row From Kansas City

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Royals, representatives of the International League, Saturday night defeated Kansas City Blues, winners of the American Association playoffs, 4-3 to lead the best-of-seven little world series 2-0. Royals won the first game 10-9.

The third game of the series, scheduled for Sunday in Montreal, was postponed until tonight because of rain.

Saturday's game started off as a battle of the Colemans, with lefty Rip Coleman starting for the Blues and Hamp Coleman, a righthander, for the Royals. Hamp went all the way, allowing the Blues only nine scattered hits, fanning three and walking only one.

Rip, the loser, lasted only until the sixth. He was followed by John Kucsh and Mel Wright.

Rocky Nelson, Montreal's first baseman reportedly sold to Cleveland Indians of the American League, had a perfect four-for-four night at the bat. He homered, doubled and singled twice to drive in a pair of runs.

Ottawa Rough Riders Hand Hamilton Tiger-Cats Crushing 31-6 Defeat

Teams Tied for Big 4 Lead; Larks, Argos Trail 2 Points; Saskys, Bombers Win in West

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's senior football leagues are straightening out to the point where fans from Montreal to Edmonton may look for tight down-to-the-wire finishes before the November Grey Cup hysteria sets in. Leading clubs in three groups took weekend beatings.

In the Big Four, Hamilton Tiger-Cats went to Ottawa holding a two-point lead in the standings and left with a stinging 31-6 defeat and a leadership in the East Rough Riders. That left the clubs two points in front of the idle Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes.

In the Western Conference, the league-leading Edmonton Eskimos went to Regina and departed with a 19-13 nod meanwhile at Winnipeg the second-place Blue Bombers gained ground with a spanking 26-17 victory over Calgary Stampeders.

And to complete the picture, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, surprise package in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, had their five-straight victory march halted at home by Sarnia Bluebird Beach, who made a third-quarter two-touchdown spurt for a 12-9 triumph.

Albert Starts

Great personal satisfaction was gained by two players in Western Conference games.

Frankie Albert of the Stampeders, who showed signs of fading apart in the opening of his Canadian football after a brilliant seven-year career with San Francisco 49ers, scorched in a losing cause. Coach Frank Filchock of the Roughriders, who was dismissed by the 1953 Grey Cup final and failed to reach an agreement for 1954, helped his club snap Eskimos' win skein at eight games.

Albert threw for 49-yard touchdown pass and later, on a fake handoff, stashed the ball out of sight behind his legs and "booted-legged" around the short end for tages kicked a single.

Passing and run-pass combinations scored Hamilton's touchdown late in the fourth quarter and Tip Logan's single.

Three week-end OFRU games were Hamilton Wildcats defeating Hespeler 20-6 by Sarnia Imperials Saturday and 29-6 by Beachers at Toronto. They have yet to play a game.

Glenn Schumacher and Bob Wetzel take rulled for Calgary touchdowns, in addition to Albert. Glen Chrisman made two converts.

Bod Grant and Tommy Ford, Blue Bomber flingers and catchers, Winnipeg touchdowns and Ralph Cline booted two converts and two other. Bud Korchak booted two field goals and converted all three tchdowns.

Mac Speedie, Herb Johnson and Jackie Parker starred for the Eskies as Edmonton touchdowns with Del Wardlen also kicked a single. Billy Vessels and Claude Arnold racked up Regina touchdowns, both converted by Wilbur Snyder. Rod Pantlegged" around the short end for tages kicked a single.

Jean Beliveau Signs Contract With Canadiens

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Big Jean Beliveau, hockey's prize rookie, signed on the dotted line mind Saturday and joined Montreal Canadiens.

The 23-year-old centre-ice star started a five-year contract. The figure wasn't disclosed, but managing director Frank Selke, beaming happily, said "it is the highest contract ever given any player—highest by a city block."

The final conference of many during the last three years started Jean, Selke and Canadiens that, regardless of the amount offered finally by the Canadiens, Jean was doing some close figuring on his take-home pay and how much the government will take in income tax.

At the conference were an income tax specialist and a financial adviser, Mr. Beliveau's behalf, from a trust company.

Canadiens have kept tab on Beliveau since he played junior hockey in his native Victoriaville, Que. After he turned pro with Quebec City's junior Citadelles and continued with the Citadelles signed him to hockey's "B" team. Under this Beliveau agreed to play with Canadiens' Quebec farm team pending promotion.

He turned down tempting offers from the NHL club, moving up to Quebec's senior Aces for two years after two years with Citadelles. Despite the so-called amateur status of the junior and senior leagues, Beliveau was collecting fat salaries for playing and, as the Canadian Press learned, was the recipient of many gifts, including a car.

Selke said Beliveau's signing "was in no way connected with my long career in hockey."

Western Mustangs, Varsity Blues Win Intercollegiate Grid Battles

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Senior Intercollegiate football schedule moved into full swing Saturday, but the results were pretty much old stuff.

Western Mustangs and Varsity Blues, the big boys of the league, walked off with the laurels but didn't have it all their own way.

The defending champion Mustangs dumped McMaster Marauders 40-13 at Hamilton while Varsity out-passed Queen's Golden Gaels 16-7 in Toronto. Both winning clubs were forced to fight from behind with Queen's holding a decisive edge over the Blues until the final quarter.

In an exhibition game at Montreal, McGill Redmen run roughshod over Ontario Agricultural College Aggies 36-7. The OAC team plays in the intermediate Intercollegiate loop. A total of 68 players were employed in the Montreal meet.

McMaster took a 7-6 first-period lead, but faded badly as Western broke forth in quest of its seventh college title in nine seasons. The Mustangs rolled up 28 first downs against McMaster's 12, but were only able to complete three passes while the losers marched 226 yards on the completions.

Queen's travelled a solid front single OAC point.

wall and racked up the Blues all through the opening half-drive, gaining a 1-0 edge on a kick to deadline. Displaying a fast-breaking diversified ground attack, the Tricolor ran its lead to 7-0 and 14-0 before the Blues got off the air for its winning edge.

Halfback Gino Fracas paced the Western attack with two touchdowns and five converts. Jacques Belec crossed for a pair of majors and the other Mustang touchdowns were added by Murray Hendersen, Brian Young and Garnet Mason.

Joe Kosakowski and Jim McPhee divided McMaster's two touchdowns while Jim Dodds booted the converts and Lorne Wriggleworth kicked to the deadline for a single.

Dave Pinkney, Steve Oseachuk and Bill McFarlane shared the three Varsity majors with Oseachuk managing to convert one. Joe Krzanowski and Jim Mc-Phee divided McMaster's two touchdowns while Jim Dodds booted the converts and Lorne Wriggleworth kicked to the deadline for a single.

The all-star game between the Allan Cup champion Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and an all-star squad will be played Oct. 12 at Kitchener.

Members of the first-all-star team chosen Sunday were: Goal, Bob Chase, Owen Sound; defence, Clair Martin, Kitchener, Jack Stewart, Chatham; forwards, Mickey Roth, Billy Flick and Dinny Flanagan of Stratford; coach, Pat McCreary, Owen Sound.

Dressing Room Chatter

By WILL GRIMSLEY

"BROOKLYN (AP)—The defected Dodgers blamed their three-game setback for their 11-7 shellacking at the hands of New York Yankees Sunday in the pivotal fifth game of the world series.

The first was Gil Hodges' muff of Joe Collins' grounder in the third inning which opened the dikes for five unearned Yankee runs.

"I just muffed it, that's all," said the mild-mannered Brooklyn first baseman in the glum dressing quarters. "It was an easy play. It should have had it."

The other giant Dodger mistake, an error in judgement, was in trying to outguess Mickey Mantle, phlegmatic golden boy of the world champions.

Mickey caught hold of a Russ Meyer curve ball and planted it into the upstairs left centre-field tier for the fourth grand slam home run in the world series' 50-year history.

"It was one of my best pitches," said Meyer, who had just relieved Carl Erskine in the third. "Carl Erskine had been telling me—and we had been matched before—that he was running away from the pitches.

"So I fed him a low overhand curve—a beauty. But this time Mantle didn't fall away from it. He stepped into it like he was mad at somebody and murdered it."

Earl Sande Rides Again

NEW YORK (AP)—Like a ghost out of the past, Earl Sande is to ride again today.

The little fellow with the big heart, one of the greatest saddlesmiths in history, is to be up on Isidor Bieber's Honest Bread, a three-year-old gelding, in the third race at Belmont Park.

Now 54, Sande is a throwback to the golden days of sports of the 1920s. Earl said he's going to try a comeback because he needs the money, wants to pay off some debts.

Stratford Edged

STRATFORD (CP)—Oakville defeated Stratford 16-9 Saturday in an intermediate ORFU game.

Lloyd Gowdy scored two touchdowns for Oakville, Johnny Robertz converted one and Fennell tallied on a field goal. George Aitken registered a major for Stratford. Don Fread converted and also kicked a field goal.

Sport in Brief

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP)—By the narrowest possible margin, overconfident U.S. golf professionals barely retained the Ryder Cup Saturday with a 6½-5½ victory over a determined British team.

A pair of fist-shot three-foot putts cost England the cup.

A three-footer missed by Bernard Hunt of England on the 36th hole of the last of Saturday's eight singles matches enabled Dave Douglas of Newark, Del., to draw even with Hunt. Under the scoring system used in cup play, each country got one-half point.

Peter Allis also blew a three-foot putt on the 18th and was a 1 hole loser to Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff, N.Y.

The United States had gone into the day's play with a 5½-2½ edge with a 3-1 lead gained in the first fourball matches. Saturday's British golfers drew even at 6½ with only the Hunt-Douglas and Turnesa-Peter Allis matches to be completed.

Turnesa shot only a 76 over the par 70 course, but he won the 36th hole with only a 30-foot putt over Allis, Then he battled the Briton on even terms on the last hole to receive his lead and be sure a tie for America.

But the highly-favored Americans who had seen two of their brightest stars, Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., and Sam Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., upset, wanted the outright victory. They did it when Douglas managed to halve his match with Hunt.

Scotsman Eric Brown used Mangrum, 2 up, and long-hitting Harry Bradshaw of Britain came in with a 1-up victory over Snead. Irishman Fred Daly walloped Ed Kroll of New Hartford, N.Y., 9 and 7.

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Pellers won the Ontario senior A softball championship Saturday with a 7-0 victory over Windsor Cecerros in the second game of a best-of-three series. They won the first game 6-4.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Hamilton Optimists Saturday won the Ontario Baseball Association midget A title by beating Niagara Falls Buckeyes 7-2.

WELLAND (CP)—Oshawa Transporters Saturday defeated Crowland Bisons 5-3 to win a best-of-three Ontario Baseball Association intermediate A final series. Oshawa won the opener at home and day's Scotch foursomes. But the week ago.

Joe Black Story Poignant One Of Heartbreak, Disappointment

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—It was just a line of cold type in the box score and less than a line in the summary.

It said:

"Black Pooop"

Then down in the box score summary:

"HO (hits off-Black 1 in 1 . . . . R-ER (runs and earned runs)-Black 1-1."

Yet they tell a poignant story of the world series, a story of disappointment and frustration and fickle baseball fates which can turn a man in the clouds one year and then tear his heart out the next.

Remember Joe Black?

Just 12 months ago he was the toast of Brooklyn Dodgers, Inc. No. 1 pitching ace who hurled 142 innings in 56 games by mid-July the year with a 2.64 record and a 15-game-run average.

"We'd have been dead without Black," Brooklyn manager Charlie Dressen said of the end of the season when the giant righthander was named National League rookie of the year.

It was no surprise to Dodger fans when Dressen chose the big negro fireballer to face the Yankees' Allie Reynolds in the first game of the 1953 world series.

It was no surprise when Black beat the veteran from Oklahoma 4-2. Black dropped a 2-0 decision to Reynolds in the fourth game and a 4-2 verdict to the same foe in the seventh as the Yankees took the series. But it was a great showing for the 26-year-old rookie from the Negro leagues.

Twelve months later another series rolls around and the "forgotten man" is Joe Black.

In the bullpen he waited—always to wait—for a signal to warm up. But after a poor season (6-3 and less-than 75 innings), he had become dulled to the stabs of disappointment.

Sunday in the fifth game after Dressen had scraped the bottom of his pitching barrel—Clem Labine, Maglie—and the Yankees appeared clear out of reach, Black got his chance.

He pitched one inning, the ninth, and gave up a double—a home run by Gil McDougald. It was what Black had always expected.

"I have a complex," the pitcher said, in an attempt to explain his collapse.

"Every time I go into a game now I expect the batter to hit a home run. I've lost my confidence.

"What happened to me? I don't know. Maybe I went to spring training with the big head and never snapped out of it."

But "I have to prove myself all over, again—and I will."

OTTAWA (CP) — Officials here say they believe the Korean armistice can last indefinitely even if the Korean political conference is not held or fails to reach a peace settlement.

The United Nations is awaiting word from the Communists for a time and place to make arrangements for the Korean political conference. No word may come, because the Communists insist that neutral states be seated at the conference table. The United States wants the conference to be a two-sided affair, excluding belligerents only.

It is a nice point whether failure to hold a conference would be a breach of the armistice terms. Paragraph 60 of the armistice document says the military commanders of both sides "recommend" to the governments concerned that a peace conference be held within three months—by Oct. 26.

Experts Optimism

Foreign affairs experts here say their interpretation is that paragraph 60 is merely a recommendation—that failure to meet would not be a breach of the armistice terms.

The preamble to the armistice agreement is also important in this respect. It says the United Nations, North Korean and Chinese commanders, "with the objective of establishing an armistice which will insure a complete cessation of hostilities and of all acts of armed force in Korea until a final peaceful settlement is achieved, desire that all hostilities cease, that all armed forces be withdrawn, and that mutually agree to accept and to be bound and obeyed by the conditions and terms of armistice..."

The key words here are "complete cessation of hostilities... until a final peaceful settlement is achieved."

The armistice in itself is a good thing, officials say, no matter how long bickering over a peace settlement goes on. They point out there has been an armistice between Israel and the Arab states for years although no final solution has yet been reached.

These officials contend the Communists would think twice before starting a new aggression in Korea. The situation for the world is far more dangerous in Korea than in Israel. The United Nations has given the Communists clear warning of the probable results of starting a new invasion of South Korea.

Grave Consequences

The 16 countries with troops on the 155-mile battle line said in a declaration signed shortly after the July 27 armistice that "if there is a renewal of the armed attack, challenging again the principles of the UN, we shall again be united and prompt to resist.

The consequences of such a breach of the armistice would be so grave that, in all probability, it would not be possible to confine hostilities within the frontiers of Korea," the declaration said.

If the political conference does not meet or fails to reach a settlement, the military armistice commission would come again before the UN General Assembly. There a settlement might be found as it was for the prisoner-of-war issue, main stumbling block in reaching an armistice.

Meantime, the armistice could continue, for months or perhaps years.

This presumes, of course, that the United States can handle Syngman Rhee, South Korea president, who has said his forces will resume the war if the political conference does not produce a settlement within 90 days from Oct. 26.

Canada has made its position clear in this eventuality. External Affairs Minister Pearson said at the UN General Assembly:

"The countries which fought in Korea on the UN side sent their troops there for no other purpose than to stop naked aggression, declared as such by a UN decision.

"So far as the Canadian government is concerned it will not support any military action in Korea which is not United Nations action, and we would be opposed to any attempt to interpret existing United Nations objectives as including, for instance, the unification of Korea by force. On the other hand, we are aware that the signing of an armistice does not discharge us from obligations we have already undertaken in Korea as a member of the United Nations."

In short, Canada would fight if the Communists renewed their aggression, but not if South Korea attacks North Korea.

Canada, as a UN partner, still wants the unification of Korea, but by political methods, not force.

Sons of Freedom Terrorism In B.C. Mounts

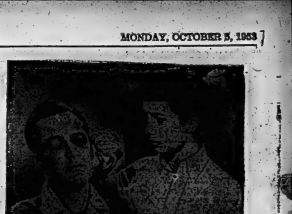
CASTLEGAR, B.C. (CP)—Sons of Freedom terrorism in B.C.'s southern interior mounted Saturday with the blasting of a section of railroad track near here, the second rail dynamiting in as many days.

The explosion ripped up two ties, blew out a two-foot piece of rail and dug a three-foot-wide crater on a CPR Kettle Valley line siding at Pearson, about eight miles south of Castlegar.

RCMP said they believed it to be the work of radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobors in protest against the sentencing earlier Friday of another 48 Sons of Freedom by Burnaby magistrate Graham Ladner of six-month to three-year terms for mischief.

URANIUM FIND

CANBERRA (CP) — Australian government geologists have discovered a "promising occurrence" of uranium-bearing mineral near Katherine, in the northern territory, it was announced. Development Minister William Spooner said it appeared as valuable as the uranium finds found last June, also in the northern territory.



AT THE CAPITOL—Romance comes to stars Audrey Totter and Alex Nicol in the stirring circumstances of "Champ for a Day" gripping drama of the fight ring from Republic Studios at the Capitol Theatre. Prominently cast are Charles Winninger, Rose Stevens, Joseph Wiseman and Rusty Kelley.

Recruiting Standards Lowered Slightly Since War Began

By JACK MacBETH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Recruiting authorities are faced with a hard problem in maintaining the Canadian Army's traditional high quality in today's cold-war environment.

Four of them agreed in an interview that recruiting standards have been lowered "slightly" since hostilities began in Korea, to meet the army's existing commitments.

They said:

"The need for men has gone up, but the incentive has not. Remember the time when girl friends and wives used to tell their men: "Get in." Now they tell them: "Stay out".

Looked Suspect

They said the fighting in Korea has not had popular support in Canada.

Before Korea the strength of the Canadian Army was about 25,000 man. Now it has doubled and the army is still growing.

Referring to the lack of incentive for enlistment, one officer said:

"You might say that we've been dipping into a somewhat lower level of society than we've been used to, either before Korea or during the Second World War."

He added that this does not mean the calibre of men in the army is low enough to affect its fighting efficiency.

"We are not getting at the university students or the bright young men who are going out to the oilfields to make their pile, or real estate salesmen, or highly paid professionals. What we are getting is the type of man who has not been able to find a better niche in civilian life."

Critical Article

A recent Maclean's Magazine article criticized the intelligence and behavior of men in Canada's 27th Brigade in Germany.

One of the officers interviewed, an army psychologist, said:

"It isn't necessarily intelligence or education which determines the calibre of an army unit."

The 25th Brigade in Korea had done a "magnificent job." There was no reason to believe the 27th Brigade would not do as well if called upon to fight.

He acknowledged that behavior of men in the 27th Brigade has not always been exemplary.

Acts Up Abroad

"The soldier in a foreign country has never been known for his good behavior, especially if he belongs to an occupation force," he said. "It is standing operating procedure that he acts up. But he must always answer to army disciplines."

It was Canadian Army opinion that other armies of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization are running into similar recruiting problems.

"We are competing with industry," he said. "We're like intercollegiate rugby. Varsity and juniors get the pick and we get what's left."

"It boils down to this. We, like industry, must gear our standards to the men available. Then we must make the best use of the manpower. That's what we're doing."

At present, there are five steps in the recruiting process: (1) An initial screening by local depot commanders; (2) an "A1" test measuring intelligence and aptitude; (3) a medical examination; (4) a special written test which is supposed "to pick out men who are probable officers, or stables;" and (5) decision of the depot commander.

A spokesman said, however, that a new "entrance examination" now is being tried which may eventually replace all existing tests for recruits. There would be one such examination for officers and one for other ranks.

Replying to a question, he said recruits for the U.S. Army are subject to more written tests, but not interviewing.

"We believe here that we can learn more about a man by talking to him, after we have found out a few basic facts through written tests. Also, a man feels like a machine when put through one test after another, and like a human being when he can talk to someone."

Another officer, noting that a margin of 10-per-cent error is allowed for the best of tests, said: "No matter what the standards, or how careful the examining staff, there are always a few bad ones who will slip through. But once we find them, we discharge them."

Education now is compulsory in the Canadian Army. The officers expressed belief this will help improve the calibre of the army, allowing more men to rise to positions of responsibility.

Another factor which they said is bound to raise the behavior standards of troops in Germany is that this fall those who are married may bring their wives and families to join them, at government expense.

MEET AS FRIENDS

KESAN, Turkey (AP)—For the first time in modern history, Turkish and Greek soldiers met on a battlefield Sunday as allies. It was a joint Greek-Turkish unit and a small part of NATO's operation Weldfast spread over the Mediterranean and Aegean seas. The exercise, now allied to NATO, staged war games on the Greek mainland and southern Thrace a few miles west of the strategic Dardanelles.

Little Benny's Note Book

It started to drizzel outside while we were having our history lesson in school, and Miss Kitty said, Now that's too bad, I'm afraid there's no going to be much playing in the streets this afternoon. But you must try to be optimistic and remember that the farmers need the rain for their crops, and you need their crops to keep your young bodies strong and healthy, so perhaps it's all for the best. The spirit of optimism is what keeps us from developing a negative attitude. Now I wonder if anyone in the class can imagine a situation that calls for optimism, in other words for looking on the bright side? Yes, Charles? she said.

Meaning Fuds Simkins waving, and Fuds said. If you dredn all kinds of lucky things are happening to you, like being invited to 3 birthday parties at once, and finding all the money you can pick up, and then you wake up and realize it's not real, you can still be optimistic if it happens to be Saturday morning and you dont have to go to school.

Tru afraid that's an unfortunate example, Miss Kitty said. School should be the hero of the story, and not the villin. Has anyone a suggestion of that nature? she said.

Which I had, saying, If a big storm broke out, and everybody body was getting struck by lightnmyg—and you kept from being struck by running into the school buildings, would be too late for any teching to be going on, but the school would still be the hero for saving your life.

The result being Miss Kitty quick started the arithmecic lesson.

Shipping Is Halted

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Shipping was halted in the Galops canal to day as salvage workers renewed efforts to remove a converted barge which has been aground since Thursday.

The 3,000-ton Redcloud, owned by the A. R. Campbell shipping company of Montreal went aground in the St. Lawrence river near the western entrance of the canal last east of Prescott.

Tugs from the Fyke Salvage Company of Kingston and the Clarences-McNaughton company of Montreal and Kingston are attempting to move the vessel.

Move to Censor Epitaphs Annoys Luton Residents

LUTON, England (Reuters)—Some folks here are so outraged at a new regulation by the municipal council that they're actually talking of having their dead buried out of town.

What nerves them is the council's decision to censor inscriptions on all tombstones erected in the local cemetery of this town (pop. 160,000) 25 miles north of London.

The censorship decree was one of 31 passed by the town fathers to ensure that the cemetery is "dignified and respectable."

It stipulates that from now on relatives of dead must submit sketches of proposed gravemarkers and the epitaphs intended for them.

Parks director R. J. English, the man whose job it will be to scrutinize inscriptions, has definite ideas about the type of tombstone literature he'll ban.

"I won't approve epitaphs criticizing the dead person's relatives or other people," he said.

Nor will he approve an inscription like the one he saw in a cemetery in another city. It read:

"Hidden and unexpected was the end

"Of our esteemed and beloved friend.

"He gave to his friends a shock

"By falling into Sunderland dock."

Mirror Indignant.

The censorship was railroaded through by a narrow majority. One of its staunchest opponents was alderman Walter Roberts. He said he fought against it because the townspeople's "deepest feelings are involved."

"A grave is a personal thing," he said. "The decision about tombstones and inscriptions must rest with relatives of the deceased."

Also indignant about tombstone censorship in Luton is the crusading London Daily Mirror.

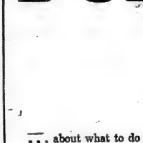
In an editorial, it sarcastically recalled that "respectable" Luton had been guilty of another type of censorship. The town's library was instructed to issue Dr. Alfred Kinsey's sex books only to "responsible-looking people."

Urging the people of Luton to do away with "uniformity in the cemetery," the Mirror observed that if civic authorities had always been so pernickety about epitaphs, "we would have lost a wealth of enduring inscriptions which make wandering in old churchyards a source of innocent fun."

"It would be a shame," the paper continued, "to be without inscriptions like this:

"Here lies John Hatchet

"In his wooden jacket.



"He kept neither horses nor mules.

"He lived like a hog

"He died like a dog

"And left all his money to fools."

Car Makers Scrambling to Capture Growing Market for Small Vehicle

By REYMOUR TOPPING

LONDON (AP) — A new trade battle has broken out among European automobile makers. They are scrambling to penetrate the growing market for the low priced "family" passenger car that is cheap to run and can be sold quickly through tangled big city traffic.

The motor magnates look to the baby car as a key to cashing in on the still larger world market. Into this month the new model Britain's manufacturers are unveiling this month the new models they hope will garner a bigger share of the small car export market from the present leaders in Germany, Italy and France.

After introducing the first baby car 26 years ago, Britain's motor industry took the lead after the Second World War to continental Europe with such as the Austin A-Five, the small German Volkswagen and the French Renault.

The two to four - seater babies which run on one to four cylinders will sell for about $1,120 are mainly aimed at the European buyer who has not been able to afford the standard-sized car. They squeeze out up to 50 miles on a gallon which is essential for the European who pays about twice what his North American cousin does for gasoline.

Smartly Styled

Many of them are fairly comfortable even on long drives and particularly the British models are smartly styled. On continental highways, they often are seen overtaking their big brothers at speeds ranging over 50 miles an hour.

The British manufacturers are setting a worried eye at the sensational post-war comeback of the German automakers, particularly at the expansion the latter has made record of Volkswagen, makers of the "people's car," which Adolf Hitler once promised German families.

Volkswagen's big seller is a popular four-seater which has an air-cooled four-cylinder motor in the rear of its unique elliptical body. (8971).

It is produced in two models—export and standard which cost $1,- 238 and $983 respectively.

The export model has a 'gyrachronized gear shift; more chromium and some additional gadgets. It can speed along at 70 miles an hour and gets about 30 miles to the gallon, which is low compared to the other babies.

The Volkswagen output next year is to be raised to 1,000 a day as compared to 730 now. Also the Volkswagen is attempting to build up its sales all over the world, the traditional German export markets of Switzerland, Belgium, Denmark, Holland and Sweden still take 75 per cent of the exports.

New Fiat Model

The smallest of the German cars is the Lloyd 400. It has a condensed, two-stroke engine which drives the front wheels. It can speed at 66 miles an hour, gets nearly 60 miles to the gallon and carries four persons in its steel-panelled body. It sells for $977.

The only two Italian small cars on the European market are made by Fiat in Turin. They are the Topolino (little mouse and also known as the Fiat 500), a tiny two-seater with a list price of $1,000 and the Fiat 600, a cute four-seater Giardinetta Belvedere, a small station wagon, which is listed at 750,000 lire (about $1,200).

Both get 40 to 50 miles on a gallon.

France bids for the baby car contingent with the 4 CV Renault, which is the most popular car at home, and the 3 CV Citroen.

The four cylinder 4 CV Renault comes in a variety of models including a sports, convertible and ordinary sedan and has a maximum speed of around 80 miles an hour. It sells for 450,000 francs (#1,285).

The French auto industry's big export item is the 3 CV Citroen which is being pushed in the British and Scandinavian markets. It has a flat twin-cylinder motor and a top which rolls up and down. The list price is 340,000 francs ($971).

ONE LESS DEATH TRAP IN WINDSOR

City officials at Windsor, Ont., are considering a by-law, similar to an ordinance passed last month, under which it would be illegal to leave discarded iceboxes where they could be a threat to the lives of children. This was the the latest in a series of moves to prevent a tragedy similar to the one which recently claimed the lives of two four-year-old boys who were found dead in an abandoned icebox stored in an old shed near their homes in Windsor. Some 88 citizens have already taken advantage of Mayor Arthur J. Reaume's offer to provide trucks for the removal of abandoned boxes from their homes and they are being destroyed, as demonstrated by the mayor, seen above. Under the proposed by-law any person leaving an icebox, refrigerator or "container of any kind which has an air-tight snap lock" in a place accessible to children would be subject to a maximum penalty of $500 or 90 days in jail.—Central Press Canadian.

Italy Not Likely to Sign Pact Unless Trieste Issue Settled

Editor's note: Kelman Morin, veteran special correspondent of The Associated Press, has spent the last month in Europe, interviewing both government leaders and "the man in the street." This is an exclusive interview with Premier Pella of Italy.

By KELMAN MORIN

ROME (AP)—Premier Giuseppe Pella has indicated that the Italian parliament may not vote in a position to ratify the proposed association European Defence Community (EDC) treaty unless the dispute with Yugoslavia over Trieste is "justly settled."

He said in an interview that some sections of the military pact were not closely connect the two questions.

Trieste is a region of 315 square miles at the head of the Adriatic that was established as a free territory under Italy's Second World War peace treaty. The European Defence Community is a plan to create an army of troops from Italy, France, West Germany, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg under a joint general staff.

Pella did not say, in so many words, that Italian ratification of the EDC treaty hinges on a, prior solution to a plebiscite in the Trieste controversy.

His opinion on this was asked in a direct question. He replied: "Why do you put your question in a pessimistic and negative form? I would prefer to emphasize that ratification of EDC will be infinitely easier if we find a solution to the problem of Trieste."

The territory, centred around the strategic port of Trieste, has been an object of dispute between Italy and Yugoslavia ever since the First World War. It now is divided into zones under the stewardship of the United States, Britain and Yugoslavia.

In 1948, a joint statement by the United States, Britain and France said the free territory eventually should be returned to Italy. This was before Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia broke from the Soviet sphere.

Considered Valid

Pella said Italy holds to that declaration.

"We consider the tripartite declaration of 1948 as a valid document today," he said. "It was drafted in the spirit of international law.

"It is a human document, as well, because it takes into account the desires of the people living on the spot."

Italy has proposed that the problem be resolved by letting the people in the territory vote on the question in a plebiscite. The Yugoslav government has rejected this proposal.

"We suggested the plebiscite," Pella said, "as a means of implementing the tripartite declaration. We proposed it to prove to the world that Italy is not afraid of a free judgment by the people of the entire territory of Trieste."

He said it is very urgent that a solution be reached, but added, "Even I say it is very urgent, I am speaking relatively."

SOMETHING OF SUMMER

Grieve not for passing summer,
Nor sigh that the birds have flown,
But let us keep of the summer
Something our very own.
Something sweet of its fragrance
And brightness of summer flowers,
Dreams of the tranquil beauty
That enhanced the summer hours.

The gold of the dawn and sunset
May we store within the heart,
Treasures strong and enduring
To form of life a part;
And may the spirit of summer
That gladdened each lonely place,
Sink deep in our inmost being
And shine from each sunny face.

Then something of summer sunshine
Will brighten the winter day,
Though winter winds are wailing
And winter skies are gray.
—Helen B. Anderson.

Jehovah Witnesses Victors In Fight To Distribute Tracts

Supreme Court Rules 5 to 4 Quebec City Ban Ineffective

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada, in a 5-to-4 decision, today ruled to effect that the Witnesses of Jehovah may distribute religious literature on the streets of Quebec or any other province without restriction.

In the ruling decision Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin said that even though the witnesses were attacking religion, they are "entitled to the free exercise and enjoyment of (their) religious profession and worship."

In one of its closest decisions in years, the court overruled the decision of the Quebec court of appeal and granted the appeal of Laurier Saumur of Quebec a Jehovah's Witness evangelist, convicted of distributing tracts without a police permit.

The court ordered that the City of Quebec, its officers and agents be restrained from enforcing in any way with the distribution of Witness' pamphlets or its streets.

Has Wide Effect

While the court judgment dealt only with the Saumur case, it will have wider application. It will affect the outcome of a number of actions now pending in Quebec courts.

In effects, the court ruled that a city or other body can interfere with religious practices.

The court, after splitting 4-4, finally reached its decision on the judgment of Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin, a Roman Catholic.

Given His Reasons

Mr. Justice Kerwin, in his decision judgment, said he did not consider that Quebec City should be declared ultra vires. But it should not be extended "so as to prohibit the circulation of a booklet or of Jehovah's Witnesses from distributing in the streets of Quebec any book, pamphlet, booklet, circular or tract of Jehovah's Witnesses included in the inventory."

"It appears from the material filed on the motion to quash," said Jehovah's Witnesses not only do not consider themselves to be belonging to a religion but vehemently attack anything that may orginarily be called a church. They say they are entitled to "the free exercise and enjoyment of their religious profession and worship."

Not Licentious

Their attacks on religion generally, or on one in particular, do not bring them within the exception to the rule that does not made an excuse for licentiousness or a justification of practices inconsistent with the peace and safety of the province."

What fewer definitions of "licentious" appear in standard dictionaries. The prevailing sense of that term is said to be "libertine, lascivious." In the pamphlets, radical expressions the pamphlets, etc., of Jehovah's Witnesses which they desire to distribute attach a meaning which is offensive to a great majority of the inhabitants of the province of Quebec.

"But if they have a legal right to distribute them, they have a right to do so."

I think they have, the expression used by the Witnesses as exemplified in the exhibits filed, do not fall within the first part of the exception.

Not Threat To Peace

"Nor in my opinion," said Mr. Justice Kerwin, "do their attacks "inconsistent with the peace and safety of the province" even where they are directed particularly against the religion of most of the province's residents.

"The peace and safety of the province must be threatened and that majority do not use the attacks as a foundation for breaches of the peace."

The Witnesses asked the court in December, 1950, to declare invalid a City of Quebec by-law prohibiting distribution of pamphlets without a permit from the chief of police.

THE WEATHER

2 MAJOR EVENTS OPEN COBOURG PLOWING MATCH

Champion Will Be Crowned on Friday

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

COBOURG (CP)—The 40th International plowing match opens today with two major events—the Ontario championships and the open competition — but the climax will come Friday when the first world plowing champion will be crowned.

Several hours before Governor-General Vincent Massey officially declares the match open, 31 of Canada's best plowmen were to be in the fields competing for the provincial title. Shortly after the official opening, 19 mayors from Ontario cities and towns are to try to wrest the mayor's title from mayor Allan Lamport of Toronto.

While those two big attractions are going on several junior and senior classes will under way.

The Ontario champion and runner-up will compete Wednesday with the titleholders of British Columbia, Manitoba, Quebec, New Scotia, and Prince Edward Island for the national crown. The Dominion champion will then go to Scotland to represent this country in the world title which start Thursday.

15 Competing

The 21 competing for the Ontario title are: Allan Powrie, Fergus; Everett T. Hogan, Wolfe Island; Robert Timbers, Stouffville; Ivan McLachlan, Alliston; Ivan Gosnell, S. Reid, Brampton; Ronald F. Hamilton, Sunderland; Roy O'Malley, Teeswater; James M. Eccles, Brampton; Earl A. Linton, Orangeville; John Stewart McGavin, Walton, and William J. Sanden, Markham.

Rules for the Ontario match are standard. Each contestant's plowing must have two half-acre plots—one sod and one stubble. They are to use a three-furrow tractor plow and each have three hours to complete each plot.

The regulations were set by the world championship plowing organization and are the same under the same as the ones previously used except that they are stricter on certain technical points, particularly the time element.

Rules Are Seized

Rules for the mayors' contest are more lenient since most chief executives are novices at plowing. Each mayor has to plow four furrows and runs are marked by an expert on the first round. No time limit has been set.

The mayors' contest was started last year by mayor Charlotte While of Ottawa. It was the brainchild Mayor Lamport to publicize last year's match in the Ottawa district town of Carp.

Runner-up Miss Whitton, unofficially crowned Edward Wetfield Monday night ordered a 10-day halt in the strike to permit negotiate and irreparable injury" to the national welfare. Weinfeld said he was asked for a formal hearing, at which he is expected to extend the order for the full 10-day period, expiring Christmas Eve, permitted under Taft-Hartley. The board's order was issued on request of Patrick J. Connolly, ILA vice-president, view-president who rejected the return to work by an estimated 50,000 to 60,000 ILA dockers.

Longshoremen's Union Orders End To Pier Strike

By EUGENE LEVIEN

NEW YORK (AP)—A court order today carried the end to a multi-million-dollar waterfront strike from Maine to Virginia, but it left unsettled issues carrying the threat of bloody dock warfare.

Leaders of the AFL-ousted International Longshoremen's Association, complying with an injunction obtained under the Taft-Hartley law, ordered their men back to work after a five-day tie-up which idled more than 100 vessels. The cost of the strike in New York alone was put at $7,500,000.

The strike forced about a dozen ships from liners to make their way in and out of New York without the help of tugs. There also were reports of vessels to strike-free ports.

Berthed Without Tugs

Last ship to manoeuvre into New York without tugs was the Cunard Line's 35,000-ton Mauretania, which accomplished the feat Monday in the face of strong winds.

Cunard's Queen Elizabeth Mary was diverted from New York to Halifax, where she docked Monday with 1,854 passengers Boat trains were made up to rush them to New York and to take Europe-bound travellers from New York to Halifax.

Even as President Eisenhower's first use of the labor law brought at least a temporary truce in the ILA's wage-contract dispute with employers, there were reports that New York stoppages might result from the ILA's fight with the AFL for control of waterfront labor.

Locals Split

ILA officials said their members might refuse to work alongside longshoremen who have come to ILA, to join the AFL. Large members of longshoremen have left the ILA, ranks which split some locals in two.

The bitterness between the ILA and AFL has led to extraordinary police precautions on the waterfront. Each mayor has to plow four furrows and runs are marked by an expert on the first round. No time limit has been set.

The mayors' contest was started last year by mayor Charlotte While of Ottawa. It was the brainchild Mayor Lamport to publicize last year's match in the Ottawa district town of Carp.

Electric Shocks Promise New, Safer Heart Operations Surgeons Are Told

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

CHICAGO (AP)—Electric shocks to make hearts beat healthy are new and safer heart operations were reported today to the American Medical Association.

Dogs' hearts have been stopped this way for up to 70 minutes, no longer pulsing or pumping in boungy fashion. The hearts merely quiver slightly, staying quiet for delicate surgery. A heart-lung machine maintains the dogs alive.

When the surgery is done, a stronger electric shock starts the heart beating normally again.

This success was described by Dr. John A. Helmsworth, University of Cincinnati college of medicine.

This method would permit new kinds of surgery on children's hearts, especially when there is a defect in the wall separating two upper chambers or ventricles.

A quick series of shocks of 10 to 30 volts halt the dog's heart beat. Shocks of 60 to 90 volts restore it.

A "scientific certificate," it is reported by Drs. Louis M. Rousselot, Maryland, and Claude Beck, Case Western Reserve University School of Medicine.

In co-operative research with teams at Columbia University and Cincinnati, they found an enzyme which dissolves burned human tissue. It does not digest anything but burned tissues. The enzyme comes from a gangrene germ, clostridium histolyticum.

It worked beautifully on six hogs with small and large third-degree burns, Dr. Rousselot said. Their burned, dead tissue had liquified, and could be washed away. This removal helps growth of healthy new skin, helps prevent shock and loss of fluids.

The breakthrough is that no one can set it. Two major drug firms said Dr. Rousselot that the problem in making it in any quantity appear insurmountable. Other enzymes are being sought.

Send Forces to Meet Threat Of British Guiana Revolt

LONDON (AP)—Britain today dispatched the 9,100-ton cruiser Sheffield from Scotland to the West Indies, sending the warship to the doorstep of her leftist-threatened South American colony of British Guiana.

The admiralty described the cruiser's departure as a "normal station move," but London newspapers already were blasting the government for the veil of official secrecy dropped over previously reported movements of British naval vessels toward the troubled colony.

The cabinet met to consider the situation in the colony, but top colonial authorities are reported thinking of firing possibly even arrest, some 1,000 members of the pro-Communist British Guiana government.

Meeting with the cabinet were the first lord of the admiralty, Vi. P. L. Thomas, who has no cabinet rating, and admiral of the fleet Sir Rhoderick McGrigor, who as first sea lord is chief of naval staff.

The Daily Telegraph, one of the staunchest supporters of Prime Minister Churchill's Conservative Cabinet, accused the cabinet of "stumpin" had not concealed "the fact that a British warship carrying troops are steaming at top speed for Georgetown, capital of British Guiana, in the Caribbean to forestall a threatened Communist-directed insurrection in that colony."

The admiralty, however, still refused to confirm or deny reports that the 8,000-ton cruiser Superb with 600 troops aboard and the 1,-600 ton frigate Bigbury Bay are also at Georgetown Wednesday from Kingston, Jamaica.

Leftists Won Victory

British Guiana has been seething ever since the leftist Peoples' Progressive party, led by American-born Janet Rosenberg Jagan and her East Indian dentist husband, Cheddi Jagan, won a sweeping victory in last April's colonial election.

Jagan, now prime minister, and his party demand almost complete independence from British rule. A series of strikes has paralyzed the sugar industry, main source of income for the colony's 427,000 people. There also have been sporadic dock strikes.

Britain's colonial office, which supervises the colony's affairs, has described the Peoples' party as Communist-dominated.

Tiktak Troops Sent

Dispatches from Jamaica reported that 40 officers of the British garrison in British Honduras had been flown to supply a "skeleton force" for the British Caribbean command headquarters in Kingston.

The freighter Tiktak Superb had embarked 85 available troops in Jamaica, the cruiser, flagship of British West Indies fleet, also has aboard Vice-Admiral Sir William Andrewes, commander-in-chief of the Royal Navy's America and West Indies station.

Government sources in London indicated privately that the force was sent to help Governor Sir Alfred M. Savage, governor of the colony, in dealing with the disturbance.

Mrs. Jagan's party has demanded the replacement of Sir Alfred and a drastic reduction of the governor's powers.

City Is Tense

Dispatches from Georgetown Monday night said an atmosphere of tenseness had enveloped the city and police were on the alert to keep the peace between rival groups.

These reports added that official sources have denied reports that a new constitution recently granted the colony has been withdrawn. The constitution was drafted by leaders of the colonial legislature.

Four of Seven Men Rescued Awaiting Death When Spotted

By ALBERT GERIN-LAJOIE
Chicoutimi Le Progres
du Saguenay

BAGOTVILLE, Que. (CP)—Four of seven men unwillingly marooned Saturday after 37 days in the wilderness of northern Quebec, were calmly awaiting death when spotted by a U.S. Rescue crew plane.

The four had become hopelessly lost on a trek they had expected would take them to civilization. Discouraged, weak and with food supplies all but exhausted, the men travelled the same 20 miles each day only to find themselves back at the point from which they started.

The plight of the four—too weak to move—was discovered by a prospector who arrived in interviews with the crew of the Grumman Mallard that had brought them to this northern Quebec RCAF base. The Quebec provincial police force and RCAF officials were also interviewed.

Flight Lieutenant Bill Gaetz of Regina, pilot of the rescue plane, said the sighting was unfolded by Haugh and his crew.

Got Off Course

The original plans of Mont Laurier Airways got off course 100 miles north of Mont Laurier on their way to the Gouin Dam settlement of Fort Chimo on Hudson's Bay. The plane was not exhausted, it was set down on Lake Emmanuel, about 200 miles north of Mont Laurier.

Aboard the plane were Ralph Archibald, pilot; Gerard Gauthier of Selgen; Klaus Keeten, of Rotterdam, Holland; Ray Winstone, Edmonton; Andre Lavergne, Montreal; Victor Abel, Senneterre, Que.; R.J. Mullin, Rouyn, Que.; and Lloyd Richard Everitt, the flight engineer.

While awaiting rescue the men surveyed the countryside in an attempt to establish their position. From a nearby mountain they could see the course of a lake about 20 miles away.

After studying the map, the men decided it was Lake Nitchicun on whose northern shores at the trading post the prospectors are located a wireless station and a refueling post.

Decided To Split

When rescue did not come after 10 days, it was decided that a seven-man party would split up and that four would attempt to reach Lake Nitchicun.

Taking a share of the meagre food supplies, Archibald, Winstone, Theinhaus and Levesque set out. They believed that within two or three days they would be able to reach Lake Nitchicun and safety.

Progress through the bush was difficult for the men, weakened by days of a meagre diet of game and wild herbs. At some points the men ran into thick brush, at others muskeg.

Despite the handicaps, the men covered about 20 miles in two days. Then came what they thought was the fatal blow.

At the summit of a hill they were able to establish definitely that they were heading for Lake Nitchicun.

Their hopes were at their lowest ebb Saturday when suddenly they heard Haugh's loud-speaker equipped Canso overhead.

The four managed by muster enough strength to light a fire. Haugh put his Canso down on Lake Delbray and some of his crew walked 1½ miles to the camp of the marooned men.

Levesque was so weak he had to be carried all the way back to the Canso. On shore near the Canso the four were fed strolling steaks and then ordered to rest for an hour.

Bacon Prices In Winnipeg Up to $1 Pound

WINNIPEG (CP)—Bacon prices soared to about $1 a pound in Winnipeg supermarkets, but the packing industry promised relief by next week.

A packinghouse spokesman said there is a shortage of bacon in the city because farmers are so busy with the grain harvest they haven't had time to deliver hogs.

The shortage has raised bacon prices to almost double last year's price, he said. Last year prices in the packinghouses were big enough to tide the city over the peak harvest period.

By next week hog deliveries are expected to pick up again and this ought to bring the price down, the spokesman said.

Leading retail retailers were selling No. 1 sliced rindless bacon at prices ranging from 89 cents to $1 a pound. The price was about 50 cents a pound two months ago.

In Toronto butchers said "those folks out west are lucky as all get out."

Side bacon has been selling for $1.05 a pound in Toronto for many months.

Local meat dealers say pork is the cheapest meat because farmers are raising pigs when feed prices have come on high.

SAY BIG THREE TO URGE TRIESTE BE PARTITIONED

Use Present Zones As Basis of Division

ROME (Reuters) — Britain, the United States and France soon will propose to the Italian and Yugoslav governments the partition of the Trieste free territory between them on the present zonal basis, an authoritative source said tonight.

Under the plan, zone A, which includes the port of Trieste itself, and is largely Italian in character, would go to Italy. It is now under Anglo-American military control.

Zone B, predominantly Slovene, and now administered by the Belgrade government, would become part of Yugoslavia.

Seen Only Solution

The Western powers decided that partition on the present frontier was the only realistic solution following the recent Italo-Yugoslav flare-up over the territory, the source said.

The long-simmering dispute came to the fore following a Yugoslav news agency report in August that the Belgrade government was reexamining its attitude to the Trieste problem.

This was interpreted here as inferring that Yugoslavia intended to annex the zone. Italy protested vehemently and moved troops near her border with Yugoslavia.

Plan Not Acceptable

The Western powers' decision is taken to mean that they now have accepted the principle that the 1947 declaration favoring the return of the whole territory to Italy, John Foster Dulles, U.S. secretary of state, hinted at the time the declaration was not irrevocable.

Under the new Western plans the takeover of the zones would be gradual.

Observers here believe Premier Giuseppe Pella's Christian Democrat government will strongly reject the plan.

Plan Not Acceptable

BELGRADE (Reuters) — Yugoslav officials said today the plan proposal to settle the Trieste dispute on the basis of the present division of the free territory would be "wholly unacceptable to Yugoslavia."

The officials said any such settlement would be contrary to Yugoslavia's national and economic interests and would leave Italy "dangerously close to the sea at the mercy of Italy, which must have a hostile attitude to defence of denationalization against them" since the First World War.

Russian Police In Gun Battle With Deserters

BERLIN (AP)—The U. S. high commission newspaper Neue Zeitung reported today that a Russian military police fought a gun battle several days ago in East Germany with deserters from a Soviet tank unit trying to escape transfer back to Russia.

The paper said three Russian soldiers were killed.

According to Neue Zeitung, an unidentified officer of the unit ordered home grabbed their weapons and hid in a wooded area near Oranienburg. They fired on searching Russians when they approached the deserters' hide-out and the police returned the fire, whether the dead were deserters or MPs.

Women Join Raid By Mau Mau In Which 5 Children Are Butchered

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Women terrorists Monday night took part in the condition of a Mau Mau murder raid which left five children, a woman and three men injured, police said. The attack occurred at Fort Hall, north of Nairobi.

The gang descended from its lair in the Aberdare forest to kill three home guard loyalists and a 14-year-old boy in a hut in the Kikuyu settlement.

The terrorists went on to the home of one of the home guards they had just killed. Women members of the gang strangled the man's wife to death.

Four of her six children were hacked to death with jungle knives by the men.

Ian Gilgwyer, Fort Hall, assistant police superintendent, said: "We have known for some time that some of the women terrorists just as bad as the men operating in the same gangs."

"They are the real fanatics. But they are difficult to catch. We definitely state they have committed murder."

The raid came at the same time police in Nairobi captured a leading Mau Mau terrorist and detention they received from Harrison Njeroge, reputed chairman of Mau Mau's Nairobi central committee. Njeroge was the prize captive among 338 Africans detained during a round-up in the capital Monday.

Five Are Killed, Two Critically Hurt Near Sarnia

Cars Collide Head-On On Level Piece of Road

SARNIA (CP)—The death toll rose to five today in Monday night's two-car collision near here. Three generations of a Sarnia family were wiped out on their way to a bingo game and two others were critically injured.

Ambrose Stack, 3, died in hospital early today of multiple injuries. Killed at the scene were Arnold Wiles, 43; Mrs. Merle Wiles, 42; Mrs. Julia O'Connell, 62, and the six-month-old daughter of Mrs. Pauline Kettle, 18, one of the two injured.

In Critical Condition

Mrs. Kettle and Jack Miller, 21, are in hospital in critical condition.

All are from Sarnia except Miller, who lives at Bright's Grove, about 18 miles east of here.

The seat and the dead and Mrs. Kettle were in a car driven by Wiles which attempted to pass a transport on a level stretch of the Plank road. The car crashed head-on into an auto driven by Miller in which Satack was a passenger.

Bounce Into Ditch

Both cars bounced into the ditch where police found Mrs. Julia and Mrs. O'Connell dead. Mrs. O'Connell's daughter, Mrs. Walsh was dead in the front seat and Mrs. Wiles' daughter, Mrs. Kettle, was huddled across the body of her dead child in the back seat.

Miller and Stack were both hanging out through the windshield of their wrecked car.

Arthur Ward of Sarnia, driver of the transport which Wiles tried to pass, said he could see the cars coming. He put on his brakes, but the two cars hit right alongside his cab. Both vehicles were demolished.

Miller and Stack were employed here by the Canadian National Railways.

Argue As to Who Will Greet Queen In New Zealand

CANBERRA (AP)—The question of who gets first chance to greet Queen Elizabeth II on her arrival next February has set off a smallscale war in New Zealand's higher government levels.

The dispute came into the open today as a result of a question in the federal House of Representatives. The questioner asked Prime Minister R. G. Menzies whether the state governor, Sir Willoughby Norrie, believes in local premier, rather than Menzies himself, should be the first to greet the Queen. Canberra is in New South Wales.

Menzies avoided the issue of disagreement but admitted he was meeting Premier Joseph Cahill this week.

"The people who elect the New South Wales Parliament have the same electors who direct the Commonwealth Parliament," Menzies said, adding acridly: "It could hardly be accepted that the Queen's representative should be given first place to any other government in the Queen's dominions."

It is believed the New South Wales government suggests Cahill should greet the Queen when she stops on the landing stage and that the federal cabinet wait at the back or the ceremonial stage.

Liner Will Not Go to New York

HALIFA X (CP) — The liner Queen Mary will not go to New York this trip despite the end of the British dock strike.

Cunard link's Halifax office said today the will sail from Southampton Thursday for the United Kingdom.

Meanwhile, the Mauretania was scheduled to unload the Queen Mary's cargo. The last of her New York-bound passengers left London Monday night on special boat trains.

As part of their program of service to the community members of the Bets Kappa Hi-Y club assisted the publicity committee and the local Community Chest, to place Red Feather placards around the downtown area of the city, over the week-end.

The Hi-Y Club which recently held its first meeting of the season at the YMCA is a group of boys of high-school age. The purpose of the club is to give service to the school, the YMCA, and the community at large.

The club this year is led by Leo Fox as president; Donald Cherry as secretary and Jack Kane as treasurer. Club advisors are Gordon Fraser of the high school staff and Mr. Lloyd Skeaff, general secretary of the YMCA.

PROTECTING CHILD CAUSES COLLISION

That a motorist cannot successfully drive a car and act as a baby tender at the same time was a lesson learned yesterday in a rear-end collision at the corner of Main and Coleman streets.

A west-bill resident was following another car, which had stopped at the intersection. He applied his brakes only to have a two small passenger fall toward the dash. He put out his hand to protect the child and crashed into the vehicle ahead. Result, about $75 damage to each vehicle.

Apple-Hungry Bears Leaving Native Haunts

Apple-hungry bears are leaving their timbered haunts and invading orchards far from their beaten tracks, according to stories from the northern parts of the district.

One farmer states he saw as many as five bruins in his orchard at one time, with a number of them shaking the trees.

Conservation officers state that a father and two cubs were chased by a large black bear they found raiding an orchard. They warn residents not to take any chances with the brutes as they are unpredictable.

Harry Moore, former proprietor of the Trenton Courier Advocate, now resident in Pembroke, said he saw two bears in a tree in his brother's fields.

"This country is so full of bears now that I never go out of the house after sundown," Harry said.

Community Chest Drive Under Way With 500 Workers

The annual drive for funds for the Belleville Community Chest officially began Monday when many of the 500 volunteer workers began calling on the citizens of Belleville.

In the next two weeks the canvassers and captains will be working steadily to contact over 7,900 persons in the Belleville area. A break down of the figure indicates that over 6,000 homeowners will be visited by 425 canvassers of the house to house division led by W. H. Anderson, division chairman. Mr. J. J. Trudeau business division canvassers will call on almost 500 business establishments. Thirty-five industries will be contacted by the industrial division canvassers led by Mr. E. S. Booth. The special names and solicitown division headed by Mr. C. B. Morgan will appeal to over 120 organizations and individuals. The prospects division under the leadership of G. A. Hubbard will contact over 500 doctors, lawyers, teachers, engineers and other professional people.

An announcement from the Community Chest campaign headquarters definitely states that during the next two weeks there will not be any canvassing of people at work in plants, offices or other business establishments.

63 Local Boys Members Of Sea Cadet Corps

Another member of the community chest is the Navy League of Canada and a major work of the league is the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets in which 63 local boys in the city belong. To guide the cadets, the boys are trained by officers and officers: Lieut. C. H. MacKenzie, commanding officer; Lieut. Ross Watson, divisional officer; Midshipman Edward Richards, presently studying navigation at Nova Scotia; Sub-Lieut. Lawrence Silverland and Acting Midshipman Neil Baker.

The cadets gather each Monday and Thursday at the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet building on South Front Street. Here they have their drill, naval knowledge, boatwork, rifle firing, recreations and hobby clubs.

One of the city cadets is presently undergoing the Royal Military College in Kingston following one year's training at Royal Roads in British Columbia. Within the past three years, 23 sea cadets have joined the Royal Canadian Navy.

At the annual inspection of the Corps in May of this year, conducted by Commander Noel B. Pearce, R.C.N., the inspecting officer made a number of meritorious observations. He found the organization to be small but sound and giving evidence of good training. The commander also noted among other things, the senior cadets displayed leadership qualities in taking complete charge of inspection routine.

Kinsmen Club Supplies Glasses To 34 Children

Thirty-four children in Belleville whose parents were unable to bear the expense had new glasses supplied, and lenses changed or glasses repaired during 1953 through the Belleville Kinsmen Club eye clinic work, members of the local service club which held their Monday evening at their regular bi-monthly dinner meeting.

Dr. Ralph Ellis, Ellis, chairman of the eye clinic committee, stated that 34 persons in all had benefitted through the eye clinic work of the club. Thirty-four children had either had glasses or had glasses repaired, while four adults had also received glasses.

The report expressed appreciation to Belleville optometrists who, it was stated, had co-operated fully with the club.

Club members pointed out that the eye clinic work was the first project taken on by the local Kinsmen Club following its inception. There are now a great many children, whose parents could not afford the expense, had been fitted with glasses. Work of the clinic has been confined to providing glasses only, surgery or other corrective measures not being provided.

ENDS OWN LIFE

SALISBURY, Md. (AP)—An unidentified man ended his life here Monday by stretching himself across the Pennsylvania Railroad track in the path of a freight train. Fireman J. C. Nolen said that as the train rounded a curve he saw the man lower himself gently to the rails and stretch out across them. The engine and all seven cars passed over him.

Group of Hasty Pees Vets Hunt for Mascot in France

Just about now, a group of the original Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment's fighting first battalion are probably "groping in and groping" countryside in the vicinity of Brest, France, in a search for the beloved "Indian Chief" mascot of the unit.

The "Chief", a nine-foot metal statue is dotted by the regiment prior to its leaving for overseas in 1939, once graced the top of a building near the armouries in Picton where the regiment was mobilized.

The "Chief" accompanied the Hasty Pees on a foray into France and was left behind when the regiment, along with other Canadian and British troops were hurriedly forced to evacuate the country.

Many and varied are the stories as to where the "Chief" has been buried, but he was hidden in a cellar in Brest. Others say he is the effect he underfoot in a woods. Yet others say he was left in a ditch.

Leave in Rush

Lieut. George P. Hepburn, now with the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade, in Germany, recently conceived the idea of "resurrecting" the "Chief". He brought the proposition of the brigade commander, Colonel J. Sprung. FPCLI, to take a party of the original Hasty Pees, serving with the brigade, to search for the effigy and to locate the mascot. Permission was readily granted.

Accordingly, under the direction of Major Bill Graydon, M.C., second-in-command of the battalion and Prince Edward Regiment (reserve battalion), Lieut. Hepburn wrote the mayor of Brest, France, seeking permission to search for and retrieve, if possible, the historic mascot.

In a letter to Major Graydon, Lieut. Hepburn said he expected to get this permission. "We will take bivouac equipment and camp in the vicinity where the 'Chief' is presumed to be buried," he wrote.

The letter was written on September 14, so it is presumed that by this time permission has been granted. Lieut. Hepburn and his party are at the moment busily engaged in the search for the mascot.

"You can rest assured," he said in the letter", that we shall do all we can to recover the 'old boy'."

To Return In November

Lieut. Hepburn, along with other members of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment now serving with the 27th Brigade, expects to be home sometime in November.

"We are moving back as a complete unit and with the brigade will be stationed in Valcartier. We left from Rotterdam November 1 and arrived in Quebec City on November 9," he said. "Everyone in the regiment (Hasty Pees) we send our best wishes to the regiment and hope to be looking forward to seeing you in November."

Incidentally the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is holding its annual reunion in Colonel's corner the Thanksgiving holiday, and no doubt the reminiscences will turn in no small measure to the "interment of the "Little Chief."

389 Unplaced Applicants For Jobs at Present

Employment in Hastings county is as steady as was anticipated according to figures released this morning by H. J. Reed, manager of the National Employment Service Office in this city.

On September 30 of this year there were 389 unplaced applicants for jobs — 153 women and 237 men, as compared to 174 women and 187 men on the same date in 1952.

Unfilled vacancies this year numbered 60 with 47 jobs for women and 26 men, as compared to 29 for women and 34 for men on the same date a year ago.

Local claims for unemployment insurance numbered 197 this year, 103 men and 94 women. Claimants from the district include 32 women and 28 men, compared with 32 women and 32 men at a similar date last year.

Seasonal lay-offs in canning factories and-up minor construction projects have tended to produce a slight increase in the number of unemployed to date, according to Mr. Reed.

Tomato canners had a carry-over from last year's pack which has tended to halt canning operations a week later in the district than usual.

Construction work on the mill building at Marmora has employed 60 people from the district, taking up some of the slack expected from seasonal layoffs.

It was noted that there are fewer vacancies open this year mainly because the working population is more settled with fewer persons shifting jobs.

Peak months for unemployment are February and March. During the peak period last winter the week from February 21 to March 7, the total claims were paying 1,303 claims.

The local office serves the whole of Hastings county with the exception of the west side of Sidney Township which is served from the Trenton office.

Sentimentalism In Stocks Costs Money Club Told

Sentimentalism costs money when dealing with securities, Ted Roth, assistant manager of an American office of investment company in Toronto told members of the Rotary club in the Hotel Quinte on Monday night.

"Put aside away in a trunk and forget-about it, and above all, don't fall in love with any stock," he warned.

Mr. Roth was speaking on investment and investment problems. He said that there had been considerable changes in investments throughout the past few decades.

"Previously wealth had belonged to a few and was invested in most of the country's investments but, now, 41% of more has been a redistribution of wealth and money has become spread out to the masses resulting in more persons inquiring for advice regarding investments than ever before.

The speaker urged taking investment counsel from right places. He said, "You wouldn't take your ills to the plumber or your carpenter to the doctor, so labor, so take investment problems to the wrong place. He advised anyone with money to invest to consult a member of the Investment Dealers Association.

Avoid "Inside Tip"

Knowing the merchandise before buying and avoiding the "inside tip" were two of the things the speaker cautioned his audience about. Mr. Roth said the I.D.A. feels there is nothing more dangerous than the inside tip. He concluded that he had by urging members to "Plan before you act."

Rotarian Ralph Greenfield reported on the district conference he attended in Sudbury last week. J. Trudeau, chairman in charge of the club, urged members to support the Community Chest campaign which began Monday. Dr. Jack Guthridge, a member of the local Rotary club, is chairman of the Chest campaign. Dr. Guthridge and Brian Whitney received birthday roses from James Allen. Mr. Trudeau also received a rose from Curt Miller.

The speaker was introduced by R. E. Goodwin and the thanks of the club was expressed by Freeman Burrows.

Work of Chamber Outlined To Kinsmen Club

How the Chamber of Commerce works and how the local community was told to members of the Belleville Kinsmen Club at their regular dinner meeting Monday evening when Don Kingdon, city secretary-manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, spoke.

Mr. Kingdon said that the Chamber of Commerce was not merely a back slapping organization, or possibly a glorified tourist information bureau.

"However this conception is not entirely wrong," he said. "The chamber is just that, but is a great deal more. It is a volunteer organization, whose aim is to develop the civic, commercial, industrial and agricultural interests of the community."

The speaker went on to describe the set-up of the Chamber, noting that there were seven members at Belleville. He said that membership in the chamber implied both active and financial support to the cause. It was an investment in Belleville City and the Chamber was non political and non partisan and therefore was best equipped to take a stand for civic betterment.

Compared With Waterlown

The membership and program of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce was compared with a city like that of Watertown, N.Y. which had a membership of 900 and an annual budget of approximately $100,000 as compared to this Belleville's membership was but 320 with a budget of about $8,000 per year.

Lack of finances prevented the Belleville chamber from entering into a grandiose program of projects such as Watertown's, which might be considered by a larger organization, Mr. Kingdon implied. The work of the Belleville chamber was limited to less costly projects.

Some of the activities of the local chamber thus far this year have been to advertise Friday night shopping; to assist in the Old Fashion Days; plug the spring shopping spree and campaign for the Community Chest and fall shopping hours.

Other projects included the improvement of parking areas and the publication of 10,000 maps and directories for the use of Belleville.

All this was in addition to the regular administrative duties of the chamber such as the holding of regular and directors' meetings, looking after enquiries from out-of-town visitors and the like.

In conclusion Mr. Kingdon noted that the secretary of a per the Chamber called for promotion of commerce and industry and was "hearing about a lot of good ideas." Suggestions for improvement were welcomed by Mr. Kingdon.

"An active Chamber of Commerce is a business insurance," he said. "All of us are citizens of a great country—Canada. Most of us are members of a great movement—The Chamber of Commerce."

Club president Stu Martin presided over the meeting, the speaker being introduced by

Home Builders Unable to Secure Mortgage Money

Difficulty of potential home builders to secure mortgage money took its toll in September's building total in the city with only three new residences constructed during the month.

At city hall, Dave Barker, building inspector, said the shortage of mortgage money was decidedly was responsible for the drop in home construction. Total of permits issued during the month was 23, representing a construction value of $95,000.

Permits for new houses were issued to G. B. Smith, for a one-storey home on Bell Drive at $9,000; to L. E. Forward, for a one-storey home on Dufferin Ave West, at $9,000 and to V. M. Muir for a brick bungalow at 346 Dufferin Ave. at $9,000.

Commercial permits issued were to Chester Cox for a tool office and garage at the corner of Bridge and Coleman Streets at $4,500, and to Ironscott Jewellery Store on Bridge Street for a new store front at $700.

Chicago Thief Slays Boy of 11 In Making Escape

CHICAGO (AP)—A young suspected auto thief shot and killed an 11-year-old boy wounded a policeman Monday night as he shot his way out of a south side police station.

Scores of policemen combed the city throughout the night for the slayer.

The shooting started in the station as detectives questioned Carey Robinson, 19, and Leon Freeman, 18, who had been arrested in a stolen car. Police said Robinson whipped a gun from his belt and fired one shot which struck policeman James Quinlan, 40.

Robinson fled from the station, firing two shots outside. One bullet struck Daniel Decero, 11, in the head. The boy died in hospital.

Freeman said he did not know that Robinson had a gun.

Kinsmen Club Will Present Variety and Minstrel Show

Featuring a fast moving program with local talent as the cast, a fun-packed musical variety and minstrel show, "On Stage Canada," will be presented by the local Kinsmen Club for two performances at the Collegiate auditorium on Thursday and Friday, October 15 and 16.

Rehearsals for the show have already commenced and the show director, Mrs. Mabel E. Twiford, of Norfolk, Va., representing the Empire Producing Company of Kansas City, Mo., promises a bang-up show. Invitations are being extended to local talent to round out the cast.

Monday night following the regular Kinsmen meeting plans for the big show were finalized and committees were appointed. Tickets for the show are already printed and will go on sale today by members of the Kinsmen Club and at Cook's Cigar Store, where general admission tickets may be exchanged for reserved seats.

Casting Begins

Casting for the show began yesterday on the arrival in Belleville of Mrs. Twiford, representing the Empire Producing Company, nationally known producers of home talent shows for civic and service activities. Empire Shows are produced throughout the United States and Canada and have been featured in many national magazines.

Mrs. Twiford comes to Belleville with a long list of successful shows to her credit. She has done shows in 19 States and in about 20 towns in Ontario.

"On Stage Canada" is a lively fast-moving musical variety show complete with dancing chorus lines of Canadian "Rockettes", made up of popul Belleville Collegiate girls, Keyettes, and cheerleaders.

President is M.C.

Disabled Persons to Meet To Form Club in Quinte

TRENTON (Special) — Physically handicapped people from Belleville and the surrounding centres will receive a special invitation to a meeting here at the Legion hall on Monday, November 1, when the Honorable William Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, will give an official send-off to disabled persons' activities in the Quinte district. Miss Eva Morrison, of Trenton, is the enthusiastic organizer, who has arranged to have the popular Welfare Minister and Miss Doris Griffiths, of Toronto, with the Federation of Crippled Palsy for Ontario, speak at the opening meeting.

Purpose of the meeting is to interest disabled people in forming a club and establishing a centre where they can learn handicrafts which will enable them to serve as useful citizens in the community they live in. To date some 18 disabled persons in the immediate area have replied favorably to the letter sent out by Miss Morrison outlining the plans of the proposed organization.

In the larger places disabled persons trained along specialized lines have proved quite handy at earning a living for themselves working side by side with the physically fit.

In one instance, a Toronto girl, who had been confined to bed for others for many years learned weaving from special instructors and last year was able to earn $300. It is hoped that once a club has been formed here it will eventually become possible to teach a variety of arts and crafts including weaving, leathercraft, sewing and cabinet making.

Miss Morrison extends invitations to all disabled persons, whether they are ex-service personnel or civilians.

Will Meet at School

The monthly council meeting will be held tonight in a classroom at Dufferin Public School on Spring and Dufferin Streets, commencing at 8.00 p.m. Meeting in the schools was introduced in an effort to interest ratepayers in their own administration and administrative officers.

One Traffic Lane

While the usual approach to the town bridge is being repaired tomorrow one traffic lane will be kept clear most of the day. However, there may be times when both lanes are closed and in the event of an emergency needing hospital attention, an alternate route via the bridge at Glen Miller has been suggested. In the event the bridge here is closed for long periods during the day the Weaver ambulance service will keep an ambulance on the east side of town in readiness for the emergency.

Through traffic travelling east would be directed along Highway No. 33 to the Glen Miller bridge and down the east side of the river to link with No. 2 Highway. Traffic moving west would detour along Sidney Street to Glen Miller and then turn south to Highway No. 33 and Highway No. 2 at Consecon.

Repair work will be rushed in order to prevent additional holdups.

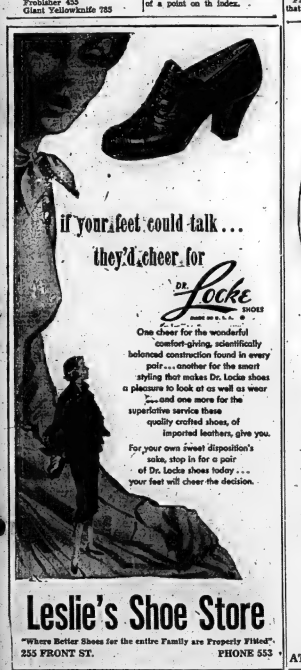
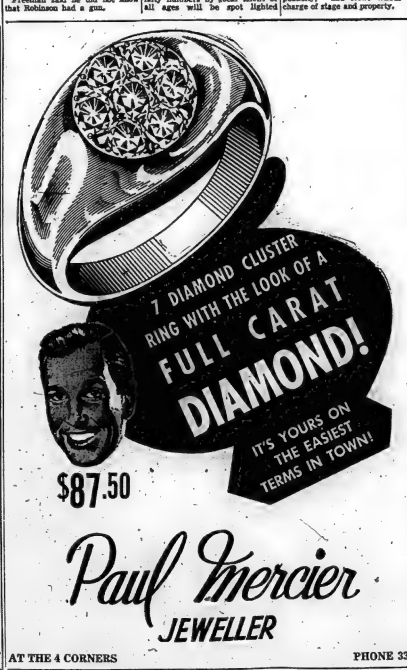
The Governor-General flew here from Ottawa in a Dakota. He was greeted by Air Commodore W. W. Brown, C.D., and Group Captain F. B. Millward, D.F.C., officer commanding the Trenton Air Station.

After inspecting an RCAF guard of honor here, the Governor-General left by car for Cobourg.



Body of Woman Found in River Near Montreal



MONTREAL (CP) — Provincial police Monday night appealed to the public for help in their efforts to identify the body of a woman who was murdered and dumped into the nearby Rivière des Prairies.

An autopsy showed the woman was strangled. Her body was found Monday in the river north of Montreal by two Quebec hydro employees.

Police said a half-inch rope was tied about her ankles, knees and wrists. A rough burlap sack was pulled over her head and a gag shoved into her mouth. In addition, rope was wound around her body and looped about her neck. A 20-pound block of cement was attached to the rope.

The autopsy showed the body had been in the water from five to nine months.

MAN'S INSATIABLE CURIOSITY

Professor Auguste Piccard, first man to explore the stratosphere more than 10 miles above the earth, descended 10,334 feet into the Mediterranean recently to set a new depth record. Professor Piccard took his bathysphere making plunge in a craft of his own design accompanied by his son.

This is just another example of the insatiable curiosity of some human beings. Nothing is too difficult or seemingly impossible for such men to attempt. To everyone but Professor Piccard and a few indomitable souls like himself, the thought of descending two miles into the sea is meaningless and terrifying. Risking one's life in such a seemingly pointless endeavor is not characteristic of the race as a whole.

The humble mind cannot conceive what Professor Piccard sought to achieve other than a new record descent. Having achieved the record mark, it is not unlikely conclude that is the end of the matter and both Professor Piccard and his son are well out of the affair with their lives.

However, it is the nature of his curiosity that Piccard is not satisfied. He was aiming for 12,460 feet. That he encountered "terrific pressure" at 10,334 feet means less to him than that he failed to achieve his own goal by 2,126 feet. Men of this kind will not be satisfied until the very depths of the ocean are explored. A descent of some 36,000 feet in a great fissure off the Philippine Islands in the Pacific.

Other men, transfixed by the idea of space and its conquest, continually proposing building world satellites and inaugurating inter-planetary space travel within the next 50 years.

About all this is likely to accomplish is debatable. We don't suppose the fishing 10,000 feet down is more exhilarating than in a trout stream, but frankly we are curious just what is at 10,000 feet and just what is beyond the moon.

We think most people are too. We know Professor Piccard and others like him are sufficiently interested to go and look. And it is not too difficult to imagine that some day they, or others like them, will succeed.

WHY NOT ELIMINATE KINDERGARTEN

Arthur Brown, chairman of the Toronto Board of Education, has charged that Ontario schools are being staffed with "baby sitters" under new department regulations. He says that the ruling permitting Grade 13 graduates to teach in primary schools after a summer school course, has "watered down" teachers' standards.

He may be right on both counts. The old regulation stated that Grade 13 graduates had to attend a normal school—recently rechristened Teachers' College before commencing class room work. A six-week summer school course is not equivalent, in time at least, to the year at normal and in that respect the standard for teachers has been "watered down." Whether or not the year's polishing at normal school is so vastly superior to a six-week course on technique and procedure is debatable. The department issues a basic outline for its primary school work and good teachers are those who have been following it for years. It is not likely that any great or lasting damage is going to be done young minds by a Grade 12 graduate from an Ontario high school following a prescribed course, completed superficially by senior teachers and principals.

To charge these teachers are "baby-sitters" implies that there is nothing to do with what they learn. Is it necessary to have a kindergarten in the elementary schools? This particular class would seem to be of dubious value from the standpoint of an over-all education. It is more or less a supervised playpen for tiny tots who would be better off at home.

Those who think kindergarten might not end the pupil congestion in our elementary schools but it might be a way to relieve a great many teachers for duty in the other grades is thus made it less necessary to "water down" the teaching standards.

CULINARY COURAGE

"If you want to cook well, you have to be an adventurer," says Hans Fread, owner of Toronto's famous "Sign of the Steer" restaurant.

Here is a bold challenge to recipes, the distribution of which has risen from its previous status as a major back-fence topic of conversation to a virtual industry.

It can, on consideration, it is easy to see what this former German lawyer has in mind. He places rather greater demands on the word "well" than is customary. Indeed it has always seemed to us that the ultimate test of a cook likely to be—an impartial judge would have to rule that they are a great aid in the efforts of many people to cook well. Indeed, without following them slavishly, the good cook will never be a great cook.

Experimentation, the courage to take a "chance," is necessary to achieve the superlative in the art of cooking, as in any other art. One might add that a certain amount of courage is needed. A good pocket-book helps. The middle-class Canadian, with his middle-class income and middle-class tastes cannot afford to have his cooking chances with the family's food dollars. Being rich helps the cook, as it helps those who follow most other occupations.

But there is also another road to glory and, incidentally, in the culinary arts it is one which has been much travelled. Poverty is almost as great an aid as wealth. For those with little must sometimes experiment in order to make this inadequate supply sufficient. Many of the gourmet's best delights are the result of such attempts to make unappetizing food taste better.

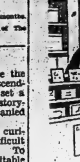
DISH WIPER

If you ever think that I
Dishes never learned to dry,
Let me tell you here and now
Mother early taught me how.



Seldom of my skill I boast.
I have little at the most,
But this bit of pride survives:
I am good with forks and knives.

As a boy from her I learned
Where each plate should be returned
On which shelf I also know
Where the cups and saucers go.

Dry the dishes? Yes, I can Need assistance? Any man.
Years ago my mother thought
That one's trade I should be taught.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

HAMMOCKS

I can sing with enthusiasm a song to the hammock, though that song may be more than one sung in the heart. At my summer home in Nova Scotia I was the earliest purchase, many years ago, was a hammock. In fact, this was indirectly the reason why I had one hung to catch the gold of the morning sunlight, and the other to face the sunsets in their riot of romping color.

My friend from across the lake saw these two in their inviting smile and immediately turned to his wife and said: "We go to town tomorrow and buy me two of them." Hammock glory is contagious. As a result we always had a hammock hung somewhere about the home, though today it seems to be almost a faded institution. In memory, however, I am sure it still lives in thousands of minds.

Vacation, on an island among the green pines and hemlocks, would be incomplete in happiness without this ever-inviting hammock. A New York financier visited me a few years ago, arriving to spend a few days in complete relaxation. He was writing. He brought along a suitcase with 21 books in it for reference and study. He never opened it. He spent his days in one of my hammocks.

That phrase "relax and live" ran through my mind during all the glorious days of the past summer, but those hammocks of mine kept those words alive, for it is through relaxing that we live in a state of hope and lack of fear. People who have never experienced the joy of a hammock should do a little investigating. It has the quiet lure of a meditative shrine.

In a recent picture of the home of Robert Louis Stevenson in the South Seas I noted a hammock hanging upon the porch. Undoubtedly many a day of thought was consecrated in that restful creation. Perhaps some of those famous prayers of Stevenson were composed as he lay there looking out upon the sea.

The hammock is ideal as a combination resting and reading place —and what an invitation if offers for an hour or so of genuine invigorating sleep in the open!

Letters to The Editor

Dwindling Exports Of Wheat Noted

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

That was certainly one of the brighter flashes in the news these days — and Heaven knows how refreshing it is — entitled "Britain Enjoys Plenty Again", credited to your British contemporary, Canadian Press News. While I noticed that the above story almost reeked with a nauseatingly sumptuary in your New York Times contemporary, intimating that "Britain's voters are unhappy over food prices," I concur in the opening note in your columns: It certainly makes a lovely headline — "All the Meat and Bacon You Want."

The point in the British survey which has 'sparked' this little letter, runs as follows: "The spectre of famine haunted large areas of the world . . . into Asia most millions of hungry mouths wheat, which normally would go to Britain, have become chronic 'rice bowls' of Burma and elsewhere were empty . . ."

Today the world is changed. The farms are busy again. Good harvests in both hemispheres have produced not only plenty but "surplus" in many countries, even of glut. The granaries of North America are filled to bursting point.

Naturally, this layman has not either time nor the wish or desire to comment upon, or enlarge, this encouraging scene; but it seems to me that the following table, from my farm paper last summer, is at any rate on the surface "Europe has always been the world's greatest market for wheat bread grain, but during the crop year 1951-52, for the first time, non-European countries bought more wheat than did those of Europe. The former taking 406,000,000 bushels and the latter 387,000,000 bushels, a reversal as for the 5-year period of World War II (1940-45) world wheat exports had nosedived to approximately 50 per cent, or 1,000,000 bushels, as against a 7-year average of 891,000,000 bushels since 1945."

Except for hay fever sufferers, most humans appear to be satisfied with the present state of the economy. For some men the nose has been a metaphorical stepping-stone to fame. In this country, however, history is marked by a lack of noteworthy noses. Where we Cyrano's a great nose indicates a great man —genial, 'courteous, intellectual, but not many others. Wealth and fame do not necessarily accompany accompanies its owner throughout life and every child's dream is to lead school. But tell me this: Would I be a better man, a happier man or a better barber if I could read?"

It occurred to me that the latter might be profited my by and for a time I watched for betrayal of his master-love when I was in his shop. But the man was illiterate, all right, and I could not detect any such betrayal. He was able to conceive how learning to read could make him a happier man or a better barber. The question has haunted my mind for many years and now it comes back with greater insistence than ever.

Somehow or other I remarked in a recent piece that I regret the time I wasted in algebra classes in high school as a total loss. I look back at my high school career in Canadadalupa with great satisfaction. There are only a few high school teachers today, it seems to me, who rate the high standard of the teachers we had at Union School (now Public) in my time. Some forty years, not so gay at 39 Chapel Street, particularly the year fathers put in the experimental wood, planted the potatoes two feet deep and had a hard winter in our house.

Now they tell me I ought to be ashamed to disparage high school algebra. A physician today needs a fair knowledge of chemistry and the study of algebra in high school is considered a fine preparation for chemistry. Obviously, one educator says, my high school teacher of chemistry must have been mathematics teacher.

The point which was the better teacher, but I still wish I had spent the time I dawdled over algebra acquiring an elementary knowledge of German, Spanish or French. The professor's "the contrary notwithstanding, even though algebra may be of some use to the chemist it is just hooey to the practicing physician. If you're thinking of a career anyone should be able to cite a concrete instance to prove it.

Story of Boy's Prayers At Early Scout Camp

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

Inasmuch as the Ned Feather campaign which began this week includes support for the Boy Scouts, I thought some of your readers may be interested in knowing that when the Boy Scout movement began in America, a big camp was started, which was to include boys as young as eight years. At seven o'clock on the evening of the first day a bugle had come to the chief officer, and saluting him said: "Please sir, mother said if I went to camp I was to go to bed at seven o'clock."

"Very well," replied the chief, "you may go to bed."

"Please sir," continued the boy, "mother said I was first to say my prayers."

"Very well," answered the chief, "you may say your prayers."

"Please sir," again spoke the young Scout, "I always say my prayers on my knees. May I say them at yours?"

The chief was touched. He told the boy aside into the woods and there they prayed together. From that time on the camp gradually became a religious one, although it had not started with that intention.

Nothing to Sniff At

(New York Times)

The features of the human face have been egated to the limits of its description in both prose and poetry. Eyes are usually limpid pools of fire; lips are rosebuds or cherry red; ears are like dewdrops. But what about the nose? No face is complete without one and yet not many writers and poets are virtually mute on the subject. Eyes come in different colors and there are slight variations in ears and mouths, it is true, but the nose provides the base for the character of face and cannot be altered or better shake than it is getting. For besides lack of it is hardly normal—and coming in various shades and colors, too—the nose has important utilitarian purposes.

Scientists say that the human nose is so sensitive to distinguish about sixteen million odors. The process is quite complex, involving thousands of nerves that serve as telephone exchanges to the brain. Nerve endings in the roof and posdor these details as the aroma that roast beef gives off. For besides lack of it is hardly normal—and coming in various shades and colors, too—the nose has important utilitarian purposes.

The nose performs many services that are little appreciated. It is, for example, an ideal resting place for glasses. It is the beam that it provides shade for incipient mustaches, and the ledge that extends down in one's face the nose channels the air to and from the lungs and the mouth. It provides a landing strip for flies and mosquitos that otherwise would be pestering other insects, although great care must be used, otherwise the nose ornament will put the nose out of commission. And, as with so many unappreciated things, we only become aware how important the nose is until it fails to function sufficiently to do without its services. There is no substitute for the nose though as a head cold that blocks off the nasal passages. The sufferer can hardly breathe, he is miserable, he cannot eat and life hardly seems worth living.

The nose has been a boon to Hollywood and the legitimate stage. Without it it is doubtful that would there be to quiver with anger and indignation that would be feeding lady have to turn up at the hero of the production when first they meet. Nor would the haughty aristocrat have to look down at the world if it is without the nose what life would be like without a nose—or, worse still, with a nose built more along the lines of other members of the animal kingdom. Imagine, if you can, the human face encumbered with the elongated proboscis of the elephant. Or the cold, twitching nose of the dog. Instead of a nose man might have been given a long beak, like the pelican's and he would be able to fish with ease, grass without lifting it from the table.

Fish-Farming Hope of Future

(Saint John Telegraph Journal)

Experiments in commercial fish farming in the Maritimes are taking place all over the world, with indications that some day men will be raising fish in the sea, as they do pigs in fish the ocean haphazardly. Any more than a farmer thinks of going out to shoot wild game instead of raising his beef herd. The ocean's produce will be harvested than a passing interest for New Brunswick, as a result of the development of lakes and rivers as well as the Maritime coast line. There are advantages for the industry of fish-farming.

Nutritionists say you can raise three to four times as much protein produce from an acre of water as from an acre of land. It is also possible that systematized fish farming will bring about a change in our sweet— or at least a temporary change in the protein content of the world's appetite for food. Populations are growing so fast that economists, using scientific and statistical, there are 53,000 more people waiting to be fed.

Fish-farming is not by any means new. All over Canada and the United States there are fish-breeding ponds which, operated scientifically, provide the greater part of household food as well as profitable tourist attractions. Here in Canada the Dominion government hatcheries which supply the stock for countless lakes and brooks and streams of the province, one of the best examples of the world is a long salt-water inlet in the west coast mainland which is blocked off with nets at its mouth. There commercial fish in great quantities are raised experimentally under ideal conditions. Powdered commercial fertilizer is poured into the bay to stimulate the growth of plankton, microscopic creatures on which the fish feed.

NO BETTER BARBER CAN READ

In Pen Yan when Tippy was a colt a haircut was two bits and round steak — well round steak was in the market if you could get up the nerve to ask for it when everybody else was buying it. The idea of a great white novelist, Advertently, a round steak still shows in the butcher shop, but aside from that —prepared a la Micky, as no restaurant or hotel chef can do — you'll never have to apologize to me for being out of those fancy steaks listed on your fancy menu.

Dr. Brady

About the time haircuts went up to 50 cents or maybe seventy-five — anyway I still patronized the barber shop—some of the best barbers I ever knew confided to me the secret of his businesses and his success in business. He had never learned to read.

He said he wouldn't regard this as a great impediment. Most people did. But from his observation of all religion, color, politics or nationality, I believe God meant that I should learn to read, and so I don't want to go to bed sights and sleep like a log. No sir, I wouldn't learn to be any other man's shoes. My wife wants everything for the children I tend school. But tell me this: Would I be a better man, a happier man or a better barber if I could read?"

It occurred to me that the latter might be profited my by and for a time I watched for betrayal of his master-love when I was in his shop. AMAZING LITERARY ACHIEVEMENT

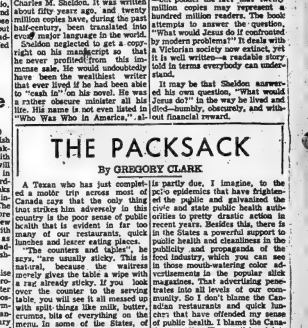
Do you know the name of the most popular novel ever written? It's entitled "The Bible," and as Charles M. Sheldon. It was written about fifty years ago, and twenty million copies have, during the past half-century, been translated into every major language in the world.

Sheldon neglected to get a copyright on his manuscript so that he never profited from this tremendous sale. He would undoubtedly have been the richest author that ever lived if he had been able to "cash in" on his novel. He died a rather modest existence all his life. His name is not even listed in "Who Was Who in America," although two other men of that same name are listed.

Everyone should read this novel. It may seem to many to be overdone, sentimental and emotional —but ponder the fact that twenty million copies may represent a hundred million readers. The book attempts to answer the question, "What would Jesus do?" Surely some one should be able to cite a concrete instance to prove it.



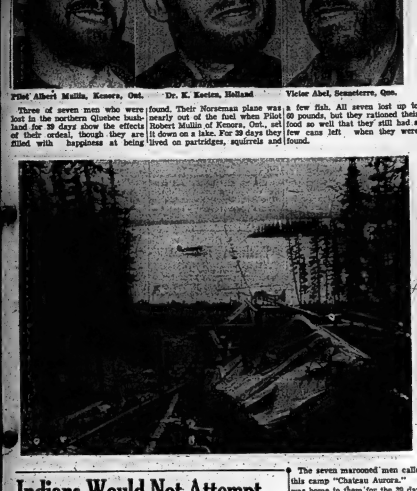
The PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A Texan who has just completed a motor trip across most of Europe says that what he missed most was "a cup of coffee." The way that strikes him adversely is the way that strikes most Americans. It is a health that is evident in far too many of our restaurants, quick lunches and later eating places.

"The counters and tables", he says, "are always covered with a film of spilled coffee. It is quite natural, because the waitress merely gives the top a wipe when one already sticky. If you look over the counter to the serving table you will see it all covered with spilt things like milk, butter, sugar and the remains of other customers' meals. In some of the States, of course, you can find the same conditions. But by and large the level of public health in most of the United States is far higher than in Canada. That public sense is not on the part of those engaged in the catering and restaurant business. It is on the part of the customers. They just won't patronize a restaurant that is consciously careless and unfriendly tidy and clean. This feeling is partly due, I imagine, to the psycho epidemics that have frightened the public mind about the clinical and state public health authorities in the United States in recent years. Besides this, there is the fact that a great deal of support to public health and cleanliness is the publicity and propaganda of the health authorities which you can see in those mouth-watering color advertisements in the popular slick magazines. That advertising penetrates into all levels of our consciousness. So don't blame the Canadian restaurants and quick lunches too much for their lack of sense of public health. I blame the Canadian public. Those dirty joints don't pay to be in operation if the Canadian people were more particular.

Public health laws are one thing. Their enforcement is quite another. But public opinion is the real control so far as our places of refreshment are concerned. If we are content, far be it from the trade to throw its money around. To be finicky cost.



Shed Up to 60 Pounds While Lost in Quebec Bush

Pilot Albert Mullis, Kenora, Ont. — Dr. K. Keeten, Holland — Victor Abel, Senneterre, Que.

Three of seven men who were lost in the northern Quebec bushland for 39 days show the effects of their ordeal, though they are filled with happiness at being found. Their Norseman plane was nearly out of the fuel when Pilot Robert Mullis of Kenora, Ont., set it down on a lake. For 39 days they lived on partridges, squirrels and a few fish. All seven lost up to 60 pounds, but they rationed their food so well that they still had a few cans left when they were found.

Indians Would Not Attempt To Halt Mass PoW Escape Because of Cost in Lives

By MILO FARNETI

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The senior Indian officer in Korea said today that Indian troops would not attempt to halt any mass breakout of anti-Communist war prisoners because of the "terrible slaughter" that would follow.

Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya made the statement at a press conference even as Communist newspapers in the South Korean capital of Seoul in a [illegible] against Indians guarding PoWs who have refused to go home.

It also came amid renewed threats by South Korean leaders to drive out the Indians—who they denounce as pro-Communist.

Not Afraid Of Risks

Thimayya said "we are not concerned if South Korea threatens us because we have the huge UN command" and Communist forces "at our disposal."

He said the United Nations command was responsible for preventing South Korean troops from entering the neutral zone to attack Indian forces.

(Government sources in New Delhi, the Indian capital, echoed Thimayya's statement that the Allies would be responsible for halting any South Korean attack.

("It is the responsibility of both the Communist and UN commands to enable the (Korean repatriation) commission to fulfill its duties," the sources said.

("So if there is any threat, it is for the command concerned—in this case the United Nations—to stop it.")

No Comment On Letter

Thimayya did not comment on a letter sent to him today by Gen. Mark W. Clark in which the retiring Far East commander said the UN will not waver from the principle of freedom of choice for the 23,000 anti-Communist prisoners in Indian custody.

Thimayya said it is "highly likely" that the long-delayed interviewing of the bulky PoWs will begin next Tuesday.

Allied and Communist teams were to begin meeting Sept. 26 with the prisoners in an attempt to persuade them to return home, but a dispute over facilities for the interviews forced postponement.

Answers Questions

Thimayya answered dozens of questions by both Allied and Communist correspondents at his headquarters in the demilitarized zone at Panmunjom.

Asked if the 5,200 Indian troops guarding the PoWs would try to quell a mass escape attempt, Thimayya answered with a flat "no."

He added he was confident the crack Indian troops could halt a breakout, but commented:

"I do not think we would try to check a mass break-out because of the terrible slaughter, which no civilized nation could perpetrate."

Ask For Tear Gas

Thimayya said Indian forces have asked for gas masks and tear gas.

The Indians put down—not without bloodshed — two attempted breakouts by anti-Communist prisoners during riotous demonstrations last week. Three prisoners were killed and 20 wounded as hundreds tried to scale barbed-wire fences around their compounds.

Thimayya acknowledged that the commission has not definitely decided what to do if the prisoners refuse to attend interviews.

However, he did not believe it would be "physically impossible" for the commission to force PoWs to listen to "explanations."

Asked what the commission would do if an entire compound of prisoners staged a sit-down strike rather than meet with the agents, he replied:

"Search me, I don't know what we could do. I suppose I'd have to refer to the commission."

Flying U.S. Flag Is No Compliment To American Visitors to Canada

VICTORIA (CP) — Untidy restlessness and unnecessary flying of the United States flag were criticized Monday during sessions of the Canadian Tourist Association's annual convention here.

Delegates heard a report from Mrs. Florence G. Montgomery, managing director of the British Columbia Restaurant Association, and chairman of the Tourist Association Committee on Canadian cuisine.

She said the result of all questionnaires showed the majority of American visitors were satisfied with Canadian food, but many offered suggestions regarding prices, variety of dishes, more fresh fruits and salads. A large number complained about the condition of rest rooms in Canadian eating places.

Mrs. Montgomery reported "excellent improvement" in Canadian cuisine, with regional dishes being featured in various parts of Canada.

Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian government travel bureau, told delegates "you pay no tribute to American citizens when you fly their flag for commercial purposes."

He called for more "Canadianism" and less "Americanism."

"Let us have just a little more of the touch of Quebec, of places like the Old England Inn in Victoria and of today's fish menu (at the convention luncheon). These are Canadian."

To increase the tourist trade, Canada must increase promotion, spend more money and make the country "more attractive in some ways," he said.

Ralph R. Moore, Alberta's deputy minister of economic affairs, was re-elected president of the association for the coming year.

George Leveille, director of the O-ka-naw exhibition bureau, was named first vice-president. Gordon Wood, of Trans-Canada Airlines, Montreal, was named second vice-president and Frank S. Carmell of the T. Eaton Co., Toronto, third vice-president.

The convention was moved here after a three-day session in Vancouver.

Family Friend May Be Paying Ransom For Boy

By AL DOPKING

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A missing spokesman at the home of the wealthy parents of six-year-old Bobby Greenlease aroused more speculation today that a break might come at any time in the nine-day-old kidnapping case.

The spokesman, Robert Lederman, hasn't been seen at the home of the 71-year-old father Robert C. Greenlease, since early Sunday morning. Other associates of the family, considered among the 10 wealthiest in Kansas City, met all queries about Lederman with the statement that he was resting and couldn't be disturbed.

Lederman, because of his close tie with the family, frequently has been mentioned as a possible intermediary.

He's Brother Visits

Stirring more mystery about the quiet efforts of the family to get their son back was a visit to the home Monday night by President Eisenhower's banker brother, Arthur B. Eisenhower spent 15 minutes there. As he left, he told reporters he could give them no information.

Last week when Joseph Williams, president of a trust company, visited the home, the father said he had made arrangements to get money day or night to meet ransom demands. Eisenhower is executive vice-president of the same bank.

Greenlease, millionaire automobile dealer and distributor, has said he would give anything to get his son back. However, the family has denied published reports that a $500,000 ransom had been demanded.

No FBI Comment

The FBI here and at Washington met all queries about the case with "No comment." The federal agency declined to say whether it had entered the case officially under the Lindbergh law, which allows it to enter the case after seven days on the assumption the victim has been taken across a state line by that time.

Kansas City police chief Bernard Brannen insisted he had "no knowledge" of an approaching break.

The boy was kidnapped by a woman from the exclusive French institute of Notre Dame de Sion a week ago Monday.

The seven marooned men called this camp "Chateau Aurora." It was home to them for the 39 days they spent in the Quebec bush. They miscalculated where they were and fully expected they would be rescued in a day or two after landing. Three of them had started to attempt to walk for help a few hours before they were sighted by the rescue plane.—Central Press-Canadian Photos.

The marriage of Bessie Victoria Rush, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rush, of Trent Rd., to Carl Alexander De Rushie, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. James De Rushie, of Belleville, was solemnized at Christ Church, Belleville at 10:30 Saturday, October 3, by Archdeacon J. B. Cresgrave.

The bride wore a navy trio-tine suit with matching accessories and gloves, and corsage of pink carnations.

She was attended by Mrs. Bruce De Rushie, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, who was attired in a blue suit with corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Bruce De Rushie brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were from Ottawa, and Trenton district.

The reception at the bridegroom's home, where the bride's mother, wearing navy blue crepe and corsage of pink carnations received assisted by the bridegroom's mother, in a blue beige with corsage of yellow bronze Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. De Rushie will reside in Belleville.

St. Margaret's 'Little Helpers' Hold Party

On Friday afternoon, the second annual "Little Helpers" party was held at St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill with many young children and their mothers and grandmothers in attendance. The secretary of St. Margaret's "Little Helpers" branch, Mrs. R. I. Davis and her assistant, Mrs. C. James, welcomed the guests at the door.

Rev. L. Arthur Page, rector, added his welcome, and then conducted a brief service during which the children deposited their "mite" boxes in a decorated basket on the chancel steps. This offering is dedicated to the work of missionaries.

The little guests joined in the singing of "Jesus Loves Me", and "All Things Bright and Beautiful" accompanied at the organ by Miss G. Bennett.

Mrs. Arthur Watson related the story of "The Baby Moses", with the aid of flannelgraph, and Mr. Page brought the service to a close.

The children then gathered around flower-centred tables for their much anticipated party and the older Rubrik were served a delightful tea by members of St. Margaret's W.A., and their assistants.

Christ Church "Little Helpers" group was represented by Mrs. W. J. Cooke, and Mrs. Arthur Bongard.

Business Women's Week Will Commence Oct. 11

TORONTO (CP)—A club whose members engage in many fields, from giving legal advice to delivering babies, is staging Ontario's second annual "Business Women's Week" starting October 11.

They are members of the province's 68 business and professional women's clubs, and range in age from the early 20s to 70. The idea is to acquaint the general public with the contributions made by business and professional women to the nation's activities—in public affairs, education, arts and professions.

The first "Business Women's Week" was held in the United States 4p 1928. The Ontario clubs, representing some 3,000 women, tried out the idea last year and decided to make it an annual event.

International Body

The international organization of these clubs is one of the most diversified groups in the world. It has some 52,000 members in 20 countries, on every rung of the business ladder. The Canadian clubs started in Winnipeg in 1910, and now have 6,000 members in the 10 provinces.

Ontario club members, when asked what they've accomplished, usually mention first the legislation requiring equal pay for equal work now in force in Ontario and Saskatchewan. Margaret Hyndman, Toronto lawyer, played a leading role in getting such legislation passed.

The authority on company laws, Miss Hyndman is typical of the members. She was made King's Counsel in 1938, the second woman in Ontario so honored, and is vice-president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Also joining in Ontario's weeklong celebration will be Mary E. Douglas, a past president of the Toronto club who started work as a bookkeeper with an industrial thermometer company in 1935. She became manager in 1939, bought the company in 1946 and then hired her husband.

Another member, Mrs. Alice Rutledge of Toronto, runs her own drug store. The provincial president of the clubs, Marjory Fewtrell of Cobourg, is manager of a flavoring extract company.

Celebrations of Business Women's Week will take different forms in different communities. Some will hold special meetings, arrange radio broadcasts and display posters, and attend church services.

Becoming a carbon copy of the "perfect man" is not the goal of these women. As international president Caroline Haslett of London, England, puts it:

"Women don't need to copy men. They should let their courtesy alive as much as possible and should aim for an equality that does not eliminate graciousness."

Marg. Hallam New President Kinette Club

The first meeting of the year for the Kinette Club of Belleville was held in St. Thomas' Parish Hall.

All annual reports were presented. Outgoing president Convener, Helen Wilbur, installed the following officers for the coming year: past president, Marg. Hallam; past president, Ruth Pollwell; secretary, Agnes Walker; treasurer, Helen Garbutt; executive members, Mary Ann Rose, Helen Lennon, Ida MacDonald, Peg Mulvihill, Jean Smith.

Following the installation ceremony, plans were discussed for projects for the year and all committee chairmen were announced.

It question 10 it asks one to hunt for his or her talents and to use them; it searches out the personal gift of one's gift.

A lady greatly interested in her church since worship was Greeley, journalist and editor, asking him if he could suggest any new way to raise money. They needed funds; they tried tea's, bazaars, dinners, could he suggest something different.

He replied "Religion."

When God is taken into the life, He comes into the heart in all His fullness of life, bringing a joy which one at once wishes to share with others.

Religion awakens in one a love and sense of duty to one's fellowmen. Mrs. Glazie was also shown, true Christian steward in the great work of the church, and gives a closer fellowship with God. "Let all try to do a little more to bring true religion into all their work and plans in God's service."

Asia Came Work

Mrs. Arthur took up the second chapter of the study book, telling the story work in Asia, showing how young people of many different nationalities are brought together in love and good fellowship.

Mrs. Robertson gave a reading and Mrs. Arthur Clarke brought a piece, secretary, an appropriate reading on the subject.

Thanks were tendered the hostess and group leader for their hospitality and assistance. Thanks were also tendered by Mrs. Doxtator to her group for their help and to all those who had assisted her.

Bounteous refreshments were served by Mrs. Elliott and Mrs. Gannon, assisted by Mrs. Doxtator and her group, following the close of the meeting, at which time a social time was enjoyed.

Be as Sweet as You Should Be

A fragrant bath oil poured into a warm tub is one of the most feminine and flattering aids to allover loveliness and daintiness.

By HELEN FOLLETT

The daily bath or shower is a great American institution. The wise woman takes time out for bubbling morning ana night. She chooses fragrant bath accessories, uses scented soap, bath powder and a perfumed talcum. She knows that daintiness is important to her success at home, at the office and out in the world.

Only occasionally is excessive perspiration due to some glandular disorder or minor physical ill. Mostly it is based on neglect. Faulty diet and infrequent baths can cause this unpleasantry. So can lack of a deodorant.

Bath Brush

A heavy-bristled brush should be used when bathing. It will do a thorough cleansing job and inbe her shin's dainty.

Wrapped up hats appear in almost every new showing, some allowing just a bit of hair to show in front. One such, in blush-green panne is a cone shaped affair with an indented clover crown. It wraps around the head, ending in back with a large bow of black satin.

A little touch of fur sparks up a new group of jersey blouses. Smart on gray or red or green is tiny collar of leopard, and leopard buttons. Twin or green-dyed mink are mink-covered buttons lend interest to a dark brown wool jersey batwing blouse.

Striking theatre ensembles mark the new season. A beauty consists of a full-yoked theatre coat of tapestry pink satin lined with brown. Lined worn over a brown velvet sheath that uses pink satin at the neckline and for the draped, tucked cummerbund.

A good item in any wardrobe is a smart jacket of black Persian lamb. It goes beautifully over silk suits, and adds up to an elegant costume with a slim wool dress or skirt. A new offering has black ball fringe circling the brief collar and outlining the slant pockets. Dropped shoulder cases into supple sleeves finished with brief cuffs.

SUNBEAM M.B.

The Sunbeam Mission Band of White's District, held its first meeting of the fall term at Quinte View School on Friday afternoon with an attendance of 33 members.

The officers for the year 1953-1954 were installed by the leader, Mrs. Leonard Young. The officers are president, Gary Reid; vice-president, Anna Strong; secretary, Marilyn Bowers; treasurer, Gail Glogras and program conveners, Clayton Drouillard and Barbara Goldie.

The new president was in charge of the program with Mrs. Campbell as pianist.

Marilyn Bowers read the Scripture, Genesis 1:24-25 and Dianne Dale gave the story of the lesson, "The Sixth Day of God".

A play "How Does Your Mission Band Grow" was well given by four girls Marilyn Bowers, Anne Blong, Sylvia Billhan and Gail Glogras, assisted by Barbara Gary Reid, Clayton Drouillard, Monty Drouillard and Gary Glogras.

"Mother Goose" contests were enjoyed by all present with colors.

The study book "Nyanga's Two Villages", was given by the leaders.

Fashion Flashes

THERE'S NOTHING like leather, so the adage has it, and now dress designers and furriers are trying out the notion. For sports wear there are interesting bracelets and earrings of red or blue leather with gold, and a pert and pretty hat is a plaged pillbox of white leather with a big pale pink leather rose.

Despite all the barrels and bottles, the smartest suit is still the softly fitted tailor job. Silky tweed, in the new blue-green mixture, is used for a tailored suit, the fitted jacket with welt seams accenting the soft curves, and forming sort of gothic arches on either side of the four-button closing. Jacket has a vent in back; slim skirt has a kick pleat.

GOOD MANNERS

Engagement Presents Must Be Returned

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Last year I became engaged to a young man in the service, just before he was to leave for duty in Germany. I hadn't known him very long, and since he left. I have come to realize (mainly through his thoroughly inadequate letters) that I made a big mistake. I wrote him that I want to be released from the engagement; and I really think, from his reply, that he agrees with my decision. So now that my parents can send to the local newspaper the formal announcement that our engagement "is broken by mutual consent." I want to return the engagement presents I received. (Fortunately there wasn't time for shower parties!) Most of these engagement presents are personal things, not to return, but three or four were important gifts from his family (one a family heirloom jewel). Must I return these? Also several of my relatives gave me checks which I deposited in my savings bank account. Must I return these.

Anne

Yes . . . you must return every present given to you as a gesture to the engagement which no no longer exists. This is your strict obligation. It is your family inspiration that you return the "important gifts" given to you by your ex-fiance's family . . . and most particular that family heirlooms fewel given you. Also all money gifts must be returned . . . even though given you by your relatives.

Don't ask relatives or friends if they wish to have their presents returned . . . just return them, with a gracious little note of explanation.

A Serious Problem Concerning Godparents

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My husband and I are planning a Confirmation party for our son. About this I have no worries at all, I am one of my husband's brothers and his wife have refused three previous invitations to important occasions at our home. Now my husband absolutely refuses to invite them to this Confirmation party for our son. But, since they are the child's godparents, I feel they should be sent an invitation. please settle this disagreement for us.

Yvonne L.

I most sincerely hope that you will be able to persuade your husband to give you the permission to send this invitation to the godparents of your little son . . . even if you have to promise him that if they don't accept this invitation, you will consider this "final." Urge him to think of possible future consequences of an invitation-omission . . . there might well be a deep and tragic regret. They might conceivably be perfectly good reasons why they couldn't accept your former invitations . . . give them the benefit of the doubt. But if they don't make the proper bow to this so-important and so-significant occasion of their godchild's Confirmation, then your husband's point of view, will certainly be justified. But I hope you can give them this one chance.

THE GREEKS HAVE A WORD FOR IT

. . . WE MEAN the magic word that tells a male to get going. It probably worked better than usual, recently, when Greek male-drivers had to transport into the isolated interior, roofing materials needed for the construction of refugee shelters. The government purchased 2,000 tons of aluminum for the purpose — and incidentally licked the transportation problem.

Another nice thing about aluminum's lightness is that a given poundage goes two to three times as far as with other metals. It often means that aluminum, with all its advantages, actually costs less, too. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

BEAUTY

Too Bad, But They Just Won't Listen.

Sermonettes For Sub-Debs

Statistics prove that teen-agers are taller and heavier than their mothers were in their youth. Observe a crowd of high school girls. Husky as all get out. Rosy cheeks, strong limbs, clear complexions and, yes, bigger feet, though that doesn't seem to bother them. They were well fed babies, having been stuffed with vitamins and strained vegetables and meat when they were tiny infants.

Youth, full of vitality, is long on activity and short on rest. Youth's slogan is "Let's go places." Girls seem to think that unless a party goes on until all hours it is not a success. Late hours are a parental worry. Mama stays awake until a car pulls up and daughter dashes in. Not so good for mama, who gets premature wrinkles and shadows under her eyes. And not so good for daughter, who will pay a penalty for disregarding the rules of health.

Girls who do not get enough sleep, whose lives are rushed, get old-looking eyes that lack sparkle and animation.

In the course of time the fresh, lovely complexion will lose its bloom. During the period of growth long hours of sleep are necessary. Cheating the sandman will interfere with the development of beautiful body lines. It will take the ginger out of the step. And a tired girl is not a jolly companion.

From high school a girl progresses into college activities which all too often are a strain upon the health, vitality and nervous system. Combining social affairs, classes and study can form a pretty strenuous life.

There is also the matter of eating habits. Without the necessary food elements to supply the body's needs, all manner of troubles can arise. Irritation and nervousness can often be traced to food deficiencies as can many other health and beauty problems. Debility from undernourishment creeps along slowly, yet many girls, nibbling between meals, or hanging around the soda fountain, never eat a woman sized meal.

Without enough sleep and without the right kind of food mental efficiency is lowered. Many girls worry over marks because they are not strictly up to par. Too bad, but they just won't listen.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

How Stupid Can A Wife Be?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My husband is a well-known attorney. For years, partly because of my cold nature and partly for other reasons, I refused to be a wife to him except in name. We occupied separate rooms. When he kissed me I did not respond. I busied myself with club activities and art interests. Affection seemed so unnecessary.

A few months ago, during my husband's stay in a hospital, I discovered in his office correspondence, evidence of a current affair and of several other affairs over the years. So now, in an effort to try and win him back—since, after all, I do not want to lose my social position—I have pretended affection and warmth toward him. On his side, he also pretends to care, but I know it is all sham.

What shall I do?

J.B.

DEAR J.B.:

How stupid can a woman get any way? And just exactly what did you marry this man for? The mother of twins can speak of as the wife of a prominent attorney? If you had no intention of being a proper wife to your husband, then you have been, from the beginning, just as much a cheat in your own way as he has been in his, only he has rather more experience at it, and has done more than you have, since you have none whatever. What has happened is entirely your own fault, and I have no sympathy for you.

If there is any sincerity at all in you, so far as changing your attitude toward your husband is concerned, then I think you should go to a doctor, or a marriage counselor, or what have you, and see on an effort to find out what can be done about this "cold nature" of yours. In fact, I advise you to see both doctor and marital counselor.

There definitely is something wrong with a woman who behaves as you have behaved, and if you really intend to try and live a normal life with your husband, you will have to take steps to correct it. Unless you have some real feeling for him, however, and wish to keep your home together for some reason besides maintaining that "social position" of yours, it hardly seems worth the trouble.

But do you really want to go on all your life living a lie just for the sake of keeping up appearances?

She Wants To Go Steady—He Doesn't

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For the past four months I have been going steady with a boy younger than myself. I am 17.

Now he says he doesn't think we should go steady because we both are still in school, but I think he just says this because that is what the other boys tell him.

Do you think we are too young to go steady? I like this boy very much and want to go steady with him so what can I do to make him feel different about it?

P.S.

DEAR P.S.:

Yes, I do think you are too young to "go steady," and I think your boy friend is quite right. Moreover, I believe he will like you a lot better if you accept what he says and don't try to get him to do anything he doesn't want to do. Even if it's just the other boys that have talked him out of it because they may feel he shouldn't be going steady with a girl older than himself, he would probably feel self-conscious about it if he persisted in doing so, and put himself in a position where he would be constantly teased by his friends. Go out with him if he asks you, and don't get mad if he doesn't. Let him see that you're willing to be good friends with him, and with other boys, too, and he'll respect you a lot more. Act as if you wanted to own him, and you'll chase him away entirely.

Smorgasbord Ideas For Choir Supper

By Mary Moore

Marion Shand asked for Smorgasbord ideas for their church supper late in October and I promised to devote a column to it.

Smorgasbord seems to a Canadian like a meal served before a meal, because it is so generous. But in many Canadian hotel dining- rooms Smorgasbords are being featured on Saturday evenings and this has expanded to a full-scale Smorgasbord supper. I presume this the type of meal Marion has in mind.

Each guest is given a plate. He helps himself to small portions from the great variety of dishes. He eats these with bread or rolls and butter. A variety of bread and rolls is provided, including rye of course.

In your case, Marion, this variety might please everybody: stuffed hard-cooked eggs; red and green cole slaw—one large bowl of each kind; about 4 varsausage; tiny pickled herrings; or herring cute; hot ripe olives cheese stuffed tomatoes; tiny of sliced, raw-tips celery and carrot curls; dill pickles; tongue in aspic (see below). Then as full-scale ribsticking dishes have your members bake and divide cassettes of baked beans and beef and kidney pies. These two latter items would be reheated in the church kitchen oven just ahead of the supper by your committee.

Have a choice of pumpkin and apple pies at you suggested—do-

Indian Girls Interested In Being Doctors

WINNIPEG (CP)—Girls in India are more interested in becoming doctors than nurses.

This view was expressed here by Dr. Lucy Mar Daudle of Poona, a petite woman doctor making a tour of Canadian hospitals en route to London, England, for post-graduate work.

In an interview, she said the people generally in India are becoming more hospital-minded, with the result that the government maintains a number of free general institutions.

New-born infants are kept with their mothers for breast-feeding, a practice which is being revived by some Canadian hospitals.

India is not behind in the field of modern medicine and her population is steadily increasing because of this, she said. The new and slimmer 30 minutes. Soak child in India has a better chance of survival than his parents had. Much is being done in the field of birth control. Many large cities provide free pre-natal care clinics.

Midwifery relieves Indian doctors of much work. Special courses are given in such skills. But there is only one doctor to every 10 or 12 units, and health and social welfare improvements are needed.

Clear Quick Aspic

(May be used for pressed meats such as lounge, chicken, veal.)

Three tablespoons gelatin, 3 1-2 cups water, 6 bouillon cubes, 1 1-2 tablespoons each carrot and onion minced, and chopped celery, 2 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 bay leaves, 3 cloves, 1 teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne. Soak gelatin 5 minutes in an additional 1-3 cup cold water. Dissolve the bouillon cubes in 3 1-2 cups water, add seasonings, cover and simmer 30 minutes. Taste to see if more salt is needed—it should be quite salty. Add soaked gelatin and stir until dissolved. Strain through double cheesecloth. Let cool, but do not allow to set. Arrange slices of boiled peeled, sliced fresh or pickled tongue, hard-boiled, sone of the guisen, over, and continue layering like this until mold is full. Weight down with plate and chill.

Salmon Loaf

(This amount serves 70.)

(I printed this a week or so ago but you may have missed it.) Sixteen cups white navy beans, 6 tablespoons salt, 1-4 tsp. soda, 1 cup molasses, 1-2 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons mustard, 2 teaspoons paprika, 1 lb. chopped salt pork. Soak beans in cold water to cover 10 hours. Cover with water —it is not necessary to drain off the soaking water. Add salt, soda, simmer until almost tender. Drain and reserve liquid and make it up to 12 cups. Pour this, when you have added all other ingredients to it, over beans in shallow greased pans and bake at 250 deg. Fahr. for 1-2 hours. This is usually served with tomato catsup or chili sauce.

In the event that you do not fancy the tongue in aspic I am adding escalloped salmon for 50.

Escalloped Salmon

(For 50.)

Ten 1-lb. cans red or pink salmon, 12 cups coarsely broken fresh bread, 16 cups whole milk, 4 bay leaves, 1 1-2 cups good quality fat, 3 3-4 cups flour, 1-2 teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons salt, 1 cup buttered crumbs. Mix salmon with the broken bread. Add bay leaves to milk and scald them in top of double boiler together. Fish out bay leaves. Melt fat, stir in flour and stir in hot milk until thick. Add salt and paprika and cook over double boiler 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add salmon-bread mixture and pour into greased pans. Sprinkle buttered crumbs over. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes. Tuna may be used instead of salmon. This dish could be made up day before serving and kept in refrigerator and baked just before serving.

I enjoyed hearing from you Marion. Hope you saw both the recipes for peppers you asked for in the column recently.

SWEDISH PRINCE DEAD

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Prince Oscar Bernadotte, 83-year-old uncle of King Gustaf Adolf VI of Sweden, died here Sunday. He had been bedridden for two months.

Prince Oscar was the father of Count Folke Bernadotte, who was assassinated in Palestine in 1948 while working at the United Nations mediator there.

May Establish Board to Study Abolishing Hanging, Whipping

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The government may establish a royal commission possibly before Parliament opens this fall—to study the question of abolishing hanging and whipping.

The government plans to ask the new Parliament to complete the job of consolidating criminal law at the forthcoming session, leaving controversial matters to be studied further.

The consolidation considered at the last two sessions of the last Parliament and most of the preparatory work was done then on rewriting the law into uniform language, eliminating legal anomalies and classifying penalties.

Before Parliament was dissolved, the Commons committee considering the consolidation recommended that the controversial questions of capital and corporal punishment be referred to a royal commission or a joint parliamentary committee.

Part In 88 Years

It is understood the government plans to take the former step to ensure that debate on controversial questions will not impede passage of the consolidation, the first in Canadian criminal law in 88 years.

The Senate spent several months of two sessions of Parliament reviewing word by word the 670-odd sections of the Criminal Code.

A Commons committee completed a review of the Senate's work in the dying days of the last session.

The amount of work involved, even after the efforts of distinguished lawyers in the Senate, kept the bill from passing before Parliament was dissolved. Delays also resulted from a movement aimed at revising the law on the death and whipping penalties.

The draft bill probably will come before Parliament early in the new session. Much of the ground covered in previous sessions must be reviewed by both Commons and Senate.

Will Take Time

Even a cursory examination of the draft bill would take a considerable part of a session to pass three readings in Commons and Senate and the detailed examination in committees of both chambers.

One possible short-cut would be a joint parliamentary committee to deal with the consolidation at this session while the royal commission is studying the controversial matters.

The consolidation contains few changes in the meaning of the law. Its biggest feature is a provision eliminating English common law as a basis for criminal charges.

That means that for the first time in Canadian legal history all the crimes for which a person may be charged will be contained in one statute. The body of decisions handed down in past years on English common law may still be used in deciding cases. But if the offence is not contained in the Criminal Code, no charge may be laid.

The consolidation also tightens the laws on treason and sedition, stiffening the penalties and broadening the offences.

Other Questions

Besides the questions of capital and corporal punishment, a royal commission may also examine the defence for "insanity" in criminal law. Several organizations suggested at committee hearings that present criminal law contains inexact terms describing mental illnesses and that some descriptions refer to illnesses which do not really exist.

The Criminal Code's prohibition of games of chance and lotteries also may receive some attention.

The degree to which the ban is enforced depends largely on the attitudes of the provincial attorneys general who administer the criminal law.

Some regard it as difficult to enforce, particularly in the case of lotteries operated by groups which might be considered to be on the borderline between welfare organizations and profit-making associations.

Premier Duplessis of Quebec has publicly urged that the law be changed to permit the Quebec government to operate a lottery with the proceeds going to education or similar activities.

Board Rules Strikes Illegal At Two Plants

PRESTON (CP) — The Savage Shoe Company said Monday the Ontario labor relations board has ruled illegal strikes called at two of its three Preston plants by the United Packinghouse Workers of America (CIO-CCL).

The company said it had received word from the board that a strike at its No. 1 plant is illegal. Earlier the board had ruled illegal a strike at the No. 3 plant. The third plant was not affected by the walkouts which began last May 28.

Some 350 employees were affected by the two strikes, called to enforce demands for union recognition, a five-cent-an-hour wage increase and checkoff—under which an employer deducts union dues from the employee's wages and turns it over to the union.

The board denied applications for leave to prosecute the union.

Office employees and foremen continued to work during the strike. Lately some production workers have gone back to work and their number now is estimated to be 150 or so.

Second Inquiry May be Called

SARNIA (CP)—A second inquiry into the collision of two ships in the St. Clair river may be called Wednesday or Thursday at Port Huron by the 9th district of the U.S. Coast Guard.

Reports here Monday indicated the captain, the chief engineer and four crew members of the German ship Wallachfit, sunk in the collision, have volunteered to testify at the hearing.

It would supplement an inquiry at Lorraine, O., at which evidence is being taken from the captain and crew members of the American freighter Pioneer, second ship involved in the crash Friday.

27th Brigade Praised

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Dr. W. T. Ross Flemington of Sackville, principal Protestant chaplain with Canada's overseas forces in the Second World War, said Monday night that Canada can be proud of the 27th Brigade in Germany for "doing a very difficult job and doing it very well indeed."

The president of Mount Allison University, disagreeing with newspaper correspondents who have criticized the force, said in an interview that should war break out overnight the well-trained and efficient 27th would be ready to fight and fight well.

"They are excellent soldiers," said Dr. Flemington, who recently spent three days with the brigade, given the sole right, with a few exceptions, to try and punish U.S. soldiers and civilians attached to the United States armed services for offences committed while they are off duty in Japan. Icelandic Lovelies Gave Cold Stare To Beauty Contest

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (Reuters) —Icelandic lovelies gave a frozen stare to inquisitive males trying to organize Reykjavik's first beauty contest.

The girls refused to break the ice and only six turned up at a much - publicized pollies' competition in the capital's Tivoli Park.

There the six insisted on appearing in evening dress instead of the usual bathing suit, refused to be photographed and demanded a guarantee of anonymity for the five losers.

Eventually 43 per cent of the 7,000 spectators gave the winning vote to Miss Sigridur Arnadottir, 19-year-old baker's assistant and set off a violent controversy about beauty contests in general in the national press.

Miss Arnadottir won a complete wardrobe of clothes, a camping outfit and a two-week vacation in Scandinavia.

Fully-Serviced Building Lots Sold for $225

STRATFORD (CP)—A fully-serviced building lot for $225? They were going at that price Monday for those who lined up in time.

Eighteen of the building bargains were on sale at the office of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, the first of 122 lots in the Avalon Park Dominion-provincial land assembly subdivision.

There were plenty of takers. Prospective buyers, with money in their hands, queued up outside the office long before it opened at 8:30 a.m.

A buyer got a lot from 30 to 75 feet in frontage, serviced with water, sanitary and storm sewers and roadways in an area regarded as a city planner's showpiece.

All were sold in less than two hours. The corporation will put the remaining 104 lots on sale as soon as roadways are built.

Mine Strikes in N. Ontario Put Union Into Fuel Business

By JOHN LEBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NORANDA, Que. (CP)—The long strike hit the metal mines of northern Ontario and Quebec has thrust a union into the fuel business.

In the bush country near this strikebound northern Quebec city, the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) is hacking down trees to keep its wood-burning membership fuelled for fall and winter.

Union officials say the strike-impelled move has put the organization here into fuelling operations permanently.

Across the provincial border in Ontario's striking Porcupine area, the union is wood-cutting, too, but doesn't expect to stay in the business for keeps.

Free Derfuy Births

In Noranda district, about 500 strikers will get wood free for the duration of the tie-up. After that, it will be on a co-operative buying basis—the union's first move into the co-operative field in this region.

The plan was stimulated by two factors. One is that many householders here born that fuel anyway. The other is that strikers at Noranda Mines, Ltd., won't have much money to spend on coal while the walkout lasts.

Another stimulus is that a large number of the striking miners are former lumberjacks.

The union put them to work about 15 miles from here, after buying cutting rights on an area of jackpine and birch. Their mates meanwhile walk the picket lines at the big Noranda gold-copper plant.

To get into the cutting section, the steelworker-woodsmen have bulldozed out new roads for big trucks and thrown a bridge across a 15-foot stream.

Chilly Job

The bridge project was largely done by hardened, rugged Ontario towing help of a jeep that forded the stream and hauled out some heavy timbers. Miners stood waist-deep in chilly water to wrestle the supporting crib work into place.

Pat Burke, steel union organizer here, says the woods operation will continue after the strike. He and other union officials say it will help bring down fuel costs in this end-of-the-line district.

"We're definitely in the business" he says, "and we're going to stay in it."

The union expects to bring 80 cords a day to a central distribution point here. It now owns cutting rights on 4,000 cords and expects to triple or quadruple the amount.

Over at Timmins, Ont., the USWA also has plunged into the woods operation, but on a strictly-ration basis. It has picked up cutting privileges on enough wood for its members, and also has purchased a couple of trucks to haul the fuel.

However, the Ontario miners don't intend to stay in the business. A main reason is that they haven't the lumberjack-flavored membership of those across the provincial line.

Aw, come on, Dopey, it's probably just what the baby needs, I said, and Glasses said, Sure, Dopey, suppose you were a baby getting wheeled as slow as forever all your life when you could be having a little excitement in a race, how would you feel? Just because your sister cant talk, that dont prove she's satisfied, does it? he said.

It dont prove she's not, Shorty said, and I said, Well just think of all the handycap we're giving you, blame if she objects? Shorty said. The result being we decided to porpone the idea.

'Ole Case' And His Yankees Win Fifth Straight World Series Crown

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

"GREAT ELEGY"

The Ford ball tolled the knell of Dodger play,
The Flatbush herd winds slowly back sans cheers,
Chuck Dressen homeward plods his weary way,
And leaves the faithful to their tears and beers.
— "Joky"—The Dodger Copy Boy.

The shouting's over and the tumult ceases. The long green lettuce, and there was wads of it, change hands. Debts are paid off and another World Series goes into the record books.

The gallant Dodgers' fire and spirit couldn't match the superb fighting qualities of the five-times world champion Yankees. It all adds up to the fact that the Yankee machine is and has been for half a decade the best "money" team in the history of the series.

Then will be many conjectures as to what "happened to the Dodgers". Some will say they never "got the breaks." Others will say they couldn't hit in the clutches, and brother, how right they are. Others will tell you Chuck Dressen pulled boners in his managerial capacity and we'll buy a part of that.

But with all the "alibis" the Dodgers with all their guts, fight and nip, were not good enough when the chips were down and that is the department that has been monopolized by the Stengelesers for a long time.

To "Ole Case" goes the honors of a well-earned record in World Series play. "Five in a row." And that record will probably stand for a long time if not forever. The crafty, wily Yankee mentor, with his "gut" decisions proved he and the shadow of a doubt that he is one of the canniest, cleverest managers of all time.

"DAT WOULD SERIOUS"

Carl Erskine's strikeout record when he whiffed fourteen Yankees last Friday recalls the story, hitherto little known of Howard Ehmke, of the Athletics, one of the biggest "surprise" starters in World Series history.

Connie Mack, baseball's grand old man, who was then in charge of the Philadelphia club in 1929, noted that the aging Howard was nearing the end of the string. A couple of weeks before the series got under way, Connie took Ehmke aside and announced solemnly: "Howard, we have come to the parting of the ways."

Ehmke's eyes filled with tears. But the crafty Connie didn't mean that he was cutting the big hurler loose. He sent him to the Cubs to scout them in person, never hinting at the deep, dark plot that had been hatched.

Came the big day and Ehmke was told to warm up beneath the stands, out of sight of the curious. The crowd, teams and players gasped with surprise when the venerable Athletics' mound star was named as starting pitcher and trotted to the mound.

The rest is history. What that aging soup-bone did to the Cub hurlers went into the record books. He not only won the game but struck out thirteen, a mark that stood until Carl Erskine erased it from the records last Friday.

There was plenty of humor in the series.

The Brooklyn Eagle, noted for its loyalty to "Bum Bums", came out with a blazing front page headline after the Brooks had dropped the second game, "Ezed, Men, Wake Up!" After the Dodgers had won behind Erskine the paper's headline read: "Ez-Skins 'Em Alive"!

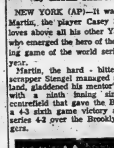
After Brooklyn had tied the series at two-all fans going into Ebbett's Field Sunday were startled to read on the programs, "World Series Starts Today." One of the Flatbush urchins selling the sheets explained: "De foist two games at de Stadium were nuttin' but warm-ups." Dem Bums will now take 'em four straight."

Early in its grand yesterday a United States Navy blimp paid a visit, dropping to 2,500 Feet. A fat man high in the upper stands almost fell over the rail when he started waving and shouting, "Hi, Brophy!"

Perhaps the "crack" of the series is that of the disgruntled Dodger fan, who after that 11-7 defeat on Sunday murmured: "The Bums ain't dead yet, but they're gettin' mighty short of breath."



Chuck Dressen had already decided to replace ruined Roy Campanella with Rube Walker prior to Sunday's game. Then Labine dropped to the plate, lifted one into the stands, flexed his fingers and said, "It doesn't feel bad, Charlie, I'll be able to play." He did. And "Oiskin" can thank his lucky stars he did.

Billy Martin Is Series Hero As Champs Whip 'Bums' 4-3 In Final Thriller of Classic

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK (AP)—It was Billy Martin, the Yankee outfielder, Stengel loves above all his other Yankees, who emerged the hero of the deciding game of the world series this year.

Martin, the hard - bitten little scrapper Stengel managed at Oakland, gladdened his mentor's heart with a ninth inning single to centrefield that gave the Bombers a 4-3 sixth game victory and the series 4-2 over the Brooklyn Dodgers.

BILLY MARTIN
Toast of the Yankees

After what must have been seen Monday by many millions, including 62,370 who paid to be frozen blue in a sudden change of weather, it can only be accepted that the Yankees are supposed to win world series and that Brooklyn is destined to wind up with the losers' share.

While the National Leaguers went down in six games this time instead of seven, it was no contest insofar as the final issue was concerned. Their lack of pitching depth finally told on them, but they proved themselves the stout hitters that their averages promised and they never quit punching.

Few who saw it will forget the heart-stopping homr run by Carl Furillo with one down in the top of the ninth that scored Duke Snider ahead of him and tie the score at 3-3.

Is Frost Early

The Yanks had been leading, apparently by a safe margin, from the game's opening minutes. They were in front by 3-0 after two innings, and the Dodgers finally had scored a loser off young Wilbey Ford in the sixth only because Jackie Robinson took charge with a double, stole third without drawing a throw and raced in on an infield out.

"OLE CASE" STENGEL
. . . Five-Time Winner

The Dodgers' chances looked even slimmer after Stengel, playing a hunch, brought Allie Reynolds in to relieve Ford to start the eighth.

Gil Hodges filled out to short centre to start the ninth. Then Snider socked Reynolds for a pass, which was hotly disputed by Yahoo's batterymate, Yogi Berra. Furillo in to relieve Ford to start the eighth.

Gil Hodges filled out to short centre to start the ninth. Then Snider socked Reynolds for a pass, which was hotly disputed by Yahoo's batterymate, Yogi Berra. Furillo in to relieve Ford to start the eighth.

When the din finally died down and the Dodgers quit hugging one another, Reynolds struck out Billy Cox and Labine in fast succession to close out the inning. Randall scientists might find fault with Dressen for having let Labine bat where a pinchhitter could have been useful, but he rightlander had checked the Yanks for two innings or relief at that point and, besides, Chuck was running short of pitchers.

His guess, at any rate, proved a bad one. Clem walked Bauer, the first man to face him in the Yanks' bat. Berra lined one into Furillo's hands close to the right fielder. Mickey Mantle barely got his bat on a pitch and popped a dribbler to the left side of the diamond which Billy Cox got his glove on but couldn't handle, Bauer racing to second.

And there was Martin, the brat. The first pitch he let go past for a called strike. The next one he belted squarely just to the left of second base into centrefield. Snider came tearing in to take it on the hop, but didn't make the bother to try a throw to the plate. Bauer, one of the fastest base runners in the game, couldn't have been tagged with a rocket gun.

Reynolds, having permitted the tying run on Furillo's blast, gained credit for his seventh world series victory when Billy took him on the hook. That ties the Chief with a Yanker hurler before him, Red Ruffing. It was one of many team and individual hitting records broken during the series. Toward the end the announcements were blaring over the loudspeaker every minute or two. The most important of these was Martin's concluding hit, his 12th, which has not been equalled in a six-game set.

The sad figure of the contest was Carl Erskine, Dodger righthander who fanned a record 14 Yankees in the third game. He didn't have the same stuff after two days' rest, and the Bombers got to him in the fourth inning to raise gave way to a pinchhitter in the fifth who had yielded three runs and six hits.

Royals Game Away From Series Title

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's powerful International League Royals are only one game away from the little world series title today as the teams move on to Kansas City to play out the remainder of the best-of-seven affair.

The Royals took a stranglehold on the title Monday night, defeating Kansas City Blues 4-3 to take a 3-0 lead in games. The series resumes in Kansas City Wednesday night.

The Blues, champions of the American Association, were pushed around pretty well by the Royals in the three games played here but when they get back to their own stamping grounds it may be a different story.

The Blues will pin their last-ditch stand on the efforts of Bob Ferris, a tall, right-handed hurler. The Royals will counter with Ed Roebuck, a 22-year-old righthander, who defeated Ferris in the opening game of the series.

Manager LaSorda, the International's best left-hander, handcuffed the Blues with eight hits. He travelled the route, fanning five and walking three.

Lefty Jim Wexler gave up but five hits in the six innings he hurled but suffered the loss. His replacement, Mel Wright, held the Molsonmen hitless in the two innings he worked.

First baseman Stocky Nelson led the Royals at the plate with two singles and drove in three runs. Catcher Jim Pisarcik of the Blues had a perfect night at the plate, getting three hits. It was the 25th homer of the season with the bases empty in the third.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

There'll be a million and a half dollars in the pot when the World Series baseball series is completed. But, believe it or not, was a time when baseball frowned on the World Series and didn't want any part of it.

Because of the tremendous box office takings, not to mention the great impetus it gives to baseball, that the World Series was once opposed by the baseball magnates themselves.

The modern World Series, as distinguished from primitive and casual playoffs dating from 1884 and involving American Association clubs, was founded in 1903 solely by accident. Pittsburgh had won the National league pennant and Boston the American that year. The playoff was decided on primarily as something that might attract enough paying fandom to provide wages and shelter for the comparatively undersaid talent of that era.

Pittsburgh and Boston flung challenges at each other, and finally met on the field of battle. But it was an informal series. It didn't have league supervision, much less league approval.

In 1904, Boston won the AL again, and challenged the New York Giants, Manager John McGraw of the New York club promptly replied: "I do not wish to endanger the standing of my team by sending it against a minor league club." Result: there was no World Series in 1904.

You should know the background. It's interesting. The National was the old established league, the wine and only major league. The American was the proud newcomer. The American was a fresh upstart at the time.

McGraw's sharp and caustic aspersions on the AL wounded the young league deeply. Ban Johnson its president, and a great baseball pioneer, was up in arms. Rather than precipitate a costly baseball war, the NL magnates reluctantly agreed to an annual playoff against the AL, just to keep Johnson quiet.

Neither league, especially the National, had any idea that the World Series would attain the public in the tremendous extent that has developed in recent years, when thousands actually see the games, and millions more view it on television, or hear it on radio.

All of which makes one believe that some events earn prosperity and others have success literally thrust upon them.

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg, already holding a franchise in the class C Northern League, is setting its sites on triple A baseball.

Johnny Peterson, manager of Winnipeg's new stadium, said Monday:

"This is just a start. We'll go into triple A if we can get a franchise. We've got the park for it now and Winnipeg can fill the park anywhere."

He was commenting on a report from New York that Winnipeg is in the market for a triple A baseball franchise, preferably in the American Association.

Winnipeg purchased the Sioux Falls, S. D., franchise last month.

Peterson said if Winnipeg could get into higher company, "we would sell the Northern League franchise."

LEICESTER, England (AP)—British heavyweight champion Don Cockell Monday night won a 10-round decision over Italian champion Uber Bacilieri in a non-title bout.

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle Rainiers announced Monday the signing of Gerry Priddy, Detroit Tiger first baseman, as playing-manager for 1954.

Dewey Soriano, general manager of the Pacific Coast League club said waivers have been asked on Priddy by Detroit and he will be declared a free agent within a few days.

WINNIPEG † (CP)—Stu Clarkson of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers will continue as line coach although he has been dropped as a player, Karl Siocomb, Bomber president, said Monday. Clarkson, a Texas import, played in two games this season as a replacement for centre Gar Baxter, injured earlier this season. Baxter, a Canadian, is now back in action.

Dressing Room Chatter

Yankee dressing room

By TED SMITH

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel, first major league manager ever to win five straight world series, told admiring friends the day he has no intention of retiring—and praised his 1953 New York Yankees by saying "this club can do it easy."

Yankee reserves mettled in the dressing rooms. There was yelling and shouting, the banter of baseball rapiers' bulbs, and general hilarity.

Stengel was the centre of one group, Billy Martin, his spectacular young second baseman, whose single in the ninth won the game, was the centre of another.

"If couldn't believe I did it," said Martin jubilantly. "It was a fast ball I hit. It was the biggest thrill of my life."

"This fella, this Martin, has become a better ball player," beamed Stengel.

Stengel said he took Whitey Ford out of the game in the eighth, and sent in Allie Reynolds because "I thought maybe he'd be tougher if I left him in. They had big hitters coming up."

Manager Chuck Dressen of Brooklyn Dodgers and Walter J. O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, were quick to offer their congratulations.

"You've got the best team I've played against in all these five years," said Stengel, grasping Dressen by the arm. "Your club can do everything—and mine can too."

"Next year," said Dressen quietly.

Yankees, who normally leave ball games—even world series games —as sedately as bankers filing out of a board meeting, were whooping it up as they came up the tunnel from their dugout and ran into a mass of photographers and newspaper men.

Martin's screaming single, his 12th hit of the series, broke the record for a six-game series, tied the record for a seven-game series.

Dodger dressing room

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP)—"It was a blankety-blank .250 hitter that beat us," fumed Brooklyn Manager Chuck Dressen. "It wasn't Mantle and it wasn't Berra.

"It was that little cuss out there on second base (Billy Martin) who beat us. Listen, he's the best blankety-blank man on their club."

It was so quiet in Brooklyn Dodgers' dressing room that you could hear the little Brooklyn manager cracking his knuckles against the desk and unhappy Duke Snider mumbling to himself.

The Duke, whose four home runs made him the batting hero of the 1952 series, struck out three times as leadoff man as New York Yankees whipped the Dodgers 4-3 in a wild sixth-game finish Monday and kept intact the Dodger record of never having won a world baseball championship.

But the entire Brooklyn squad praised Martin, whose ninth-inning single brought home the winning run and tied the record for the most hits in a single world series—13.

The most disconsolate player in the Brooklyn quarters was Carl Labine, the young reliefer who served up the pitch to Martin in the ninth—the pitch that, right through, the infield to score Hank Bauer.

Labine refused to talk to anyone, but catcher Roy Campanella said it was a good pitch—"a sinker which I called for and was just right. He just got hold of it, that's all."

Gene Roberts Leading Scorer In Big Four

TORONTO (CP) — Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts, high-scoring halfback since he came to Canada three years ago from New York Giants, is the Big Four scoring leader at the half-way mark of the 14-game schedule.

The 180-pound native of Sumner Springs, Kas., who joined Ottawa Rough Riders last year after a season with Montreal Alouettes, picked up 39 points in Riders' 31-6 victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats last Saturday to take a three-point lead over team-mate Avatus Stone.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Roberts with 45 points on three touchdowns, three field goals, 30 converts and one single. Stone, who jumped to Calgary Cardinals for Riders this year and leader last week with 43 points, didn't play last Saturday due to an injured knee.

Stone, with seven touchdowns, and seven singles, holds a three-point edge over Ray Poole of Montreal, former hicking star with New York Giants. Chuck Hunsinger, also of the Als and formerly with Chicago Bears, is fourth with 30 points.

Lou Kusserow of Tiger-Cats, Bernie Flowers of Riders and Canadian-born Pat Abbott of Tiger-Cats; are tied for fifth place, each with 26 points.

John Mancos, of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen leads the Ontario Rugby Football Union with 43 points on eight touchdowns and three singles. He is the Dutchmen this season from Kent State University in Ohio.

Reynolds, Mize May Quit Active Baseball

NEW YOR K(AP)—Big Johnny Mize has reiterated his intention to end his active career in baseball, and Allie Reynolds may join him in retirement.

Reynolds, New York Yankees' great righthander, told newspaper men after Monday's final world series game that he will quit if his back fails to improve during the winter.

"My back has been bothering me ever since I hurt it last July," he said. "I've had it manipulated time on and off, ever since. For a time I couldn't even run, let alone pitch.

"My back improved somewhat in the hot weather but I reinjured it again pitching the world series game. I think I'll quit right then because the muscular spasms resulting from it start up again as soon as I thought and I was able, to pitch again although I knew I'd have to go to bat to start another series game."

Mize, a wealthy old man, said he plans to rest all winter.

Mize, who will be 41 in January, left no doubt about his intention.

"I know I can still help the club, especially as a pinch-hitter," he said, "but I don't think it will be necessary. I've got two offers from both of which will pay me more than I'd make playing with the Yankees next year. I'll get a six-year-round job, the other for five years and a month.

Mize, who appeared only as a pinch hitter during the series and failed to land a safety, declined to identify the offers, but said they would be in baseball.

'Handy' Sande Finishes Third In Comeback Race

NEW YORK (AP)—Earl Sande, "the handy guy," returned to the saddle for the first time since 1932 Monday at Belmont Park and finished third aboard Honest Knead as the crowd gave him an ovation.

Sande, 57, the portly "Sande Man" has won most of the important races in the U.S., including three Kentucky Derbies, will be 58 years old Nov. 22.

Sande, who trained horses with much success after his retirement in 1932 only to run into bad luck in recent years, said he is riding again "because I need the money."

Honest Knead, owned by Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs, and trained by her husband, Hirsch Jacobs, was beaten two lengths by Mrs. M. F. Dixon's Fleet Copy. The Brookmeade Stable's Cavador, 9 to 10 favorite, was second, beaten by half a length.

Tigers, Bisons Swap Players In Money Deal

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The youth movement of the American League's Detroit Tigers was given another push Monday when the Tigers bought four players from their farm club, Buffalo Bisons of the International League.

The Bisons in turn bought six players from Detroit. The money involved was not disclosed.

Headed for Detroit are Frank Lary, right-handed pitcher; Clarence (Bud) Hicks, shortstop; Frank Bolling, second baseman and Jim Bunning, right-handed pitcher who has been optioned to Little Rock in the Southern Association.

Buffalo acquired Eddie Karal, third baseman; Fred Marsh, outfielder; Ken Fremming, right-handed pitcher; Dave Madison, right-handed pitcher; Hal Erikson, right-handed pitcher; and Russ Sullivan, outfielder.

The National Hockey League club held a wide edge over the Allan Cup champions all the way. They led 3-0 at the end of the first period, added another goal in the middle session and two more in the final stanza.

Quakers Whip Flyers 3-1 In Western Opener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatoon Quakers, who won league laurels last season but lost to Edmonton Flyers in the Western Hockey League finals, defeated Calgary Stampeders 3-1 Monday night in the opening game of the 1953-54 season.

Playing on home ice, the Quakers rolled to victory on two goals by Eldie Kobussen and one by Gordie Sinclair. Chuck McCullough got three assists.

Archie Scott scored for Calgary, and Wardien converted.

Eskimos Blast Blue Bombers As Stamps Edge Sasky Riders

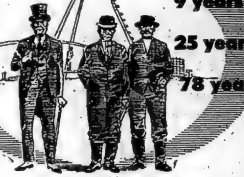
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Eskimos gave Winnipeg Blue Bombers a lesson in playing the breaks Monday night as they trimmed the Bombers 16-6 in a Western Interprovincial Football Union game.

While the league leaders thus extended their margin over the second place members by six points, Calgary Stampeders registered their third victory in 11 starts by edging Saskatchewan Roughriders 9-8.

Eskimos snatched three Winnipeg fumbles, pulled down three Winnipeg passes and blocked one of Indian Jack Jacobs' kicks in their triumph at Winnipeg. The sure toe of import tackle Wilbur Snyder, in his second year with the team, lifted 11 points between the posts, three field goals, a convert and a single.

End Tom Solhandske added five when he picked off Rollie Miles' forward pass on the Bomber two-yard line.



Youthful Geoff Crain, McGill University graduate, who took over from Jacobs at quarterback 10s in the second quarter, scored the team's only major on a wide dash around the flying end. Bud Korchak converted.

Winnipeg rolled for 18 first downs to Edmonton had 11. The two clubs matched passing attacks with Edmonton rushing an edge—207 yards to 105.

Saskatchewanicoach Frankie Filchock, quarterbacking for the injured Glenn Dobbs in the game at Regina, took long chances in his passing department in Monday's game and with them netted 138 yards, just 39 more than Calgary Red Riders gave away 123-81 in yards rushing.

Calgary made good on 11 of 30 attempted passes, compared with Riders 12 from 24, and one of them was taken for the Calgary major by import end Al Endriss. Glenn Christian made the convert, and later kicked from 32 yards out for a field goal.

Del Wardien picked up the first Saskatchewan points in the first quarter when he tackled halfback John Henry Johnson behind the line for a safety, moving Riders into a 2-0 lead. Bobby Marlow, who led the U.S. southeastern conference in ground-gaining passes, went over for the touchdown.

How long does an oil well last?

The average well goes dry in 20 to 30 years. To keep your car rolling and your home warm, a new well must be found to take its place. That's why the search for oil never ends. It's important, for instance, spent almost $50 millions to find and develop new oil in western Canada last year.

Oil has become one of Canada's important industries How many of these questions about it can you answer?

Which of the following contain petroleum lipstick? printing ink? binder twine? insect spray? → Oil is a part of all the products named and of hundreds of others which contribute to our everyday living.

In 1946 Canada produced less than 10% of the oil she used. How much of her needs does she produce now 18%? 40%? 55%? → About 40%—and we are twice as much as in 1946. Today's production would meet 80% of the demand at that time.

How many service stations would you say Imperial operates across Canada

19,500? 10,000? 0? → None. Approximately 10,000 stations carry the Imperial Esso sign, but they are operated by independent dealers, each in business for himself.

In oil field language, a "roughneck" is one of the crew of a drilling rig. What is a "roolpusher" tool salesman? drilling foreman? motor mechanic? → Drilling foreman. Oil field slang is colorful. A "Christmas tree," for example, is a combination of pipes and valves to regulate the flow of oil from a well.

Opinion surveys show that most Canadians believe a business is entitled to a profit of 15¢ on a dollar of revenue. Last year Imperial earned 7½¢? 11¢? 19¢? → In 1952 Imperial earned a profit of 7½¢ of each dollar received. Of this, 4¢ was paid to shareholders; the remaining 3½¢ was used to replace worn-out equipment and to make sure we can supply your future oil needs.

Four Teams Enter Senior Rugby League

Four teams are entered in the senior "B" Rugby League for the 1953 season which opens on Wednesday of this week. They are Campbellford, Albert College, St. Michael's and a Junior "A" team from B.C.I.V.S.

B.C.I. does not have a senior team this year and the juniors will be called on to build up their honor in the seniors before going into the Junior "A" C.O.S.S.A. playdowns.

Coach Fred Bradley has high hopes for his team after they held a strong St. Michael's crew away from their goal line in an exhibition game played last Thursday, although Juniors had trouble with the long passes, they came up with a 3-0 win on the kicking by Jones and a good running game by left half Bill Jones.

The team Bradley hopes to open the year which consists of Lionel Conacher, Allan "Pinky" McLean right inside, Duncan Cameron left inside, Allan Sills right half and Jan Geneya at fullback. Others on the team are: Fred Beacon who is out with injury now, George Beer, Jim "Soupbone" Green, Gord Gibson, Jack Purdy, Doug Rollins, John Commerce, Russ Hunter and John Chalmers. Also in reserve are Don Pringle, Bob Vaughan, Alex Shadbolt, Bob Halleran, Stan Hay, Jack Hagerman, Stewart Robertson and Dick Lynch.

Albert College, the winners of the C.O.S.S.A. championship last year will be a tough team to beat and you can bet on a good fight from the other two teams in the league.

The equipment managers for the coming year are Don Cherry and Bruce Varcoe.

Horse Sense Bridge

By SAM GORDON
The Old Timer

An unexpected division of unseen trumps is what usually throws declarer out of gear in a suit contract. However, there are places where this very thing works to his advantage.

There was the deal shown here:

NORTH
♠Q 9 8
♥J 6 4
♦9 7 6 4
♣Q 10 2

WEST
♥Q 9 8 7 5
♦Q 10 8 5 2
♣9 5

EAST
♠A 5 3 2
♥10 3
♦K J
♣K 8 7 6

SOUTH
♠K J 10 6 4
♥A K 3
♦A 2
♣A J 4 3

South became the declarer at a contract of three notes. Not by any true count would they get there. They were shown into it by the aggressive persistence of their opponents.

The opening lead from west was club nine, Dummy covered with the ten. East went up with the king. South won this first trick with his ace. Take a look at what declarer is up against.

With a loser in each of four suits, the fourth club seems to be the best one to save. Since it does not stand up it must be in the loser class unless it is ruffed in dummy.

If trumps are drawn, dummy will have no trump left for the ruffing of the fourth club. And if opponent elects to take only half, the third club round may be ruffed by an opponent.

His best hope, therefore, is for a bad split in trumps as help for a plan of saving action. Not only that, the opposition hand with long trumps must also hold the club or more.

With this in mind, south led a trump to see if the ace would pop on it. When east refused to take it with his trump ace, south dared not lead a second trump right there.

If he did, ace would win and return a trump. This would kill the chance to ruff the club loser in dummy. So, declarer took two once club rounds with queen and jack in that order.

When west showed out of clubs and did not ruff it, the plan was perfect. A fourth club was ruffed in dummy. Declarer lost only a trump, a heart, a diamond. Smart cooky.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The movie stars started it, now everybody's doing it—building swimming pools.

Thanks in large part to the stars, the pool business is booming. From 8,000 to 10,000 private pools are being built every year in the United States, more than expended in the whole country prior to 1940.

I learned some fancy facts about this budding new industry from Phillip Haley, president of Paddock Pools, earliest and biggest company in the field.

"There's no doubt that the stars helped the business along," he remarked. "People in this country and all over the world have had a profound interest in what movie stars do. Since so many stars owned swimming pools, they helped popularize pools as a standard of good living.

"However, we would go out of business if we relied on the movie crowd for our business. Because of taxes and other reasons, they don't have the money to spend that they used to."

The general public caught on to the notion of having a man-made lake in the back yard after main reason is the new method of construction.

Most pools used to be built in concrete forms. But Haley developed a way of blowing the concrete onto forms, creating an instant dome. That cut the cost more than half and the building time from four months to three or four weeks.

Paddock has built pools for Fred MacMurray, Jack Benny, Rosalind Russell, Bing Crosby, Joseph Cotten, Bob Hope, Gary Cooper and dozens of other stars. The most expensive one was a small lagoon for Marion Davies that cost $30,000.

"But we also build pools for mechanics and office workers," Haley added. "Anybody who can afford a second car in the family can afford a swimming pool. You can buy one, complete with filter, for as low as $2,500.

"The boom has hit places like Phoenix and southern British Columbia. By the use of heating people in those places can virtually swim the season for nine months of the year to four or five.

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The current movie business indicates the shape of things to come. There is room for optimism, but the outlook is dreary for movie workers.

The remarkable thing about today's film business is the amazing grosses garnered by certain pictures. "The Robe" and "From Here to Eternity" are setting records in almost every theatre they play. Other attractions like Cinerama, "Roman Holiday," "Little Boy Lost," "The Moon is Blue," "Magambo," "Martin Luther" and "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes" are doing phenomenally, too.

The future shapes up as the era of great attractions. Big pictures such as these will do great business, but the run-of-the-mill films will do just as miserably as they have been doing.

The change of movie economy means: 1. Fewer theatres; 2. Fewer jobs in production. Twenty-first Century has already cut down to a skeleton staff and will make only a picture a month. That's why movie workers are singing the blues.

The Catholic Legion of Decency listed "The Robe" as morally unobjectionable for all movie-goers. But it added this reservation: "While this film deals with incidents of sacred history in a reverent and inspirational manner, it is to be noted that it is a fictional narrative and contains variances from and omissions of scriptural and historical accuracy."

Yawn of the week is the guess as to whether Cleo Gabor and George Sanders will split or reconcile. Who could possibly care?

AT THE BELLE—Audrey Totter stars with Edmond O'Brien, Osa Massen, romantic action-packed thriller, "Man in the Dark," continuing today and tomorrow. Wednesday and Thursday, a special added attraction is the 3 Stooges in "Spooks," the first 3-D two-reel comedy, a nice cartoon and Paramount News, completes the program.

AT THE McCARTHY — Director and co-producer Otto Preminger shows Maggie McNamara just how to appear interesting, but not too interesting to David Niven for a scene in "The Moon is Blue" which is now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Series Notes

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter O'Malley, president of the defeated Brooklyn Dodgers, refused to take anything away from New York Yankees: "They just beat us. That's all there is to be said."

Brook manager Chuck Dressen is not going to leave the city for about a week. "I'm going to hang around and talk to the front office about what we want to do," he said. "I have a couple of deals in mind."

Most of the Yanks thought Billy Martin should have had a hit on the ball he bounced off Junior Gilliam's ankle in the first. Junior got an error. "I understand," said Martin, "I'm not beefing about the scoring. And whoever stole my bat the other day can have it."

Yank fielder Mickey Mantle may go under the knife for his bad knee. He's due to discuss surgery within a couple of weeks. He said the knee stiffened up toward the end of Monday's game.

Yankee pitcher Allie Reynolds, who is thinking of retiring, said he wanted Carl Furillo to hit the last pitch he tossed him in the series. "But of course he didn't hit it exactly like I wanted him to," joshed the Chief, referring to the homer that tied the score.

Understatement of the year: "I'll be back next year to try for No. 6 if I feel well and they want me," said Yank manager Casey Stengel.

Stengel must have thought Martin would swing for the fences when he came up in the ninth. wasn't thinking of the fences which may come as a surprise to the teacher (Stengel)," Billy said. Kid said. "I knew what Casey wanted and, frankly, I wanted it as bad as he did. It was getting chilly out there."

MUNRO NAMED

AUCKLAND (AP) — New Zealand's ambassador to the United States, Leslie Munro, also is going to represent his country on the United Nations Security Council. Prime Minister Sidney Holland said today. Munro will continue to hold his Washington post as well. New Zealand was one of three countries elected to the 11-member Security Council Monday for a two-year term beginning Jan. 1.

First Offenders May Get Clean Bill After 5 Yrs.

TORONTO (CP)—Possibility of giving first offenders a clean bill of health if they are straight for five years will be studied by the Ontario legislature's select committee on refresher institutions.

Chairman W. J. Stewart (PC-Toronto Parkdale) said Monday that a young man who "makes a mistake, serves his time and has paid his debt to society, should be able to look forward to the day when his record is clear."

He said he would include neither the sex offender nor the arsonist category. "We should throw the book at them."

Mr. Stewart said he was suggesting clearing the record only in the case of those convicted under the criminal code.

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver said that refusal of industry to employ persons with a record is admitting failure in reform of them. "It proves there is no reform and that is a terrible thing," he added.

W. J. Grummett, CC F House leader, said the problem is one of educating industry to give these fellows a chance. Changing the records would not help, he said.

TO DRAIN MARSH

PORT CREDIT (CP) — Town council Monday night approved a five-year project which will convert 12 acres of marsh along the Credit river here into park land. Work is expected to begin this month.

Family Escapes Serious Injury

TORONTO (CP)—A Tillsonburg family escaped serious injury Monday night when a tractor trailer crashed into an their car in a freak accident.

Police said a car driven by Gordon L. Gilbert, 29, Toronto old ewo-jped a transport. The impact sheared off the rear wheels of the trailer which toppled onto a car driven by Charles Pocicova, 42, of Tillsonburg. The front end of the cloou' car was flattened.

Pocicova and his wife were not injured but their daughter, Loretta, 7, was cut about the face. The transport driver, Howard Horsley, 29, of Kitchener, was not hurt. Constable who was charged with careless driving, suffered a broken left leg and severe shock.

CABBIE STABBED, ROBBED

HAMILTON (CP)—A 39-year-old cab driver was stabbed about the throat and left on a lonely side road where his taxi was stolen Saturday night.

Kenneth Coombes told police he picked up his fare in downtown Hamilton and was told to drive to nearby Stoney Creek. On the way, the passenger pulled a knife, slashed a 4½-inch gash in Coombes' neck, then left the scene after taking $30 and drove away in the cab.

HOT IN L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Los Angeles faced its third day of torrid fall temperatures today after Monday's high of 110 brought at least four heat prostrations. Monday's high here was the hottest recorded for Oct. 5. The previous high for the date was 97 in 1926. It was 96 here Saturday and 100 Sunday.

BOY MISSING FOUR DAYS

Secondary Schools Asked to Take Part in Festival

KINGSTON (CP) — Thirty-one secondary schools in eastern Ontario have been invited to take part in the seventh annual eastern Ontario secondary school drama festival at Kingston next March, Dr. William Angus, head of Queen's department of drama which is sponsoring the competition, said Monday.

Invitations have been sent to six Ottawa schools—High School of Commerce, Technical School, Glebe and Lisgar Collegiate, Nepean and Fisher Park High Schools. On the list are three Kingston schools—RCAF, Notre Dame and Regiopolis.

Other schools include: secondary schools at Gananoque, Brockville, Prescott, Morrisburg, Cornwall, Kemptville, Navanee, Trenton, Picton, Belleville, Albert College at Belleville, Trinity College School at Port Hope, Port Hope high school, Cobourg, Peterborough, Lindsay, Omemee, Norwood, Alberton, Smiths Falls, Perth, Sharbot Lake, Sydenham and Carleton Place.

Capt. Fred Johansen, on the bridge of a tug in New York harbor, adjusts the controls of a Sea Scandr, a new device which "sees" submerged objects up to a distance of a quarter of a mile. The drawing shows how the Sea Scaner works. It operates like radar, but uses bursts of high frequency sound waves instead of radio signals to probe for any possible underwater obstruction. It may become standard equipment on all ships and may prevent collisions, striking shoals or submerged reefs.—Central Press Canadian.

Whig Standard Honored By Kiwanis Club

KINGSTON (CP)—The Kiwanis Club of Kingston Monday presented a plaque to Arthur L. Davies, publisher of the Kingston Whig Standard, in recognition of the part his paper plays in the community.

The presentation marked part of an international observance of National Newspaper Week.

Dr. Julian Harrison, head of the department of psychology at Queen's University, said the press of Canada was playing an important part in the life of the country and was remaining free. Without a free press he said "our ideas would get nowhere."

The freedom of the press was not fully appreciated, he said. If it was removed, chaos would result.

Courts Attacked

VANCOUVER (CP)—A British Columbia newspaper publisher Monday attacked what he said was the tendency of jurists to control the flow of courtroom news that may be used in a newspaper.

Stuart Keate, publisher of the Victoria Times, made the charge during a panel discussion on "What is Wrong with the Press?" before the Ad and Sales Bureau of the Vancouver Board of Trade.

Mr. Keate cited the example of a B.C. jurist who admonished a prisoner in a public courtroom and then instructed reporters not to print his remarks under penalty of contempt of court action.

"That sort of action is against the democracy that we are so proud of," he said.

Mr. Keate said the biggest fault of Canadian papers is that they are timid and complacent.

Germans, After Losing 2 Wars, Living Better Than Ever

Editor's note: A Germany which has lost two wars is rising again. What kind of Germany is this one? Will its people once more be led into war? Or is this democracy built on a sturdier foundation than the one which followed the First World War? An AP reporter went into the homes of German people to try to find out.

By RELMAN MORIN

BOCHUM, Germany (AP) — "It is hard to believe that after losing two wars we should be living so well today."

The living room in Hans Sauer's home is new, cheerful and shiny clean. The furniture gleams with high polish. Through the window, he can see his garden.

Hans Sauer is a German bricklayer. He is short and hard-muscled. He is 52. He works eight days, he says, averages 13 hours, although he is paid for only the usual eight.

He has lived all his life in the Ruhr valley, the great coal and steel centre of Germany. Most of the steel for the German war machines that twice overran Europe in this century, came from the Ruhr.

The place names here—Bochum, Duisburg, Essen, Dortmund, Wuppertal—are burned deep in the memory of thousands of Allied airmen. Some of the biggest raids of the Second World War were directed against these cities.

Hans Sauer, bombed out of three houses, saw nearly three-quarters of Bochum destroyed.

Yet, today, he says, "we are living better than we were before the war."

He is aware of the implications of this, not alone in terms of his own creature comforts, but for Europe as a whole.

Since last month's elections, Germany is in position to rearm and to take its place in the community of nations. A total wave of votes carried Chancellor Konrad Adenauer back into office. At the same time, it flattened the extremists in Germany, the Neo-Nazis on the right and the Communists on the left.

Future Uncertain

Adenauer believes in European unity. He backed the Schuman Plan, even though it gives five other nations a voice in the disposition of Ruhr coal and steel. He is for a European army. He campaigned on these issues. The people approved.

But suppose Hans Sauer's standard of living deteriorates? Would he then be inclined to place his destiny in the hands of an extreme right government? Another dictator? A Communist?

Nobody can say now. But the story of Germany after the First World War is still fresh . . . fantastic inflation . . . massive unemployment . . . savings wiped out . . . hard times . . . near starvation. Bread-and-butter problems may not have been the sole reason for the rise of Adolf Hitler. But they helped him, since the democratic government was unable to cope with those conditions.

So here is a man in the Ruhr today, at the very focal point of some of the factors and movements in Europe. How does he live? And what does he think of the outlook?

Hans Sauer lives in a three-room house which he hopes to own in a few years. It was financed by the steel company that employs him. Sauer has a radio, but no refrigerator, no household machines, no automobile. He lost his furniture in the bombings so the pieces in this house are all new.

Not Worried

He has meat on the table every day. But his wife uses more margerine than butter. He buys one suit of clothes a year. The standard Christmas present, from his wife, is a new pair of shoes. He takes one newspaper. For recreation he works in his garden, walks and goes to the movies twice a month.

How does he see some of the big questions?

On another war: "I'm not very worried. I don't think the Russians are in position to start another one. It would be different if Germany were alone."

On a European army: "It would be a good thing provided German troops were on an equal basis with the others."

He repeated a German wisecrack: "They want German infantry in front, British planes overhead and the French in the rear."

On his feelings toward France: "I don't have any special attitude. I had some French prisoners of war working for me. They were very good and I liked them. But they don't feel that way about us."

On the United States: "We have had a great deal of help from America. The Marshall Plan is helping here. But I can't forget that some American soldiers came into my house after the war and took my watch and a pair of binoculars."

On a European economic union: "It's a good idea in principle. But I believe the other countries would take more from Germany than we would get from them."

On general conditions: "It's hard to believe that after losing two wars we should be living so well in Germany."

Thus, one man. Let's see how his ideas coincide with some other thoughts in the Ruhr.

Others Worse Off

Josef Schweinsberg, 48, lives in another part of Bochum. He is a puddler in the steel mill. He has been working there since 1918. He has four children, a son 25 who is a bricklayer, a daughter, 18, who is a housemaid; a son 16 who works in a coal mine, and the youngest daughter, 10.

The whole family, except for the older daughter, lives in a three-room house. Their diet is mostly bread and vegetables, laced with a Sunday dinner of meat, and sometimes a meat dish in midweek. Father and son take sausages with them to work.

They are not so well off, in any respect, as the Sauers. Still, Schweinsberg says, "we are living as well as before the war. I earn more but prices are higher, too." "If the balance stays as it is between wages and prices," he says, "I'll be quite happy."

Unlike his neighbor, Schweinsberg is worried about another war. He believes the best way to avoid it is a union of European nations. However, he is opposed to creating a new German army. He favors a European army, but doubts it can be achieved. Like Sauer, he said "I know the French hate us."

Capt. Ludwig Bergenthum was a member of the Luftwaffe general staff in the last war. He now is with a Diesseldorf steel-exporting firm. Those are his views:

"Nobody wants another war, not even to get the east zone back as a part of Germany.

"Most people want to see a German army, but they want it on a volunteer basis. Without conscription there wouldn't be enough men to bring it up to real strength.

"The Russians are only about 90 miles from the Ruhr. They would be here in a hurry because they need it. Then—atomic bombs on us!"

Faster Optimistic

Dr. Rudolf Kleger is pastor of a Lutheran church in the village of Kaiserswerth. He spoke of optimism in his congregation.

"There is an important difference between today and the period after the First World War. Many people thought we were right in that war. But today it is like coming out of a bad dream. People feel guilty about the second war.

"The volunteers for a new army? They are ex-officers who had it good in the old army. They hope to have it that way again.

"The people are for peace and they are for European union. The German women want to keep their sons. And we are optimistic!"

Open the door... then open your heart

Who's there?

It could be an abandoned child, an old woman, the sick of body, the sick of mind. It could be a crippled boy, a handicapped worker, a young mother. Or a kid who never had a chance, or an old man who needs another one.

No, it's not those people who knock at your door. Just one man knocks—your Red Feather volunteer. But he speaks for them and for all the others in our town who need help so much and can't ask.

What will you tell him when he comes? This year, let your heart answer. This year tell him, "Sure, neighbor, I'll help."

Let's all join hands

U.S. Radar Experts Are Suspended As Security Move

Ottawa Defence Authorities Probe Three Serious Leaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army Tuesday night announced the suspension for security reasons of an undisclosed number of persons at its signal corps laboratory at Fort Monmouth, N.J.

It declined to give details. The Chicago Tribune press service said earlier that among five persons suspended were two "top scientists engaged in the development of America's radar defences against enemy attack."

The Tribune did not disclose the source of information for its copyrighted story, but said the army's investigation stemmed from an inquiry by the Senate investigations sub-committee headed by Senator Joseph McCarthy.

The Tribune account said those suspended included "two other scientific workers and a clerical employee, similarly employed in top-secret military work."

"All five have had access for years to this country's defence secrets in the electronics field," The Tribune said in a dispatch from Washington written by Arnold Sesnik Friend.

Names Not Disclosed

The army, in a brief statement, disclosed no names and did not specify what security charges had been placed against the suspended men.

"These employees," it said, "have been given letters of charges stating the reasons for their suspension. They have the right within 30 days after the receipt of the charges to request a hearing before a security hearing board."

The Tribune said names of those involved were being withheld pending the outcome of an investigation.

It said that the suspensions "were personally approved by Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens."

The Tribune also said "several" figures in the Rosenberg case will be involved in the inquiry. There are definite links between the former atomic spy ring and those under investigation in the present investigation.

Federal Subsidy For Gold Mines To be Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent declared today that the federal government's subsidies to Canada's gold mines will be continued for the present "at substantially its present form."

However, a review will be taken to correct any anomalies that have arisen and to make further adjustments as experience has shown to be desirable," the prime minister said in a statement.

Mr. St. Laurent's statement was issued after an hour-long meeting with Premier Frost of Ontario concerning the gold mines strike in Ontario strike which has thrown more than 5,000 gold miners out of work.

The subsidies to help the mining operators were climbing steadily upon costs first started in 1948. They last were renewed for a two-year period, to expire Dec., 31 next.

Mr. St. Laurent said that the "special difficulties", which made the subsidies necessary "continue to exist."

IN THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Generally clear cold weather prevailed over the province Tuesday night. Early morning temperatures ranged from the upper 20s in southwestern Ontario to 12 above at White River in northern Ontario. Mostly sunny weather will continue in all regions today and Thursday.

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence authorities are investigating three "serious" leaks in military information, an official spokesman said today.

Although the information disclosed was in itself "very important," the spokesman said, the mere fact that it leaked out at all is considered of far greater significance. The spokesman added that officials are "deeply concerned."

The three disclosures mentioned were: Development of a plane resembling a flying saucer, the recent testing of an air-to-air guided missile and development of the "Avrocar fence," a radar defence system.

Asked what action defence officials might take if the investigations should establish identity of those responsible for the leaks, the spokesman said it was too early to say. He pointed out, however, that the Official Secrets Act is still in effect.

It provides long-term imprisonment for anyone found guilty of disclosing secrets affecting the national security.

Mind Be Plugged

"These leaks must be plugged before something even more serious happens," the spokesman said. "Action will be since I haven't watched the others practising, but I sure will be trying", he said.

"This is always a threat," the spokesman said, recalling the spy trials of 1946 and 1949 in which Canadians was accused of conspiring to pass secret information to Russia.

Canadian Priest Walked 300 Miles By Red Captors

HONG KONG (AP)—A Canadian priest told today of a 43-day, 300-mile forced march through Manchuria as one of thousands of prisoners of Chinese Communist troopers.

When he fell from exhaustion, said Rev. Louis Lafond, the Reds kicked him. When he pleaded "let me die," they kicked him harder.

Father Lafond, formerly of Ste. Perpetue, Que., said he was arrested in April of 1951 and was marched to Harbin, where for some unexplained reason he was freed, only to be arrested a few days later along with Rev. Laurent Beaudoin, 45, formerly of St. Georges, Que. Deported, they arrived today by ship.

Jets No Harder on Airline Workers Than Ordinary Planes Says Report

MONTREAL (CP)—A medical committee formed by the world's airlines has reported jet aircraft are no harder on air line employees than ordinary planes.

The report was issued to the ninth annual meeting of the International Air Transport Association after the committee said 10 years of research show most complaints by air crews are "purely psychological."

The committee had no reason to suppose that the ill-effects of jet engine noise on employees of jet aircraft differ from those caused by the engines from piston-engined aircraft," the report said.

The committee, headed by Dr. K. E. Neave of Montreal, medical director of Trans-Canada Air Lines, also said no new drugs to cure air sickness have been found since 1947.

But Dr. Dowd told a press conference research on head-rests being carried out by the RCAF institute of aviation in Toronto may help "reduce" the incidence of air sickness by striking at its cause—"the constant movement of the head."

The medical report said:

1. Healthy infants, more than 10 days old, travel by air as well as adults.

2. Airsickness shouldn't take antihistamines or other cold preventatives while travelling by aircraft.

3. Crew members shouldn't take "sleeping pills" on long flights without a doctor's prescription, and vwen then not within 18 hours of flying.

The convention also heard a report from its technical committee headed by Capt. J. C. Kelly-Rogers of Dublin, deputy general manager of Aer Lingus Teoranta.

The committee reported the helicopter means "an entirely new concept of air transportation," and that it is now "entirely necessary to make the best use of them.

It said research workers should get together to reduce differences between civilian and military types of helicopters.

Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of British Overseas Airway Corporation, said in an interview BOAC hopes to open a London-Montreal non-stop jet service within 18 months. Experimental high-altitude flights would be started this winter.

CANADIAN TITLE WILL BE DECIDED IN TODAY'S MATCH

Robert Timbers Wins Ont. Title for 3rd Time

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG
Canadian Press Staff Writer

COBOURG (CP)—Two veteran plowmen, chosen Ontario champion and runner-up Tuesday, meet here this afternoon of five other provinces today for the Canadian title at the 40th international plowing match.

Robert Timbers, at 36 a sweeptime competitor in the international, won the Ontario championship Tuesday for the third time, edging out James M. Eccles, also a previous provincial titleholder and veteran match evenpetitor.

They'll compete against representatives from British Columbia, Manitoba, Quebec, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island to choose the Canadian champion and thus country's representatives in the first world plowing match Thursday and Friday being held in conjunction with the Ontario Plowmen's Association's international match.

First 18 Acres

Timbers, who farms 100 acres near Stouffville and breeds thoroughbred cattle, first entered international competition when he was 14 years old. "I can't say how my plowing will be since I haven't watched the others practising, but I sure will be trying", he said.

Eccles has a 30-acre dairy farm and a Holstein herd five miles west of Orangeville.

The four-day match was officially opened by Governor-General Massey Tuesday following a parade of competitors and officials through the 25-acre tent city on the 1,000 acre county home farm on the western outskirts of this Lake Ontario town. In a brief ceremony, the governor-general welcomed overseas visitors, especially the representatives of 10 foreign countries.

The second annual mayors' competition, in which Allan Lamport of Toronto defended the title, drew the day's biggest crowd. Several hundred stood under overcast skies to watch 18 mayors of Ontario cities and towns compete for the municipal trophy.

SANTA PARADE OFF

OTTAWA (CP) — Inflation-hit Santa Claus' days of travel, plans Tuesday. Lyn G. Jamison, manager of Eaton's Ottawa store, said the annual Santa Claus parade has been cancelled this year because it costs too much to turn him into town in the style to which he is accustomed. Floats and costumes would cost $9,200 compared to last year's $8,000.

Wilson Does Not Think Soviet Ready for Sustained A-War

By ELTIN C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson says he doesn't believe the Russians will be ready to wage sustained atomic war within three years, and that they may not have now an actual ready-to-use hydrogen bomb.

Wilson told a press conference Tuesday that "to say they have a (hydrogen) bomb ready to drop and planes ready to drop them is perhaps stretching it a bit." He thought the Russians "three or four years back of us" in atomic weapons development.

In the secretary spoke only a few hours after President Eisenhower, in a talk at Atlantic City, had gravely recited the danger of atomic attack on the United States.

The contrast between Wilson's words and the note of urgency sounded in the past by other administration officials makes it evident that Eisenhower faces something of a problem in trying to get his official family to agree on whether there is imminent danger from Russian H-bombs.

Moscow announced Aug. 20 that "the explosion of a type of hydrogen bomb was carried out with experimental aim" shortly before that date.

No Reason To Be Panicky

In a summary which he recorded for broadcast after the press conference, Wilson declared there is no reason why Americans should panicky over the fact that the Russians have the H-bomb, although of course it does present a continuing problem that must be realistically recognized."

He didn't explain how this references to the "fact the Russians do have the H-bomb" related to his earlier comment about "stretching it a bit" when people talked about the Reds having a bomb ready to drop.

Reporters wanted to know what was being done about say Soviet H-bomb menace. Would expenditures in continental defence, for radar warning and fighter planes climb $2,000,000,000 in the next year?

No, Wilson said. He thought it might be "something in the order of $1,000,000,000 or a little more. He maintained that already "we do have a comfortable continental defence including a radar system and fighter and interceptor planes; the problem is to what degree it can be improved with the help and co-operation particularly of our Canadian friends." He referred to the matter of working out details with Canada for installing air defences in northern Canada, commenting that that connection that:

"We talk too much—as if we could move right up into Canada and start building radar defences. It's hurting us up in Canada."

1,000 Homes in W. Germany Ready for Canadians in Spring

OTTAWA (CP) — About 1,000 homes in West Germany for families of Canadian soldiers and airmen will be completed by next spring, the defence department announced today.

Under an arrangement between the West German and Canadian governments, 2,202 living units will be built. Air are expected to be ready by the end of 1954.

The government announced last April it will provide transportation for dependents of service men posted abroad for two years or more, if the men can obtain suitable accommodation. Previously service men had to pay their families' passages.

The German government will finance, construct and manage all dwellings. They will be leased to the Canadian government for an initial period of five years. Besides the 2,202 housing units, 100 school rooms and two recreation centres will be built.

Canada will pay an annual rent of 10 per cent of the cost of the buildings and furnishings in the schools and club rooms. This will cover maintenance services, landscaping and administration.

Estimated capital cost of the program is about 20,000,000 deutsche marks (about $4,760,000) the German government. Of the first 1,100 units ready, 700 will be made available to the army in the Soest area. RCAF personnel will get 400 in the Zweibrucken and Baden-Solingen areas.

The defence department said similar arrangements are being worked out with the French government for private housing for Canadian military personnel there. They call tentatively for construction of 1,014 units at Gros Tenquin, Metz and Marville.

The dwelling units in Germany, all of modern design, will include 100 one-bedroom apartments; 1,000 two-bed r o o m apartments; 1,098 three-bedroom apartments; 252 four-bedroom apartments; 96 one-family row houses and 16 detached houses.

ORDER TROOPS TO GUIANA TO SMASH PLOT

Red Revolt Is Feared; Leftists Deny Charge

By NATE POLOWETZKY

LONDON (AP) — Tough, seasoned Scottish troops were ordered today to British Guiana to help smash an alleged Communist plot to seize power in the South American British colony.

The war office announced that the 1st Battalion—about 600 men—of the famed Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, who served nearly eight months in Korea, will sail from Fir'l'l in Scotland Saturday aboard the 23,000-ton carrier Implacable.

There other warships—the 8,000 ton cruiser Superb and the 1,600 ton frigates Bigbury Bay and Burghead Bay—already are steaming at full speed carrying troops to the troubled colony on the northeast shoulder of South / merica. The 9,000-ton cruiser Sheffield sailed from Scotland Tuesday.

Red Plot Alleged

The display of military and naval might was announced officially Tuesday night and the colonial office said a Red plot possibly aimed at setting up a Communist-dominated state in the British colony.

"The colonial office warned in a statement:

"In view of the latest developments, Her Majesty's government felt it necessary to send naval and military forces to Georgetown (the colony's capital) with the utmost speed in order to preserve peace and the safety of all classes."

May Dismiss Ministers

The statement broke a five-day official silence on events in British Guiana, where the majority Peoples Progressive party has provoked for greater independence. British Governor Sir Alfred Savage is reported considering the dismissal of some or all of the ministers.

A colonial office spokesman told reporters that the Communist movement in British Guiana is run by the American-born wife of Premier Linden Forbes Burnham, the former Janet Rosenberg. She is the executive secretary of the PPP. Premier Jagan and his wife, however, have denied that they are Communists.

Reports from Georgetown indicate the colony is tense but calm.

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (CP)—The left-wing People's Progressive party, whose leaders are charged with plotting a Communist revolt, has "caused us much anxiety."

"We cannot see any reason for such intimidation when all Guiana's other constitutional parties carry on normal and peaceful. There is no disturbance and no violence. In this hour when the colonial office is trying to create stability and rob us of our rights we ask the people of Guiana to stand firm and calm. Their calm will inform you of further development."

I. Q. Tests for Placing Adopted Babies Unreliable Says Expert

By FRANK CAREY
Associated Press Reporter

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Widely-used I. Q. tests for placing adopted babies are "unscientific and unreliable," an Iowa psychologist says.

Parents seeking to adopt babies shouldn't be over-concerned with an infant's I. Q. rating in choosing their baby, Dr. Boyd R. McCandless told a meeting here of persons interested in adoption.

"Intelligence-quotient tests for infants are tremendously unreliable, although they are used pretty routinely in many states for placement of adopted babies," declared Dr. McCandless, director of the child welfare research station at the State University of Iowa.

New research by one of his associates, Dr. Irene Harms, had "definitely given the coup de grace" to the theory that "very as much as 35 points from day to day" in I. Q. scores where to be considered normal.

Later, he told a reporter:

"Parents in general shouldn't worry too much about a child's mental development in the first year because it's going to be later on."

The psychologist said he is skeptical about I. Q. tests for children under age 3½.

"But after that, when the child becomes stabilized, I. Q. tests can be, one of our most useful scientific tools if employed correctly."

Body Discovered In Yard Of Home Of Abductors

Woman and Two Men Held Most of Ransom Recovered

KANSAS CITY (CP) — Six-year-old Bobby Greenlease, kidnapped 10 days ago, was found dead today. His body was dug from a shallow grave at St. Joseph, Mo., in the backyard of a woman held by the FBI in connection with the kidnap-slaying of the abductors. Two men are also being held in connection with the kidnap-slaying.

The FBI said a $600,000 ransom had been turned over to the kidnappers last Sunday by Bobby's 71-year-old multi-millionaire father. The greater portion of this money was recovered, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said in Washington.

Bobby's body was found in the yard of the home of Mrs. Bonnie Brown Heady, 41, in whose yard the body was found, and Carl Austin Hall, 37.

Hoover said Hall had admitted shooting the boy. He added that Hall, an ex-convict, and the woman held in the jail at St. Joseph, Mo., Marsh, 37, Both Hall and Marsh have served terms in the Missouri state penitentiary.

Hall was reported to have had $300,000 ransom money in his possession when arrested.

Bobby's badly decomposed body was found following the arrest of the pair in St Louis. But police there said they only immediately just when the child had been slain.

Murder and kidnapping are both punishable under Missouri law by a maximum penalty of death by the gas chamber. In the case of kidnapping, the death penalty may be imposed by a jury regardless whether the victim was slain or released unharmed.

Family Notified

The family was notified of the boy's death by the FBI at 10 a. m. CST. A family physician who called at the home a short time later said the father, Robert C. Greenlease, took the news hard but then appeared to have reconciled to it. Mrs. Greenlease, in her mid 40s, has been under the doctor's care since the kidnapping.

The boy was kidnapped Sept. 28 from an exclusive private Roman Catholic school here by a woman who posed as his aunt and got him from a nun by saying his mother had suddenly been stricken.

The family received a letter from the kidnappers that night, it was disclosed today. The address on the letter presumably was in a code. The letter was typed and was printed in block letters.

The letter demanded $600,000 ransom in $10 and $20 bills, the money to be stuffed in an army duffel bag.

The bulky bag of money was delivered to a Kansas City woman over a culvert or bridge about 9:15 p. m. last Sunday. The bridge was reported to be between here and St. Joseph, 55 miles north of Kansas City.

Shortly afterwards a telephone call was received at the family's brick two-storey Greenlease home. The elderly automobile distributor is reportedly one of the 10 wealthiest men in Kansas City.

A voice told the family a telegram would be received at 11 a. m. Monday telling them where the boy would be found. When the deadline came and passed without the arrival of a telegram, it became obvious to the family that kidnappers were only seeking time to escape.

Oxford Alarmed Over Number Of Suicides

OXFORD, England (AP)—Oxford University officials admitted today they are alarmed over the growing number of suicides among undergraduates at the school.

"It is extremely distressing," Vice-Chancellor Sir Maurice Bowra told university authorities in his annual report.

"The number of suicides among young men is more than we ought to be. It is useless to argue that, after all, it is a very small percentage of a large body. There should be none at all and we cannot but feel some responsibility for it and ask ourselves what we can do about it."

Nine undergraduate suicides are known to have been committed between January, 1952, and August 1953, two of them in this academic year.

Sir Maurice said two mental hospitals at Oxford are looking for the causes of the suicides and the treatment necessary.

Later he was employed at the St. Mary's Creamery and became the plant's manager. Eventually he became a dairy inspector and lecturer at Guelph O.A.C. and was also launched into the creamery business in Belleville for himself. He ended up as a very successful owner of several factories and he is still interested in the business. Mack is a native of Grey County where his nephew still farms on the homestead homestead after ownership of four generations.

FORMER PRINCIPAL TO COLLEGIATE TO RECEIVE DEGREE

William Turner, the immediate past principal of Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and the present head of Brantford Collegiate and Vocational School is to be awarded an honorary doctorate of laws at the fall convocations of the University of Western Ontario.

Personally conducted by physical director, Di Diamantides, the light class had a few minutes of light exercise. This was followed by three sets of very exciting volley ball. The girls coached by Myrtle Bryson Leslie, Don Kingdon, Ed Gilchrist, Ted Woodley and Eric Whitfield won over the team captained by Gordon Fraser. A prize, however, was given to the losers for those who had the time, endurance and first ambition. A very enjoyable time was held by all as they "played their way to physical fitness."

The business and professional men's class will meet regularly each Tuesday.

MEN'S CLASS ENJOYS WORKOUT

COST OF OPERATING COMMUNITY CHEST DRIVE IS LOW

The cost of operating the Community Chest Campaign in the city of Belleville this year is much lower than in most cities and as less than four per cent of the total collected according to a report from the chest headquarters. This year the administration cost of operating the Community Chest amounted to 3.7 per cent of the total raised, while the national average was 13 to 18 per cent of the total funds collected.

"There are several reasons for this," explained a chest official. "First of all we do not have to pay for several full time year round chest officers, because we have the help of more than 500 volunteer workers, who give assistance at no cost. Secondly the Community Chest does not have to pay rent for office space and campaign headquarters since we are situated in the Y.M.C.A. building. Thirdly the cost involved in operating the campaign are for stationery, canvasser information kits and pledge cards and for promotional material. We are proud of our low cost of administration, because it means that more than 90 per cent of every dollar contributed is used in direct service to the people of Belleville," said an official.

Dr. Templeton Tells 2000 'How to Build a Happy Home'

"The strength of a nation is as the strength of its average home," stated Dr. Charles B. Templeton last evening in the Memorial Arena as he brought a thought-provoking message on "Building a Happy Home."

In spite of the adverse condition of the weather, more than 2,000 people were on hand to hear this outstanding speaker, on the second evening of the last week of the Mission.

As a Scripture reading, Dr. Templeton had compiled various passages from the Word of God dealing with marriage relations of the husband toward the wife, and the wife toward her husband, of the parents toward their children, and of the children's attitude toward their parents.

Not Compulsion

"It is not communism that is the threat to our way of life, but the nation's failure because of a weakening within the nation itself; our threat is not from without, but within," declared Dr. Templeton. "Communism is a lovely offspring, another "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah."

Among those on the platform were, the Rev. K. J. Crawford, Rev. Templeton's brother in the vocation prayer, and the Rev. J. F. Lane, the offertory prayer.

Delegations

Delegations included, Bridge Street United Church; Trinity Methodist; Y's Men of Belleville; Sulphide Friendship Club; Young Adult Class; Bible Study Group; Pleasant Two-by-Two Club; Tweedsmuir United Church Girls' Club; St. Ola's United Church; Coe Hill United Church; Strathcona United Church; Arden United Church; Holloway United Church; Stirling United Church and some friends from Dr. Templeton's former church in Toronto.

The subject of Dr. Templeton's address tonight will be "The Most Unforgettable Character I Ever Met."

Name Directors For Coming Year At Kiwanis Club

The results of the second ballot taken at the Kiwanis Club on Tuesday night for the following members will serve on the board of directors for the year 1953-54: Lawrence Kells, Abe Mazer, Staff McKeown, Hugh Murray, Bud Punchard, Don Stanton, Harry Trepanier, Vic White and Bill Wilkins.

Three members were inducted into the club at the meeting. The Rev. William J. Robinson, rector of St. Thomas' Anglican Church; Jack Hall, assistant manager of the Dominion Bank and James Bateman, manager of Canada Interiors. Mr. Bateman's stork, who officially accepted into the club, was Bruce Franklin conducted the induction program.

Five speakers were heard at the club. Don Kingdon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke on behalf of the Red Feather campaign, which is presently in full swing. The other speaker was Ralph Harris, public relations director of the Canada Insurance Federation.

Mr. Harris discussed the rising cost of automobile insurance, blaming the rise upon increasing motor accidents and inflationary elements prevalent in the country today. He said there is little that may be done about the latter factor but he indicated much could be done to lower costs if the accident rate could be decreased.

Claims Increasing

The speaker said claims are increasing at the rate of 10 million dollars per year. He also pointed out that the rates automobile drivers pay for insurance are fixed by the incidence of accidents in their own area. According to the public relations officer, Canada is divided into five areas for purpose of setting rates. "This way," he said, "you are paying for what you do, you might occur in Quebec."

Mr. Harris stated that a good percentage of the accidents in the cities and on the highways of the country could be laid to three basic causes. He pointed out careless steering, discovery and deliberately taking a chance were the offenders.

In concluding, Mr. Harris listed a number of cautionary methods to avoid accidents and to cut down, stressing that if there was an increased driver responsibility, automobile accidents would fall off considerably as would insurance premiums.

'Normal Heart' Subject of Talk By Dr. B. Cronk

Y's man Dr. Bruce Cronk addressed his fellow club members at their last regular dinner meeting on the subject of "Abnormal Heart."

In his opening words, Dr. Cronk stated that more people die today from heart disease than from cancer, tuberculosis, accidents, and yet the fund raising drives, to which the public rather responds, to search, are not as great.

With the aid of a diagrammatic chart, Dr. Cronk described the operation of the heart, and also the various parts of it. He broke it up and their respective functions.

Dr. Cronk stated that our heart beats according to the demands which we impose upon it and that it's rate is considerably less at rest than when we are excited or angry. He explained that two unconscious sets of nerves control the heart rate for these two conditions respectively. He also explained that our heart rate is affected by emotional and chemical activities within our body as well.

Dr. Cronk concluded his address by explaining the operation of the electrocardiograph and the method in the interpretation of the electrocardiogram. He said it is a popular misconception that the electrocardiograph is a foolproof machine, because it cannot definitely say whether a person has heart disease or not. Due to the fact electrocardiograms will vary according to circumstances under which it was taken. In the case of patients and the heart, the speaker stated that it was only through intelligent interpretation of the electrocardiogram, taking into consideration all the circumstances, case history of the patient, that conclusions could be drawn.

The speaker was introduced by Vern Weir and thanked by Gordon Fraser. Dr. Cronk will speak to the club in the near future on Diseases of the Heart.

Mr. W. J. Anderson, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A., was present at the meeting and asked the members of the club to give generously in support of the Community Chest drive.

Assault Charge Preferred By Marmora Chief Aired

MARMORA. — Niles Flake, Thomasburg, 63-year-old father of 11 children, and his son, Henry, 36, of Marmora, appeared in Marmora magistrate's court on Tuesday morning on charges following Police Chief Gordon Caldwell following a brief disturbance in the Royal Hotel, last August 9.

All witnesses, both for the Crown and defence, were heard before Magistrate R. C. Jackson, but the hearing until well after ten-thirty in the morning, when proceedings were adjourned until Wednesday afternoon at Madoc, where magistrate Jackson will be heard by Magistrate R. C. Jackson.

Proceedings against the two men charged with assaulting the police officer drew high interest on the part of village residents and from the opening of court until adjournment the court room was jammed with spectators.

Witnesses told of a disturbance occurring in the ladies' beverage room at the Royal Hotel near closing time early in the morning of August 9th. The hotel management had called police.

Heard Man Swearing

Chief Caldwell told of going to the hotel after receiving a complaint and finding a man seated at a table in the ladies' beverage room with a lot of police guards. He also told how at the door a moment and heard Henry Flake swearing.

The officer continued stating he had told the party they would have to go with him and that it was time only to be told by Henry Flake to "go to hell" and that he would leave when ready.

The chief put his hand on Henry's shoulder and told him he was under arrest," the officer went on to say, "and Henry Flake knocked my cap off."

The chief further said he had taken Henry by the arm to lead him from the room, only to have Henry Flake grab him from behind and jump on his back. The chief said he heard Henry's handcuffs, but Niles Fluke grabbed his arm and his trousers fell down.

The court was told that Henry had broken away and tried to escape through the hotel lobby, where the officer caught up with him. A general "mix-up" followed, the melee extending out into the street as the officer tried to take Henry to jail.

Jumped on Three Times

The officer said that Niles Flake had jumped him three different times and that the brothers had intervened. "At one time I was fighting five," he said.

After the hearing Henry had been placed in jail. Chief Caldwell said that he was instructed to go home where he collapsed.

Dr. W. H. Parkin said he had been called to the police chief's home where he found that he be suffering from groin injury, lacerations on the face, right ear, scrapes on both cheeks and tenderness about the lower abdomen. He said the officer still complained about chest pains when he saw him later but an X-ray showed no bones had been broken.

Jim Brady, hotel manager, and John Wilson, waiter, told of the disturbance in the hotel and of Henry Fluke using foul language. Wilson said that Niles Fluke interfering when the officer went to arrest Henry.

Testified For Crown

Charles Leach, present hotel manager and O.P.P. Constable A. Bolyea were also testified for the Crown. Constable Bolyea said he had been called to Madoc where he was told of Niles Fluke interfering when the officer went to arrest Henry.

Great Number Of Black Bears Seen in North

The residents of Marmora and the surrounding district have reported a great number of bears roaming about the country side, many of our bulky friends in fact that the children of the village could be seen running outside the door of their homes after dusk arrives.

"The Brunos" of Marmora are after apples and berries and reports of bears being seen in orchards have been reported. One local man, Frank Bolyea, has seen plenty of bee hives in his back yard. He heard a noise one evening and opened his door to find a large bear ready to help himself to a bit of sweets. At the sight of the bear he took to his heels and disappeared in short order.

Provincial game officer Ingram, while working a few miles out of Marmora was greeted with the sight of one large bear walking along the side of the tracks. A short while after a mother and two of her cubs also took to the tracks for a walk, not by the tracks but on them. When a train was rolling along Conway Junction it hurried retreat over a fence and into the bush soon cleared the rails.

Finance Chairman Critical Of Fire Dept. Administration

TRENTON (Special)—The Trenton Fire Department came under heavy criticism from Chairman of Finance Committee, last night who recommended something be done immediately to bring the department up to full strength.

Last week firemen Joe Hastings tendered his resignation with the complaint that the morale of the firemen was at a low ebb.

Last night Mr. James who heads the fire department administration, asked council to accept John Moon's, application to fill the vacancy, "Moon," councillor James said, "had five year's experience in fire fighting with the R.C.A.F." Three other applicants now acting as volunteers lack training." Mr. James argued.

Councillor James MacDonald favored hiring one of the volunteers. Interjecting councillor Reg. Armstrong said if the job had been advertised, Mr. James felt there was no need in calling for applicants, when four applications were at hand.

Mayor R. E. Whitley proposed a motion seconded by councillor Don MacPherson moving that the applicants be interviewed at a council meeting with Fire Chief Harry Fitzin present.

No Rent Control

Council decided against adopting rent control.

Grant Rathbun who offered Trenton a less elaborate service than the Armstrong company operated asked council to forward a formal request to the Rathbun Bus Service.

Two applications for town engineer have been considered and the applicants will be requested to appear before council for a personal interview. Salary to be paid the new engineer is around $3,000.

L. Mummell introduced a scheme for remodelling the town. Council deemed the project necessary with a recommendation that the matter be given attention, when the funds were available.

The meeting held in one of the classrooms at Dufferin Public School attracted only a handful of civic-minded citizens.

Council moved to congratulate Mayor and Mrs. Whitley on their 43rd wedding anniversary yesterday.

Zentis was eastbound on Highland Ave., when he met a car emerge from Bridge Street, causing him to apply his brakes. The car went across the street, mounted the sidewalk and bumped into the concrete retaining wall on Bridge St. hill.

Cargo Pile-Up Melts as Strike Ends in U.S. Ports

NEW YORK (AP)—A pile-up of tons of cargo melted today as longshoremen set United States Atlantic ports humming once again after a five-day strike.

Work resumption started Tuesday after the government obtained a 10-day Taft-Hartley labor law injunction in the wage dispute.

Many of the estimated 50,000 to 60,000 striking members of the International Longshoremen's Association answered work calls on piers from Portland, Me., to Hampton Roads, Va.

In New York, the work return was quiet and generally without serious incident although a new AFL union, the International Longshoremen's Association, AFL, pushed its battle to win control of waterfront labor from the now-independent ILA.

A number of companies ordered overtime work in an effort to clean up the backlog of cargo.

The strike, which tied up more than 100 vessels at its height, was ended under a court order obtained Monday night. The Eisenhower administration sought the injunction in the first use of the national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley law.

EASY ON EVERYBODY

The Belleville Community Chest is again making its annual appeal for funds.

It is just possible that some Belleville citizens wonder why six local organizations should unite in one appeal for funds.

The answer is simple. It is so much easier on everybody. It avoids duplication of effort—on the part of the canvassers and also on the part of those citizens who contribute.

The Community Chest method is now in use in cities throughout the continent, not only in Canada but also in the United States. It has proven its worth.

Still, there is one objection sometimes heard, not only in Belleville but also in any other centres where the method is employed. A few citizens are convinced that one or another of the participating organizations do not qualify for public support. Every, of course, should be made to convince them that in this view they are in error. But, if they remain unconvinced, there is a simple solution. Here in Belleville, as in many other centres, donors can earmark their donations for certain organizations, eliminating one or more of the member organizations of the Chest from the list which will share in their gift to the Chest.

Incidentally, the participating organizations in Belleville are the Victorian Order of Nurses, the Y.M.C.A., the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Kid Society, the Navy League, and the St. John Ambulance Brigade.

All do a worthwhile work in the community and deserve support. Greet your canvasser cheerfully. He or she is not calling to beg—but to assist you to join with your friends and neighbors in building a better Belleville.

TELL-TALE WORDS

Acting the jailer is not the way to win friends and influence people. Yet it is often a task which has to be done.

In accepting the responsibility for guarding prisoners of the Korean war who do not wish to return to their homelands, India undertook a thankless task.

The way Watter is doing this task is being discharged has won the Indian troops little praise and much criticism. Some of this criticism has come from the U.N. command. Most of the fault-finding, though, has been voiced by South Korean. Unlike the criticism voiced by the U.N. command, the South Korean attacks on the Indians have been exceedingly bitter. Before too great a prejudice is produced by the vituperative criticism, it might be well to consider the language in which they are voiced.

Take, for instance, the denunciation of the Indians by P. H. Shinickey, chairman of the South Korean National Assembly. Here, according to the Associated Press, are some of his assertions: "India is the common enemy of the freedom-loving people. She is acting only as a running dog of the British imperialism."

We do not pretend to know exactly what type of animal is a running dog of imperialism. British or otherwise, but we think it fairly obvious that this is not a complimentary term, either to the dog or the imperialist. Shinickey is here assailing British India which sent its troops to fight and die to protect him and his fellow-countrymen from the Reds. It seems reasonable to hope that most of the freedom-loving people of the world will reject his implied attitude of Britain as unfair. And, if that part of his observation is ruled out, there is no sound reason why we should accept his definition of India as "the common enemy of the freedom-loving people" or even evidence from a much more reliable source than Shinickey and his associates.

A PRAISEWORTHY PROJECT

Thirty-one secondary schools in Eastern Ontario, including the Belleville-Collegiate Institute-and Vocational School and Trenton Collegiate Institute, have been invited to participate in a drama festival to be held at Kingston in March.

There are many people who object to what they consider "frills" in our modern educational system. We think, however, that the festival mentioned will place stimulation of interest in drama in this classification.

There can be no doubt that the legitimate stage is entitled to rank as an art. There are, of course, some stage productions which do not fall into this category but it is also true that not all musical compositions and not all books qualify as art. These are, of course, some stage question the right of music and literature to a place amongst the arts.

Nor need the efforts of the students of the competing schools meet the highest standards of the stage in order for them to benefit from their studies of drama.

WAIT AND SEE

In the early days of the First Great War, when Herbert Asquith was Prime Minister of Britain, he showed at times hesitancy to make decisions. This led to him being tagged with the nickname "Old Wait-and-See."

Perhaps a man of this temperament is not an ideal leader in time of war. But there is a place for this approach to problems. Sometimes, if they are left alone, they solve themselves.

One wonders whether a "wait-and-see" attitude toward Trieste might not be best. Perhaps the day will come when, the airplane having superseded all other methods of transportation, Trieste's port will no longer be of economic importance, and, perhaps, it would then be possible to settle the fate of that city and the surrounding territory in a fashion which would earn the approval of both Italy and Yugoslavia.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

(Copyright, 1953, Edgar A. Guest)

WORRY

They tell us not to worry, but the debtor ought to fret
And worry just a little 'til the day he pays his debt.
Since the simplest task's important, one should worry just a bit,
For the fellow that's indifferent he'll fail to trust with it.

They say that worry's needless and at times that may be true,
But a worrier works better when there's something he can do.

The thought of failure frets him when he has to face a test,
If he feels the spur of worry he will try to do his best.

The man who never worries never very greatly cares.
Never long or far he'll journey burden that he bears.

Ask any wise employer and he'll tell you this is true:
Only worriers can be trusted with a task that's hard to do.

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUR GREAT ERA

The human mind always remains the most important element in everything. We look at the most wonderful product, and the thought occurs to us that the price we had to pay for it was due to the material it contained. This is wrong. What we pay for chiefly is skill, know-how, and the labor involved in making the material and putting it together.

There is only ten cents' worth of steel in a $20.00 watch; steel costs $20.00. There is less than fifty cents' worth of steel in an ounce iron which cost $12.00. There is only about $225.00 worth of steel in a $2000.00 automobile. There is less than $14.00 worth of steel in a $350.00 refrigerator.

Our century is a century of labor-saving machinery, yet the human element still remains the factor of greatest significance. Men may appear to be mere robots, doing some probably are, but no robot ever designed a jet engine or a precision instrument. Even the men who have to do long, boring work under requirements of skill which were unknown a hundred years ago, are, in these days, days everything was artistically designed, made attractive and carelessly is a mistaken notion.

We live in a great era. Stop making it so.

Last of West's Panda Is Dead

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Mei-Lan was something of a clown—and of such eminence as to win mention in an article in the Encyclopedia Britannica. For years, in Chicago, adults have joined children in flocking to see and applaud Mei-Lan's antics.

The other day at the age of only fifteen, this entertainer in a furry suit died in Brookfield Zoo. Mei-Lan, you see, was a giant panda, the last surviving representative of the kind in the free world.

The only giant pandas remaining now are behind the Bamboo Curtain, residents of the region between the Eastern Himalayas and Northwest China.

At one time there were two giant pandas at Brookfield—Mei-Lan (or Mei-Mei as the Encyclopedia names him) and Su-Lin. Su-Lin died in 1938, presumably at a tender age, after swallowing a twig.

Now Mei-Lan too has gone but the panda will not be forgotten like the dodo. Mei-Lan will still remains the familiar panda doll, rival of the teddy bear as the favorite cuddlesome companion or babes in their cribs at sleepy-time.

It is sad to reflect, however, that the giant panda's chances of this insately happy breed are held behind a political barrier. The Red Chinese world tyranny has lamented this, with the caustic observation that those creatures no doubt are now being "thoroughly indoctrinated with Marxism and taught to emulate the Soviet Man." We have more confidence in the panda. He is too much the individualist, has too warm a sense of humor to ever submit to become a unit in a monolithic state.

Hit Parade of 1799

By HORACE REYNOLDS in the

I am interested in the way my ancestors did things. I like to know how they planted their corn, spun and wool or flax, smoked their hams. I like objects which protect the past into the present—old houses, old utensils, old books.

It's owing to this antiquarian interest that I recently picked up in a second-hand bookstore a manuscript music book, about two by one inches, bound in brown calf. On the inside of its front board its owner had written his name neatly in ink: "Old English letters—"Elisha Belcher." On the inside of its back board, he had written, this time in cursive letters, "Framingham, February 7th, 1799," following that, what looked to be a faint "90." It was obvious that if it was '99, it was 1799. The book had an 18th-century look.

There was the book—and the problem. The problem was, who was Elisha? What did he do in Framingham? Where did he get these tunes he had written down in his? I bought the book for the problem. I like such problems. Like Sherlock Holmes, I feel—and say, Elisha was the fifth child of Joseph Belcher, the Messenger Bishnap (how our ancestors loved those rugged Old Testament names!). That father was a member of the Minute Company of Framingham, which had marched to Concord and Cambridge on the 19th of April, 1775. Joseph, of Framingham, September 1, 1781, and passed on to his reward.

An older cousin, Daniel Belcher, was busy writing and publishing religious songs and hymns. Elisha plumped for fiddles, clarinets, and horns—pipes. His book records what Elisha played in the Uncle Adams's administration. His book is the Hit Parade for 1799.

What were they playing and singing in 1799? Such tunes as Burns's "My Love She's But a Lassie Yet," such Irish airs as "Rory O'More" and "Morning." Patriotic marches were popular—"Washington's March," "Jefferson's March," for instance. Dance tunes galore, of course. "The Speed the Plough," "Sir Eli for Tal," and "Lamplighter's Delight." There were also saucy titles and the tune "Rose Tree" sounds like "Monkey in the Rose" while "The Merry Ploughmas" whistles like Stephen Foster's "Oh Susanna."

Then, as I played my way through these tunes, I began to wonder did Elisha play the fiddle, flute, or fife. I solved the riddle, because while his attention contained such Scotch songs as "The Flowers of the Forest" and "My Nanny O," the number of marches and quickstep gave away his martial air. Record enthusiasts, please note. In a history of Framingham I found out that Elisha was an original member of the Framingham Artillery Company. A sentence described exactly in what capacity: "Elisha Belcher was awarded his first time July 4, 1799, under the following officers: 1st Sergeant, captain, John Nurse, 1st Lieutenant, Benjamin Brown, 2nd Lieutenant, Purchase Stone, pioneer, Elisha Belknap, fifer, David Stone, drummer."

There it was. This was the end of the trail. The music book caper was solved. Elisha did not play Scotch airs on the flute in the parlors of Framingham's young ladies or on the fiddle for contradances.

He was a fifer, and I have no doubt that on the Fourth of July 1799, when the eighteen-year-old Elisha marched with the Artillery Company on its first parade, he carried the book in which he had carefully written the tunes in the previous February. Here, in his own handwriting, was a record of the past. Holding Elisha's book and whistling "Trim the Velvet," as the fifer did, I felt I had decided to the 18th-century America.

One wonder where Elisha got these tunes he copied into his book. Some probably from the printed music books of the period, from a fife player, or from a "professional (sic) Tutor for the Fife," advertised in "The Pennsylvania Gazette" for July 17, 1776. A book called "Apollo's Lyre" is known to exist. Others, such as "Tag in the Water" and "Water Valley Fore," would appeal to have been composed by Elisha himself in one to explain the misspelling of a log and the misbearing of forge in.

Some are obviously very old. Guilderoy" goes back at least to the 17th century, and what Elisha calls "Monkey in the Rose" is a tuneful tune to which today we sing "Ba, Ba, Black Sheep, Have You Had a Little Nut Tree". Some tunes record change. Neither "Yankee Doodle" nor "Chester" nor "The Good Girl Left Behind Me" is quite the same as it is today. Some are to-day. Time and transmission change the tune. They improve.

If Elisha began his book in 1799, he probably continued copying tunes into it for some time. Perhaps toward the end of the book there are a dance and a quick march from "Cinderella," that "Grand Allegorical Pantomime" in which Elisha the mother and father of Edgar Allan Poe played in Boston in 1806. He may have played them: he certainly heard the music from the theatre pit. In doing so, Elisha made a contribution to the history of American music. The importance of the book is the fife is a rare record of the music played by one of the most interesting record of America's musical taste in 1799.

Woodchuck-Hunting

(New York Times)

Many a countryman, with open fields or woods at his back door, must have been impressed, as he lays down his hoe by Raymond R. Camp's account of his woodchuck-hunting expedition the other day. The woodchuck was in trouble—and a companion, without ever getting farther than seventy miles from this city, managed quite a creditable job of how to travel 212 miles in pursuit of the woodchuck. It is quite possible that by this time Mr. Camp has received a number of letters, bearing rural postmarks, that begin, "I have a number of woodchucks on my place and would order if you would . . . ." For, to the countryman, woodchucks can be a nuisance, and he likes nothing better than to see a hunter with a rifle, or, for a careful shot, who knows how to climb fences, cross streams, and deal politely with respect—at his door requiring permission to enter the neighborhood 'chuck population.

Indeed, the countryman enjoys taking down his rifle and doing a little woodchuck hunting himself—though he usually limits himself to that mostly the time isn't there. Mr. Camp pursued woodchuck in a safari-like manner by city folks or whether you are among those who take a short stroll into fields near by, is a time-consuming proposition. Countrymen who on his land has woodchucks that nibble at the vegetable garden in season, seem to get at them some day, but he seldom does. There are always other things needing to be fixed, or hauled, put up or taken down, and by the time he gets involved in 'chuck hunting a lot of things that need doing around the place will not get done.

There are three ways to hunt woodchuck. One is the way people from the cityside it, driving through wood-chuck country until they see a 'chuck, when they stop their cars and try to move, aloof, to within shooting distance. This does not materially reduce the 'chuck population; most of these occasional hunters are likely to estimate 400 yards as 200, and at the first shot the 'chuck is off to his burrow unscathed. The second way is to hire a professional woodchuck hunter; until an animal is seen and can be stalked, he will spend them; he certainly heard the music from the theatre pit. In doing so, Elisha made a contribution to the history of American music. The importance of the book is the fife is a rare record of the music played by one of the most interesting record of America's musical taste in 1799.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

FROM FORTY-THREE TO THIRTY

I weighed 226 pounds when I was 12 years old (says Mrs. John Doe, and I can't imagine a lady lying about such a thing) and at the age of 35 I weighed (quiet, please, this isn't funny) 300 pounds and started reducing.

After losing about 150 lbs. Dr. Brady continued Mrs. Doe maddeningly), I had the dreaded "growing pains," or maybe I should say shrinking pains and cramps. My physician prescribed the Iodin Ration. That was seven years ago. It has been a daily habit with me ever since, and I wouldn't miss it for anything. I'm 43 years old now and I look, feel and act like a smart 30. God a job recently where they have a 35 year age limit, with no questions asked. Good for Iodin, and Orchids for your Iodin Ration, Doctor.

This is as maddening to me as it is to you plump ones. In the handling of the mail with which we haven't caught up, people have to wait for it, and so we look first at the signature. If that is lacking or illegible, we say the letter goes unread into the chucker. Mrs. Doe, you have beautiful auburn hair, but, irksome to discover, your address is not on the envelope was lost when the envelope was tossed into the chucker. So we'll never know what reducing regimen Mrs. Doe followed or how long it took to reduce 150 lbs., unless perchance she sees this piece and, like the good sport she is sure she is, writes and tells us supply these facts.

Anyway the lady's Iodin Ration testimonial is in line with I dare not say how many others just some of you victims of iodin deficiency reject the whole thing as sheer quackery. This is still a free country. Judge for yourself whether my health teachings are right or wrong. Best whatever you think about it, please ponder the significance of Mrs. Doe's fifteen-word message, which might just as well be conveyed in eight words, thus:

I'M 43 AND LOOK, FEEL AND ACT 30.

Allowing for the usual dash of flattery—you know, "you don't look a day over the way you looked twenty years ago" — Mrs. Doe has kept her respect within the bounds of probity. Obviously she sought no reward, or publication, since she did take give her address.

Mrs. Doe does not say her hair has replaced some of the prime-time life and color it had lost, but I'm willing to believe that. She has assured me that the Iodin Ration has restored life and color to my thinning hair. I haven't observed this, but I'm willing to accept Mrs. Doe's unsolicited testimonial. Iodin is a valuable tonic for victims of iodin deficiency. Let's take positive steps to correct the deficiency.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We can be disenchanted, but we can also be enchanted. We can be disgruntled but we can also be disgruntled! My dictionary says not. To be disgruntled, it says, means to put into a state of sulky dissatisfaction. It is a beautiful word. The very sound of it is disgruntled. English is full of such words, and they don't come from the Latin or even from the French or the Saxon. They are, you might say, home-grown. They just growed. But they are very distressing to strangers to the language. Some of mine has taken a fancy to some of these more "ornamental" words of English. When he came to the door last evening, I explained that he was very gruntled," he said, beaming. "Everything is honky-dory."

"Honky-dory", I suggested.

"Yes," said he.

enquired, as I took his hat.

"Gruntled" he replied, having just the least little difficulty with the "r", so little that I hardly noted. This is okay between us, since I have a great deal more trouble with nearly all the Chinese vowels, of which there are many more than there are vowels. But "being very happy, very satisfied, very pleased," I reflected.

"The opposite," he revealed, "of disgruntled, eh! I found it in dictionary."

So I warned him against the dictionary. It is, I explained, the most dangerous book in the English language. It is responsible for half the English ever uses it. Not one in a thousand, I said, in a thousand. It is a book for scholars, students, specialists, collectors, and other unbalanced people who indulge in the petit point and needle-point of thought and other such hobbyists.

"But how . . ?" began my Chinese friend, paralyzed at the thought.

"Ninety-nine out of a hundred of us who talk English all over the world, and it's pretty general," I explained, "just pick up whatever we can of English and then go ahead and talk. And everyone understands."

"Good," said he. And away he went.

CAPITALISTS

We hear a great deal these days about the capitalistic system. It is to those of great wealth, or those who command great wealth, that enterprises in which is invested great wealth. The real capitalist, however, is the man with brains. A goodly portion of our great so-called capitalists started out with nothing but their brains as capital.

The late Henry Ford started out his automobile company without much investing a single dollar in it. His capital was his ideas and brains. Others put up the money who commanded the use of the

$800 Cheque From Auxiliary Will be Used by School Board To Purchase Library Books

G/C R. C. Hawtery, chairman of the A/C/M. Breadner School Board, in accepting a cheque for $800 from the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary, recently, referred to the gift as a very substantial contribution to our school," and thanked the membership for the money which will be used to purchase books for the school library.

The generous donation was presented by Mrs. W. F. M. Newson, convener of the "S.S. Quinte" Coronation Cruise variety show, the proceeds of which also enabled the Auxiliary to spend $1,200 on a new delivery table for the Trenton Memorial Hospital.

"It is a great pleasure to know that the outcome of the show will benefit us all indirectly through our children," remarked Mrs. Newson, as she presented the cheque to G/C Hawtery, who turned the gift over to Mr. G. D. Dwyer, principal of the A/C/M Breadner School.

In thanking the Women's Auxiliary, Mr. Dwyer stated, it is very difficult to develop 'the minds of children unless you have suitable materials,' and concluded by stating that steps are being taken at present to purchase suitable reading material for the Breadner School library.

The cheque presentation concluded the October monthly meeting of the RCAF Trenton Women's Auxiliary, held in the auditorium of A/C/M Breadner School.

Following the reading of the minutes by Mrs. A. M. Halbert, secretary, Mrs. J. B. Millward, newly-elected president, called for discussion on a major project for the spring of 1954. The membership voted to hold another show similar to the "S.S. Quinte" Coronation Cruise and Mrs. R. F. Murray was appointed convener.

The Arts and Crafts classes, introduced to Auxiliary members for the first time in 1953, will continue under the convenership of Mrs. G. H. Mullin, who reported that the services of 13 volunteer instructors had been obtained to get the new year under way. On Mondays at 8 p.m. a class in beauty culture will be held at the home of Mrs. A. Descharme, 1 Godfrey Street.

On Tuesday evenings at 8 p.m. classes will be held in crocheting at the home of Mrs. J. L. Steele, 96 Rivers Drive; in rug hooking at the home of Mrs. W. W. McBride, 14 Laird Drive; in shellcraft at the home of Mrs. W. M. King, 19 Nassau Drive; in modelling at the home of Mrs. G. Bourque, 6 Lewis Ave., and from 7.30 to 9 p.m. in swimming under Mrs. W. H. Driving Classes

Driving classes under S/L R. R. Davis will be held by appointment. Classes in copper tooling under G/C R. C. Hawtery will be announced as the arrangements can be made for a meeting place.

Mrs. J. L. Herman, welcoming convener, reported that 45 calls were made upon new residents during the month of September.

Living Costs Rise

The consumer price index, a barometer of living costs, rose by one-half a point during August to 113.2 from 113.7, the bureau of statistics reports. It was the fourth consecutive monthly jump, powered by price boosts mainly in food. The peak of 113.2 was reached in December, 1951, with 1949 prices equalling 100. The dotted line shows the United States consumer price index advanced to a record high of 115 in mid-August of the 1947-49 average. These indices measure percentage changes in each country but should not be used to compare actual levels of prices between the two countries. —(CP Photo).

It was reported by Mrs. R. G. Bowman, Well Baby Clinic convener, that inoculation parties will not be held until after the first heavy frost which should end the polio season.

Concert Planned

The fall season will be highlighted by a concert featuring two young Canadian artists, Roger Robillard, tenor, and Frank Keyes, baritone. The non-profit venture, sponsored by the Auxiliary, is under the convenership of Mrs. G. C. MacDonald, who reported that 600 tickets are available for the one night performance on Tuesday, October 20, at 8.15 p.m. in the A/C/M Breadner School auditorium. Volunteers were called upon to help with the sale of tickets which will be available in downtown Trenton from Mrs. T. O'Byrne, 12 Front Street or the Opportunity Shop, 63 King Street.

In 1953, the Auxiliary voted the sum of $600 to the Middleton Park Council for playground supervisors. Following a request from the Council that the unused money be allocated for playground construction, the October meeting unanimously agreed that "that the $600 be used by the council as they see fit."

Mrs. R. F. Murray moved that a vote of thanks in letter form be sent to Mrs. R. Johnston, past president of the Auxiliary, who was transferred to Lachine with her family prior to the expiry of her term of office.

A short play, "What Goes on in the Making of a Movie," was presented by Mrs. T. O'Byrne, Mrs. Hal Knight, Mrs. R. R. Murray, Mrs. M. Willard, Mrs. Les Schunk, Mrs. W. Dorval, Mrs. R. McNair and Miss Agnes Ward.

The meeting concluded with a fashion show presenting work of designer and demonstrator Mrs. T. O'Byrne, whose Arts and Crafts sewing class will commence shortly, at her home, 12 Front St. Models were: Mrs. R. B. Murray, Miss Agnes Ward and Mrs. O'Byrne.

BROCKVILLE MAN HURT

OSHAWA (CP) — Albert Spies, 30, of Brockville, was severely injured here Tuesday when he fell 14 feet from a scaffold at the new General Motors plant. It is believed that a truck brushed the scaffolding upon which Spies was working. He suffered severe concussion and his condition later was described by hospital authorities as critical.

McGill Holds Founder's Day

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill University Tuesday marked the 206th anniversary of its founder's birth by conferring three honorary degrees and 198 course degrees.

In a separate ceremony, chancellor B. C. Gardner presided at the official opening of a $1,500,000 extension to the university's Redpath Library.

Receiving the honorary degrees were:

Sir James Chadwick, master of Caius College, Cambridge, discoverer of the neutron and former student of one of McGill's most famous professors, Lord Rutherford.

R. K. Sandwell, former editor-in-chief for almost 20 years of Saturday Night, Toronto, and for four years a McGill assistant professor.

Joseph Omer Asselin, chairman of Montreal's executive committee since 1940.

GOES BACK TO PARENTS

TORONTO (CP)—A seven-year-old Oshawa girl, made a ward of the Children's Aid Society last April after her father gave her a severe spanking, Tuesday was ordered returned to her parents. The Ontario Court of Appeal announced it found no evidence of neglect. The father later was convicted of assault occasioning bodily harm.

Wage Demands May Mean Hike In Bus Fares

TORONTO (CP) — New wage proposals by the Toronto Transportation Commission will probably mean a fare increase for street car and bus riders if they are accepted by the 4,300-member local of the Street Railway Employees' Union (AFL-TLC).

The proposals range from seven to 22 cents an hour, H. C. Patten, former general manager, said during a contract deadlock which sent the workers on strike for 19 days in January, 1952, that any increase over the $1.45 won by operators at that time "would certainly mean higher fares."

It was believed any increase would mean a 10-cent fare. Tickets now are three for a quarter.

However, W. E. P. Duncan, general manager of the commission, said there will be no increase in fares this year.

Prime Minister And George Drew Launch Drive

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent and Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, both got something off their chests Tuesday at a stag meeting.

They climbed into a mobile unit in front of the peace tower and, to launch a free anti-tuberculosis x-ray campaign, were themselves examined.

The campaign is being sponsored by a group of service clubs and the Ottawa branch of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association. It is the first of its kind since thousands of civil servants were thus x-rayed in 1949.

ATTRACTIVE PROBLEM

VANCOUVER (CP)—Advent of the strapless evening gown presented a problem to florists, said Victor Stein of San Francisco visiting here. "When there's nothing to pin a corsage to, we tell the girls to wear the flowers in their hair," he said.

Weddings

MUNROE—BRUYEA

St. Michael the Archangel Church, Belleville, was the setting of a pretty autumn wedding on Monday, September 28, at 10:00 a.m., when Joan Marjorie Bruyea, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bruyea, became the bride of John Philip Munroe, of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, son of Mrs. Frank Munroe and the late Mr. Munroe. The Rev. Father Brennan officiated.

Miss Dorothy Grant provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist Mr. Edward Brown, who sang, "Ave Maria" and "Mother Beloved," and "Panis Angelicus."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her gown of white Chantilly lace over slipper satin, with crinoline effect. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a halo band of matching satin. She carried a hand bouquet of white gardenias, and yellow feathered mum petals.

Miss Lorette Bruyea, of Belleville, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was gowned in shrimp nylon net over taffeta, with matching headscarf, while Miss Lillian Anne Bruyea, as senior bridesmaid, and Miss Mary Bruyea as junior bridesmaid, sisters of the bride, the former in blue nylon net over taffeta, and the latter in dotted Swiss in Buttercup yellow in crinoline effect with headdress of bronze 'mums and matching tulle, and carrying a hand bouquet of bronze 'mums. The maid of honor and senior bridesmaid carried nosegays of orchid poms, pandas, statice, delphiniums in shades of orchid-purple and blue.

Mr. Robert Green of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Paul J. Bruyea, brother of the bride, and John Hutchinson, both of Belleville, acted as ushers.

The wedding reception was held at Golden Ace Inn, Kingston Road.

The bride's mother received wearing imported laveta in lacrene wine shade, accented with black velvet and corsage of yellow roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted, gowned in Genoa green satin outlined with filagree motif in black silk—Her corsage was of red carnations.

For the wedding trip to Quebec and New York, the bride chose a light blue wool dress with travel coat of Linton homespun tweed in shades of mixed grey and cream. Mr. and Mrs. Munroe will reside in Nepanee.

Guests were present from Toronto, Oshawa, Campbellford, Madoc, Trenton, Lessington and Chicago, Illinois.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a kitchen shower given by Mrs. Douglas Green, of Belleville.

REID—ELY

Tall standards of pastel tinted gladioli interspersed with ferns adorned the chancel rail and altar of Christ Church, Bellefille, on Saturday, September 26, at 12:00 p.m., when Betty Marjory Ely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ely, became the bride of Carman Aubrey Reid, R.R. 3, Belleville, son of Mrs. Gerald Reid, and the late Mr. Reid. Rev. Everett Smith officiated.

Mr. John Croyden Withers, church organist, rendered traditional wedding music and accompanied the junior choir boys, who sang before the ceremony and during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her ballerina-length gown of white satin with net overskirt and redingote of Chantilly lace and nylon net. An orange blossom halo held her fingertip veil. She carried yellow Sweetheart roses erected on a white Bible with tiny yellow rosebuds on cascading satin ribbons.

Mrs. Glenn Young, niece of the bride, was matron of honor, wearing a yellow strapless gown of nylon net over taffeta with lace jacket and matching satin and wearing yellow feathered headdress.

Mrs. Fred Hosking was bridesmaid, wearing nile green, fashioned similar to the matron of honor. Both carried semi-cascade bouquets of deep purple asters.

Mr. Parkyn Richardson, Belleville, attended the bridegroom, while Mr. Jim MacDonald, Jr., of Belleville, and Mr. Doug Reid of Tweed, were ushers.

At the wedding reception which was held at the Golden Acre Inn the brides' mother received the guests wearing royal blue crepe and nylon net with navy accessories and shoulder corsage of pink Delight roses. The bridegroom's mother assisted wearing navy crepe and pink accessories with shoulder corsage of pink Delight roses.

For the wedding trip to New York State and other points in Pennsylvania, the bride chose a navy blue suit with red accessories and a corsage of red carnations. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Reid will reside at R.R. 9, Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was honored by a shower given by Mrs. Glenn Young and Mrs. Fred Hosking, when she received many lovely and useful gifts.

Women Adept At Fly-Tying In Institution

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Fly-tying has become one of the most popular rehabilitation courses for women at the Newfoundland provincial sanatorium here.

Until a few years ago the same course was offered to men. They found they could not tie enough flies to support a family so they let it drop.

For the women, authorities say, fly-tying will become an important adjunct to earning capacity. They will be able to add to the family income by practising the trade in their spare time.

Ethel Nortall, in charge of occupational therapy, and her staff gave up one night a week to study fly-tying so they could teach others.

They taught the craft to a group of 10 patients, most of whom are still in the institution. Unable to take advantage of their training to earn dollars while in the sanatorium, they still find it an excellent means of passing the long hours.

"It's wonderful waking up and finding there's something for your hands to do," said one patient. "It's not only wonderful, it's everything."

Rev. A. M. Laverty Addresses Collegiate H-S Association

"Education for Citizenship" was the subject chosen by Rev. A. M. Laverty, chaplain of Queen's University, when he addressed the Collegiate Home and School Association at the first meeting of the season.

Mrs. R. O'Connor presided, and after welcoming the parents, asked Mr. J. Musgrove to introduce the guest speaker.

Good Citizenship Training

Mr. Laverty stated that education is the training for good citizenship. "To us, citizenship means freedom for the individual. There is a tendency in the present generation to accept as its right, the freedom bought at a price by our forbears.

"It is the duty of educators to stress the necessity for a sense of responsibility to accompany freedom in the molding of a good citizen. The parent must go hand in hand with the teacher. Self-interest, the disregard for the property of others, the "something for nothing" attitude, are qualities to be shunned by adults lest they become characteristics in our children.

"When we, as parents, realize that we are in partnership with our country's educators, and work in close co-operation with them, then, we can expect that our present generation will understand and enjoy the full rights of free citizenship."

Mr. P. Allcorn expressed the appreciation of all present in his vote of thanks to Mr. Laverty.

Joan Churchill and Jacqueline Avery, accompanied by Cara Butler, delighted the audience as they sang two musical selections.

The teaching staff was introduced by the parents by Mr. George Currie. He paid tribute to the teachers and pointed out the difficulties encountered in ministering to the needs of 1,063 pupils in a school equipped to take care of 850.

Mr. Currie made the gratifying announcement that every pupil from grade eight in Thurlow township was now attending B.C.I.V.S.

After the meeting was adjourned, coffee and doughnuts were served to the parents and teachers.

HANGAR BURNED

STEWART AIR FORCE BASE, N.Y. (AP)—Fire destroyed a maintenance hangar and a single-engined T-6 trainer plane early today at this headquarters of the eastern air defence force. Loss of the hangar and plane was estimated at $150,000.

'Aunt Jennie' 82 And Blind Fine Knitter

HALIFAX (CCP)—"Aunt Jennie" is 82 years old, nearly blind and confined to a wheel chair but she's knitted her way through two world wars and is casting on again for this winter.

In the First World War Jennie Brown of Clementsvale, N.S., was president of the Port Lorne Red Cross group. During the Second World War she was one of the most faithful and efficient knitters.

Last year she turned out 109 pairs of boy's knee socks in addition to many sweaters and pairs of mittens.

So when the Red Cross gave Aunt Jennie her supply of wool for this winter's knitting, they also gave her the Canadian Red Cross badge of service. The Red Cross commissioner of the Nova Scotia division, C. L. Illsley of Halifax, went himself to read the citation that went with the badge.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"How Do You Know When You're In Love?"

When two young people are truly in love with each other, they don't necessarily feel as though they haven't a care in the world. Life is not one rose-colored hour after another, and anyone foolish enough to suggest that it might not always be that way—that occasions may even arise, in years to come, when each would think the other a good deal less than perfect—would be not a complete fool.

That is why I usually view with some degree of skepticism the many letters that come to me starting off with some such statement as this: "I am deeply in love with this fellow and he says he feels the same way about me. But—." And I don't have to go beyond the "But" to be reasonably certain that the writer of the letter is not actually "in love", at all, but simply using the words to express anything from infatuation with the other's blue eyes and smile, like to a very genuine admiration for certain qualities in the young man or young woman that automatically attract those same qualities in them.

For the "But" means that there are doubts and reservations in the mind of the one using the word, and that in the next sentence he or she is going on to say: "My problem, Miss Fairfax, is that I have doubts and reservations and problems very rarely arise in those first early days of being truly "in love"—when each of the two young people thinks the other is the most wonderful, the most desirable the most fascinating person in the entire world. When doubts, reservations and problems do arise, it's time to go into very searching and honest conference with yourself.

Just Human

Don't misunderstand me now. Nothing could be sillier than to suggest that people in love don't have problems. But problems have a tendency to pass unrecognized, or to be disregarded, until after the honeymoon, when the first thrills begin to wear off and a husband and wife, however much they really love each other, awaken to the cold hard fact that the person they've married is just another human being, with all a human being's faults and frailties. In the days of courtship and engagement neither party to the happy goings-on is apt to conceive of life as ever being anything but one long joy ride, just so the two of them can be together.

All this is why I am always particularly pleased when a teen-ager has the maturity and good sense to stop and consider whether the emotion felt at the moment for a certain member of the opposite sex is, indeed, love itself. Take the following [illegible]-and-dagger letter, for example:

"I am a girl 15 years old and I like a boy very much but do not know whether I love him or not. Please tell me how you know when you are really in love."

Now, of course, the first thing I would say to this girl is that her age is one excellent reason for believing that what she feels for this boy is not love, but merely an attraction likely to pass in not too long a time. For at 15, it is virtually impossible to understand that love is not one simply emotional reaction, but a composite of more things than the teen-ager stops to think about when she falls for a boy. To know when you are actually in love is, first, to realize fully this composite nature of the emotion and, second, to be sure that your heart and mind are in accord with each of the items that compose it.

Among these items are such questions as these: "Do you and this other person like the same sort of people?" "Are the things that you like about him—or her—fundamental qualities like honesty, sincerity, friendliness, loyalty, etc., or superficial ones like good looks, social prestige, an agreeable manner, an entertaining line?" "Do you agree on what is and what is not important in life, or haven't you bothered to find out?" "Could you depend on him in any kind of emergency?" "Do you have many of the same interests, so that there is real comradeship between you?" "Does his attitude toward you make you always feel perfectly happy and secure?"

These are only a few of the things to which a person should be able to answer "Yes" with certainty before he or she can possibly know whether or not they are in love. But they're enough to begin on.

Special-Purpose Menu

By Mary Moore

Later on you will hear more about the cooking school at which I was commentator. Some of the fun and cakes in the home baking contest will be featured here later.

What I have today for you is a crushed pineapple pie that was an entry in the contest and which appealed to me especially. The lady who baked it was kind enough to write out the recipe so I used it for the dessert for today's menu.

In August I gave you a recipe for Princess of Chicken with Dumplings and have a request from Mrs. Frank M. to repeat it. I also have a letter from "Jim's Wife" saying she would like to see a chicken recipe every week.

By the way this would make a pretty fair Thanksgiving dinner menu, however I'm giving you a hang-up menu for Thanksgiving Dinner tomorrow.

Crushed Pineapple Pie Coffee

Princess of Chicken With Dumplings

Singe, wash, dress and cut up a 5-lb boiling fowl into serving pieces. Put in stewing kettle, cover with 2 cups boiling water, and add 1 sliced onion, 1-2 cup cut celery leaves and stalks and 1-4 cup chopped parsley. Cover and simmer gently until tender—about 3 hours. Fifteen minutes before chicken is done add 2 teaspoons salt. Remove chicken to hot platter when tender and keep warm. Strain the stock and add to 3 cups of it a flour and water paste made of 6 tablespoons flour and 1-2 cup cold water until thick. Simmer do not boil. Now add

Fluffy Dumplings

Sift bread flour and measure 1 cup and sift it with 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt and cut into them 1-2 tablespoon shortening until mixture is fine. Quickly add 1/3 to 1/2 milk that is not cold. Form into into a long smooth roll and cut in thin 1-2 pieces. Quickly drop this on top of simmering chicken gravy, cover at once and boil 15 minutes without lifting lid. Then remove to hot platter and split it to see if it is cooked in the centre. Lift these out with skimmer, arrange around chicken on hot platter. Pass gravy in separate bowl. Don't forget parsley.

Mother's Celery Dish

We like this because my mother made it in our childhood and because you can use up outer celery stalks so effectively or buy outer celery stalks so economically. Cut up outer celery stalks and a few leaves and measure 2 cups and cook them until barely tender in 2-3 cup water—1-2 cup for a single diner. Put in casserole with 2-3 cup cut-up old cheese (we use the hard bits that are no longer pleasant on the table) and 1 cup thin cream or top milk or whole milk. Roll enough crackers fine to make 1 1-3 cups and add 1 tablespoon salt to them, stir 1 cup of them through the mixture and sprinkle remainder on top. Sprinkle top with a little pepper and paprika. BEAUTY

Chest Up For The Beauty Parade

Girls who tag around with their shoulders thrown forward, chests flat and backs rounded need not be surprised if they lack energy. It is not only bad for their bodies, throwing them completely out of form, but is bad for their spirits, because the slumping attitude is the attitude of defeat. Teachers of physical education lament that so many young girls have not the slightest regard for posture. They want to be snappy dressers and look chic but they are defeating their own aims. It is such a little thing to pull up the backbone, keep the chest lifted, tummy tucked in and upward, head balanced. Then you are a Girl Alive, not just a slouchy young person.

Good posture means energy and defeats fatigue. The typist who doesn't sit still develops a good case of four-o'clock-itis. At that time she is so weary that, until five o'clock comes and she can beat it home, the minutes ticking by seem endless.

Without correct stance, movements are likely to be awkward. To have grace the muscles must be resilient, which they are not when the body structure sags.

One should not only stand correctly and walk with grace, but one should also be mindful of what kind of a picture one makes when sitting. The spinal column should be fully extended. Sit well back in the chair, "tenaciously often all" forward, looking as if they were about to take flight. They should learn early in life to take easy poses.

Sitting with the chest in a concave position and the head lowered—a habit with many women who have developed into the most possible way of cultivating a fiddle string neck or a double chin. If these horrors have come upon one, exercises to strengthen the neck and chest muscles are in order. Sponging the flesh with ice cold water is a help as it stimulates circulation and has a tonic effect upon fibers and tissues.

To wear clothes beautifully one should maintain correct posture. Without it, the loveliest frock ever put together is only so much dry goods carried on the feminine frame.

With the chest held high, the breasts are likely to be firm and

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

The Procedure Of A Testimonial Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am the social chairman of a Club that is planning a testimonial dinner. At the dinner there will be toastmaster. Do the officers of the Club sit at the main table with the guest of honor? If so, please tell me the correct seating-arrangement.

2. Is the gift presented to the gentleman for whom the testimonial dinner is being given, before the dinner? Should the President of our club make the presentation, or should the toastmaster?

3. Should the guest of honor's wife be presented with a corsage at the same time the gift is presented to her husband? Also should the President of our club be given a corsage to wear on this occasion?

1. Firse, an important question: In that testimonial dinner to end with a speaking program, even with two or three speakers, there is no need to have a toastmaster. I imagine this is the idea. If so, the best idea is to have a speakers' table, a prominent table on a dais. The guests at this table sit only on the side facing the room. You can show special courtesy to important guests by seating them at the place of this dinner by asking them to sit at this table . . . this does not mean, however, that every one seated at the speakers' table is asked to speak. The toastmaster sits at the middle of this table; the guest of honor sits at his right; and at his left, the President of your club.

You, as the social chairman of your Club, should be seated at this table. If possible, the officers of the Club should be seated at this table also. And the guest of honor's wife should be at this table.

If you and your committee prefer to have a main table, rather than a special table on a dais, the seating arrangement should be as near as possible the same as suggested above.

2. No; the gift is usually not presented before the dinner . . . it's more appropriate and dramatic to give the gift rather as a climax to the dinner. After the dinner, the toastmaster would rise and make a opening speech, as welcome to the guests . . . then he might introduce the President of your club who would make the speech about the man for whom the testimonial dinner is to be given, and speak about the idea and object of the testimonial, and then present the gift.

2. The corsage for the guest of honor's wife should be given to her before the dinner . . . for her to wear during the dinner. And your President should be given her corsage at the same time. Very often these flowers are sent to the home of the honoree, left in the boxes in which they were delivered . . . the name is written on the box, or tag, and the box handed to the woman for whom it is intended.

Canadian Troops Will be Busy In Korea Zone

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian troops will be kept fully occupied in Korea this winter, the new commanding officer of the 1st Commonwealth Division says.

Maj.-Gen. Horatius Murray, who has been making a flying inspection of Canadian military units prior to taking over command of the division in Korea, says his most important task will be keeping his men busy.

"The men must be fully occupied at work or at play—and they will be," the 50-year-old career soldier said in an interview.

Most privates, British and Canadian, were in Korea for adventure, to see the world and so fight he continued. The present truce made the soldier's job difficult. He must be ready for action at a moment's notice—and undergo continuous training.

Gen. Murray, who is succeeding Maj.-Gen. M. Alston-West as head of the division, composed of British, Canadian and Australian troops gave no indication of specific plans he has in mind to keep the men busy during the long Korean winter. He would only say the men will be "kept occupied."

"I don't believe either side will willingly see an end of the truce," he said.

He stressed that he was expressing only his personal impressions and not official policy or views.

The general said he was "extremely impressed" with the little he had seen of Canadian troops since he arrived here to serve under him in Korea. Since arriving in Canada last Tuesday, he had visited three battalions—the 2nd Canadian Rifles, the 2nd Canadian Infantry, and the 2nd Canadian Highlanders—who would be relieving Canadian forces now in the Far East.

POLIO TOLL 73

Quadruplets Born To Grandmother In Australia

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Mrs. Ethel Harbers, a 38-year-old grandmother, gave birth to quadruplets today. The latest set—a boy and three girls—gave her a round dozen children.

Authorities at the Gilgandra hospital, 326 miles northwest of Sydney, said the births were normal and mother and babies were doing well. Arriving over a 24-hour period, the babies weighed between two pounds 13 ounces—the boy—and three pounds 11½.

The family has been living in two tents two miles out of Gilgandra.

"I suppose I'll have to buy an other tent," the father, E. R. Hickson, 40-year-old fencing contractor, said.

But the New South Wales housing minister, Clive Evatt, promised the much-enlarged family a house.

The show will be held at the huge Coliseum Theatre, which houses the smash Broadway musical "Guys and Dolls," based on Runyon's characters.

Russians Blame Canadian Wheat 'Crisis' on U.S.

MOSCOW (CP) — The Russian news agency Tass today blamed what it called "Canada's wheat crisis" on United States influences.

In a dispatch from Ottawa, the agency said Canada has a wheat surplus because of "the overpowering influence of United States financial monopolies in Canada.

"They are putting obstacles in the way of Canadian exports, especially in wheat."

Tass also accused the Liberal government of having concealed the facts of the alleged crisis in the August election, which it said had been deliberately called at a time when the symptoms of "crisis" were not strong.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was late for dinner again, and pop and ma were back in the dining room half ways through and pop said, Well, the late Mr. Pula.

This is almost too much, ma said, I'd say it was getting to be a habit, if it wasn't already a habit, she said, and I said. Well G, ma, heck pop.

Not another werd, pop said. The idea is to sit down and eat your dinner in silty silence, he said, and ma said. You dont need to think you can ease your conscience with a flood of cracked old excuses and then sit down wrapped in a feeling of pious virtue and injured innocence. I've kept your soop warm for you, I don't know why, she said.

And she went and got it, and I drank it, being noodle soop with too mutch soop and not enough noodles, and then I started to eat my hamburgers and stuff, saying I bet I'm the only one here can say they ate 2 dinners tonite.

What's that for land sakes? ma said, and pop said, Would you mind elaborating that observation?

Pud's father and mother went out on an invitation, and I helped Pudcat his dinner to save him from eating it all alone, I said. There was plenty for both of us and even some left over, I said, and ma said, Put down that knife and fork.

You're through, pop said, and I said, Well G, now I've started I mite as well finish. Heck. If I hadn't of told you, I bet you'd never of noticed the difrence, I said.

The result being they wouldn't even let me eat any dinner after I admitted I had 2 kinds with Pudd, being rice pudding his mother left for him, and stewed roobarb and strawberry and bannanas Jello he found in the refrigerator.

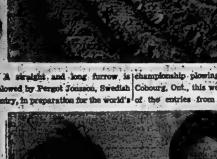
'World Series' of Plowing Matches Held in Ontario



A straight and long furrow is glowed by Fergot Jonsson, Swedish entry, in preparation for the world's championship plowing matches at Cobourg, Ont., this week. He is one of the entries from 11 countries competing in the matches, the "world series" of the farmers'. The matches are expected to draw an audience of 140,000.

If no plowing crown is won by the Norwegian team, they will still have pleasant memories of the event and a camera record of their efforts. From left are Kiljborn Rostrup, interpreter; Olave Nedberg, competitor, and Odd Braut, team manager. Contestants brought their own plows and one Norwegian displayed a 1,700-pound implement made from the armor plates of the German battleship Tirpitz.

Aviation Expert Says Autos Will Be as Rare as Horses Are Today in Next 50 Years

Editor's note: Aviation has come far in 50 years, but where does it go from here? Some of the readers' views of the future came from a man who has figured for industry in the past. That's why The Associated Press asked Alexander De Seversky to tell what he thinks of aviation's place in the next half-century.

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP) — Within 50 years, we'll be flying to the moon in 3½ hours, the skies over the earth will be dark with private helicopters and autos will be as rare as horses are today.

Commercial airliners will fly at 2,000 miles an hour; mail and freight will be shot around the world in pilotless guided missiles, reaching any point in a few hours; and railroads, buses and trucks will disappear as a means of long-distance transportation.

This vision of aviation's future in the next 50 years is held by a man who had much to do with aviation's first 50 years. He is Maj. Alexander P. De Seversky, inventor, designer, pilot and author.

The problem of interplanetary travel, he feels, will be solved by atomic - powered craft, fast rockets. Rockets will not prove practical, he says, because the jet jet cannot control the speed. He would have to start at top speed which is like being shot out of a cannon, and remain at that speed.

Must Start Slowly

An atomic-powered plane, De Seversky says, could be safely controllable speed. It will start slowly — relatively speaking — climbing through the earth's atmosphere at between 1,000 and 2,000 miles an hour. When free of the earth's atmosphere, it will accelerate to a maximum of 120,000 mph about half way to the moon, and then gradually slow down during the second half of the journey. The moon is about 238,000 miles from earth.

"How much travel there will be to the moon and other planets," he says, "depends on what we find there. If those places have natural resources we want, we'll be going back often. If not, they will probably be only a scientific curiosity."

Here are other De Seversky predictions:

Atomic - powered commercial planes will fly around the world in 12 hours at an altitude of about 100,000 feet. When atomic power is perfected, they will be able to go faster, but greater speeds within the earth's atmosphere will only cause the ship to disintegrate.

The trend in the future will be toward smaller commercial planes, carrying an average of 50 passengers. De Seversky does not share the opinion of some experts that future commercial craft will be big enough to house swimming pools and large dining rooms.

"Since it will take less and less time to get from one place to another, there would be little need for such facilities."

Cheap As Autos

Within 10 or 15 years, helicopters will be cheaper than today's lowest price car. This will be accomplished when jets will be used at the ends of the helicopter blades to propel them like a pinwheel. This will remove the present need for relatively expensive transmission power.

Within 20 years, there will be about 20,000,000 helicopters over North America "hopping around like fleas" he adds.

"Probably the helicopter so popular now will be half-size and half-plane.

"Air traffic will be heavy, closely controlled. Radar and other devices are perfected, traffic will be governed by automatic highways. Collisions will be impossible.

"Without the element of human error, pilotless guided missiles, traveling at supersonic speeds will prove not only faster but also a safer, more reliable method of air mail and freight than anything we now have.

"Since we will not have to make provision for human beings," De Seversky believes, "the craft will be uncomplicated. It can be arranged to weather almost any storm. So for example, if it should drop in the ocean, it can be fixed to float indefinitely."

Toronto Trucker Committed For Trial for Manslaughter

MORRISBURG (CP) — Max Roodman, a 40-year-old Toronto trucker, was committed Tuesday for trial on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the July 31 highway accident near here in which he was jammed into the Williamsburg canal, drowning 30 passengers.

Condition Claim

Roodman was charged specifically with the killing of Lorne Chesebrough of Seaman John Panya, 22, of Churchill, Man., one of the 33 on the Colonial Coach Lines bus when it hurtled into the canal after hitting Roodman's truck on Highway No. 2, two miles west of here.

Roodman's case is scheduled to begin Oct. 20 in Cornwall Supreme Court assizes at Cornwall. His bail of $1,000 cash was continued.

Another Hearing Opens

Preliminary hearing of a similar charge against Lorne Chesebrough of Kingston, the 29-year-old driver of the bus, is to open today.

Mervyn Burleigh of Smiths Falls, bus transport driver, testified Tuesday that he had been forced to reverse off the highway early on the morning of July 31 to avoid Roodman's unlighted truck only minutes before the fatal crash.

He said Roodman's vehicle was "neither standing still nor moving" when he saw it. He said it just seemed to move "in fits and starts."

He told the court how he parked nearby and lay down in his transport to sleep. A few minutes later he heard the bus go by and then heard a great crash.

"I raised up in time to see the bus going down the embankment into the canal. It seemed to settle conservwise and then turned over on its side and sank."

Burleigh said he helped pull passengers from the water and assisted bus driver Chesebrough up the bank.

Condition Claim

Ray Eason, a garage mechanic from Newcastle, 12 miles east of Oshawa, Ont., testified he was on Roodman's truck on the afternoon of July 30. He said the general condition of the vehicle was poor.

Constable Ray McClure of the Ontario provincial department said he detained Roodman at Brockville on the night of July 30 because the trucker could not give a satisfactory explanation for damage to the truck's vehicle.

McClure said that as far as he knew the rear lights on Roodman's truck were working when he left the Brockville police station about 11:40 p.m. on that night.

Terrance Sumner of Toronto, a truck driver, told of the collision as it speed at "about 45 miles an hour" before the accident.

He said he was seated on the side at the emergency door and was looking when the bus hit the truck.

"I heard a noise and the next thing I knew I was on the floor in the aisle after slamming my head against the door," he said.

He said he felt liquid all around him and thought at first it was oil. Then he realized the bus was in the canal. He was hazy about getting out.

Ann Rutherford Wed Without Hat To TV Executive

NEW YORK (AP)—Toronto-born actress Ann Rutherford lost her bridal hat today when she married broadcast to television executive William Dozier.

Municipal court justice Jenkin R. Beckett performed the ceremony in Dozier's Manhattan apartment. Among the 50 to 75 present was Miss Rutherford's daughter by a previous marriage, Gloria. It was her ninth birthday.

The bride left her small, veiled cocktail hat in a taxi on the way to the ceremony. She wore a dress of ice blue satin.

Miss Dozier formerly was married to actress Joan Fontaine. Miss Rutherford is 33 and Dozier 45.

Three Injured In Car Crash On Peace Bridge

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — U. S. customs officials reported Tuesday night two automobiles owned by prominent persons collided headon just at the International boundary on the Peace Bridge.

Three persons were injured, none seriously.

Seymour H. Knox, chairman of the board of the Marine Trust Co., was a passenger and owner of one of the cars. He was shaken up.

Mrs. Eleanor Bardol, a member of the Bardol family which has extensive real estate holdings here was driving the other. She suffered a mouth injury.

Also hurt was Lois Bazmalo of Brazil, a passenger in the Knox car, and Donald Anderson, Knox's chauffeur.

Crude Petroleum May be Exported In Few Years

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP)—Canada may be in a position to export crude petroleum within a few years," the Dominion's public works minister Winters said Tuesday.

Robert Winters, who recently switched his portfolio from the department of resources and development, made the statement in a speech prepared for the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Tracing the development of Canada's natural resources, he said discovery of new oil fields in Alberta in 1947 has led to large-scale exploration and is not considering any kind of non-aggression assurance other than one concerned with Germany. A guarantee regarding Korea and Austria as future possibilities if the Kremlin shows any interest.

Dulles then deflated talk of some general non-aggression pact or system about which there has been considerable recent wishful.

He pointed out that Russia, and the U.S., and its allies are members of the United Nations and that the UN charter, with its renunciation of the use of force, makes the best possible non-aggression treaty.

But, Dulles added, defeated Germany is not a member of the UN and so it was thought that some means might be found to cover Germany by guarantees similar to those of the UN charter.

After months of delay, France is expected to ratify by early next week a treaty establishing the six-nation European Defence Community were developed specifically to defeat such a Russian purpose.

A rearmed West Germany thus would presumably be viewed by the Kremlin as a threat to Russia's aggressive designs. To the extent that this may be true, the directors of Soviet communism would find little of real interest in pledges of Germany's future good behavior.

Armament Plans Highlight Proposed Guarantees To Russia Against Aggression

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proposals for giving Russia guarantees against possible new German aggression are most likely to come to a head in concluding plans to arm West Germany.

No one here knows whether such assurances would make German arming in the Western alliance any more acceptable to Russia. Many diplomats doubt that it would.

Nevertheless, since the Western powers now seem determined to go ahead with the German project, and since Russia is bitterly opposed, many feel the idea of a non-aggression guarantee is at least worth a try.

Another circumstance under which Russia could likely get Western assurances of Germany's future peaceful behavior would be in the event a German unification plan and peace treaty were concluded. In fact, some officials advocate offering a non-aggression guarantee only as part of package deal with Russia on Germany.

State Secretary Dulles told a press conference here Tuesday that "the general problem of giving reassurance against the possible resurgence of German aggression is a matter which is being studied" by the United States in consultation with the British, French and West German governments.

Taken Back in Party

VANCOUVER (CP) — Archie Waugh, campaign agent for Health Minister Eric Martin in this year's provincial election, has been reinstated to full membership in the Vancouver-Burrard Social Credit Association from which he was expelled Sept. 8.

The action was taken at the association's annual meeting Monday night.

Mr. Waugh had been expelled by the constituency association's president, James Wardrop, on grounds that he "acted against the interests of the Social Credit movement."

Sentenced to Die, Shows No Concern

Former Egyptian prime minister Ahmed Hafi, IV nochalantly lights a cigarette, waiting for a car to take him to jail following his conviction by Nagub's military tribunal. He was found guilty of treason, corruption and abuse of power and was sentenced to death by hanging, with confiscation of property. Later, his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.—Central Press Canadian.

strength as a part of an anti-Communist alliance committed to the defence of western Europe.

Some kind of treaty guarantee against the use of that power for a new aggression in future years might have an appeal to the Russians.

Dulles said both Russians and French are entitled to reassurance of this kind that the German want to give it. He thus suggested a receptive attitude in Europe toward providing guarantees.

Another side of the story, however, was suggested by President Eisenhower's speech Tuesday at Atlantic City. He said Russia is bent upon world domination. The North Atlantic alliance and the proposed European Defence Community were developed specifically to defeat such a Russian purpose.

Reds' Charge UN Delaying Explanations to Prisoners Is Promptly Given Denial

By MILO FARNETT

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists today accused the United Nations command of stalling the start of explanations to war prisoners who refuse to go home, and demanded an extension of the time limit.

The UN command flatly turned down the demand for more time and denied responsibility for the delay.

Allied and Communist teams were to begin meeting Sept. 25 with the prisoners in an attempt to persuade them to return home. Allied officers have 339 PoWs, including 23 Americans and one Briton, to interview, while the Red agents will talk to some 22,500 North Koreans and Chinese.

Deem 30 Is Deadline

A dispute over facilities stalled the start of the interviews. The Allies insist the armistice agreement clearly spells out that the explanation period must end Dec. 24, regardless of delays. The Indian chairman of the neutral nations repatriation commission Tuesday said he agrees with UN stand, so there now are indications that the interviews will get under way next week, provided the Allies furnish temporary explanation facilities.

The Reds made the demand at a meeting of the Korean armistice commission and also:

1. Protested the "public clamor" in South Korea for South Korean troops to drive into the neutral zone and free the anti-Communist PoWs.

2. Charged that the UN command is sending "special agents" into the demilitarized zone to make contact with the prisoners and "compel" the neutral nations repatriation commission which has custody of the PoWs. The UN command denied the accusation.

The senior Red delegate to the armistice commission, North Korean Maj.-Gen. Lee Sang Cho, said the attack by the South Koreans would "have serious consequences."

He asked Maj.-Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, his UN commission counterpart, what the UN command is doing to prevent a South Korean show of force.

Understand Duties

"Our side," Bryan replied coldly, "understands its responsibilities with regard to maintaining security and order . . . (and) . . . will discharge its responsibility."

The chairman of the repatriation commission, Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, sent a note to the UN command protesting the South Korean threats.

He said he wished to remind the Allied command that it had the responsibility to "insure security and peace" in areas under its control.

Meanwhile, thousands of South Koreans demonstrated today in the port city of Pusan against "Indian slaughter of non-repatriate prisoners."

WORKERS LAID OFF

STRATFORD (CP)—D. E. Mac-Kinnon, superintendent of the Canadian National Railways' motive power shops here, said today an additional 38 men will be laid off Friday. Forty-seven were laid off last week.

The layoff is attributed to a slump in grain shipments.

Police Capture Man Wanted For Abduction

BARAGA, Mich. (AP) — Police Tuesday captured a 40-year-old man wanted for questioning in the abduction of a 15-year-old girl.

Jack Shelton was seized in his car parked in a field on the outskirts of Baraga.

Police said the 15-year-old girl, Betty Bailey, and her 16-year-old cousin Jack Bailey were with Shelton when he surrendered. Police said Shelton, an ex-convict, offered no resistance.

Authorities said they would return Shelton, the girl, and her cousin to Crandon, Wis.

The girl, police said, denied she had been abducted and stated that she had accompanied Shelton and her cousin "willingly."

District attorney Edward Schenk of Forest County, Wis., however, said he has asked for a warrant against Shelton charging the ex-convict with abduction.

Old Ice Boxes To Be Destroyed By Street Dept.

TORONTO (CP)—This city is joining London, Windsor and St. Catharines in a clean-up of abandoned iceboxes which became death traps for almost a score of children in Canada and the United States in the last two months.

City officials ordered the street cleaning department to pick up discarded iceboxes today and destroy them.

Two Windsor children died last week when they crawled into an unused icebox and the door slammed behind them.

Potential Oil Fields in Canada Just Scratched

ARVIDA, Que. (CP) — Canada has barely scratched the surface of her potential oil fields, H. T. O'Neill of Toronto said Tuesday night.

Mr. O'Neill, vice-president and treasurer of British American Oil Co. Ltd., addressed the Saguenay branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada here.

He declared that Canada, from her oil, natural gas, hydro-electric power, coal and uranium, can make any country in the world in energy—the stuff that makes for progress and higher standards of living.

In oil, he said western Canada's known reserves are approximately 2,000,000,000 barrels, 50 times what they were in 1947, and every year more fields have been found.

'Human Factor' Greatest Cause Of Accidents

PICTON — Automobile accidents cost Canadians more than $6,00 per second every day last year, R. W. Harris of the All Canada Insurance Federations told members of the Picton Kiwanis Club here Monday.

Speaking on behalf of more than 500 fire, automobile and casualty insurance companies, Mr. Harris named increases in the number of accidents, higher repair costs and more frequent court judgments in recognition of costlier medical care as the major factors governing automobile insurance rates.

"An indication of how serious these factors are affecting insurance rates is the fact that claims rose to $78,000,000 during 1949, an increase of $10,000,000 in one year," Mr. Harris said.

"In fact, many companies are losing money on automobile insurance —lost your automobile insurance premium? Well, you're not the $6,000,000," he said.

Mr. Harris said that the average annual underwriting profit for all types of insurance, on a premium earned basis for insurance companies in Canada is less than one per cent, but during the past 30 years in automobile accidents.

Human Factor Blamed

Blaming the "human factor", or the driver, as the greatest single cause of traffic difficulties — and not bad roads, poor driving conditions or mechanical failings — Mr. Harris contended that insurance rates would not decrease until more drivers became aware of the fact that they collectively establish rate levels through their driving records and then, realizing this, exercise more care.

"Four violations," Mr. Harris said, "were responsible for nearly 70 per cent of last year's traffic deaths. Naming them as speeding, driving on the wrong side of the road, drinking and driving and ignoring the right of way of others. "If drivers will stop these offences to any appreciable extent, automobile accidents — and then insurance rates — will drop," he stated.

TIMELY STRIP-TEASE

BRISTOL, England (Reuters)—Scarcely tyrist Margaret Parker, 18, stripped down to her briefs in full view of a busy street, dived into Bristol harbor and rescued a nine-year-old girl who had toppled off the dock wall. Margaret said Tuesday: "All the other girls in my office ask how it feels to do a strip-tease in the open. But I was only thinking of the girl in the water. The blushes came later."

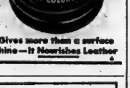
PICTON

Council Thanks H. J. McFarland For Generosity

PICTON—Few, if any towns are as fortunate in their mayors as is the town of Picton. In their Chief Magistrate they have a contractor in the person of Harvey J. McFarland. On a great many occasions he has made gifts to the town and town and county organizations. Standing as a memorial to his generosity are several newly-paved streets. Adding to the paving done by the town this year, he has given additional streets and connecting links at an expenditure of $21,800 at no cost to the town. This compares to $21,000 which he gave in free paving last year.

In addition, at council meeting Monday night, the Mayor revealed that he was not charging the town for repairs to the town bulldozer which his firm overhauled and repaired at a cost of $1,500.00. He also announced that he had purchased three cantilon hitches, which will be erected at busy intersections, and if the Department of Highways approves, he is donating a traffic light.



Reeve H. S. Colliver expressed the appreciation of the council and the ratepayers of the town to Mayor McFarland. As a result of the Mayor's generosity, the town streets are in the best condition in many years, he said.

Plans Completed

Plans for a campaign in Prince Edward County to raise $12,000 for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, were completed at a meeting of Prince Edward Advisory Board, Monday night. Barry Anderson and Phil Dodds were named joint chairmen of the campaign, which will be in the form of a blitz on November 3. Of the objective, $2,000 will be for use among the 32 blind persons in Prince Edward and the remainder to assist with construction of the Quinte-St. Lawrence Home and Service Centre at Kingston.

President Colin Carter conducted the meeting and needs of the CNIB were outlined by P. I. Tinmiss and D. B. Lawley of the Institute.

Most young parents spend considerable time thinking about finding the perfect baby sitter...But sometimes in expressing the utmost from the sitter we forget that we owe a certain amount of consideration to the person who plays lifeguard of parties parent. How to make a good sitter want to play a repeat performance? A snack at night is always welcome. When you set it time limit, try not to abuse it. Outline sitter's duties and don't scold her for neglect when you've to blame. And a lot of praise makes any job more desirable.

India Asks U.S. To Prevent RoK Interference

NEW DELHI (AP)—Reliable sources today said the Indian government has asked the United States through diplomatic channels to prevent South Korea from interfering with the work of the Korean prisoner repatriation commission.

South Korean leaders have threatened to use force to free anti-Communist North Korean and Chinese prisoners now held in the neutral zone under Indian guards. The threats were voiced after the guards killed and wounded a number of the prisoners during riots.

Foreign office officials, it was understood, expressed grave concern over the South Korean activities during a visit to the foreign ministry by U. S. ambassador George Allen.

One source said the Indian officials emphasized that the small number of Indian custodial troops in Korea, armed with only sidearms, are sandwiched between powerful UN and Communist forces. A clash between the South Korean and Indian forces, they asserted, "would result in embittered relations between the United States and India for years to come."

Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, commanderUr of the Indian forces in Korea, met correspondents at Panmunjom Tuesday that the UN command must head off any South Korean troops that might try to attack Indian troops in the demilitarized zone. He said his forces also could call on the Communist troops in Korea for protection.

Reliable sources in New Delhi said the Indian government had brought up the question of possible preventive action by the U. S. because of a genuine fear that the South Koreans might attempt to free by force the prisoners now awaiting repatriation examinations.

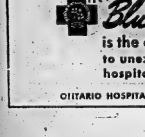
Churchill Said Considering Direct Approach to Malenkov

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill is considering arranging a top-level four-power meeting, despite reluctance in some quarters.

This was taken to refer to United States dislike of the proposal.



One of the main objects of such a move by Churchill, which might mean an air trip to Moscow, would be to explore the prospects for an eventual meeting of the Big Four —Malenkov, President Eisenhower, Premier Joseph Laniel of France and himself.

Diplomatic quarters have expressed the view that the U. S. would have no objections to Churchill's arranging a personal meeting with Soviet leaders.

Quebec Groups Protest Change In Freight Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebec business organizations has protested a major section of the board of transport commissioners' freight rate equalization program.

At a hearing on equalization, they took issue with the board's decision to wipe out special "blanket" rates covering a large area of Ontario and Quebec.

The move was challenged in a brief submitted by the Montreal District Chamber of Commerce, supported by the Quebec Province Chamber and the Board of Trade of Quebec City.

Under the rates which the Quebec bodies want to retain, a large amount of rail traffic moves between points in the West and a large triangle with Montreal, Sudbury and Windsor at its points. Traffic into and out of the triangle is carried at the same rates.

Has Ordered Change

The board, in an order to take effect Jan. 1, 1955, has ordered that class (ceiling) rates should be based on mileage and such groupings of rates for a big territory should be eliminated.

The Quebec organizations declared in a brief that the Ontario-Quebec group rates are "in complete harmony with the science of rate-making" and it would be "untimely" to integrate them into a uniform scale.

Further, the Chambers questioned the power of the board to wipe out the group rates, arguing that they are "competitive" rates and hence specifically exempted by Parliament from equalization. Competitive rates are those that have been lowered to meet competition.

Supreme Court Restores $284,631 In Back Taxes

OTTAWA (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada has restored $284,631 in 1947 assessments against two companies for excess profits taxation.

The court upheld the appeal of the national revenue department and overturned the decision of Mr. Justice J. C. A. Cameron of the Exchequer Court of Canada. Mr. Justice Patrick Kerwin and J. R. Cartwright dissented from the Supreme Court judgment.

Assessment of $138,454 was restored against Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company of Toronto and Kapuskasing, Ont., and assessment of $96,177 against James Maclaren Co. Ltd. of Buckingham, Que.

Spruce Falls claimed 46.36 per cent of its 1947 profits were derived from logging and that therefore 46.36 per cent of its total assessment could be deducted for purposes of the excess profits tax.

The revenue department contended that profits could not be divided for purposes of taxing excess profits. The Supreme Court upheld this view.

Six Countries Hit U.S. Curbs On Dairy Imports

GENEVA (Reuters)—American restrictions on dairy imports have come under fire from six Western nations, it was learned today.

The attack came at a closed session of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, in reply, the United States pointed out that an unexpected increase in domestic dairy production has over-stocked the nation's larder and produced a "critical situation."

American delegate Winthrop Brown defended his country's tariff policy against complaints from Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Sweden, Denmark and the Netherlands. Spokesmen of these countries claimed the protectionist U. S. policy was damaging their home economies and threatening the entire structure of GATT.

The body was moved to the city hall to lie in state until the funeral. The black beret that was Reuter's trademark rests on top of the casket. For five years Reuter was the spearhead of anti-Communist forces, though at one time he was a member of the Communist party. —Central Press Canadian.

Further Shuffle Made In Republic of Georgia

LONDON (AP)—A further reshuffle was announced today in the government of the Soviet Republic of Georgia. The changes involved production of food and consumer goods, fields which the Soviet Union is espousing to give its people a better standard of living.

A Russian broadcast heard here said the Georgian council of ministers has released "Comrade Tsitkiauri" as minister for food and light industry and "Comrade Alavidze" as first deputy minister of agriculture.

India Is Called Common Enemy Of Free People

SEOUL (AP)—The chairman of South Korea's National Assembly, P. H. Shinckey, Tuesday called India the "common enemy of the free-loving people" and told the Indians to get out of Korea.

Shinckey's bitter attack followed the killing of three anti-Communist Korean and Chinese prisoners by Indian guards who broke up two demonstrations last week.

The Indians are guarding war prisoners who have refused to go home pending a final decision on their fate.

Shinckey, speaking to a crowd of Koreans, said "We cannot but be horrified and shocked at the news that the Indian armed forces have killed the people opposing communism."

Must Get Out

"India is the common enemy of the freedom-loving people and the Indians must get out of Korea.

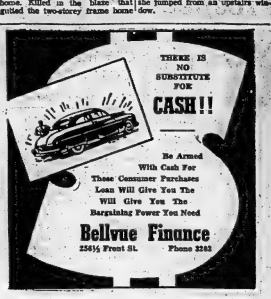
"India is disillusioned that she can handle the Asiatic and world problems. But she must realize the fact that she is acting only as a running dog of the British imperialists."

Thousands of Koreans staged an anti-Indian demonstration in Seoul today, demanding the immediate withdrawal of Indian custodial forces.

India "Concerned"

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — The Indian government was pictured Tuesday as "concerned" at recent South Korean threats against the Indian war prisoners' supervisory team, but unwilling to intervene at this stage.

"At present we feel this is not a matter between our government and that of South Korea, no matter what charges are levelled against us," an official spokesman said.



"It is purely a matter between the neutral nations repatriation commission and the two commands, United Nations and North Korea, which brought the commission into being."

"The fact that threats have been made is not going to provoke us into similar statements. We are too accustomed to tough talk and sabre-rattling."

Indian newspapers have been critical about the position in which Indian repatriation troops find themselves. The Times of India said Sunday the United Nations should realize there is a limit to Indian endurance in Korea.

Prospects For Toppling Yankees, Dodgers In 1954 Do Not Appear Bright

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carter, Sports Editor

WELLINGTON — Three times since General Kraiz's steam-batted Boers picked off the rootsacks at Bloemfontein and the Modder River, at the turn of the century, have the worn-but-unbowed followers of this tinder-bordered community gone nearly one hundred percent sports-minded.

The first episode was in or about 1908 or 1910 when Knotty Lee, Curly Ross, Toronto baseball impresarios, plus an assortment of Yankee professional ballplayers, rainbowed teams from Wellington, Bloomfield, Picton, Demorestville, Frankford, etc. in one of the hottest loops in this part of Ontario.

"Them were the days" when they left the wooden sidewalks out all night. The counter factories closed so did the shoes and the village constituted a strike holiday whenever an invader team entered the village confines.

Excitement reached fever heat. When Johnny McMahon, the village butcher, who at one time was the only local player on the team would get a hit his father would gallop down the third base line with him shouting "Run, Johnny, Run. I've got five hundred on you."

Fist fights and arguments colored the games, especially in the ranks of the rival spectators. Bloomfield was the archrival and both villages became "Sweet Auburns" when the home team was playing away.

The canning town had such diamond luminaries as Harry Hamilton, bank manager; Roy Stewart, Jack Eaton, "Ikey" Bowerman, Del Steenburg, Ike Marsden (the "Indian"), the Kenfield boys, Frank and their peg-leg trousers, and others. "Toby" Arkett got in later.

The second sports era that sparked the villagers into supporting action came in the late twenties and early thirties. The time when the Bay of Quinte Baseball League, in the County Hockey League, were offshoots of a "bridesmaid but never a bride," insofar as the county title was concerned. They were amateurs in the strictest sense of the word with each player buying his own equipment. True they were a mediocre pair for the first season or two but they had the spirit and the will to win that rides a bobsleigh in a blinding snowstorm a distance of eleven miles, reaches the sixth mile, then piles out and trudges the rest of the distance to the Picton arena carrying its equipment, and something more than money at stake.

And the village fans "chartered other bobsleighs" and made the snow-blinding safari with them. The team had no crests. The practicing was done on the broad expanses of Lake Ontario when it froze. And the villages, or when it moved the boys, like "Beef" MacDonald, "Flathead" Gibson, Jakie Steen, "Gaspipe" Noble and others grabbed shovels and scraped and cleared off sufficient space.

But the crowning achievement of the village's sporting endeavors came in the year it baseball and softball.

Three shining feathers should go into the sports cap of these loyal, friendly people. For not only did they produce several outstanding teams but when the curtain rang down on the season's efforts, the district championship had come their way, and two senior baseball teams had reached the provincial championship series.

The feat that both those squads went down to a close defeat does not detract from the fine sporting spirit of the players, their managements and the village itself. And proud, justifiable boast is that they represent the first community in Prince Edward County to send senior representation to the provincial championships.

Johnny Mowatt, a comparative newcomer to the village; Jack Ogilvy, war veteran and purveyor of milk and cream; "Doc" Post, tonsorial artist; "Dutch" Ainsworth, mortician, and others practically started from scratch.

They worked together a year of raw, untried baseball rawness, augmented them with a couple of "imports from Bloomfield, and went to work.

Under the coaching genius of Mowatt, the teams gradually formed shape. A juvenile "C" team and a bantam squad came into being. Both teams were entered in district competition.

Not to be outdone by their male counterparts, the feminine youth and beauty of the village swept into diamond fame developed by the county, went on to win the district title, at the expense of the runners-up from Picton, the McFarland Maids.

Meanwhile, the juveniles, rounding into a powerful whole, were whipping the best the district could produce. They defeated teams from Picton, Napanee and Belleville, to win the title in their classification. They bowed to the strong Trenton team, a juvenile "A" squad, in the loop finals.

But, along with their bantam little brothers, the juveniles went on to win the eastern and central Ontario championships. They went down to defeat in the provincial championship series before the starry Dresden squad. And with all velvet flying like fighting hackles bowed to the Kingsville youngsters in a 6-3 "sudden-death" "finalar game in Brantford last Saturday.

And the stout villagers stood behind their teams throughout the long season. From Kerwin Jim Glennimon down to the moppets, the zood folk backed their teams with effort, time and money. Some $200 was taken in a "tightwad collection" to finance the team on a championship stint. Parties, etc., were held to help "pay the shot." It was an outstanding example of a fine community spirit.

We, in this district, "could do" with a few more "Wellingtons."

Jockey, Trainer Out for Year

TORONTO (CP) — Apprentice jockey George Wardrope and trainer Tommy A. Butler were ruled off for one year by the Ontario racing commission following a hearing Tuesday dealing with charges made against them by the stewards during the Woodbine meeting.

Robert W. Greenwood, owner of the horse Boulga, suspended by the stewards at the time, was absolved of any connection with the case and was restored to good standing.

Wardrope was found possessing a crooked nail when he went to the post on Boulga for a distance race at Woodbine. Butler ordered the apprentice to ride the horse with the nail, the commission said.

Rival Managers Glimpse Hope In Recently-Concluded Series; Both Must Improve Hurling

By Joe Reichler

NEW YORK (AP) — Offhand prospects for dethroning the world champion New York Yankees and the National League champions, Brooklyn Dodgers, do not appear particularly bright. However, rival major-league managers detected a ray of hope in the recently-concluded world series.

The series indicated strongly that both the Yankees and Dodgers must improve their pitching to defend their titles. Only four of the 15 starting hurlers were able to go the route. Eddie Lopat and Preacher Roe did it in the second game and Vic Raschi and Carl Erskine in the third.

Erskine is the only one of this quartet who figures to duplicate or better his 1953 record. The others are past 35 and cannot be counted on to be more than once-a-week starters. So is Allie Reynolds, the Yankee ace, who has the added handicap of an aching back. The strong-armed righthander may decide not to come back at all this year.

Most big-league managers attended the series, but not all stayed to the end. Leo Durocher left after the first game and Hank Stanky hastened to St Louis after the third game to start the organizational meeting.

Before he departed Stanky declared the Cardinals as well as New York Giants, the Phillies and Milwaukee Braves "will be improved by 20 per cent to overtake the Dodgers. Cincinnati manager Birdie Lopez admitted his Indians could not catch the Yankees with their present personnel.

Managers Casey Stengel of the Yankees and Charley Dressen of the Dodgers are confident they will repeat next year, but admit they are worried about their pitching.

"This same team with some added ingredients will win it again in 1954," Dressen said. "The others must get better. We've got to be strong in every department but pitching."

Stengel frankly is afraid that Reynolds, Raschi, Lopat and Johnny Sain may fold next season. In fact the only pitcher he is satisfied will be a big winner again is Whitey Ford, his young southpaw.

"Naturally we would like to get another starting pitcher, preferably a righthander," Casey said, "but 42 assists.

Letter To Sports Editor

Appreciation

A special vote of thanks to the men who managed, coached, umpired and assisted in many ways. It is to you men that we owe a debt of gratitude of your untiring efforts and time which you so graciously gave. Your contributions and teamwork to what made the 1953 Minor Baseball Season a success.

Through your efforts with the Minor Baseball teams in our community, you have made it possible to give 322 boys the privilege of taking part in organized sport under competitive conditions. Not only does a program of this nature keep the youth of our city off the streets forming gangs and keeping them out of mischief, but also tends to develop character, discipline and deportment in the minds of each boy taking part and in the end results should be better citizens.

A special vote of appreciation to be extended to the Ontario Intelligencer and Radio Station CJBQ for their assistance and cooperation through the entire season.

Hoping we can look forward to your support again next year along with better results for both parents. Let's all look forward to a healthy year in baseball in every boy in our community playing sport of some kind.

Thanking you all,

Yours truly,

F. V. Grandaime, Chairman,
Belleville Minor Baseball League.

'Gunners' Still Popular Soccer Team Despite Low Standing in Division

By Arch MacKenzie
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Arsenal is showing its domination of the British soccer world so far this season from a strange place—the lower depths of the football league's first division.

The lack of initial success by the defending champions, who scored one victory in their first 10 games, is a new facet of the Arsenal phenomenon. They get the crowds and the press clippings just the same.

Arsenal is the team whose international reputa is such that the Oporto, Portugal, team erected a $60,000 victory memorial after they beat the Gunners in 1942. It's the team whose tag has been "lucky Arsenal" or "the Bank of England team," or even "dirty Arsenal."

Seven times league champions since 1930, thrice winners of the Football Association Cup and runners-up countless times, Arsenal passes the problem of a defending championship team having disintegrated in the off-season.

Only One Arsenal

The management has come out with the bank book again to effect a cure. The operation isn't cut-and-dried because of the Arsenal policy, best illustrated by the story of an international star being rejected on account of the scout's report, which read: "A bit crude where eating."

However vitriolic the criticism, no one is prepared to argue that Arsenal boys lie team spirit. "Everybody wants to play for Arsenal," is the management byword.

The team originated more than 65 years ago when 60 Woolwich Arsenal employees chipped in to buy a football.

The team turned pro in 1893 and was relegated to the league's second division for the first and only time in 1913. It came back to the big ones after the First World War and has sat there ever since, despite some narrow escapes from relegation.

A Real Drubbing

Crowning insult this year was the worst defeat in 27 years—a 7-1 licking from Manchester City—which helped sting manager Tom Whittaker into reaching for the bank account.

Back in 1946, Arsenal came up with transfer Bronco Hooker, who added enough scoring punch to their front line to get them out of trouble. The club paid £23,000 the same thing in buying Tommy Lawton, nearly 35, but 23 times an England international.

Lawton may be the solution, although it appears at times that Arsenal doesn't really need to win to remain the most famous soccer club in the world.

A South African soccer official recently offered the club £25,000 for a tour of his country next summer.

"They would still be No. 1 attraction for us if they were relegated to the second division," he said.

Buddy Korchak Well in Front Of Grid Pack

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg's Buddy Korchak pulled 11 points ahead of the pack in the individual scoring in the Western Interprovincial Football Union as kickers held an edge over runners in week-end games.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Korchak, place-kicking expert with the second-place Blue Bombers, picked up 19 points during the week-end doubleheaders to run his total to 59 points. This gives the 1952 WIFU all-star flying wing an 11-point edge over Jackie Johnson, Edmonton Eskimo halfback from Saskatchewan Roughriders. Each scored a touchdown to boost his total to 35.

'Case' Was Star In Own Right

NEW YORK (AP)—World Series stardom is nothing new to Casey Stengel of New York Yankees, who now stands alone in the record books as the manager of five consecutive world's champions.

Thirty-two years ago, the Yankees also won the big classic in six games, this time from New York Giants. The big gun for the losers was Stengel, then a comparative rookie of 23.

Casey batted .417 in the '23 series getting five hits in 12 trips. Two of the blows were homers, both of which won games. The one-time Kansas City outfielder drove in one out of the park in the first game as the Giants won 4-3, and again in the third for 1-0 triumph. Over-all, in three world series—1916 with Brooklyn and '23 and '24 with the Giants—Stengel hit .393 with 11 hits in 28 times at bat.

Brooklyn Triumph in World Series Would Have Been Needed Tonic

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK (AP)—It would be a pleasure to report that the fifth straight world series victory of the Yankees was greeted with great popular acclaim and that the beefs flickered far into the night. It would not, however, be the truth.

The brutal fact is that not very many persons were happy about the way the playoff turned out. The Yankees were, of course, and there are a certain number of baseball fans in this country who would be glad if their heroes won 20 flags in a row. But we have a strong feeling that even this group is fed up.

A Brooklyn triumph would have given baseball a tonic that the game needs badly. The erstwhile U.S. national pastime is in trouble and its executives are a gloomy set of men. We know this from having talked with many of them during the series. They face the future with misgivings, especially the American Leaguers.

"I hate to say it," one of the latter group declared, "but it would be a good thing for everybody if our league lost this time. Twenty year from now (the Yankees) win from here on we're going to have a further drop in attendance. We can't pull the fans back until we can show them a race."

Not an American Leaguer claimed that the Yankees were hauling the Bombers next season, or in the next three or four seasons, for that matter. They are not trying to fool anybody about their predicament. But they have always thought that Boston Red Sox, who have "home" brilliant youths going for them, might offer a real threat next year, but the men who know Lou Boudreau's club best say not.

In the first place, they say, the Red cannot better their fourth place finish unless they come up with one or two pitchers, winning righthanded pitchers. Most of their strength now is lefty. Also, they say, the team must develop a better punch in its outfield before it can merit serious consideration. So that leaves Cleveland and Chicago White Sox, who already have proved to everybody's satisfaction that they are not teams of destiny.

Casey Stengel, himself, doesn't see why his club shouldn't go on winning more or less indefinitely with a little new blood in its pitching staff from time to time. President Dan Topping is quoted as predicting they will make it eight straight pennants, explaining that he thinks it a nice, round figure.

Actually, even the Yankee official family appears to be getting bored to some extent. For years they have made a practice of throwing a wingding of a victory party on the night of the final series game, but they passed it up this time in favor of a quiet gathering within the Yankee family.

Defeated Dodgers Sound Ancient Battle Cry... 'Wait 'Til Next Year'

Though forlorn in defeat after coming so close to prolonging the World Series, Texas Thompson, left; Glen Lobtan, Junior Gilliam, Duke Snider and Billy Loes managed to muster a smile for the cameraman in their dressing room in New York following end of sixth series, brought Hank Bauer home and final game of the 1953 series. Batting Billy Martin, with a record-breaking single in the ninth inning, won the game for the New York Yankees, for his 12th hit, most ever batted in a six-game

Eddie Lopat, Yankee Pitching Star, Captures Coveted Hurling Honors

NEW YORK (AP)—Eddie Lopat, who made one of baseball's strongest comebacks, captured two of the American League's most coveted pitching honors for 1953—earned runs and winning percentage.

Statistics compiled by The Associated Press showed today that the 35-year-old New York Yankee lefthander, hampered by a sore arm during much of the season, paced the American League with a 2.43 earned-run average. He permitted only 61 edrned runs in 179 innings.

Lopat signed a conditional contract before the season, but he came through handsomely. He won 16 games and dropped only four for a winning mark of .800—topping it off with a world series victory over Brooklyn in the second game. Eddie is the first American League pitcher to lead in earned runs and won-lost percentage the same year since Spud Chandler did it in 1943.

In the National League, Milwaukee's Warren Spahn, another southpaw, was the circuit's earned-run leader with a 2.10 mark, the lowest since Howie Pollet compiled the same average with St. Louis Cardinals in 1949.

Spahn, one of the key men in his surprising showing of the Braves this year, allowed 62 earned tallies in 266 innings. He won 23 games and lost seven for a .767. Brooklyn's Carl Erskine was the top man in winning percentage with .769, on a 20-6 record.

Neither earned-run pace-setter had much competition. Chicago's Billy Pierce was runner-up to Lopat in the American League with a 2.72 and Virgil Trucks, also of the Whitesox, was third at 2.82.

Robin Roberts of Philadelphia Phillies, a 23-game winner, was second in the National League with a 3.75 followed by Bob Buhl of the Braves with 3.00.

Allie Reynolds of the Yankees and New York Giants' Hoyt Wilhelm, last year's earned-run leaders, were ineligible this season. Neither pitched the required 154 innings.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Stan Hack, who has piloted the Los Angeles Baseball club for the last three years, was rehired today to lead the Angels for the 1954 Pacific Coast League season.

AT THE BELLE

If you have not seen 3-D yet, the new miracle that turns flat movies into real 3-dimensional life and puts every patron in a front seat right in the middle of the action then be sure to start with Man in the Dark playing for the last time today at the Belle Theatre.

Here's a great treat in store for you when you find yourself standing in a hurtling roller coaster, in creative of police cars, in the think of a gang fight for Man in the Dark picks each moment full of this new found 3-D excitement. Apart from the sensational thrills contained in Man in the Dark the hard-talking, hammer-punching characterization created by Edmund O'Brien, Nick Dennis, Horace McMahon and Dan Rias with the romantic interest provided by Audrey Totter combine to present a swell story in a new medium.

On the same program the Three Stooges bring to the screen the first 3-D two-reel comedy in shocks. Here their zany antics are at their best.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

One thing a bridge partner should not be is stubborn. All he has to do is lead to carry when some of his bids are wrong. But if he is stubborn with it, a wooden dummy would pay much more in dividends.

Up came the deal you see here:

♥Q J 5
♦A J. 10 7
♣K 10 9 6 4

WEST
♠5 4
♥9 8 6 4 3
♦9 8 5
♣K 3 2

EAST

♦K Q 6 3
♣Q 8

SOUTH
♠A Q 10 9 8 7 3
♣Q 2
♣J 7 5

With sane bidding it reaches and belongs in four spades. This it can make very almost any opening lead from west. However, the players actually bid it like this:

South	West	North	East
1 S	Pass	2 NT	3 H
Dbl	Pass	4 S	Pass
5 S	Pass	6 NT	Pass
7 C	Pass	Pass	Dbl

The three heart bid by east is as atrocious it is not worth the space to explain why. If there is any intention to justify it as so unorthodox a bid the gesture is downright silly.

Everything points to the fact that north showed unrelenting ambition to play the hand himself at any cost. Every act of his ignored what his partner said, did, or wanted.

His first response should have been clubs. He could have passed the south penalty double of three hearts for a good collection. He could have let south play it in the game contract of four spades. From ignorance or preference they were not using four notrump as the ace and king convention. The five club bid by south proves it. As a convention reply it would deny having any ace.

So, why did north bid four-notrump? Only because he insisted on playing the hand. Only because he insisted on dominating. Only because he thought he could play the cards best.

And he was not even an expert. Just an ox.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Merv Griffin devised his own formula for landing a film career: He lost 80 pounds.

Merv is the handsome, curly-haired singer who played the lead opposite Kathryn Grayson in the Cinemascope Moore blog. To look at him today you'd never guess that he once had a Sydney Greenstreet-type figure.

"It's true," he vows, "I used to tip the scales around 235. You should have seen me. A 17½-inch neck and 42-inch waist. A stomach 'way out to here.' How come? I just liked to eat, that's all."

Before he entered movies he was doing 11 radio shows a week as "the young romantic voice of radio." The gals deluged the studio with fan mail from the photos Merv kept asking when he could have a photo sitting, but the radio boss kept postponing it. They knew their mystery singer would lose his romance if the women saw his fat frame.

Thanks Due Secretaries

Several years ago a Hollywood press agent named Jackson Parks drove to work with a couple of studio secretaries who always insisted on listening to Griffin on the car radio. They were ga-ga over the boy. Parks passed the word along to the talent department and Griffin soon got a call to visit studio boss William Dozier.

"When I walked in the door I could see their faces fall," Merv recalls. "I know what they were thinking—this is the romantic voice of radio!"

Merv continued on his obese way until some time later when singer Jane Edwards came to town. She had heard him on the radio and was disappointed when she turned up to do a show together.

"Your voice is terrific," said the outspoken Miss Edwards, "but that blubber has got to go."

That did it. Merv says he was so mad he started dieting that afternoon. In four months he shelved 80 pounds and dropped 11 inches from his waistline. How? By self-denial, steaks and common sense. He now hovers around 160 pounds, which is just about right for his five-foot-10 frame.

Brandon Refinery Damaged By Fire Tuesday Night

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Smoke and flame shot into the sky over a Brandon oil refinery Tuesday night as the city suffered its third spectacular fire of the year.

Four buildings were destroyed, two towers badly burned and damage was estimated by a company spokesman at hundreds of thousands of dollars in the blaze at the refinery of Anglo-Canadian Oils Limited. The company has no connection with a larger fire of a similar name, Anglo-Canadian Oil Company Limited.

The other major fires this year destroyed a downtown business block and gutted a wholesale fruit warehouse.

The oil refinery blaze broke out in the control building about 7 p.m. It spread to and destroyed the train pumping unit, hot oil pump and topping plant. It was put out by about 10 company firemen just before 10 p.m. Men were on duty all night using cooling hoses on the pipes to keep them cool in case of leakage.

Nobody Injured

Firemen from Brandon, Souris and Rapid City stood by during the blaze, but were not called into action. The company spokesman estimated the damage, said the firm could continue partial operations, but most of the equipment destroyed will be difficult to replace. No one was injured.

At its peak, the flames roared toward the huge cracking unit and two high octane gasoline storage tanks. Police had a local radio station warn everyone within a half-mile of the plant to vacate in case of an explosion. Firemen checked the flames before they reached the tanks.

A vertical pipe outside the plant, believed to release waste gas from the oil-cracking plant, spouted flames more than 100 feet in the air. A large pall of smoke hung over the southern section of the city as residents, heedless of warnings, gathered to watch. Brandon is 125 miles west of Winnipeg.

Sailboat Made From Salvaged Oak and Pine

QUEBEC (CP)—Two Quebecers are on their way to the British West Indies in a sailboat made from salvaged timber.

The pair, "captain" Charles Hackett, 37, and "mate" Majella Huard, are about a quarter of a course through inland waterways—the St. Lawrence, Richelieu and Ottawa rivers—as far as New York. From there they will hug the Atlantic coastline until a break can be made across the ocean to the Indies.

Construction of the 32-foot sailboat in an upturned boathouse began in 1947. Two years later it was completed.

Jack Hackett, Charles' father, knew that several large pieces of oak had been lost at Wolfe's Cove many years ago while awaiting shipment to England. The Hackett's probed the river bed with home-made pikes and salvaged a 45-foot keel.

Retrieved From Wharves

White pine used on the decks was retrieved from old wharves along Quebec's waterfront.

The finished vessel weighs seven tons and draws only 5½-feet of water. She is equipped with all home conveniences including a stainless steel galley, a refrigerator and a flush toilet.

Before leaving Hackett and Huard loaded the vessel with 1,500 pounds of foodstuffs, water and gasoline.

Each took $1,000 for the trip but they hope to bring back some.

"We won't have hotel bills, restaurant expenses and many other things because we have them," Hackett said before his departure.

Both men left their jobs to make the trip. Hackett was a naval draughtsman, Huard an accountant.

Completed In '49

Although the vessel, christened "the Coaster," was completed in 1949 almost a year of preparation was required before the tropical trip could be undertaken.

A caulking of specially-prepared copper paint was applied to prevent saltwater warping attacking the oak; steel guard rails were put up and stainless steel rigging was installed to prevent salt-water corrosion.

The adventurers expected no trouble on the trip, unless perhaps they have difficulty passing under bridges. The coaster's mast is 50 feet high.

BREAD BASKET

EDMONTON (CP)—Lloyd Crilish, visiting here after serving as a secondary school principal in Ethiopia, said the Ethiopian kingdom could develop into a "bread basket" for the Middle East and a good friend for the democracies. He explained the younger element there seeks progress.

Freight Program Challenged By C.P.R. Railway

OTTAWA (CP)—Key parts of the board of transport commissioners' freight rate equalization program were challenged Tuesday by the Canadian Pacific Railway and Quebec business organizations.

Their objections were registered with the board continued receiving representations on its partial equalization plan proposed to go into effect Jan. 1, 1953. The study is being made under a 1951 parliamentary order to level off rates as between different regions.

Both the CPR and the Quebec business bodies took exception to the board's order for the elimination of a series of "blanket" rates between western points and centres in a big triangle bounded by Montreal, Windsor and Sudbury. The basic rates on traffic into and out of the triangle are the same for all points in it.

The board decided to eliminate the group rates on the theory that freight tolls should, as far as possible, be on a mile-by-mile basis. The CPR's lengthy submission, which the company began reading into the record Tuesday, said a rigid mile-for-mile application of rates will-not be beneficial to the country as a whole and urged the existing groupings be kept intact as far as possible.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, Oct. 8, 1953.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Some retrenching needed. Check for errors, but slow up only to make improvements. Try to finish incompleted chores. Reflect; rest, too.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Could be an off day for some things. Work that requires skill and quick thinking should be taken as calmly as possible to insure better results. Be strict with yourself in p-p.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Some mild restrictions—mostly connected with the signing of contracts and in legal matters. Be cautious, think before acting. Day favors familiar duties, routine affairs. Better aspects coming.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — The configurations indicate more forethought needed, and closer scrutiny in business and personal matters. Take time to study each phase of your day. Do all that is important, but don't rush.

July 23 to August 22 (Leo) — Little encouragement from most corners. That means you will have to be more careful, take no foolish chances with your financial or personal affairs. Day will require patience, serenity.

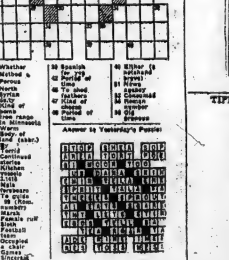
August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Stars indicate it will be up to you to figure out what you are going to do and how to do it. Schedule your work and duties so that you have enough time to accomplish the most important things.

September 23 to October 22 (Libra)—Hold self in sensible restraint during early hours. After 2 p.m. financial and business matters in better aspect. You can finish up with fair gains if you are alert on the job.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Be on your toes, but don't step on others' toes. It may be rough for a few hours but you can weather it if you take the "count-ten" attitude before acting. Keep up the proper front.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Fairly favorable. Building mechanics, financial matters, travel, science, appear under best aspects. A pell-mell attitude is purposeless—gives nothing in return for effort.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—You may be called upon to decide an important issue or money matter. Be certain you know what you are doing; if in doubt, seek sound advice. Odd tasks could relieve, relax mind.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Enter into the situation—but sensibly. There are opportunities we all miss at times by being over-cautious. Food conveying, civic interests, mixing highly appropriated.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Two conditions prevail today—one good for the alert, the other adverse for the uninterested or careless. Extra caution in selecting your course needed.

YOU'RE BORN that you are devoted to home, family and children. You uphold the right and will often champion the oppressed no matter the odds against you. A good memory and keen intuition, would make you an able teacher, doctor, nurse or business executive. You are likely to be sensitive, to worry about your health, others' attitude or actions. You can be popular and make friends easily. Take life philosophically for the sake of health and happiness.

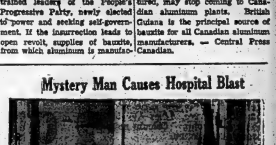
Woke Up Every Morning
Feeling Tired, Achy, Dizzy
Entire System was Rundown After Suffering Very Bad Stomach Disorders, Says This Man, But "Feel Like Different Person Since taking Syrofem"

Mr. Leonard Pullen, 80 Tisdale Street North, Hamilton, Ontario, is glad to pass his experience along to others, because he knows what it means to get relief from health disorders which had troubled him a long time and made him feel tired, achy and rundown.

"I was really in a bad way, couldn't get a good night's rest and would get up every morning feeling tired, achy and rundown. I had no pep, was nervous and irritable, would get up at all gas, belched up hot, sour liquids and had a bloated, full heavy feeling in my stomach. My nerves seemed all on edge, I had no appetite and my head was aching all the time.

"I had heard of Syrofem for Syrofem so I decided to give it a trial, and soon found this medicine did all that was said about it. I never had anything before to give me such quick relief from my indigestion, gas, sour stomach and dizziness. I now sleep better, feel more rested and refreshed when morning comes, and I don't get those dizzy spells. I feel better, stronger and can do my housework without any trouble. I am glad to recommend Syrofem to others."

Syrofem is purely herbal, contains no soda, iron, or other minerals. It is safe, pleasant to take and has helped thousands of men and women in this city and vicinity.



Syrofem is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Britain Sends Ships to Subdue Guiana Insurrection

British's 8,000-ton cruiser, the Superb, is reported dispatched to British Guiana with 400 troops aboard to quell a Communist-led insurrection. Governor of the colony, Sir Alfred Savage, has been given authority to oust the Moscow-trained leaders of the People's Progressive Party, newly elected to power and seeking self-government. If the insurrection leads to open revolt, supplies of bauxite, from which aluminum is manufactured, may stop coming to Canadian aluminum plants. British Guiana is the principal source of bauxite for all Canadian aluminum manufacturers. — Central Press Canadian.

Mystery Man Causes Hospital Blast

The bodies of the "mystery man" who caused the explosion and a hospital official are shown lying amid the wreckage caused by the blast in the administration building of the General hospital in Vienna, Austria. The mystery man apparently had planned to speak to the man in charge of the hospital. After a brief talk with an official, the man ran from the room and a small object in his hand, obviously a bomb, exploded, killing him and an attendant and injuring 13 others. — Central Press Canadian.

Britain And U.S. Will Turn Trieste Over To Italians

Joint Statement Is Made; Both Will Withdraw Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — Britain and the United States jointly announced today they will turn over their occupation zone in the Trieste area to the Italian government "at the earliest practicable date."

This decision was described as a step to halt the "recent deterioration in the relations between Italy and Yugoslavia." Both countries claim the entire free territory of Trieste.

To Withdraw Troops

British and American troops will be withdrawn, the announcement of the decision said.

"It is the firm belief of the two governments that this step will contribute to stabilization of a situation which has distorted the Italo-Yugoslav relations during recent years," the state department said.

"They trust that it will provide the basis for friendly and fruitful co-operation between Italy and Yugoslavia, which is important to the security of Western Europe as it is to the two countries concerned."

Britain and the United States have occupied zone A of the Trieste free territory. Included in zone A and pprt, since the Second World War, Yugoslavia occupies the remainder, or zone B. The capital is zone B.

Failure to make Trieste a free territory laundered on East-West stability in Europe and the Mediterranean, Italy and Yugoslavia each have demanded the area ever since.

American and British envoys in Rome and Belgrade called on Italian Premier Giuseppe Pella and Yugoslav President Tito today.

The Reasons

The Anglo-American decision to withdraw their forces fits into the pattern of Western moves which have been formulated by the U.S., British and French in recent weeks for settling the tangled Trieste question.

As reported here previously, these are the 10 possible main points:

1. The Big Three western powers no longer stand by their 1948 declaration calling for the return of all the strategic territory to Italy. This declaration was made when Yugoslavia was still in Moscow's camp and the western powers were anxious to see pro-western parties beat the Communists in the Italian general election that year.

2. Britain and the U.S. believe Yugoslavia should retain zone B of the Trieste free territory, the area the Yugoslavs now occupy and administer. Italy would get the rest of the territory, zone A, which includes the port city of Trieste and the hinterland held by British and American forces.

3. Small chunks of people in each zone linked ethnically with the other could be reshuffled later by mutual agreement.

Said Impractical

British and American authorities have labelled as impractical settlement proposals advanced recently by both Italy and Yugoslavia.

Italy had called for a five-power conference to determine the future in the free territory to determine its future. The five would be Britain, France, U.S., Italy and Yugoslavia.

Belgrade turned this down, proposing instead that the port of Trieste be internationalized with the rest of the territory going to Yugoslavia. The Italians would reject any of that kind.

FISH STORE ROBBED

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Roscan Barrett reported to police Wednesday that someone broke into his tropical fish store and that $108 was valued at $108, $37 from the cash register, a pound of gravel, a pair of electric water pumps and a couple of aquarium heaters.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO. (CP) — Synopsis: Clear cool autumn weather continued Wednesday throughout the provinces. Overnight temperatures were generally below freezing but with Hillsler reporting 18. Sunny weather will continue today and Friday in most regions with southerly winds bringing warmer air back to the southern half of the province. However cooler weather is again edging into the extreme northwestern section of the province and is expected to spread across all of northern Ontario on Friday.

Conciliation Board Cannot Settle Dispute

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal conciliation board announced Wednesday it has given up attempts to settle a labor dispute involving the National Association of Marine Engineers of Canada, Inc., and four Canadian shipping companies.

The board said it has recommended a number of proposals as a basis for further negotiations but they were "unacceptable to both parties."

The shipping companies involved are Canada Steamship Lines Ltd., Colonial Steamships Ltd., F. P. Paterson and Sons, Ltd., and Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Co. Ltd. About 200 union members are involved in the dispute.

The board reported to the labor department that Canada Steamship Lines rejected the proposals as "a punitive discrimination against their community." It added that the union said they were "unacceptable even as a basis for discussion."

United Nations Ready to Defend Indian Troops

By A. I. GOLDBERG

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—American and other United Nations troops will defend Indian guards and other members of the neutral repatriation commission in Korea if South Korea unleashes troops against the neutrals, a United Nations spokesman declared today.

The Korean armistice agreement signed by both the UN allies and the Communists, guarantees that, an American delegation source explained.

He pointed to the agreement's provision that the commanders of both sides "shall afford full protection and all possible assistance and co-operation to the military armistice commission, its observer teams, the neutral nations supervisory commission, and its observer teams and personnel."

Assurances Repeated

Assurances that the U.S. would live up to the agreement signed by Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison for the UN command and Lt. Kim Il Sung were understood to have been repeated to Indian and other delegates here since the Indians in the field have protested South Korean threats to attack their guards and to free prisoners awaiting repatriation questioning.

A delegation spokesman denied, however, that Henry Cabot Lodge, United American delegate, had discussed such specific assurances. Lodge conferred Wednesday with Jagya Lakshmi Pandit, sister of India's Premier Jawaharlal Nehru, a spokesman for Mrs. Pandit made a similar denial.

Doctor Makes Artificial Kidney From Pressure Cooker, Sausage Skin

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

CHICAGO (AP)—A young doctor today told of making an artificial kidney for $75 out of a kitchen pressure cooker and sausage skin.

It helped save a young woman in the convulsions and coma due to an error in blood transfusion, Dr. Willem J. Kolff, head of the University of Pennsylvania school of medicine told the American College of Surgeons in a prepared paper.

Several hours after the kidney was put to work to purify her blood, she woke up, saw Dr. Inouye resting's sandwich, and said: "Oh, now, I'm hungry." He was munching the sandwich to allay his own hunger during the six-hour treatment.

Dr. Inouye and Joseph Engelberg, an engineer, developed the kidney, starting with a gallon-size pressure cooker costing $19.

Inside it, they put a stainless steel core (8); and 37 feet of sausage casing or plastic tubing (T) that was wrapped around this core. There's also a plastic screen or filter (F) in the top. The cooker has to have inlet and outlet fittings for blood to flow in the tubing.

Blood from a tube put into the patient's artery enters the cooker in the convulsion and returns to the same vein through the tubing which then back into the body. Waste products in the blood seep through the tubing into a fluid inside the pressure cooker. The cooker uses an air-tight system so there's less pressure in the fluid than in the blood in the tubing.

No pump is needed. The artery pressure of the blood is enough to circulate blood through the tubing. The compact little kidney should be suitable for similar hospitals with trained personnel, Dr. Inouye said.

Artificial kidneys can benefit people acutely sick because of temporary kidney failure. They cannot do much for persons with chronic kidney disease.

British Troops Land Thursday In British Guiana

Situation Remains Calm As Soldiers on Guard

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP)—British troops landed today and mounted guard at government headquarters and at sugar estates outside the capital of this South American colony.

Small groups of persons watched the Royal Welsh Fusiliers disembark from the frigates Burghead Bay and Bigbury Bay, which sailed into Georgetown harbor before dawn.

The situation remained calm in the face of what leftist Prime Minister Cheddi Jagan called a "show of force." He is head of the majority People's Progressive party, which has been accused by British of Communist intrigues against the colonial government.

Others On Pieces

The Royal Welsh Fusiliers came from Jamaica aboard the 4,000-ton cruiser Superb and the two 1,600-ton frigates. The frigates brought the fusiliers to Jamaica from Malaya in October.

About 120 men of the Fusiliers were also reported en route to Georgetown from Jamaica on five chartered sailboats.

The troops marched off to Government House here and to the Bookers Sugar Estates where trouble has occurred. The sugar crop is the colony's chief source of revenue.

Three daily newspapers in Georgetown told their readers they were not publishing any editorials on the situation so they could give a true picture from official sources.

One editor said that despite a record of co-operation with the government, this information had not been made available to them.

Criticism Governor

Jagan accused Sir Alfred Savage, governor of the colony, of calling for the troops without consulting his elected ministers.

"The responsibility for whatever may happen is entirely that of the governor and of the forces he advised him," the fiery leader of the Peoples' Progressive party told the colony's House of Assembly Wednesday.

The PPP, which holds 18 of the assembly's 24 seats, is demanding that governors have the power instead of the governor's powers. British authorities have accused party leaders of Communist connections and have warned that attempts might be made to set up a Communist state.

Denies Plot

In his speech to the assembly, Jagan denied that members of his party was plotting against the established order.

The prime minister failed in an attempt to introduce a motion calling for up to the end of the session ships because they were likely to be used for "political and subversive purposes."

Speaker of the house, Sir Eustace Woolford, said he had received no official information of the arrival of any naval forces in the colony and he thought it would be improper to have a motion for discussion on a decision of the British government.

Curtain of Secrecy

The government took extra precautions against disorders Wednesday when it clamped down on the reported troop disembarkation, behind a tight curtain of secrecy.

Prod China and North Korea To Reply on Parley Plans

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States sharply prodded Red China and North Korea today to say whether and when they will be prepared to enter a political conference on Korea.

A message dispatched through the Swedish government told the Reds that an early reply from both is imperative if the conference recommended in the Korean armistice agreement is to take place in the time set in the armistice agreement. Deadline for start of the conference is Oct. 28.

The U.S. note was released here by the state department. It informed the Reds that efforts to have the UN General Assembly reconsider its decision against including neutral nations in the conference had been rejected so that arrangements previously approved for a conference of the two belligerent sides could stand firm.

Secretary of State U.S. said, "is prepared to negotiate in all reasonableness and good faith."

Greenlease Kidnapping Like 21-Year-Old Lindbergh Case

By HENRIETTA LEITH

NEW YORK (AP)—Did the kidnapper of little Bobby Greenlease pattern his crime after the Lindbergh case?

Or is it coincidence that the story of this latest tragedy reads much like the 21-year-old but otherwise strange story of the kidnapping and death of baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.?

Wednesday's discovery that six-year-old Bobby's body had been in its shallow grave all the while the hysterical family negotiated with the kidnappers and paid a huge ransom, struck the whole country with a terrible sense of familiarity.

It was familiar to all who recalled the day in May, 1932, when it was learned that the baby son of the famous aviator, sought for two months and ransomed in vain, had been dead all along.

But besides that essential similarity, the two cases had other things in common.

After the kidnapping of the Lindbergh baby from is Hopewell, N.J., home, March 1, 1932, the distraught parents forestalled any official hunt for the kidnappers, hoping to get the baby back safe and sound. Lindbergh pondered:

Left Note On Sill

The kidnappers had left a note on the window sill of the baby's room, demanding $50,000 ransom. When Lindbergh got John F. Condon, a college man known as a go-between in such matters, the kidnapper sent a series of letters to Condon and talked to him by telephone.

Bobby Greenlease's confessed kidnapper, Carl Austin Hall, said he made contact with the family four or five times, twice by letter.

To prove that he had the Lindbergh baby, the Lindbergh kidnapper mailed in a brown paper parcel containing a child's sleeping suit. The Lindbergh believed it was the suit worn by their baby when he was kidnapped, and decided to go through with the ransom deal.

Hall said he sent a school pin of Bobby's in his second letter to prove he was the kidnapper.)

Met In Cemetery

Condon's first meeting with the supposed kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby was in a New York cemetery. There the arrangements for the handing over of the money were made.

Hall said he first made personal contact with the family's representative on a lonely dirt road outside Kansas City.)

Condon, acting on instructions in a note from the kidnapper, inserted an advertisement in a New York newspaper saying, "Everything is ready," the ad was signed "Jafsie"—a name formed from Condon's initials and he was to become a familiar nickname for the interlocutor.

Caught Through Money

(Hall also told the Greenlease family to insert a newspaper ad when ready to deliver the money, and he, too, instructed that it be signed by initials.)

Eventually the kidnapper and passed the Lindbergh ransom money in a box over a bridge in another New York cemetery.

(Hall specified the money, in an army duffle bag, was to be tossed over a bridge, where he later picked it up).

Both Hall and the Lindbergh kidnapper, Bruno Richard Hauptmann, were caught by the ransom money. But Hauptmann, though he eventually died for the crime, cautiously waited two years to start spending the money. Hall went on a spending spree almost immediately.

Hall was quick in admitting he was the kidnapper, though he named an accomplice as the actual murderer.

Hauptmann went to his death in 1936 maintaining that he got the money from someone else, and had nothing to do with the crime.

Millard Ready To Compromise On Check-Off

TORONTO (CP)—C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), Wednesday offered to shelve his union's demands for compulsory check-off in the gold mine strike if the mine owners would undertakes to pass check-off legislation at the next session of the legislature.

He did not expand on his statement during a speech before the University of Toronto OCP Club.

His proposal would make it compulsory for employers to deduct union dues from wages of those employees requesting this service if more than 50 per cent of the workers favored the move on a secret ballot.

Reds No Longer Guard British and U.S. Envoys

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet guards no longer tag along after American and British Embassy officials in Moscow, Western diplomatic sources reported today.

Western sources said United States Ambassador Charles E. Bohlen and British Ambassador Sir William Hayter are apparently the first diplomats of the British colony since the war years to move about freely in Moscow.

It is believed the guards stopped following diplomats of other countries a week ago, the sources said.

The sources added it is difficult to interpret the development.

Report 'Atomic Blabbermouths' Annoying President Eisenhower

By JOHN CHADWICK
WASHINGTON (AP) — Several Democratic senators today said confusion is being spread by Eisenhower administration spokesmen on the question of an H-bomb race with Red Russia.

They said the Soviet Union's hydrogen-bomb explosion last August "is what happen again."

The New York Herald-Tribune carried a Washington dispatch along somewhat similar lines.

It said Eisenhower is mad at "atomic blabbermouths" within the governmental family.

Eisenhower, Reston wrote, has passed the word that he wants all official statements on this subject liver it.

Plotted Two Years Before Kidnapping Bobby Greenlease

Man Told Woman Abductor That Child Was His Own Son

KANSAS CITY (AP)—"We relied on a criminal's word. We had to. But we lost."

That summed up today the Robert C. Greenlease family's reaction to a 10-day life-and-death gamble with their six-year-old son, Bobby at the stake—a gamble that ended in the tragic death of the child.

The boy's body was dug out of a hollow grave at St. Joseph, Mo., Wednesday after a man and a woman had been arrested as his kidnappers. Bobby's wealthy parents had paid a record $600,000 ransom for his recall.

C. A. Hall Ringleader

The FBI said Carl Austin Hall, 34, who once squandered a $200,000 inheritance, was the ringleader in the abduction. Also under arrest last night is Mrs. Bonnie Heady, 41, identified as the woman who took 28 lash blows from a private school on a ruse. They were arrested in St. Louis.

The only missing figure in the care is Thomas John Marsh, 37, a Kansas City realtor, said Hall named Marsh as an accomplice in the kidnapping. Hall killed the boy, Hall told police, however, that he had not seen Marsh since the boy's disappearance and that Marsh since carried out negotiations for the ransom payment.

Telephoned Often

Robert Ledterman, a spokesman for the Greenlease family and a close friend and business associate of the 71-year-old father, said that during the high-level negotiations, Mrs. Greenlease twice went to the telephone to plead for assurances her boy was safe.

Ledterman said the kidnapper apparently had no fear of being traced through telephone calls. He first telephoned:

"I talked to him every day, and sometimes 10 minutes at a stretch," Ledterman said.

Twice unsuccessful attempts were made to turn the ransom money over to the kidnappers. Finally last Sunday night the money, in accordance with instructions, was thrown over a bridge into a Kansas City where it was picked up.

Received Money

The kidnapper acknowledged in a telephone call that he had received the money.

After the money finally was exchanged, Ledterman said, a telephone call told the family to send a representative to Pittsburg, Kans., for instructions for the return of Bobby.

Some Hunters Getting Fair Bags of Ducks

Despite the fact that some hunters are getting fair bags of ducks, the number of ducks the feathered population is not what "it used to be."

According to Fish and Wildlife Inspector R. G. Sheppard, of Belleville, a spokesman for some hunters out in near record numbers particularly in the marshes of the Bay of Quinte.

Sideroads and approaches to duck marshes are jogged with cars, he says, and for the first hour or so the noise of guns echoed and re-echoed in the various haunts. "Any ducks unwise enough to approach had a rough time. By evening they were flying at high altitudes and the only ducks taken were those attempting to settle down after sunset."

Efficient hunters had good bags of gallinules, coots, blacks, mallards and even ringed teal. Most hunters were operating minus dogs and boats and no doubt many ducks shot down were not retrieved.

At one point, conservation officers found considerable evidence of baiting. Many decoys and duck calls that were far from artificial. A road check set up in the evening resulted in the seizure of nine shotguns, seven live decoys and 25 dead ducks. Hunters were charged with hunting without a licence, exceeding bag limits, using live decoys and not having shotguns equipped with a permanent plug in the magazine preventing the insertion of more than two shells at any one time.

Inspector Sheppard said that a number of hunters apparently fail to recognize the word "permanently." All regulations at the present time, whether provincial or federal, require this adjustment to repeating shotguns when hunting at any time. Every shotgun equipped with magazine must carry this fixture in person and conservation officers will pass inspection when going to, or coming from, the hunt.

Trenton Board In Argument Over Short Skirts

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—Just how short is a "short" skirt? Trenton's board of education can't seem to be able to make up its mind.

Ivor Walling and Douglas Whitley recently dubbed Trenton Collegiate "the school of majorettes" and told fellow board members that girl students wear their uniform skirts "ridiculously short." They said the girls "look like so many majorettes on parade."

However, Dr. J. E. Richmond replied that the board should feel proud of having a school full of majorettes when other collegiates have only one. He said he favored the skirts short.

Dr. Richmond said he understood the accepted length for the skirts was what is known as "fingertip length."

John Reid, another board member, said he hadn't noticed anything wrong, but said "if the skirts are longer than fingertip fingertips, I guess that's plenty short."

New TV Station At Rochester Going on Air

A new and more powerful television station is scheduled to go on the air around the first of next month according to H. K. Booth, president of Booth Radio and Television, Mr. Booth was in town with WHECTV (Rochester) by telephone Thursday morning.

From reports he has received from the station's chief engineer, WHAM's new 316 mercury channel 10, will be the best received station in this area, when it reaches its maximum power output of 100,000 watts sometime around the first of the new year.

The new station will use WHAM's tower, that is, channel six. By the end of the year, channel six programs will be received on channel five and WHAM will have increased its output four times to bring it up to a 100,000 watt station. However, WHEC will not go to full power until January 1954.

From the time the new station begins programming in November until the change is made at the end of the year, it will only have a 5,000 watt output and reception here is not expected to be too good. However, Mr. Booth said, "I understand the present channel antennas" will likely receive the station even at its low power.

McCulloch told police his passenger had him drive from Windsor to nearby Sandwich West township. There the passenger, posing as the driver of his cab, sang, watch and wallet containing $8 and then drove away in McCulloch's taxi.

Recommends All Canadian PoW Get Compensation

OTTAWA (CP) — Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell, chief war claims commissioner, today said all Canadian military personnel and merchant seamen imprisoned in Europe during the Second World War were mistreated and should receive compensation.

Chief Justice Campbell of Prince Edward Island made his recommendation in a "general basis per diem award" for prisoners and a 3-page report to the government. The total bill would be determined by the government earlier this year by investigating recommendations of the national council of Canadian prisoners of war for an automatic award of $5 each day of any imprisonment to all Canadian prisoners of war in the Second World War.

The $1-a-day award had previously been granted to all ex-prisoners of the far eastern theatre and to those held prisoner by organizations declared a criminal organization by the international military tribunal at Nuremburg, including the SS, SD, Gestapo and Leadership Corps.

Neutrals Charge Allies Stalling PoW Interviews

By MILO FARNETI

SEOUL (AP)—The neutral nations repatriation commission today accused the Allies of trying to stall away more of the dwindling 90 day period allotted for interviews with 22,000 war prisoners who refuse to return to their homelands.

The commission in a letter told the United Nations command pointedly that the Reds offered to take only four days to build an explanation center which the Allies estimated would require a month.

Truce terms specify that the explanation period must end Christmas Eve. The Allies have turned down repeated commission and Red requests for an extension.

The construction of a satisfactory explanation centre has delayed the start of persuasion attempts since Sept. 26.

Meanwhile, another Indian letter rejected the Allied charge that the commission has been operating on the theory that most of the prisoners "actually desire repatriation."

The Indian chairman of the five-power commission, Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, also rejected a Communist charge that the captives have not been allowed "to express their free will."

Thimayya said in a letter replying to one from the former United Nations commander, Gen. Mark Clark, that the commission had kept an "open mind" and is determined to gain for the prisoners complete freedom of choice without duress or coercion."

Tells of Seeing Man Who Claims That He Is Beria

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The San Diego Union in a copyrighted dispatch says today that Fabio Gallo, intermediary for a man claiming to be Lavrenty Beria, secured Russian secret police headship told his full story to Spanish police and to a Union reporter.

The dispatch, from the Union's Paris staffer, says Gallo told the reporter, Gene Fusco, that he met a man representing himself as Beria dressed as a peasant in Gibraltar.

Fusco quoted Gallo as saying: "I made first contact with a Spanish representative of Beria at the Embassy Restaurant in Gibraltar by parking my car according to instructions in front of the restaurant and wearing a white carnation into the place. . . . I went into the restaurant to make contact. . . .

"He said the Americans don't believe anything you say. They need proof.

"The man took me to a car parked. . . . Beria was in the car. The man ordered me to get in and said to the Spaniard, 'This is the package.' . . .

"The Spaniard asked me again about a guarantee of sanctuary in the United States for Beria. I told him I didn't have them. . . .

Gallo said something to the Spaniard which the Spaniard interpreted as "I'll show you saw me and because of the interest they have in me, they will fix th arrangements."

University Work in Israel Is Related to Group Here By Officer Touring America

Mrs. Marla A. Nussbaum, public relations officer for the Hebrew University in Israel addressed the Belleville Chapter of the Canadian Friends of the Hebrew University in the Sons of Jacob Synagogue Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Nussbaum is on a two months' visit to North America to stimulate interest in the university and to raise sorely needed funds. She is scheduled to address Jewish communities before she returns to Israel at the end of November.

Mrs. Nussbaum emigrated from Germany to Israel in 1937. She joined a collective settlement and worked as a farm hand, English teacher, medical assistant, and as an interior decorator. She had previously studied art in Berlin.

In her 16th year Mrs. Nussbaum joined the Zionist movement, and during her 18th and 19th years she belonged to Hachshara (settlements for the preparation of persons for agricultural service in Palestine) in Germany and Yugoslavia.

She has lived in Jerusalem since 1938, and during World War II was attached to a British led Red Cross unit. She has been married and 11 she has been employed as a public relations officer by the Hebrew University.

Tells of Work

In her talk to the local chapter of the Friends of the Hebrew University Mrs. Nussbaum outlined what the university has done and is doing for the development of Israel.

The university was established 28 years ago in Jerusalem with the research departments of the humanities and chemistry. Later the facilities expanded to teaching departments in these subjects. Up to four years ago the university gave M.A. and PhD. degrees but no B.A. degree.

These two faculties, together with the School of Agriculture, comprised the university until 1947.

In 1948, following the Arab-Israeli war, the university buildings on Mount Scopus were cut off from the Jewish zone, by a zone of Arab-controlled territory. One convoy every two weeks is permitted to enter the zone for the purpose of supplying the guards at the university with food and water, but the university buildings and the Jewish National library and its half million books are still not available for teaching purposes.

Now In 42 Buildings

As a result the university was forced to acquire buildings throughout Jerusalem that were not properly constructed and equipped for laboratories and classrooms. Coincident with this dispersal, the Israeli government began asking the university to expand its services to train the professional classes needed to aid Israel's development and as a result the university is today scattered throughout 42 buildings in Jerusalem.

The multiplication of expenses has driven the university's budget to 3,500,000 Israeli pounds annually (an Israeli pound is worth slightly more than a Canadian dollar). Donations from the Friends of the Hebrew University, the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the Israeli government, as well as tuition fees, will fall to meet this sum by 750,000 Israeli pounds this year.

Carries Big Load

Israel's fantastic growth since its "War of Liberation", has thrown a great burden on the Hebrew University because it is primarily responsible for the training of educators, scientists, agriculturists and the many other skilled specialists required by the new nation to stabilize its economy, its government and its services.

In the Department of Education all university functions as a normal school and a college of education for training primary and secondary school teachers.

There is compulsory education in Israel for children from the 5th to 14 years of age. Immigration has doubled the school population to 380,000 in four years and the shortage of teachers is serious.

In the science faculty the university is seeking ways and means of solving the agricultural crisis in Israel by doing basic research on the possibility of growing crops in the sandy soil of the country. In addition, the agriculture faculty is training agriculturists who will go with immigrants to new communities and show them how to farm.

Study Desert

The geology department is doing research in the Negev Desert hoping to find water that will make settlement of this barren area possible. Geologists are also studying ways to utilize the phosphate, manganese, rock sands, and ceramic clays that are found in Israel and factories are being established in the wake of initial research.

Botanists are working with tough wild grasses and papyrus looking for possible ways to utilize these plants for the production of paper. Zoologists are also studying ways to utilize many of the many medicinal plants in Israel in the production of pharmaceuticals.

In 1949 the university opened a medical school. At first the school provided final year training for students who had completed most of their medical training elsewhere and since then the junior years have been added until last year the first freshman class was enrolled. At present there are 330 students and 100 interns.

Train Jurists

In 1953 a faculty of law was opened to train competent jurists for Israel as well as to provide legal training for civil servants.

The existence of three standards of law in Israel made this legal training essential. There is the Ottoman (Turkish) law, English common law, and the Jewish religious law for personal status.

The government's request that a faculty of social sciences, economics, and public administration be opened was to meet this year as the Hebrew University lays the cornerstones for a new group of buildings in the Jewish controlled sector of Jerusalem.

Mrs. Nussbaum spoke in Kingston on Tuesday night and will be in Peterborough Thursday.

Jules Abramsky is chairman of the Belleville Chapter of the Friends of the Hebrew University and the secretary is Sidney Rose.

Witness Denies Extortion Threat To His Partner

NEW YORK (AP) — James (Bilgey) Rutkin denied Wednesday that he ever tried to extort up to $9-00,000 from his former boot-legging partner.

On a federal court witness stand, Rutkin denied that he ever threatened to kill Joseph H. Reinfeld if he didn't come across with the money.

"No sir," replied Rutkin.

He said he loaned Reinfeld $22,500-000, claiming Reinfeld cheated him of that amount in the sale of the L. L. and B. distillery in Chatham, Ont. in 1951.

Minus Rutkin's testimony in the second day of the trial defense built its case from smalltime bootlegger to a big wheel in the illicit liquor trade of the roaring '20s.

He testified he joined a combine in a venture known as the "High Seas." He used trucks and tank cars, he said, to ship alcohol between Newark, N.J., Boston and Canada.

Rutkin was asked about when the venture flowered.

"I'm sorry," he replied. "It was after 1930. I couldn't place the exact year."

Rutkin testified the High Seas venture had a "divvy-up" of profits five or six times a year, but he kept no records of his cut.

Reinfeld, the witness said, was a banker for the combine, placing its money in bank accounts in New York, Newark and Montreal and in rented vaults in various cities.

Rutkin said he got $250,000 from Reinfeld when they parted company in 1943.

"And from that day on you had no further connection with Joseph Reinfeld?" he was asked.

"No, sir," the witness replied.

Rutkin, himself, is serving a four-year income-tax evasion prison sentence for another distillery deal. He is being brought to the courtroom under guard from jail.

Angry German Crowds Clash With Red Police

BERLIN (AP)—Angry crowds clashed Wednesday with Communist police in at least two Russian zone cities on the state holiday marking the fourth anniversary of the East German republic, according to the West Berlin newspaper Der Tag.

The paper said the clashes occurred at Erfurt, in Thuringia, and Dresden, Saxony, when People's Police squads were sent out to remove anti-Communist slogans on government and Communist party buildings. The slogans demanded the holding of free elections.

Eight demonstrators were reported arrested at Erfurt and five at Dresden.

BELLEVILLE'S LINK WITH BRITISH GUIANA

British Guiana is 83,000 square miles of hot humid country on the north coast of South America. It is rich in sugar, rice, gold, diamonds and bauxite, and is governed in standard colonial fashion by a governor who has wide powers, a State Council or Upper House a majority of whose members are appointed by the governor, and a House of Assembly.

For most Canadians British Guiana has existed only as a red blob on the map of empire, sandwiched into self-governing countries along with the United States and Canada. The recent dispatch of a British Council and 500 marines to this far away colony brought it into many focus its world attention, as Britain moved quickly to prevent the territory from going Communist.

This action not only fastened world attention on British Guiana, and provided another dramatic example of the world wide penetration of Communism into foreign governments, but it also served to re-emphasize Canada's position as the world's leader of great significance.

For British Guiana's is the source of bauxite, the raw material from which aluminum is extracted, and the chief source of supply for the Aluminum Company of Canada. This industrial colossus, maker of one-quarter of the world's supply of aluminum, is the kingpin of the world famous development of the Lake St. John district of Quebec and one of the bulwarks of primary production in this country.

The Aluminum Company of Canada is currently investing half a billion dollars in the expansion of its production facilities by developing the Kitimat works in northern British Columbia. This tremendous enterprise is of profound significance to the prosperity of British Columbia and Canada in general.

The Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company Limited of this city fabricates the loading equipment for bauxite at the Aluminum Company's Guiana works in 1940 and currently is engaged in installing its unique conveyor system in Canada, from whence the same company plans to ship alumina to Kitimat. It is apparent that Canada's future wealth and welfare are closely bound to South America as a source of supply of bauxite to Canada's great aluminum producer.

The citizens of Belleville may not be too aware of the political, financial and economic factors concerned in the situation that could have a direct bearing on local employment. It takes an incident like this to point out to the average Canadian man in the street the importance to him of the interest in the internal affairs of countries and colonies in different countries. It is an important lesson in international affairs that should not be forgotten or minimized.

A-QUEER PEEP

It has been reported from Stanford University that that institution has had constructed an instrument enabling man to peer ten times deeper into the atom than ever before. This is quite a feat. In fact it may produce a result that will make a built in squint.

This penetrating peer has revealed to Stanford scientists that the atomic nucleus, heretofore considered a solid mass of protons and neutrons, is in reality, a "cottony" sphere composed of particles so densely crowded that the core itself appears to be solid and the edges fuzzy. The core, it has been found, is 100 times denser than was originally believed — so dense in fact that a drop of water of similar density would weigh two million tons. The edges of the nucleus, as may be imagined, are a little fuzzy, as is the whole idea.

The apparatus that is supposed to look at the heart of the matter is a gadget called, in an unfeeling way, a cyclotron. It is a high speed atom smasher which, by means of electrical fields of the strength of the electron and the resulting deviations are measured and the strength of the fields, and subsequently the composition of the nucleus, calculated.

We are happy to hear that Stanford scientists are making such fabulous progress. In the atomic footrace currently being waged between the scientists of the world is reassuring to know that our friends are out in front in the hunt for the atomic nucleus.

We are a bit discouraged, though, to hear that while new machines give scientists a ten times better look at the object, that the object is ten times denser. If such a ratio continues to meet further experimenters we will have the end spectacle of men peering at an almost non-existent point with a marvellous mechanism that proves that the point is ten times as non-existent as was first believed.

Nevertheless, the scientists are to be praised. Nothing is likely to get nowhere fast. But as long as we are going nowhere, it is nice to know that we can go at nearly the speed of light and be assured that once we get nowhere it will be ten times denser than we had first expected.

EXPERT'S I. Q. IS HIGH

Dr. Boyd R. McCandless has told the American Academy of Pediatrics that I. Q. tests used in placing adopted babies are "tremendously unreliable." Research by one of his associates, Dr. Irene Harms, has revealed that the I. Q. of a given infant can vary as much as 35 points from day to day.

That is what we like about experts. They are so diligent. After painstaking experiments they frequently come up with conclusions which shatters previously accepted scientific fact and proves that the real truth is exactly what was believed in the first place, before the newly-shattered scientific fact was first discovered.

Perhaps Dr. Harms is a mother and got her first clue on the variation of the I. Q. in infants from personal experience of how many times the little cherub could be one day —and how dumb the brat became the day after.

AFTER DEFEAT

He did his best from day to day
And though he blundered now and then,
Which is the common fate of men,
From Hoe he never turned away.

From day to day he did his best
And knew the reason why he failed,
And when defeated never wailed
Or let regret disturb his rest.

He'd say: "I do the best I can,
But 'when that's not enough to win
I've no excuse when I come in,
The victor was the better man."

Land of Red-Tailed Men

By Evan Williams in The Listener

Between Tibet and Assam is a secret land, little known and little explored. The Balgurt frontier tract is such a place and would provide a happy hunting ground for ethnologists and explorers. In 1946 I spent nearly all the edge of this particular territory; but until I made acquaintance with the new political chief, Mr. Verrier Elwin, and his wife Ursula, widely known as the "Lady Doctor," I was hardly more than an outsider.

Now that I know who told me of a little-known valley, inhabited by people called Apa Tanis, a people of unknown origin, who were scarcely tails made of split cane, and who possessed a unique civilization. Although only 32 miles from the plains of India, it took six days' marching to get there, owing to the precipitous and mountainous hills which guarded the approach.

We straggled across the river Kala to the village of Hapoli. Its gardens and groves skirting the village grew peaches, cherries and pomegranates; also were pine-tree nurseries for the benefit of a future generation. Through this Himalayan Eden we passed into the village itself. Roses climbed house on both sides of what was evidently a main street. Standing some 20 feet high, with verandahs, they were thronged with people. It was Hogarthian with its seemingly riotous, but talk abounded in the streets, the verandahs appeared to be a solid block of women.

Through all this we made our way and met Ursula coming towards us surrounded by a laughing, chattering group (the Apa Tani name is a The Listener)

Tall, with regular robes of many colors swinging from their shoulders, they formed a gay and picturesque group. Particularly since the war, during the years when works of art have been widely bought as investments, some painters and dealers in France seem to have abandoned their lawful occupation in favor of the more remunerative business of painting and selling pictures that the layman can distinguish, not omitting the detail of a competently forged signature in the corner.

The majority of fakes with which the Paris police have to deal are of the work of living or, at least, modern artists—Utrillo, Vlaminck, Modigliani, Dufy; Renoir are the favorite victims—so the assistance of chemical technologists or art historians is usually unnecessary in establishing whether a picture is not genuine.

An inquiry is made by the police in any other criminal case. If the forger is alive, it is often quite unnecessary to go to the length indeed his (though painters do sometimes have lapses of memory and forget fiercely a paternity afterwards proved to be theirs). Otherwise the police collect the evidence of experts and the circumstances of sales reveal the source of the painting.

It may be that it was painted recently as an exercise by some indigent painter and sold to a dealer for a small sum by an unscrupulous person who recognized its signature and sold it for hundreds or perhaps thousands of dollars. But sometimes the forgeries are guiltless.

One woman has discovered buried original in producing "Utrillos" and "Vlamincks" while her husband turned out "Renoirs" and "Dufys." But he apparently did not have the courage of his convictions, for he took his works at the modest price he might legitimately have asked for them. Even the master-forger Van Gogh was exposed because he painted his forgeries on canvas (which is expensive since white and blue glaze—a fake exposed by the fluorescent test—for the blue glaze cracked off and left the canvas absolutely white.

One young man sold his mother's collection of Old Masterpieces and commissioned a set of fakes to replace them. His fraud was discovered only after he had given the unfortunate heirs found that her bequest of paintings was valueless.

Investigations are often hampered by the reluctance of buyers who have been tricked to inform the police. If they bought a picture as a "Renoir" some years ago, they hate the thought of provoking a public row by giving concrete evidence proof that it is worthless. Even if they were convinced when they paid, that sum in francs would be worth considerably less to-day, and they would prefer to lose a smallish sum, they still prefer to keep it than to risk a public loss of face the fact that their bargain was a bad one.

* * *

Even police pictures to impress their friends, they do not like admitting that they were so fooled. And then there are people who hang in their homes fakes bought fairly cheaply, knowing full well they are fakes, but trusting that their unthinking visitors will not suspect the seeming richness of their collection.

Rocking Chair Coming Back

(Dallas Morning News)

A report from Chicago's furniture row says that rocking chairs are being made. That story isn't earth shaking. And that's the point. It's significant. Any trend backward to old and cherished traditions of comfort is important.

Every home needs a rocker. A rocker—and nothing else—will put a baby to sleep. If there are no babies in a home, a rocker will lull the elders. It's almost impossible to get quiet, emotionally, in a rocker. The rocker is a center of soporific movement is calculated to keep a man's balance. A generation ago when there were more rockers, there seemed to be more stability and fewer upsets. But there was more stability. Everything was not black and white. There was middle ground.

CHILD IMPORTANT

Society pretends to put the child at its center and this of course is sound Christian doctrine.

Yet we might put as well face the fact that we do not put the child at the center of our thinking. We put our own selfish love of indulgence, our comfort, our love of money, gaiety, and power, at the center of our national life. We point with pride—and rightly—to our system of public instruction, but we wash our hands of most of the responsibility to be teachers of our children in the home and are glad to be relieved of it. We spend hours taking our children from one place to another, yet probably in

The Art of Forged Art

(By Jayon Emerson in the Manchester Guardian)

There are fewer fake Picasso, than one might imagine, it seems that the more gullible art collectors much prefer the works of Dufy and Utrillo, which are in great demand.

One portrait of a girl at police headquarters which claimed to be by Modigliani could have convinced only an unbelievably unpractised eye. The eyes are all wrong, the cod had not blinked at the outrageous price which had been asked for it. On the other hand, we should have hesitated to denounce before examining all spotting fakes up to now, since the only permanent collection of avowed forgeries is the private one belonging to Heinrich Rubeman, of the Hall Gallery. Rubeman's exhibition of forgeries of the work of Utrillo and Vlaminck aroused great interest in Amsterdam recently. The possibility of a Rubeman exhibition in Paris is being considered; it would undoubtedly become a boom because fashionable for bamcooled collectors to vie with one another in presenting their bad buys to this museum of the future.

Cheaper Books Need of Future

(Ottawa Citizen)

No one disputes that television is the most powerful medium of this age. Already on this continent, although but a few years old, it has made serious inroads into the daily habits of millions. People tend to stay home, to read less, perhaps to think less. If, in time, their taste for reading books and magazines should decline, books—were this to be undermined, the world has a serious cultural loss for which no amount of good televised plays could quite compensate.

The Athenians listened with delight to the tales of the bards, the masters of the art of narration. So did successful generations of humanity, because the spoken word was nearly everything, until the printing press came along in the fifteenth century. Thenceforward, with ever increasing frequency, generations of educated men, and while dross as well as gold has issued from the printing presses, educated men, once they learn to distinguish between them, have something rare with some discretion.

Yet under the increasing impact of television, there seems to be not something to be taken for granted. Books are among the traditionally the companions of a quiet evening at home. Not that the individual has to raid an inelastic budget to buy TV sets, books or no books in the future.

One answer is to provide cheaper books even in their first editions. Three to four dollars for a new publication is not to pay for something (in most cases) ephemeral. Many publishers have developed the elaborate bindings—would put new writings within the reach of nearly everyone if they were published then be allowed to perish quietly; the remaining may be bound for the owner's permanent library. It's what is inside the covers that counts.

The paper-back is already making an invasion in the important field of reprints. But if a time ever arrives when the original can't be had what becomes of the reprints?

NINETEENTH CENTURY MEDICAL VAGARIES

Reporting on experience with rooming-in (baby kept beside mother's bed from birth till mother goes home) at Duke Hospital, Dr. Angus McBryde in a discussion of this interesting comment:

"A year was required to persuade the staff that rooming-in was desirable. The greatest opposition came from the nurses and obstetricians, but even some part of the pediatricians were hard to convince at first."

Reminds me of the Penn Yan case where I had to do the humble task of engaging "nurses" from getting into the act before I could finish my job. "Doctor, we can't leave us lots of cord." I never left Ireal

"The nurses resented any interference with the set routine of their duties . . . they liked lots of cord.) "The obstetricians did not want the mother hindered."

Obstructionists would be a more appropriate name for 'em. They don't mind in nineteenth century institutions how much they do but worries about what may be happening to her baby away off in the plate glass show window. And plenty does happen to unfortunate infants kept in the newborn nursery — in too many instances what happens to death from infectious diarrhea, carried from one infant to the next on the hands of the nurse who tends them.

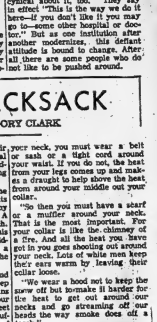
But the old timers at Duke Hospital gave up their fight against the new medical practice finally when a newspaper reported a nursery epidemic of infectious diarrhea in a Pennsylvania institution. But a nineteenth century thinker which killed many newborn infants.

It would be funny if it were not so dangerous how obstinately the old timers in practice cling to nineteenth century methods and beliefs even though newer knowledge has brought about improved techniques and experience has proved these developments desirable.

A great many hospitals, nurses, obstetricians and pediatricians still get by with the nineteenth century thinker any surgery practical about it, too. They say in effect "This is the way we do it here—if you don't like it you may go to—some other hospital or doctor." But a one institution after another modernizes, this defiant attitude is bound to change. After all, there is no institution who do'nt like to be pushed around.



THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

Polian, with his Dutch hair and his wide, generous, shortcut face, was one of the greatest guides on the Nipigon. He was telling us how to keep warm.

"A man is only a fire. When the fire goes out, he is dead. He is cold in, to feed the fire. Like any fire, the heat goes up on a man's body making it like a torch. The heat is flowing off with his head, so first of all he shoulders. If you put your hand near a man on a cold day, you feel the heat passing up off him.

"His feet are the lowest part, and so the coldest. He must keep his feet warm. You see us Indians in the winter and you will see us keep our feet high. It is not our feet that are big. It is wrapping of duffel, and it is maybe two pair of socks, and then it is moccasins and maybe rubbers on top of all that. If your feet are cold, there is too way to get heat down to the feet. The heat it must flow.

"If your feet are warm, then your legs will be warm. You put their heat from going up and your neck, you must wear a belt or sash, or a tight cord around your waist. If you do not, the heat will escape from you like it escapes as a draught to help shove the heat down around your middle out your collar.

"So then you must have a scarf or sash, or a tight cord around neck. That is the most important. For your collar is the first chimney for your heat. And all the heat you have got in you goes shooting out around your neck, like a fire when keep their ears warm by leaving their collars loose.

"We wear a hood not to keep the snow off but to make it hardger for the heat to get out around our necks and go streaming off our heads the way smoke does off a chimney.

I told Polian about the principles of insulation now had worked out in recent years, and described to him the way we insulate a house in the latest fashion.

Good!" said Polian. "Some day I will make man may get warm after all!"

THAT INHERENT DESIRE

How few of us realize the power that desire has in the shaping of our lives. Before we can win a thing we must desire it. We desire to do so. And the greater the desire the greater is the achievement.

To merely wish for something is vastly different than to desire it. Many a wish is but a sigh for what it will be to us. And this will increases as the desire becomes more pronounced. It is to be noted in every successful and happy life. Initative is the second thing necessary to success.

Desire keeps multiplying its power. It becomes gathering momentum. A friend of mine once told me he desired to be engineer. He is now a great engineer that it hurt! He came from a modest family. He had only a common school legge—but when I met him he had become one of the great electrical engineers of America. Outside an early nurturing, this desire has to be constantly with the power of the will. Its limits are boundless.

Where does this desire come from? Who invented it? God did. Without it there would be no hope in life, no aspiration, no set course to set out on, no goal to give balance and futility. People with no desires are mere sweepers. Only those with desires are first of foot and mind. Life for them is a day like a race and feel the heights.

Opportunities cluster about those alive with desires. Great surges of the best inventions are snatched by those whose desires only await their moment. Do you need a chance? The world owes you a living! What have you done with your desires? Bring it neither time nor space available to those who throttle their desires, or who do not marvel at their call.

Desire is planted in the mind, like a good seed. Cultivate it in good soil, and when it shows its first growths, water and give it full space and glory in its growth!

Top Notch Horse Show, Good Racing and Varied Program Attract 7,000 to Madoc Fair

Cool autumn weather and the counter attraction of the International Plowing Match at Cobourg may have kept a few people away from the annual Madoc Fair Wednesday, but it failed to dampen the enthusiasm of the estimated seven thousand, young and old, who jammed their way into the park.

Fair goers saw a topnotch horse show with both heavy and light classes being well represented; they saw excellent harness racing and fine livestock exhibits, including a big showing of Holsteins at the county Black and White Day show held in connection with the fair.

Beef type cattle, Jerseys and Ayrshires, were also well represented, while junior farmers had their say as members of the Madoc 4-H Calf Club held their achievement day and then vied for honors with the best from other county calf clubs.

Quantity Down

The number of exhibits in the agricultural building was possibly down from last year, but the building was still well filled with school exhibits; home cooking; flowers and fine examples of women's needlework.

There was a good dairy products show with over 40 large cheese on exhibition, pins two cheese displays, tying in with the October Cheese Festival. These two attractive displays made up of different cuts and sizes of cheese, were shown by the Eldorado and Tweed cheese factories, two of the most modern and well equipped cheese plants in the county.

One of the feature attractions in the agricultural building was th exhibit of the Moira River Conservation Authority in charge of district worker Don Bell. Pictures taken in the Moira watershed emphasizing the value of conservation were included in the display.

Did Good Business

Hot dog stands and other concessions did a land-office business throughout the afternoon as the midway was jammed by the after through District kiddies had a big time experiencing the thrill of the various midway rides.

As is expected at Madoc Fair the novelty program attracted its usual big crowd of spectators, while big entries in the various competitions assured keen rivalry for the many cash prizes.

The names of residents from the north part of the county appeared regularly among the contest winners with sawyers teams from Bird's Creek, north of Bancroft, coming in for three of the four prizes offered in the log sawing competition.

Winners of the event were the Freeman Brothers, with H. Gerwood and William Sarara, also of Bird's Creek, coming in for second money.

Bill Cannift and E. Laird, of Madoc, were in third place, and Charles and Alec Parks, of Bird's Creek, were fourth.

Took Top Honors

Mrs. J. Gaffney, of Bird's Creek, took top honors in the women's step dancing competition, with another North Hastings woman, Mrs. C. McCormick, of Bancroft, coming second.

There was real competition among the big field of entrants in the men's competition with D. Ross Devolin and Fred Devolin, Labb, of Kaladar, finally getting the nod. E. Sears, of Bird's Creek, was second and J. Collins, of Roslin, third.

Best husband caller was Mrs. E. Hammond, whose voice calling "Charlie, come to supper," broke through above even the din of the midway. Mrs. Dorothy Wager, of Enterprise, came in for second money.

Close Contest

Mrs. Mel Hawley, of Bancroft, proved best with the hammer in the ladies' nail driving, with Mrs. D. Howard, of Belleville, and Mrs. Len Ward, of Madoc, taking second and third place after a series of tie-breaking efforts.

Feeding the baby at the fair was four-year-old Bryan Hayton, of Madoc, who "out-freckled" Kenny, of Madoc, in a close contest for first money. There were ten entrants all told in the competition.

Mrs. Martha Hope, of Niagara Falls, won the prize as the Ontario woman travelling the greatest distance expressly for Madoc fair—206 miles. The men's counterpart went to John D. Rorke, of Owen Sound, the distance travelled being 225 miles.

Ted Burnside, from Bruce County, popular fairs entertainer, was on hand with his violin and retinue of humorous stories.

Madoc Merry Party Laird School of Dancing from Peterborough, presented a program of tap, ballet and character dancing with nine small performers participating.

All Members Take Part

One hundred percent completion was achieved by members of the Madoc 4-H Calf Club this year with all 13 members of the club being on hand for achievement day held in connection with Madoc Fair.

On the year's work, Ted Burnside was declared the winner in club competition. Placing for other club members was Betty Ketcheson, Doug Burnside, Grant Ketcheson, Bill Broadworth, Isobel Burnside, Doug Wood, Allan Franks, Glen Broadworth, Robt. Griffin, Ray Broadworth, Glen Moyes and Fred Devolin.

Ted Burnside also took honors in top showman of the club with Doug Burnside, Betty Ketcheson, Isobel Burnside and Bill Broadworth being next in line. Exhibitors of the first prize group of calves were Doug Burnside, Ted Burnside, Betty Ketcheson and Grant Ketcheson.

Madoc Club Wins

In the inter-club competition for county calf clubs, the Madoc club, composed of Ted and Doug Burnside and Betty Ketcheson, took top honors, in second place was the Belleville group of Jack Vermilyea, Louis Cummings and Ivan Phillips; third place was taken by the Stirling club members, Bob Donnan, Bob Chambers and Stella McComb, while the Mohawk club, composed of Lillian Marcelle, Donna Marcelle and John Maracle, came fourth.

Ted Burnside won the Wonnacott trophy as the top showman in the interclub competition, in which the top two in each county club were eligible to show. Ross Moorcroft is leader of the Madoc club.

Judge for the day was W. M. T. Ashton, agricultural representative for Lennox and Addington.

Black and White Show

Exhibitors in the Black and White Day show were Percy Broadworth, Madoc; Earl Burnside, Madoc; Jack Burnside, Madoc; Max Burnside, Madoc; L. J. Cummings, Corbyville; David L. Hollinger, Stirling; Bernard A. Hunt, Tweed; A. B. McComb and Son, Belleville; Mrs. William McComb, Bonarlaw; Stanley Moorcroft, Madoc; Everett B. Phillips and Son, Belleville; Ontario District Cattle Breeders' Assoc., Belleville; A. F. Vermilyea and Sons, Belleville, and Herbert Watt, of Foxboro.

The show was in charge of G. E. Nelson, of Fort Perry, fieldman; Charles Trevorton, president of the county breeders' club, and A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative. Roy Ormiston of Brooklin, was the judge.

Horse Racing

There was a full program of horse racing with three classes of harness racing and a pony race for the kiddies being run.

District farm machinery and automotive dealers were on hand with the latest in labor saving equipment, the machinery display taking up a large section of the infield.

The horse drawing contest attracted the customary crowd as two teams of blacks strained traces to outpull the dead-em like boulder-laden stone boats. Teams were entered by Gordon Chapman and Alex Moyes of Codrington.

Frost Favors Ontario Getting Gas from Alberta

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Frost of Ontario says that imports of United States gas to the Toronto area would "jeopardize" the development of an all-Canadian pipeline for Alberta gas.

Mr. Frost also told reporters following a meeting with Prime Minister St. Laurent that he hoped all groups interested in providing Ontario with natural gas would adopt a "reasonable attitude" which would eventually permit Ontario to be served with western gas.

"We want an all-Canadian pipeline," Mr. Frost said. He added that "piece-meal deals" would only block the economic feasibility of moving Alberta gas to Ontario.

The Consumers' Gas Company announced recently that it plans to import gas into the Toronto area from Texas. The company plans to buy the gas from the Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., Houston, Tex., which has received a permit to pipe gas to the Canadian border from the U.S. federal power commission.

No Big Slide Methods

Mr. Frost said "no big stick methods" would be used to prevent the company importing the American gas.

"We believe in an appeal to common sense," he said. "We hope that a reasonable attitude will prevail which will permit the construction of the all-Canadian pipeline."

Mr. Frost was told that the Consumers' Gas Co. had announced it would import the gas unless stopped.

"We will cross that bridge when we come to it," Mr. Frost said. Favors Canadian Pipeline

Mr. Frost said he agrees with the federal government's view that surplus Alberta gas should be made available to Canadians by an all-Canadian pipeline. He said the gas would be of major importance to Ontario because the province is "just about one leap ahead of a power shortage all the time."

The Ontario premier said Alberta now is supplying Ontario with about 45 per cent of its gasoline needs. He said his government would like to see Alberta fill all the provinces gasoline requirements.

Will Lack Power

Mr. Frost said that Ontario is "weak" in the fuel and power fields. Power resources in central Canada will "run out eventually," he said. Even power from the St. Lawrence river development "will fade into that picture when the province has a 'population of 8,-000,000 before 1960."

The Ontario premier said there should be some exchange of natural resources by Canada and the U. S. However, "We ought to have our eye on the development of our own resources to provide economic self-sufficiency in our own country."

Mr. Frost said no consideration had been given by his government to subsidizing the construction of an all-Canadian pipeline.

Weddings

RADGLEY—STANTON

A lovely candlelight wedding ceremony was solemnized on Saturday, October 3, at 8:00 p.m. in Bridge Street United Church, by the Rev. Duncan McTavish, pastor of the church, when Joyce Louise Stanton, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Stanton, became the bride of Ernest R. Radgley, also of Belleville, son of Mrs. E. Radgley, of Kingston, and the late Mr. Radgley. Tall standard bronze and gold chrysanthemums adorned the chancel of the church, accented by branched candelabra, while white satin bows, centred by a colored orchid, marked each end of the guest pews.

The wedding music was rendered by Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Eric Lahey, who sang before the ceremony, "Wherever You Walk", by Handel, and during the signing of the register, "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her white bridal gown of tiered nylon tulle organza, fashioned with molded, strapless bodice, having a matching jacket outlined in silver leaf motif, long V-pointed sheath-like sleeves. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a band of tulle illusion and she carried a bouquet of Amazon lilies and Stella Leeves.

Mrs. John Colden, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. Miss Velda Badgley, of Toronto, sister of the bridegroom, wore matching gowns in pronounced length, the former in haze blue nylon net illusion, and the latter in contemporary tone of autumn bronze, with matching feathered headdresses and carried hand bouquets of bronze baby mums and aquamarine baby mums, respectively.

Mr. John Colden, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were, Mr. Don Stanton, brother of the bride; Mr. John Meyers, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Eric Lahey, all of Belleville.

At the reception, which was held in the church auditorium, the bride's mother received, wearing seashell crepe accented by encrusted pearls and matching accessories and corsage of turquoise tinted baby mums. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in soft blue and crepe, with black accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart rosebuds.

For travelling to New York City, the bride wore an imported suit of Scotch wool in muted tones of green, brown, and rust with matching accessories in rust and hunter's green and tawny-bronze chrysanthemum corsage.

Guests were present from Toronto, Kingston and Marlbank.

Mr. and Mrs. Badgley will make their home in Belleville, upon their return.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a bridge and luncheon shower at the home of Mrs. St. Clair Hurlbut with co-hostesses, Mrs. G. Brearley, Mrs. C. Miller and Mrs. H. Wray. A crystal shower with Miss Margie Ann Maggard and Mrs. J. Way at the home of Mrs. P. C. Maguire; a shower and bridge with Mrs. T. Mott, Mrs. V. White, Mrs. E. Fairman, Mrs. L. Fenard, Mrs. D. LaPenna and Mrs. N. Garbutt as hostesses.

Mrs. E. E. Follwell entertained at a shower and bridge; a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Earl Morgan.

The bride's bridge club, a cup and saucer shower at the home of Mrs. W. McBride; the Sorority entertained at a party at the home of Mrs. W. C. McCutcheon and gave a gift from the group.

Mrs. Don Stanton, mother of the bride, entertained at a tea in her daughter's honor at home, prior to the wedding.

ST. ANDREW'S C.G.I.T.

A meeting of St. Andrew's C.G.I.T. was held on Monday.

'Little Helpers' Hold Thanksgiving Service

Golden shafts of sunlight pouring through lovely stained glass windows, autumn leaves, fruits, vegetables, flowers and sheaves of grain created a lovely atmosphere in Christ Church yesterday afternoon for the Little Helpers' annual Thanksgiving service.

Over 300 children, attended by mothers and grandmothers filed slowly into the nave pews to the strains of soft organ music rendered by the church organist, Mr. John Croyden Wilbers.

The Reverend Everett Smith officiated at the service taking the place of Archdeacon J. D. Creeggan who was unavoidably absent due to the funeral of a near relative. Mr. Smith read for the Scripture from the 18th of St. Mathew in which Christ teaches his disciples to be humble as a little child, when as an example He called the little ones to Him and blessed them, saying "suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

Thank-offering Deposited

During the singing of the children's hymn "Jesus Bids Us Shine," the little tots wended their way to the chancel rail where they deposited their mite boxes in white containers. Those too small to go alone were led by the mother or grandmother, or carried in their arms, all giving of their mites to the missionary work of the Lord, after which four small boys carried the containers to the foot of the altar, where the offerings were blessed and dedicated to God.

Mr. Smith also tendered a welcome, on behalf of Mrs. J. Cook, supervisor of the Little Helpers, to the children, mothers and friends who had assembled for this fine occasion; after which he gave a brief message on the topic "Ye Are Lights of Christ," mentioning as he did so the many letters in the Bible, and how one likes to receive a letter, which seems to bring the writer so near. Little children come as real letters from Jesus, to bright our lives.

Following the service, bountiful refreshments provided by the two W.A. branches, were served to the children and friends in the parish hall, where the tables were prettily decorated with autumn flowers.

V.O.N. Making Available New Rehabilitation Course

TORONTO (CP)—A course in modern rehabilitation nursing is being made available for the Victorian Order of Nurses.

Helen C. Anderson, assistant professor of nursing at the University of Washington, is in Canada to give the course and has already started in the Toronto district.

A broken arm which has been in a cast for a period of time is weak when the cast is taken off, Miss Anderson said. The same applies to persons lying in bed, especially during a long illness.

The rehabilitation process which Canadian nurses will learn begins from the time the patient is first confined to bed; not in the recovery stage. It applies to all types of nursing care—medical, surgical maternity and the permanently ill, Miss Anderson said.

The process is different from physiotherapy because it is inseparable from nursing. Nurses practising the rehabilitation process encourage the patient to do as much as possible for himself. The body movements are integrated with the regular nursing procedure for extra exercises.

Effectiveness of the rehabilitation process depends largely on the attitude of the patient and his family, Miss Anderson said. More persons are living longer today, the instructor said, and those who are most likely to have long illnesses.

After the 21 Ontario conferences have been completed and assessed, the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada is financing extension of its courses to the rest of Canada. Seven courses will eventually be given in Saint John, Halifax, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

The course in the Toronto district will be followed by lectures in Hamilton and Windsor. There have already been given in Ottawa.

Music Teachers Appoint Officers

The annual meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Leonard Dandeneau on Sunday afternoon, with a good attendance.

It was decided that the present executive consisting of president and secretary-treasurer be augmented to stimulate more interest in the organization which at present has 19 active members, and two associate members.

Officers Appointed

The election of officers took place with the following results —past president, Beula Handley; president, Mrs. Leonard Dandeneau; vice-president, Mrs. Fred Houston; treasurer, William Connor; secretary to be appointed as required; program convener, Mrs. Elliott, Stirling; assistant program convener to be chosen by the convener.

The advisability of helping to sponsor a concert at Albert College by the Pro Musica String quartet was decided in the negative.

The annual fees were collected by the treasurer those not present advised to mail same to Wm. Connor.

Music teaching problems were discussed during the social period, and it was decided, to hold the next meeting on first Sunday in December.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

An "Easy Target" For A Kiss

Are you "an easy target for a kiss?" And if so, do you feel not only perfectly comfortable about it but perfectly justified?

Here's a girl who does. She writes me to state her views because, she says, she knows from reading my column that I consider casual kissing cheap (as indeed I do) doesn't agree with me, and here's why:

"I never had a date until the late age of 18," she says, "and I think I missed a lot in never having had a chance to go through the adolescent period of dating and necking. But I was always shy, and the give-and-take of boys and girls who grew up together and go to school together never came easy to me. So I wasn't what you'd call a popular girl.

"In the past couple of years, though, I've come on. I've been kissed a fair number of times—the kind of kiss that you know doesn't mean anything and you don't mean anything when you return it. But I've come to feel that a kiss is an encyclable and harmless gesture, if not overdone and I think it's very foolish advice that bisses should be kept exclusively for the man you intend to marry. I thought that once myself, and did I miss a lot by taking kisses so seriously!

"Since I have no steady boy friend, should I deny myself the pleasure of feeling the satisfaction that comes when you're kissed and so made to feel like a human being? Shouldn't I make the most of what youth has to offer and store up some nice memories for the days when I expect to be an old maid school teacher? That, I think is the main reason I'm such an easy target for a kiss.

"I've wondered sometimes if it's natural and normal for me to enjoy being kissed and hugged by fellows. I'm not at all shy about it any more, even with strangers."

Practice Discriminates

Now, taking up the last paragraph first, let's assure this young woman, that—other than that it might be wise if she were to practice a little discrimination in regard to the kissing and hugging, just in case she happened to meet up some day with a chap who didn't have quite the same ideas as herself.

It occurs to me that she may have taken what I have said about kissing a bit more rigidly than I intended. I have nothing against a casual good-night kiss, which is apt to be taken for granted these days. But I have a very great deal against the type of kissing and petting in which many young people indulge today and which is a very dangerous form of playing with fire.

If all young men felt about kissing as this young woman feels it would be one thing. Unfortunately, they rarely do, and what to her may be a pleasant non-obligatory gesture, which she can make and let it go at that, may mean something quite otherwise to them.

It is perfectly true—and "natural and normal"—that any girl wants to feel that she is desirable, and I think this one is undoubtedly right in her contention that it would be a sad thing to grow up without having had that experience. But to respond to the warm glow of being made to feel desirable by turning into "an easy target for a kiss," is a highly hazardous type of response. And personally I doubt if the boys like her any better for it.

If she enjoys it, however and if she is confident that she will always be quite competent to remain in control of any situation that might arise as a result, that's up to her. It would be interesting, though, to hear what she has to say on the subject, say ten years from now.

'We Give Thee Thanks'

By Mary Moore

Our friend Barb has gone into the turkey-raising business. She says only fifteen turkeys are peasants compared to the numbers some raisers are tending. I know she is right too because Pete visited his friend Pete on his Dad's farm where they are raising seven hundred of the beautiful but dumb birds for sale at Thanksgiving and Christmas times.

But Barb's are closer to home and I've seen with my own eyes the proud beauty she has selected for Thanksgiving dinner—and we're invited! Then he weighed fifteen pounds, but Barb promised he'd tip the scales at twenty-five pounds by October 15, or she would bust.

So if we're going to have a Thanksgiving dinner in the Moore household (and we are) it will be on Sunday and this is the menu and I'm the gal that's going to cook it.

Thanksgiving Dinner Menu

Fruit Cocktail (seedless green grapes, grapefruit sections, melon balls)

Tiny Smoked (Oyster Canapes (See note)

Roast Turkey Nut Stuffing

French Braised Celery

Eggplant and Tomato Casserole

Cauliflower with Parsley Cheese Sauce

Carrot Curls, Olives, Gherkins

Cranberry Mincemeat Pie

Coffee

As you will see I have skipped potatoes for this banquet—meal for with stuffing in the turkey and pie for dessert the meal would be far too overpowering. I like the variety of vegetables and particularly endorse the French braised celery. Do try it for it is economical.

Tiny Smoked Oyster Canapes

I made these because someone brought me a can of tiny smoked oysters. To make the toast bed for canapes remove the crusts from fine white bread cut rather thin. Cut the bread into 2-inch rounds with cutter. Toast on one side only by sauteed in a very little butter in hot frying-pan over low heat until toasted golden. About 20 minutes before serving time spread untoasted side with a little mayonnaise. Press 2 drained, canned, smoked oysters on each. Top with tiny parsley sprig. These toast bases are used for smoked salmon or any shellfish spread, or for anchovies or shrimps or sardines too.

To make nut stuffing for the turkey make stuffing as you usually do—but do not add strong herbs. Add 1 cup blanched sliced toasted Brazils or almonds.

French Braised Celery

(Serves eight.)

In buttered casserole place 4 cups cut-up celery stalks (outer stalks cut in halves lengthwise then in small pieces are quite good), 1-4 cup chopped parsley, 4 water thin onion slices and 1 cup canned bouillion. Sprinkle top with 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon pepper and 2 strips of bacon cut very small. Cover and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 minutes, then sprinkle with about 2-4 cup buttered crumbs that are soft and bake uncovered for 20 minutes longer, to brown crumbs.

Cranberry Mincemeat Filling

To 1 lb. washed cranberries add 1 cup water and cook 15 minutes. Put 2 large cored apples through food chopper and add them with 1-4 cup chopped citron, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1-2 cup seedless raisins, 1-4 cup molasses, 2 tablespoons each butter and lemon juice, 1-2 teaspoon each cinnamon and allspice, 1-4 teaspoon nutmeg, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1 1-4 cups brown sugar.

This amount is sufficient for 2 pies. I made ours semi-openface by using lattice topping. Bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and bake until done.

I give thanks for my generous reader-friends—that's you.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Today's Tip . . . On A Word

Dept say "an invite" . . . for example, "I received an invite to the wedding." The noun is "invitation" . . . "I received an invitation to the wedding."

Correct Reply To A Formal Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle our discussion about this question: Is it ever correct to answer a formal invitation informally; that is, by telephone, or by word-of-mouth, or by informal note? Yesterday this question was being discussed at a meeting of our Sewing Club, and several of the group insisted that if you know the person sending the invitation very intimately (for example, the bride's mother), you may answer informally the formal wedding reception invitation. Please explain.

B.A.

The only correct way to answer a formal invitation is to write a formal reply . . . acceptance or regret. Since the formal invitation is written in the third person, the reply should also be written in the third person.

For example: the acceptance of a formal invitation to a wedding reception:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hill accept with pleasure the kind invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas for Tuesday, the sixth of November.

And a formal reply to the formal invitation should be sent, no matter how well you know the one (or ones) sending the invitation. The important point is that it is of great convenience to the hostess to file written acceptances under "acceptances," and written regrets under "regrets" . . . and it very well might slip her mind if you accept or regret verbally or by telephone note.

Should Write Their Thanks

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a beautiful church wedding is followed by a lovely reception and wedding dinner, is there some gesture that the groom's parents should make, to show their appreciation?

Anxious Reader

It shows proper and pleasant manners, a charming appreciation, for the groom's mother to write a letter of appreciation to the bride's mother. This letter is addressed to the bride's mother, hostess of the reception, and naturally includes enthusiastic thanks to the bride's father, host of the wedding. And the groom's mother's letter, of course, includes her husband's appreciation. (Remember that the groom's parents are the guests of honor at the wedding, and so naturally they thank for the wonderful hospitality and honor given them at the wedding and reception.) Very often too, particularly when the bride comes to live in her husband's community, the groom's parents give a Post-Wedding Reception in honor of the bride. A nice gesture!

DIES OF SCALDING

SCOTTSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A boiling pot of coffee brought death Tuesday to a 46-year-old woman prostrate with fever at her home. The family said Mrs. Omah Whitley had been subject to fainting spells and apparently fell to the floor in a faint while holding the pot of coffee. She died of severe burns.

Alberta's First Oil Wrung Out of Gunny Sacks in '86

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta's first oil—at a dollar a gallon—was wrung out of gunny sacks laid over oil seepages in the southwestern corner of the province.

The oil was discovered about 1886 at Cameron Brook, near Waterton, and the enterprising travellers were Kootenai Brown and Bill Aldridge, residents of the area. They sold the oil to ranchers for use in lamps and as a lubricant.

"That pioneer oil firm charged $1 a gallon," said D. I. Ivanstty, chief statistician of the Alberta government, in an address to the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Historical Society.

Mr. Istvanffy said the Turner valley field, destined to be the major natural gas and petroleum field in Canada for more than 25 years, was discovered after the turn of the century. A. W. Dingman organized a company in 1913 which drilled three wells in the Black Diamond area, 25 miles southwest of Calgary.

Leaky Strike

In 1924 the reorganized company drilled Royalite No. 4. As the well deepened and expenses mounted, the investors became worried. Finally word was sent that drilling was to cease.

"However," Mr. Istvanffy said, "word got to the drillers just after a new shift had gone to work. If they had stopped then, it would have been necessary to pay the men for an unworked shift and the tool pusher fall that he might as well get value for his money anyway, so he kept drilling. At the end of the shift, Royalite No. 4 had blown in."

At a depth of 3,760 feet and 260 feet into the limestone formation, natural gas was struck in tremendous quantity and at an unknown pressure. Along with the gas came a highly volatile "naphtha gasoline" and a second Turner Valley boom was on.

The third major event in Turner valley history was the completion of Home No. 1 well in 1929 in another section of the field. Home No. 1 began as a prolific naphtha producer. This third boom lasted long after the general stock market collapse in 1929.

Big Oil Producer

In 1936 a well named "Turner Valley Royalties" established Turner valley at last as a crude oil producer. The well blew in from a depth of 4,233 feet and yielded tremendous quantities of oil with only a small gas flow.

The success of the well, on the west flank of the field, sparked an intensive oil search on the Prairies which has already led to the discovery of the Leduc, Redwater and other fields in the Edmonton area.

Turner valley reached its peak production in 1942 with more than 10,000,000 barrels of oil. From 1942 to 1947 when the Leduc field was found, Turner valley was the only major Canadian oil field.

"While no one will argue that Turner valley is now well past its prime," Mr. Istvanffy said, "there are still many oil men who contend that its life will be extended for another 15 or 20 years and that another 30,000,000 barrels of oil will be taken from Canada's first major oil field."

Died of Injuries

KITCHENER (CP)—A coroner's jury Wednesday night decided that Herbert Otto, 62, found dead in a police cell Saturday night, died of injuries received in an automobile crash two hours earlier.

Evidence showed Otto had been charged with driving while his ability was impaired following a two-car collision in nearby New Hamburg.

Dr. W. J. Armstrong, pathologist said he believed death resulted from a haemorrhage from a small tear in the liver and the abdominal lining.

There is no "overnight cure" for irregularity

But there is a simple, natural answer to the common problem of irregularity due to lack of bulk

There are men and women (perhaps you're one of them) who won't let "nature take its course".

THEY TRY TO SUBSTITUTE UNNATURAL "FORCING ACTION" FOR THE NATURAL REGULARITY WHICH SENSIBLE DAILY HABITS AND SUFFICIENT BULK IN THE DIET COULD PROBABLY MAINTAIN.

Many fall into the habit of using laxatives in a way laxative makers never intended. They take "big doses" willy-nilly without even reading the directions on the label.

Naturally, such overdoing—with products intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage—exerts upon the delicate digestive system an unnatural strain.

There's nothing wrong, of course, with taking laxatives occasionally. If you feel you have to take a laxative, just be sure you take it wisely—not an occasion, recommended dose.

BUT THERE IS A WAY TO AVOID TAKING DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES AND TO PLACE YOUR DEPENDENCE ON NATURE IF LACK OF BULK IN THE DIET IS YOUR TROUBLE.

In many natural foods—such as certain vegetables, fruits, and grains—nature grows abundant natural bulk which normally and gently aids the rhythmical process of elimination.

In no other natural food is natural bulk so ideally found as in the outer layers of the whole wheat kernel, known generally as bran.

Bran is nature's "laxative food instead of a medicine". When properly processed and shredded, whole wheat bran yields smooth natural bulk that the digestive system can handle in a natural way.

The Kellogg Company has made whole wheat bran into a delicious breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN PERFORMS NATURALLY WHAT DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES DO CHEMICALLY. IT HELPS CLEAR THE INTESTINES OF WASTE IN A NATURAL WAY. IT PROVIDES SOFT NATURAL BULK FOR EASY NATURAL ACTION.

There is no stomach upset, no churning, no after-effect except the feeling of satisfaction and fulfillment that comes with natural, normal elimination.

To obtain lasting relief, of course, Kellogg's All-Bran must be eaten regularly. You can have it for breakfast every day because of the knowledge that it isn't habit-forming.

More than one million servings of Kellogg's All-Bran are consumed each day. This popularity of itself is proof that this natural laxative cereal lives up to what we say about it.

But even better proof comes from thousands of satisfied All-Bran users. They write of their own free will to tell us what natural relief they receive from eating Kellogg's All-Bran daily and drinking plenty of water.

EAT KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN EVERY MORNING FOR BREAKFAST FOR 10 DAYS. THEN, IF YOU'RE NOT COMPLETELY SATISFIED, SEND THE EMPTY CARTON TO THE KELLOGG COMPANY, LONDON, ONTARIO—AND GET DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK.

Remember—Kellogg's All-Bran has helped millions. Why not you?

Cabinet to Hold Private Hearings On Airlines Case

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet will hold private hearings on the Canadian Pacific Airlines air transport application before making a decision, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced Wednesday.

Mr. St. Laurent said that both CPA and Trans-Canada Air Lines will be asked to submit arguments to the cabinet.

He said the hearing will be in private. Both groups will be given three hours Oct. 30 and three hours Oct. 31 to present arguments.

Mr. St. Laurent told reporters "we want to hear the whole story before we make our decision."

Asking Licenses

The CPA seeks a licence to fly scheduled air cargo flights from Montreal to Vancouver via The Pas, Man., and Edmonton. TCA now holds a monopoly on scheduled air cargo carriage in Canada.

The CPA application was referred to the cabinet by the air transport board which asked for cabinet direction on the general policy involved in such licence applications.

The application was opposed by TCA, which now holds a monopoly on east-west air cargo. If the application were approved the two companies would compete in the cargo field.

Richardson; Dennis Harry Hubble, and Doreen Louise Hubble, children of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hubble, and Harvey Kenneth Cojeh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Cojeh.

Mr. Murray Spence, of Brampton, gave the special rally day message.

Gun Spotters, Experienced Army Men, Flying in Unit

By ART BEYDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CAMP SHILO, Man. (CP)—Nerves of steel and an oil-spotted uniform are badges of membership in the Canadian Army Air OP services.

Air Observation Post units are best-known for their work in the Second World War, guiding the fire of allied artillery. The service, which lapsed after the war, now is being revived.

Ten pilots are active at present, six more are about to graduate from the joint services training centre at Rivers, Man., and another flight has been started at Petawawa, Ont.

Experienced Men

Potential spotters are experienced army men with artillery training and preferably some time in action. They fly the British-made Auster, a tiny two-seater plane not similar to the American Piper Cub or light Stinson.

What one pilot made these planes do in a demonstration here would amaze many an air force veteran.

Lieut. Doug Baker of Orillia, Ont., a lean 23-year-old with a brush cut, is officer commanding the squadron at this military camp, 20 miles east of Brandon. Baker is a gunner with a year's experience.

He pointed to several oil spots on the left cuff of his flying suit.

"You can always spot one of our boys," he said. "A small oil leak in the cockpit of the Auster does that."

Men chosen for the unit get a stiff RCAF-type medical. At Brandon Flying Club they are taught to fly light aircraft. After about 75 hours in the air, they move to Rivers where army instructors teach them to adapt their skill to army needs.

Hedge-Hoppers

The course includes fence-top navigation, night flying, plopping an aircraft in about 300 yards of rough field and learning to take advantage of low speed and tight turning to dodge high-speed fighters.

"We take on the Mustangs all the time and never have any trouble," Lieut. Baker said, "as long as we see them first."

The ideal operational height for artillery work is between 300 and 600 feet. The aircraft flies over or behind the guns as it is vulnerable to ground fire. On rare occasions, if the gun position is far enough to the rear, the plane may operate in front and have the shells lob over it.

The pilot works alone. While flying between 45 and 90 miles an hour, he operates his radio connection with the gun battery, observes where the rounds fall after giving the gunners a map reference, corrects their aim, watches for enemy aircraft and ground fire and in some cases dodges the shells.

Most targets are pre-arranged and the pilot knows his map reference before leaving the ground. In some cases he scouts an area and lyings fire down on likely targets. He waits until the gunner gives the ready signal, then pulls his aircraft into a tight turn so he is in position to plot the shells' landing spot.

Eager Beavers

The young pilots are eager to expand their activity. They recommend rockets, spot camp sites, evacuate casualties and limit lost people. At the huge Shilo ranges, this last job can be a long, tough chore.

The newest idea is a wire-laying device by which the planes could bring communication wires now done on the ground by engineers, at a mile-a-minute from the air.

During operations, planes are serviced by RCAF ground crews and air strips are provided by army engineers. If the engineers are too busy or unavailable, the pilots do the job themselves.

Liners Berth Without Aid of Tugs

The Italian liner Andrea Doria is shown nudging into dock at New York. Striking longshoremen who paralyzed the great port are in foreground. A three-man board of inquiry for the U.S. examines its bearings and sent a report to President Eisenhower recommending an injunction which ended, for 80 days at least, the strike of more than 60,000 longshoremen in ports from Maine to Virginia. Many ships scheduled to dock at U.S. ports have been routed to Halifax. —Central Press Canadian.

Lower Estimate Of St. Lawrence Power Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—New York State has substantially lowered—possibly by "several millions"—its estimate of its cost share of the huge St. Lawrence river power project.

New York plans to join with Ontario in building the giant development expected to yield more than 13,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy a year.

Charles M. Goetz, counsel for the New York state power authority, told reporters the lower estimate results from a simplified powerhouse now planned on Barnhart Island and lower-than-expected dredging costs.

Cost $318,000,000

New York, in testimony before the United States federal power commission, estimated that the total cost of its half of the international project would be about $318 000,000. Of that, $240,000,000 would be for actual construction and the remainder for interest and other financing charges during the five-to-seven-year construction period.

Goetz said the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, which will build the Canadian half of the project, has also come up with lower estimates.

New York has not formally accepted from the U. S commission its license to construct the American portion of the project. This will be done, Goetz indicated, on or about Nov. 15.

Nov. 1 Is Deadline

Opponents of New York's part in the project have until Nov. 1 to institute court proceedings to halt its construction.

There are no present indications that action to delay the project will be started.

The project, which will dam the St. Lawrence, will be built in the international rapids section of the river between Massena, N. Y., and Cornwall, Ont.

If no delays are encountered, it is considered likely that some phases of the construction will be started next spring.

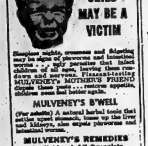
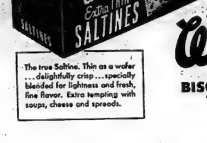
Carrier Returns To Birthplace After Exercises

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian aircraft carrier Magnificent has returned to her birth place, Belfast, for a week's recreational visit. One of five Canadian warships which participated in the mammoth Exercise Mariner in the North Atlantic, the Magnificent had spent 19 days at sea when she put into Belfast Monday.

The other four ships—the cruiser Quebec, destroyer escort Algonquin and frigates La Hulloise and Swansea—were proceeding 45 other United Kingdom ports.



A navy report from aboard the Magnificent said the following message had been received from Vice-Admiral I. S. Combs of the United States Navy who directed her during Exercise Mariner:



"The contribution of your air group to Mariner has been outstanding. The Magnificent has consistently done more than her share throughout the exercise. . . ."

The Magnificent is commanded by Commodore H. S. Rayner of Ottawa and St. Catharines.

Around World Air Service In 48 Hours British Plan, One Route by Way of Canada

TORONTO (CP)—Regular passenger service around the world in 48 hours now is being planned, Sir Miles Thomas, chairman of British Overseas Airways Corporation, said today. However, considerable hurdles had yet to be made before they could be established.

He told the Empire Club BOAC plans to girdle the world by two routes, one in the northern hemisphere and one in the southern.

The planned northern route would be from London to Canada; then, subject to agreement with the Canadian government, probably along the fringes of the polar regions of northern Canada, and south to Edmonton or Vancouver, thence across the North Pacific to Tokyo with return to London via Manila, Burma, India and the Mediterranean area.

The planned southern route would be from London to New York, to San Francisco, thence through Honolulu across the South Pacific to Fiji, New Zealand, Australia, and back to Britain through Singapore, Calcutta and the Middle East.

Many Problems

Before these come to pass, however, many problems have to be solved and agreements reached with the governments of countries on the routes.

Weather conditions at 40,000 feet across the North Atlantic are as yet "almost unknown," and a study of the performance of present jet airliners on ice-covered runways in extremely low temperatures will have to be made.

"One problem, particularly in low temperatures, is to reduce the momentum of the jet with brakes. Jet aircraft have no reversible propellers; and no one is examining the question of whether parachutes at the tail would be practicable and whether some form of gear to reverse the thrust of jets can be developed."

May Use Pinke-Throwers

Another suggestion was to have these developed small jets of runways, with their could be covered with sand so that brakes could act in normal fashion. Warmer Pacific climates would offer opposite conditions, all within a few hours travel.

Sir Miles said he considered the most remarkable event in aviation since the Wright brothers first flew in 1903 was that of May, 1952, when 36 passengers took off in a British de Havilland Comet for South Africa on the first regular passenger service to be flown by a jet-propelled airliner.

By the end of the first year BOAC Comets were flying more than 150,000 miles a week in passenger service and were making a "gratifying profit."

Would Use Comets

The company would cover its proposed world routes with Comets, of which an improved version would be introduced next year, and, at reduced fares and "only slightly slower speeds," with the new turbo-propeller Britrol Britannia, a highly-promising airliner for delivery within the next two years."

The Britannia would fly at speeds approaching 400 miles an hour, would stay in the air a long time and use less than per pound of thrust developed.

"It should give Britain and the Commonwealth a lead in the introduction of long-haul, short-haul, national civil air transport. Just as the Comet astonished the world, I am convinced that the Britannia will set the international air services by the ears because of the low cost of operation and the long distances it will be able to cover."

Other Planes Planned

"On the drawing boards in Britain are other remarkable British jetliners which will mark a still further important stage in the development of civil aviation—among them the proposed civil version of the big Avro Vulcan and Handley Page Victor bombers and the Vickers VC. 7 civil aircraft project. . . .

"Already I have detailed on a drawing board an aircraft seating 100 people that will travel non stop between London and New York in seven hours; that will reach Australia in a day with a full pay-load of passengers. No place on earth will be more than 24 hours distant from any other."

Atomic Planes Being Developed Paper Claims

TORONTO (CP)—The Star said Wednesday that atomic-powered planes, each capable of circling the earth three times for every four pounds of uranium fuel, are being developed by allied scientists.

"Closest co-operation yet between Canada, Britain and the United States is reported this week with the meeting of Canada's and Britain's top aircraft designers in New York," the newspaper said. It added:

"Discovery of a new metal alloy is said to have speeded progress. Canada's Chalk River atomic scientists are reported to have investigated this alloy, which would replace lead as a shield against radiation from an atomic reactor."

11 To Be Laid Off

STRATFORD (CP)—Eleven employees in the motor power shops of Canadian National Railways here will be laid off Friday, D. E. Mackinnon, shops superintendent, said Wednesday.

A statement Tuesday said 28 workers would be laid off. Mr. Mackinnon said earlier Wednesday that the layoff of the 28 had been postponed, indefinitely.

Forty-seven men were laid off at the shops last week. A tie-up in western grain shipments was blamed.

FIECK RE-ELECTED

Britain to Unceasingly Seek East-West Talks Says Eden Despite Russian Attitude

By TOM SCHULTZKE

MARGATE, England (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden declared today that Britain will "unceasingly" for East-West talks at whatever level possible despite Russia's negative attitude.

In his first public appearance after a six-month sick leave, Eden told the opening session of the annual Conservative party conference that Prime Minister Churchill's government is also seeking ways to assure the Russians "that we do not threaten their security."

Eden stressed that the first aim of British policy is "to maintain the unity and strength of the Western alliance." And Britain was "determined to keep our alliance defensive in character, to indulge in no provocation, and to take advantage of any and every opportunity for settling difficulties and solving disputes."

Room For Fariers

"That is our policy. There is room in it for any meeting or conference which seems to be practicable or profitable. There is certainly room in it for assurances to the Soviets that we do not threaten their security. We are working on that, to see in what form such assurances might be given."

Eden launched a sharp attack on recent Labor party criticism blaming the United States for failure to hold the four-power talks suggested May 11 by Prime Minister Churchill. Eden said:

"To read some comments, you would think that a four - power meeting at the highest level was some magic formula which only the Americans prevent us from enjoying. That is of course the greatest nonsense."

No Russian Eagerness

Eden said the latest Soviet reply Sept. 29 to the Western note proposed a conference on Germany shows "no eagerness for a meeting on any level."

"If the Soviet note) is an involved and negative document to which, I trust, we shall speedily return a clear and positive reply. Because, for our part, we really want this four-power meeting on Germany."

Eden received an enthusiastic ovation from the 4,000 representatives attending the Conservative conference. He was cheered as he entered the hall and again as he rose to speak.

His face was tanned and he appeared to have made a successful recovery from his long illness. He was somewhat thinner and his hair was a bit greyer than it was six months ago.

Police to Use Cameras to Catch Speedy Drivers

TORONTO (CP)—Cameras to photograph speeding cars and their licence plates will be set up in police cars on Ontario highways next spring to catch speeders and traffic-wavers, a provincial police officer said Wednesday.

OPP radio communications department said the cameras are included in new radar equipment also to be installed which will graph a car's speed on a permanent record.

Ontario Govt. Will Construct Humber Bridge

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government Wednesday approved construction of a new $4,500,000 bridge over the Humber river on Toronto's western boundary and agreed to underwrite the cost in full.

In a letter to mayor Allan Lampert, Highways Minister Doucett said: "It is quite in order for you to proceed with this. We will take care of the cost of same."

The announcement culminates years of conferences and planning. The new bridge will enable free flow of traffic from the Queen Elizabeth Way on and off the city's Lakeshore boulevard. The present narrow bridge is one of Toronto's biggest traffic bottlenecks.

CPR Reports Some Layoffs

MONTREAL (CP) — A "seasonal" reduction in traffic has led to some temporary layoffs of Canadian Pacific Railway employees, a CPR spokesman said Wednesday.

He said no figures are available on the number of men affected. The situation varied from day to day, depending on the amount of traffic.

Most of the layoffs, he said, probably could be attributed to the glut of grain in eastern elevators and the consequent reduction in movements from Western Canada. The men affected mainly were train crews and shop workers.

Canadian National Railways recently announced that 300 workers, mainly in back shops, were laid off because of the grain movement tieup.

Charge Reduced Against Driver In Bus Accident

MORRISBURG (CP) — Lorne Chesebrough, 20-year-old Kingston, Ont., bus driver, Wednesday was committed for trial on a reduced charge of dangerous driving as a result of a bus-truck accident near here last July 31 in which 20 persons were killed.

Magistrate F. M. Cass refused to commit Chesebrough on a charge of manslaughter, laid following the accident.

Chesebrough was the driver of a Colonial Coach Lines bus which plunged into the Williamsburg canal three miles west of here after striking a truck on the highway.

Max Roodman, 40-year-old Ottawa and Toronto trucker, owner of the truck, Tuesday was committed for trial of a charge of manslaughter. Roodman and Chesebrough will be tried at the fall assizes opening at Cornwall Oct. 26.

Not Enough Evidence

Magistrate Cass said that in his opinion there was not sufficient evidence to warrant Chesebrough being tried on the more serious charge. However, he said he felt that a jury might consider that there was some evidence of dangerous driving.

Hayden A. Hughes of Ottawa, Cocsesrough's counsel, blamed the accident entirely on the fact that Roodman's truck, in poor mechanical condition and without lights, was parked on the highway in an extremely dangerous manner, and not in accordance with the Highway Traffic Act.

Earlier, Lawrence Doran of Toronto, one of the surviving passengers, testified that Chesebrough had been extremely cautious during the trip from Kingston. Doran estimated the speed of the bus at the time of the crash at about 45, possibly 50 miles an hour.

Solbsrz, Beech Grove, Que.; Swen Swanson and Henry Thomson, Chilliwack, B.C.; Sterling Moore, Charlottetown, and Delmer Duffy, Nanpan, N.S.

In the other feature event of the day, the first contour competition held at the international, a 37-year-old Ottawa district dairy farmer who never had attempted contour plowing until a few hours before the competition, won the class.

Interested In Plan

Colin Thomson, who headed the six competitors including Cumvirus, the American contour champion, said he was interested in contour work although there is no need for it on his flat farm near North Gower, 20 miles southwest of Ottawa. He has competed at internationals since he was 11 years old, taking home many prize ribbons. He has been a Carleton county champion for seven years.

Irvin van Alstine of Crobetton, Ont., was second and Donald M. Carruthers of Cobourg third. Placings for the other competitors, Cummins, William John Lambert of Woodville, Ont., and George F. Fryst of Belleville, were not announced.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop smoking in back of the sports page, saying, Just stay comfortable, William, keep your feet on the cushion and your slippers on your feet.

Thank you, my dear, pop said in fact that was the very thought I had in mind, he said, and ma said, Maud Hews seemed quite anxious for us to go around there and play bridge this evening, but I know you played Monday, and when you've played once in any one week, you think the world has stopped revolving. So I didn't promise Maud, she said.

You showed excellent judgement, pop said, and ma said, So just relax and smoke away to your heart's content. I'm not going to plead with your or coax you or try to force you in any way, she said.

I admire your attitude, my dear, pop said. If we would all bow to the inevitable, the strain of daily existents would disappear and life would glide on the ball bearing of philosophy, he said, said ma said. When you've made up your mind not to put forth the slightest effort to go out, wild mountains cant move you, so I certainly have no intention of beating my head against a stone wall.

Yes, I guess Kipling had it rite when he wrote, Home is home, there's no other place, When one strong man meets face to face, pop said, and ma said, So that's my first and final word on the subject and the last you'll hear from me, But the fact remains that it would n't hert you to go, she said.

My dear, it's a woman's world and I've been reddy to go for 5 minutes, pop said.

And he changed his slippers to his shoes and they went.

National Hockey League Opens New Season With Action On Two Fronts

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

ALMOST ANYTHING!

It could turn into a battle of flying tackles versus flying marvel; half-nelsons against fullbacks, end runs smashing off into cheap, etc. In fact it could develop into almost anything.

It could be slaughter, or sheer slapstick when the Pirates of Pachydermia meet the Seattle Ramblers in the "Muscle Bowl" in Tacoma next Sunday.

The Pirates are comprised of graduates of the College of Applied Pachydermy and is the first team to represent the slow mammoth of the battleweapon behemoths.

The proceeds of the game will go to a boys' club of Tacoma, minus the price of a steak dinner for those who still are in possession of their chompers at the cessation of hostilities.

The cauliflower cuties are well stocked with football talent since a number of them are "collitch stars," emaciated little fieldgigantians who tip the scales anywhere between 345 and 350.

Leering at the foe from the "Rambler" line will be two masked horrors, one black, the other red, who have refused to expose their facial beauty, even to a football crowd. Both are exponents of the hammerlock tackle. Then there is the "Ram", another disguised beauty, who wouldn't take off his map cover to play post-office with Lana Turner. Another kind, pootie, little playboy who will start at end is a character named Kindred, whose specialty is the head butt. He simply grabs an opponent by both ears and cracks heads with him. Sort of working himself to the bone, as it were.

Big 300-pound Patrick Maloney, a pachydermic Flin McCool (he's the harp that once threw Tara's Halls) will be in a halfback spot. In preseason Fairbrick faded back to toss a pass when suddenly there was a sharp explosion. Fairbrick looked down, tossed away the burst football, picked up two of his interference and ran 185 yards for a touchdown.

Their names will not appear on the line-up but the Muscle Mightites could probably use Hans Schmidt and Hans Schacht, the Terrible Teutons who could goose-step down field from their Watch on the Line.

The Ramblers will likely confine their offensives to the air, since it is reported that when the Muscle Mauliers line up across the field, plus equipment, shoulder pads, etc., there isn't any room for end runs. And since standard football equipment is not included in the Pachydermic line the Ramblers will have to become space cadets if they want to cross the opposing goal-line.

As was said before, the game could develop into almost anything.

SOFTBALL BANQUET!

President Cy Barriage, of the Belleville and District Softball League, which winds up the season's activities with a "Kick-off" banquet on October 19, reminds all team coaches, managers, etc., of the pre-banquet meeting slated for October 12. Plans for the "do" presentation of team and individual trophies, etc., will be finalized and all are urged to be present. The tickets for the banquet are now available and can be secured from Joe Agnew, at the Tip Top Tailors store, Front and Bridge, or from other executive members. Prexy Barriage and his executive hope to have a large turnout to close out what is said to be the most successful football season since the Parvical Sixers brought back an Ontario title in 1936.

WOTTA MAN!

"Swede Nelson, former Harvard coach, who spoke to a Montreal service club some time ago, told stories about the fabulous Bronco Nagurski, Canadian football star, who made gridiron history south of the border in his heyday, recalls Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll.

Bronco played for the University of Minnesota when the football team was coach by Hank Bierman. "Swede" was talking to the Bronc one day and told him the story related to him by Bierman about how he got such big players.

"I drive around the country," Bierman said, "till I see a fellow out in the fields plowing. Then I go up to him and ask him where he lives. If he just points, I don't want him. If he points with the plow, he's my boy."

"Nagurski listened with interest. Then he blinked, and said, 'without horses?'"

Nagurski fans proudly boasted that the Bronc could make three yards through a brick wall. There's the story that he once hit a goalpost with his head, bounced off and caromed into the concrete part of the stadium. His teammates rushed to his aid. The Bronc shook his head and said, "I'm okay, but that last guy that hit me really hurt."

— Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants, had a story told about him. It seems he was an Oklahoma cowboy, who never saw a football until he was 16 years of age. One day he came to a field where the boys were playing football. Owen got interested and since he was a strapping 200-pounder, the coach invited him to try out. Owen took the ball and ran with it through the entire team.

"Let me see you do that again," said the coach, "only this time take off your spurs."

Canadiens Hosts to Chicago With Rangers Meeting Wings; Leafs Open Hostilities Sat.

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League swings into the 1953-54 campaign tonight, a campaign already marked by the inevitable brave talk of all coaches and the determination of fallflower rookies to escape the big-time blight.

President Clarence Campbell looks for unusually close competition—and more customers.

The fundamental thing about a successful race is to have balanced competition, said Campbell. "I think we will have it more so than for some years. If that prediction is correct, attendance will almost automatically increase; that's a proven fact, at least up to now."

The opening action is on two fronts. Montreal Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions, are hosts to Chicago Blawk Hawks while New York Rangers visit Detroit Red Wings, first-place team last season.

Boost Nets

By Sunday night, all teams will have played. Boston Bruins are the last to get into action.

Toronto Maple Leafs meet the Black Hawks in Toronto Saturday night and Detroit plays in Montreal the Sunday schedule. Montreal at Boston, Toronto at Detroit, New York at Chicago.

President Campbell's optimism is borne out by training camp reports, acceptable with or without a grain of salt.

The 1953-54 season—again calling for 70 games for each club—brings new changes in coaches. King Clancy, with a long and colorful career as player, referee and coach behind him, takes over from Joe Primeau as pilot of Toronto. Manager Frank Boucher of New York, who served as coach following his playing days as centre-ice star, returns to the bench, this time in the dual role of manager-coach.

Here's a run-down of the clubs, give or take a few rookies who may be going or coming as opening-game line-ups tell:

Montreal—The signing of Jean Beliveau was the biggest thing since the arrival of Maurice, Dick Gamble and John McConnack have been left on Lorne Davis and Calum MacKay may stick. Nine line-up shifts may find Bert Olmstead with the Habs and opposite Rocket Richard, with Beliveau at centre. Eddie Mazur, rugged rookie, will fit in with another line.

Chicago—Coach Sid Abel, who figures on staying out of the game, has Gordie Howe to fire up his veterans. Three newcomers, from Edmonton, may help. No worries about goal with Al Rollins on the job.

Detroit—There are few newcomers, but rookie Earl (Dutch) Reibel may fill the long-felt need as centre for the line with Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay. Reibel, with Edmonton last season, was Western Hockey League scoring champion. Terry Sawchuk, ace goalie, appears in top form.

Toronto—The Leafs are building around veteran Ted Kennedy and Max Bentley, with promising newcomers that includes forwards Eric Nesterenko, Ron Stewart and Gord Hanlan and defencemen Leo Boivin and Tim Horton.

New York—The Rangers have lots of rookie talent, plus veteran Max Bentley, wily centre obtained from Toronto. Johnny Bower, up from Cleveland Barons, is hailed as one of the best goalies in the business. Other rookies who have been bidding strongly for jobs: defencemen Bob Chrystal, Cleveland; Ike Hildebrand, Cleveland; Billy Dea, Lethbridge junior. The wall is worth two points.

Sasky Riders Protest Play In Stamps Game

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders have protested a play in the final two minutes of Monday's Western Interprovincial Football Union game here with Calgary Stampeders, won by Stamps 8-6.

Trailing by a single point, Riders kicked on second down. The ball bounced off Stampeder halfback Henry Johnson and rolled behind the Calgary goal line where Johnson fell on it. Saskatchewan was given a no-yards penalty.

President Bob Kramer said Tuesday night the Rider protest is based on the opinion that Johnson made a stab for the ball when it first hit the ground near the Calgary goal line and that he touched it.

He said this made it a loose ball and yards were not necessary.

Each Yankee Banks $8,280.63 Of Series Loot

NEW YORK (AP)—Each member of New York Yankees who helped Casey Stengel's crew gain will bank a record cheque for $8,280.63, baseball commissioner Ford Frick announced Wednesday. Those voted full shares by Brooklyn Dodgers will each receive $6,178.42.

The Yankee windfall, shared by 22 players, manager Casey Stengel, four coaches, trainer and traveling secretary, easily eclipses the previous record payoff of $6,772.05 posted by the world champion Cleveland Indians of 1948. Second-place money compares to the $4,851.53 previous high received by New York Giants two years ago.

Each of the second-place clubs in the league, Cleveland in the American, and Milwaukee in the National, will receive $50.62 from the whopping world series receipts to divide among its players.

big scoring threat is little Wally Hergesheimer, fourth highest point getter in the NHL last season.

Boston—Coach Lynn Patrick figures Leo Gardiner, obtained from Chicago, will help immeasurably. Ed Sandford, veteran stand-pat club and aspiring rookies will have a tough time displacing veteran Jack Gelineau, nearing his 37th birthday, is still a handy man between the pipes. Milt Schmidt, though 35, remains a fixture with the club. Smart Jim Henry, Bill Quackenbush and Reginald defenceman Hal Laycoe likely will start because of a knee injury.

WJHL STARTS OCT. 20

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Edmonton Oil Kings and Medicine Hat Tigers open the WJHL Western Junior Hockey League season Tuesday, Oct. 20, at Medicine Hat, it was announced Wednesday. Lethbridge and Medicine Hat, Calgary Canucks, Edmonton and Regina and Moose Jaw will play each other 12 times during the season with each game worth one point in the standings. All other games will be worth two points.

OMHA Renews Group Insurance For Players

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association officially announced today that the group insurance plan in effect last year will again be available to every minor hockey player in Ontario. At a cost of one dollar per player, protection is provided (with $10 deductable) up to $200, against injury while playing, practising or being transported in or from a hockey game or practice under O.M.H.A. jurisdiction. The O.M.H.A. was the first governing body to provide such insurance, and the plan was such a success that it will be continued.

Local league officials (town and city associations) are reminded that the O.M.H.A. will provide certificates for all affiliated leagues. The only cost is the affiliation fee of twenty-five cents per team, and all players in the local league becomes eligible for O.M.H.A. insurance. Application forms and policies are now available from the O.M.H.A. secretary.

A warning is issued to all minor age players who played in the O.M.H.A. last year that they must sign a certificate, either in the O.M.H.A. or the O.H.A.; before taking part in any games for O.H.A. teams. Players signing an O.M.H.A. certificate may request from their team manager a transfer from Junior A to any O.H.A. games as they wish prior to December 15th, and in three games after that date. Players signing, however, that before signing an O.H.A. certificate they should have a written release from their O.M.H.A. club for the season. Players signing without such release may be subject to suspension.

The annual meeting of the O.M.H.A. will be held at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, on Saturday, December 5th. Nominations for all offices and proposed amendments to the Constitution or Regulations should be mailed to the Secretary, J. L. Christie, 6 Glen Eden Crescent, Toronto 13, without delay.

Dressen, Noren Fined $100 For Series Pranks

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Ford Frick Wednesday fined Manager Chuck Dressen of Brooklyn Dodgers and outfielder Irv Noren of New York Yankees $100 each for their part in incidents during the world series.

Dressen was fined for arguing with plate umpire Art Gore in the fourth game at Ebbets Field when the arbiter ruled that Phil Rizzuto had deceived Dodger runner on a third strike and not fanned, as the Dodgers contended.

Noren will find his series cheque $100 lighter because, Frick said, he stood outside the Yankee dugout in the final game and waved a towel derisively at the official scorers after they had given the error sign on a ball that Billy Martin hit to Junior Gilliam, Brooklyn second baseman, in the second inning.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS.

New York Yankees went 10 innings to defeat Brooklyn Dodgers over Cincinnati Reds, giving the Yankees the world series title in four straight games, 10 years ago today. The Yankees had DiMaggio, Keller and Selkirk in the outfield; Dahlgren, Gordon, Crosetti and Rolfe in the infield, Dickey catching and Hildebrand, Sundra and Murphy pitching. Waltzer was the losing pitcher, Murphy the winner.

Kansas City Battles from Behind For 1st Win Over Montreal Royals

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Down but not out, Kansas City Blues Wednesday night battled from behind to beat Montreal Royals 4-3 and keep alive their slim hopes in the little world series.

The best-of-seven series now stands 3-1 in favor of Montreal.

The Blues turned in a sparkling performance, scoring the tying and winning runs in the last of the sixth inning.

In tonight's fifth game, Montreal is expected to come back with Ramon Coleman, the righthander who won the second game of the series.

Manager Harry Craft of the Blues wasn't sure of his starting pitcher, but it might be Bob Wiesler or John Kucab.

Kansas City, which had played poor ball in dropping three straight at Montreal, gave a stellar performance afield behind the two-hit pitching of Bob Ferris and Mel Wright.

Ferris gave up both hits in working five innings and was lifted after rushing into a streak of wildness in the sixth.

Bill Skowron, Kansas City first baseman, got the Blues rolling in the first inning with a two-run double by catcher Jim Robertson in the bottom of the inning sewed up the game for the Blues.

Ed Roebuck, who shut out the Blues in the series opener, yielded all the runs.

Montreal lost the services of its power-hitting first-baseman, Rocky Nelson. He left after the game for his home in West Portsmouth, O. where his father is critically ill.

Red Feather Grid Judges

TONY GOLAB
The Golden Boy

Three men highly regarded in football circles have been named as judges of the fifth annual Red Feather Tournament of Champions, the high school grid classic sponsored by the OFSAA in cooperation with the T. Eaton Co. and The Telegram.

They are Squadron - Leader Tony Golab, former Golden Boy of Canadian football, Warren Stevens, athletics director, University of Toronto, and Norm Perry, president of the Canadian Rugby Union and former all-Canadian halfback with Sarnia Imperials.

WARREN STEVENS
Hoss at Varsity

Under their scrutiny will come teams from the eight districts of the province who will bid for the Golden Rule Award, put up for competition for the first time this year. This grid jamboree, which in the last four years has raised $44,141.80 for Community Chest services, (all money goes to the Red Feather services in the centres in which tickets are sold) and hits its nine in one $60,000 this year, will be held Oct. 23-24 at Exhibition Stadium. Teams will come from the WOSSA, NOSSA, EOSSA, CORSA, ITSAA, TISAA, Hamilton and Niagara districts of the provinces.

NORM PERRY
CRU president

Judges will score the teams 50 per cent. on yardage gained passing and rushing, scoring ability, etc., and 25 per cent on appearance on the field, how it handles itself, how well it shows the work of good coaching. The other 25 per cent will be judged on sportsmanship, keynote of these tournaments.

The team scoring the best total in these three categories will be awarded this year's Golden Rule Award, to be presented on the closing night by Joseph McCulley, warden of Hart House, U. of T.

Bisons Thump Hamilton Tigers

HAMILTON (CP) — Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League Wednesday night outscored Hamilton Tigers of the OHA Senior A series 5-1 in an exhibition game.

Bisons, in better condition than the newly-shorn Tigers, scored two goals in the first period, one in the second to match the one Don Dibbelt scored for Hamilton, and added two in the third.

Ken Hammond notched two goals for the Bisons, Don Marshall and Joe Lund the others.

Vancouver Nips Royals 3-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A shot that missed the net proved to be the winning goal Wednesday night as Vancouver Canucks nipped Western Hockey Royals 3-2 for their second Western Hockey League win in as many nights.

The goal that wasn't a goal came late in the third period when Canucks' Bill Wyrie swooped in on the Royals' net and tripped goaltender Ken Mathews just as he drew a bead on the open net.

The puck popped past the goal post but referee Lou Ferelli ruled that it was an automatic goal.

Andy Bathgate and Art Stone scored the other Vancouver goals. In the game at New Westminster, Gordie Fashoway tallied both New Westminster counters.

Blake Taylor Out of Football
